Dr. Sweazey entered his present work for the Presbyterian Church USA seven years ago, and his office is at 156 Fifth Avenue, N.Y. C. But his wife, children and he live in New Rochelle, N.Y.

After having led the singing of the Meetings for the past 29 years, Dr. Sidney E. Stringham of St. Louis, Mo., will be unable to attend this year. At the same dates of the Meetings he has obligations in the Methodist Conference, which he cannot rearrange.

As of yet, the appointment of another song leader has not been announced.

MC Orchestra Readies Concert

Maryville College orchestra will present a concert on November 15 at 8:00 p.m. in the Music Hall of the Fine Arts Center.

The program includes "Symphony No. 5 in B Flat Major" by Franz Schubert; A Manx Overture, "The Isles of Mountains and Glens" by Haydn Wood; and "Concerto No. 26 in D Major (Coronation) for piano and orchestra by W. A. Mozart.

Featured as soloist with the orchestra is Carolyn Marshall, senior music major from Etowah. The orchestra is under the direction of W. Curtis Hughes, instructor in music.

The orchestra is also preparing accompaniments for the "Messiah," as it has done in previous years.

Lloyd To Speak

French Club will hold its next meeting on November 8, at 6:40 p.m. in Anderson 204. The speaker will be Louise Lloyd who will give a talk on Europe.

The British Elections

Last week saw in Britain a national election which has returned Winston Churchill to the prime ministry and reduced Clemment Attlee's Labour Party to His Majesty's contradictory "loyal opposition". The Conservative victory was only slight, however (Churchill's party came to power with fewer votes than were polled by the defeated Labourites), and the campaign was significantly marked by a lack of real issues.

There were magnificant blasts of Churchillian prose and statements of social accomplishment by Labourites, but, on the whole, there was nothing much to argue about. The Labour plan of nationalization has been so generally accepted that the Tories are pledged to but a few alterations and limitations.

Churchill's colorful personality combined with memories of his brilliant wartime leadership doubtless was an influential factor. Perhaps most significant to British people was the daily, everpressing consciousness of national economic difficulty—probably a prime reason for Churchill's defeat six years ago.

At any rate, the Conservatives are in, the Labourites are out, and Liberals are as scarce as pounds sterling. Interestingly enough, Labour received more votes than any party in Britain has ever polled. It seems significant, too, that England has changed only administrations, not basic policies. Social and economic advances made under the Labour government remain and offer themselves as basis for even greater progress.

The role of actually directing British government and policy is a far different one for Mr. Churchill from his six years of having a loud voice with no real responsibility. His whole record points to his capability. Let us hope his record is not now broken, both for the sake of the best in Anglo-American relations, and for the continuation of that social program which has kept England on her feet through days of economic crisis and which makes real promise for the future. —DN

It Seems To Me

We hear every once in a while about all the advantages that are inherent and otherwise in being editor of Maryville College's newspaper. But after a number of recent bawlings out, callings down, and cussing out by assorted printers, girl friends, staff members, and People in Authority, we had, frankly, begun to wonder.

Our faith was restored this week, however, when we received, as a result of the dignity of our office, two season tickets to the International Live Stock Exposition at Union Stock Yards in Chicago. The dates are November 24 through December 1, and as soon as we figure up our cuts to see if its possible, we intend to go.

Finding someone really appreciative brings back our confidence that being Echo editor, despite our temporary misgivings, is pretty much glory after all. —DN

TO POP OFF WITH A PUMPKIN

Say, Bill Crothers, have you figured out yet which field those 20 or so pumpkins you "picked up" for the freshman Hallowe'en party came from? Some enterprising young lady—not a home-ec major, either-suggested making use of all the pumpkin-insides which were so energetically removed by the pumpkin-head committee. We think she was scheming to prepare a pudding or some like concoction and present it to Miss Ware for use on Sunday nite.

CONTINUING THE BORROWING OF FRUITS AND VEGETABLES

What about that big boy's picking dozens of cultured marigolds and zinnias and other such cultivated flo'rs out of a church garden and his gal friend's remarking, "I've seen such lovely wildflowers". . . So. . . we all haven't had botany. At least that was not so bad as the innocent one who, asked what a posy is, replied, "that's when they go after a man to lynch him."

SPEAKING OF BOTANY, BIOLOGY, AND LABORATORIES

Did you know that the red-striped barber's pole has grown out of the old Grecian custom of the barbers bleeding their customers? In those days they thought losing blood was good for the soul. Now, we know better (to stick in a serious note)—giving blood is good for the soldiers.

Was it the same day as the barber-pole story that Mrs. Brown told her class the gory details of bacterial-caused diseases? As some less-hardy victims (of Biology 101) staggered out before the period was over, she remarked that 'twere better that "they walk out and faint in the hall than pass out in her room." (misquote! misquote!)

WATCH IT!

Why don't the Baldwin girls like the first floor? Could it be because the screens are nailed on—no escaping escapades! One first floor "froshling" is getting a package from an out-of-state friend containing a rope-ladder for use from the third floor. Hey, there! Tampering with U.S. mail is illegal! Also, there are those who plan on fleeing by taking to the trees. After all, Ralph has to have something to do about two in the morning.

We think there should be a column exclusively for Miss Walker's jokes. For the sake of example here's a—shall we say "milder" one—which we were reminded of during that Comedy of Horrors Wednesday midnite. The joke concerns the little Egyptian girl who didn't know right from wrong. . . well. . . she became a mummy.

TOO LATE NOW

One way Bob Read studies for a psychology test is to have a bull session till three in the morn with some highly interesting and entertaining (?) teachers from Germany, then to go down and sleep on the book in the coke room till after breakfast.

ALL INTERESTED SOPHOMORES read this item: who was the lovely one who, when asked in English Lit what the Aeolyian Fields were, made the astounding answer, "Weren't they in the First World War?"

ALL INTERESTING SOPHOMORES, especially the ones who didn't come close to being elected Hobo King (not that we didn't appreciate Walt Elwood's costume—it was a costume wasn't it?—but that beard scared us!) report promptly to our office. No doubt we will be able to find great use for you. Is this the proper place to add that we think Mary Jim Bevan, Hobo Queen, looked real cute with that "thing" tied around her neck.

DOWN WITH THE SECEEDERS

The Yankees up on Baldwin third, especially Betty from Brooklyn, are refusing to lend their clothes to the rebels—those. . . who hang Confederatee flags over their doors!

MARTIN FOR MAYPOLE

Don't forget V.C.'s who you're going to vote for Maypole. Yes, that same little Susie who went running around the other day all over Pearsons chasing presents. (If you don't understand, just go to a Y.W. discussion and ask her. In the process you will see her blush!)

HALLOWE'EN IS OVER NOW

So maybe Wes Miles will stop trying to run competition with the comics. For a while there in the World Religions class, he was making some pretty (no, not pretty!) funny faces.

MOVIE BEAT

"Along the Great Divide" is the high-toned western playing at the Capitol Monday and Tuesday of next week.

Kirk Douglas stars as the U.S. Marshal who rescues the old rustler (Walter Brennan) from being lynched for murder, and on his long journey back to the trial in Santa Loma he faces trouble from the rustler's fiery daughter (Virginia Mayo), ambush, treachery, sandstorms, water shortage, and haunting memories of his own father's death.

Back in Santa Loma the hero revives, discovers the real murderer, and, traditionally, "shoots it out" with him.

Burt Lanacster portrays Jim Thorpe in "Jim Thorpe—All American," which is showing at the Capitol Wednesday and Thursday. This life story of Thorpe, the great Indian champion of football, baseball, and the Olympics, sticks closer to life than the usual Hollywood biography. Stripped of his troubles because he has played a summer of semi-pro baseball, Thorpe leads a hard life complicated with liquor, his wife's desertion, and no jobs.

The Park brings back an old, but pleasant show Monday in "Bachelor's Daughters," which stars Claire Trevor, Gail Russell, Jane Wyatt, Ann Dvorak, Billie Burke, and Adolphe Menjou.

Renting a Long Island house, the unrelated six set up housekeeping as a family and run into all the scrapes and good times a real family has. An added attraction is Eugene List, the G. I. pianist who entertained at the Potsdam Conference.

Something strange and new is found in "Teresa," showing at Park Tuesday and Wednesday. The picture features two newcomers to Hollywood, John Ericson and Pier Angeli, a slender, childlike Italian girl of 18, who plays Ericson's warbride with no makeup or fancy hair-do.

After a wartime romance in a well-filmed war episode in Italy the couple return to a humid Manhattan slum. Here the hero, unable to hold a job and once again tied to the apron strings of his bitter mother, must work out his psycho-neurotic troubles with the help of his hopeful bride. It looks like the best bet of the week.

Thursday and Friday at the Park feature, Lizabeth Scott as parole officer over the pretty parolee (Jan Greer) who is beating her time with Dennis O'Keefe, in "The Company She Keeps." Lizabeth is unbelievably self-sacrificing and noble even when she has a legal chance to send Jane back to prison.

"The Gold Rutlers" is the rip-roaring western playing at the Park Saturday.

NEW IN THE LIBRARY

Another James Street novel, "The High Calling," will appeal to every warm-hearted person who likes to read about the mixed troubles and joys of a minister's life. London Wingo, hero of "The Gauntlet," returns to the scene of his first pastorate a widower with his lovely daughter Paige.

Romance with the engaged son of Wingo's bitter enemy is in store for Paige, while Wingo finds happiness in the understanding of a pretty new friend, Forrest Roberts.

If you want the front line story on the war in Korea, pick up "War In Korea" in the Reading Room. Written by Marguerite Higgins, a reporter second in the hearts of Americans only to Ernie Pyle, this tale is told with the discerning eye of the expert reporter and the sympathy of a woman watching her countrymen fight. Read "War In Korea" for an up-to-date picture of MacArthur, Walker, Dean, other officers, and the G.I.'s.

"The Short Koran: Designed For Easy Reading" offers all the non-Moslems the chance to understand Mohammed's great teachings in a readable book that will delight the thinkers.

MUSIC NOTES

We have discovered a composer among the students of Maryville College in the person of William H. Deihl, senior music theory major from Asheville, N.C. Bill has been composing periodically for the past three years, and the benfits of his arduous work are now being realized.

The H. T. Fitzsimons Company of Chicago, Ill., published in 1948 Bill's first hymn, "Our God, We Humbly Pray," which was sung by the Maryville College Vesper Choir on its Southern Tour in the spring of 1948, and just recently was performed at Vespers on October 14.

"Jesu, Jesu, Most and Least," a Christmas anthem that is dedicated to the Maryville College Vesper Choir and Harry Harter, is part of Bill's latest work, and is due to be published soon by the Cecil Brodt Music Company of Charlotte, N. C.

The culmination of Bill's musical production during his college career is his special studies project, "Highlanday," a musical narrative designed for chorus, orchestra, and narration, based on a day in the life of a typical Southern Mountain Highlander.

Its preliminary performance will be presented here at Maryville College in the spring of '52, and its premier will be given at the Transylvania Music Camp this summer, during which the NBC studio will transcribe the performance from coast-to-coast.

Church Schools Plan Programs

Broadway Methodist Church School, under the direction of Charlie Schroeder, is making tentative plans for a social program. For study, they have recently begun a series of topics on "The Christian Way and Faith".

At First Methodist where George W. Day and C. C. Chamberlain lead, a movie will be shown.

Mrs. G. H. Traylor and George Carpenter, leaders of the First Baptist, will continue their study of the topic, "The History of Israel".

New Providence Presbyterian's College Class under Archibald Pieper and Dave Reed is studying "Broadening Your Horizon," and are now on Pacifism. The Crusader's Class, under Dr. Edwin R. Hunter and Bob Buchanan, has taken up the study of "Some Considerations for a Christian".

●ONE PERSON'S OPINION . . . . Early this week, on Monday to be specific, that Pillar of truth the Knoxville Journal, carried on its sports pages an article by Tom Anderson to the effect that "Neighboring Maryville College is due much credit for a fine job of deemphasizing. Two years ago Coach L. S. Honaker announced that Maryville would stop giving any concessions to athletes whatsoever. . . ." He then went on to mention the fact that the loss to Carson-Newman was about the fifteenth in a row.

Personally, we like Mr. Anderson's column but there are times when we wonder and this is one of them. We had meant to make somewhat of a defense of the type of football played at Maryville and many other schools later on in the season but the article in the Journal makes this week's issue just as appropriate.

In talking with a fellow Maryvillian some time ago, there are only three reasons why a guy would play college football, so he thought. They were:

1. Because he was getting paid for it;
2. Because he was on a winning team;
3. Because he played for a coach who made it fun to play;

There is another reason, but it can fit in just as well with number three-some boys go out for college athletics because they like to play the game as a game. We hereby get to the point of these few paragraphs. Students play football, run cross country, or go out for wrestling and other sports at Maryville College, not primarily for reason number one or perhaps for two, though history shows they has a right to be proud about MC teams, but because they like to play football and run cross country.

We would be one of the first ones in this world to admit that Coaches Honaker, Davis, and Johnson, are not the best coaches in the world and that perhaps they don't get as much out of their material as someone else could do, but is this the one great focal point of life at Maryville College? Are these boys here to play football or run 4.2 miles every day or are they here to try to learn something of themselves and their fellowmen? We say no to the first question and you, Mr. or Miss Reader can answer the second.

Maryville College has never de-emphasized football or any other sport—though the trackmen may have a justifiable word or two to say—nor have athletes ever gotten concessions to play a sport here on the Hill—save perhaps to have half a jump on their fellow students if they have Miss Heron for English. The fact of the matter is that MC is operating practically under the same system as it was operating under some twenty years ago. Of course you may say, "And it sure looks like it with the football team losing their eighteenth in a row." Ah, yes, poor misguided soul, but have you ever looked at the records as one Al Smith used to say?

In football, Maryville College teams have won 182 games and lost but 159 since 1903 and only up until the late 1930's did teams like Tennessee, Vanderbilt, Kentucky, and Chattanooga drop off the Scots gridiron schedule and up to the twenties other teams such as Alabama, Auburn, Geogia Tech, the University of Mississippi, Wake Forest, Clemson, and the University of Florida commonly appeared on the schedule. Take Cross Country also as an example; records show 20 wins and eight losses in the last ten years. Mr. Anderson also might be interested in what UT has done in wrestling and baseball against Maryville's de-emphasized athletes—the records show that in the former the mighty Vols have won the tremendous total of two (2) cage mattings with MC while losing eighteen (18). In baseball, the emphasized athletes of UT have done a little better—especially over the last ten years when MC has won seven of nine contests played with the Vols. Mr. Tom Anderson might also acquire of the Mr. Anderson of a different first name why UT has not scheduled Maryville in the last three years, though UT has had "one of the finest" diamond squads in the country to hear the Knoxville papers tell it. Is it because, he is afraid Maryville might beat them on a couple of bunts and a sacrifice play without even getting two hits in the game.

Lombe may not be the world's best all-around coach but ask some smart Dodger fans on campus what they think would have happend to the Bums had he been at their reins. You cynics may not think Maryville will ever win another game but you are wrong—why don't you ever drop in a skull session or ask some alumnus like Dr. Lea Callaway or John Stone or "Speedy" Ruble or Bobby Boring and see what they think of MC's coaches. I don't think you'll find them holding your attitude at all but might even punch you in the nose, verbally or otherwise—they just might have gotten something out of Maryville College and amateur athletics even if you did not.

Just read the few lines heading this week's column and think as to how they apply to Maryville College athletics in general and perhaps football in particular. We think its just another one of those acivities on campus whereby students just get that much more out of college life and make MC what it is. And I daresay, perhaps in not much relevance to the subject that the per-capita average of students who could go out, build a house, work a 200 acre farm, and milk the family cow, is greater in this college than that effiency-ized one fifteen miles away where perhaps the football athlete specializes in glow-worm farming atop Mt. LeConte.

In spite of those folks who think to the contrary, Maryville College athletics will never die nor will the spirit lessen in those who believe in it.

●CRAPSHOOTING IN THE HUDDLE . . . Dr. Hammentree's new definition of a huddle was one of the best we've heard of in a long time. He was a member of the class of 1910 and could be easily spotted in pictures by the broad shoulders he had. He was the right guard for three years back in a day when the starter started and finished the game. As for games played by MC then—Alabama, Kentucky, Auburn, Clemson, North Carolina, Wake Forest, Tennessee, Vanderbilt—to name a few.

Highlanders Meet Georgetown, Teck On Road

Scot Thinlies Run Against Ga. Tech

MC Defeat Tigers, 18-45

Today the Scots' cross country team steps into big time once again. They are running against the Rambling Wrecks of Georgia Teh at Atlanta. This will be the third time the Scotties have met the Engineers in cross country and the Orange and Garnet has a good chance of coming out on top. The Tech harriers will be in for quite a surprise if they think that Maryville will be a soft touch. The Scot forces led by Coach Ken Johnson and captioned by Tom Kelley will be out to win.

Win Number Two

Last Saturday the Scotties soundly defeated Sewanee 18-45. Dick Kerr, who is improving steadily in each Scot meet, broke the tape first and was followed by Ric Rogers of Maryville and Bill Pilcher of Sewanee. After Pilcher five Scotties crossed the finish line before the next Sewanee runner, Morris.

Good Old Golf Course, Ugh

At the beginning of the race the runners were bunched together, but after going around the golf course the Scot harriers pulled to the front. From that point on the Scotties, with Dick Kerr, Ric Rogers, Neale Pearson, and George Day leading the way, had the race well in hand.

The order of finish was: Kerr (MC), Rogers (MC), Pilcher (MC), Pearson (MC), Day (MC), Kelley (MC), McMillian (MC), Helwig (MC), Morris (S), McMannus (S), Morse (S), Pluckett (S), Farmer (S), and Worratt (S).

Chillies, Howies Split In Volleyball

Two games have been played in the Women's Varsity Volleyball Tournament between the Chillie squad, captained by Nanette Enloe and the Howie squad, captained by Grace Osborne. The first game was a close one with the Chillies nosing out the Howies to the tune of 21 to 20.

The Chillies took the lead at the first of the game leading 13 to 6 at the half, but the Howies gave them a good scare during the next half as they came up even with the Chillies, the score being tied 19-19 with one minute to play.

The Howies came out the victors in the second encounter, beating the Chillies 27-23. Again the game was close all the way. The Howies took the lead at the first of the game and were still leading 14-10 at the end of the first half. The Chillies threatened during the next half but were never able to overcome the Howie lead.

The last game of the tournament, to be played on Tuesday afternoon, Nov. 6 at 4:00 in the Intramural Gym, will decide the winner of the Volleyball tournament. All students interested in watching a good fast game of volleyball are invited to attend this last game between the Chillies and the Howies.

Line-ups:

Soccer

Intramural soccer finally received that which touch football has been missing all year long—rain and cold. The latter league had been fortunate in being rained out only once all semester long but it looks like the rainy season has set in.

Sigs—Pre-Mins Tie

Monday's UN-YMCA game was re-scheduled for Friday because of a lack of players, so the season's initial opener was the scoreless tie between the Alpha Sigma Scotties and the Pre-Mins on Tuesday. Though both teams started out shy a man-apiece and somewhat awkwardly in their play, the last half was much reminiscent of better play. The Sigs booted the ball down to Pre-Min territory on many occasions but could not get a scoring punch when they got in close —either losing control of it, having the Pre-Mins break the play up, or else taking a too long shot of it.

The Pre-Mins offense wasn't as polished but towards the game's end was giving the Sigs a run for their money.

Neither team's defense had to prove too much and only later on in the season when the offense catches up will the halfbacks and fullbacks have to really worry.

SOCCER RULES

1. The Kickoff

a. The ball must roll forward its circumference before it may be kicked or passed to a teammate.

b. Players must be behind the ball on the kick-off.

2. Free kicks from spot: Defense must be 10 yards away.

a. If ball touches hands or arms (unless arms are against body).

b. Unnecessary roughness such as charging, tripping, pushing, blocking with contact of man without the ball.

c. Unsportsmanlike conduct.

d. Off sides.

3. Penalty Kick

a. It is taken if any of the above occur in the penalty area which extends 10 yards from the goal.

4. Out-of-bounds

a. At the side of the field—the throw-in must be in one motion with heels down.

b. At the end of the field—if last touched by defense, a corner kick is taken by offense; if last touched by offense, a goal kick is taken by defense. The goalie may punt or a fullback may place-kick. The kick is taken 10 yards in front of the goal.

5. Off-sides: A player is off-sides if ahead of the ball at the kickoff or if he is behind ball. fullbacks and without the ball. He must at all times have at least one fullback and the goalie between himself and the goal.

6. Blocking the goalie: The goalie may not be charged unless he has the ball.

Eagles Outkick MC To Win In Mud, 12-0

Ashe Averages 40 Yards In Duel With Sharp

Carson-Newman's Eagles outfloundered the Scots of Maryville 12-0 on a rain-drenched, mud-soaked field last Saturday night before a homecoming crowd—most of whom forsook the stands for dryer pastures before the onslaught of a pouring rain. The foot was literally put back into the game of football as both teams—playing for breaks—spent most of the night kicking on first, second, or third downs. On the Eagle's side, it was Hubert Ashe who booted the pigskin eighteen times with a 40-yards-per-kick average. For the Scots it was Grant Sharp in a new role and he did remarkably well, averaging 34 yards a clip in 14 attempts.

CN Scores Early

After returning the opening kick-off 20 yards to the Blue and Orange 25 yard line, Jerry Connor booted to Charlie Allen at midfield, Allen returning it to the CN 44. After each team ridded itself of the ball's possession, Carson-Newman got the break it needed when Allen fumbled a 49-yard kick by Ashe on the nine. A stout MC defense held for three plays with the visitors advancing only to the four but on fourth down they pulled one out of the hat to score. Clarence Smith went out wide as a flanker and eluded Jimmy Callaway who could not back up fast enough and took a ten-yard pass from Pat Evans for the score. Smith failed to score and the Eagles led, 6-0, for the rest of the half.

Sharp vs. Ashe

After the Scots had driven inside the Carson-Newman 30 soon after the opening of the second canto, the Eagles recovered a fumble by Jimmy Campbell and Ashe kicked out of trouble on first down. The rest of the first half was spent in a like manner as neither team elected to handle the ball and Sharp and Ashe sent booming kicks one after another across the muddy ground—all grass having been divested from the playing area's surface in the first quarter.

A Tough Loss

The Scots also lost Charlie Allen for the season in the second quarter when he took one of Ashe's punts and was hit immediately as he caught the ball. Allen slipped in the morass and was accidentally hit in the kidneys by John Lambert making the tackle. It wasn't too serious but will keep him out of play for the rest of the season.

Campbell Almost Does It

When Ashe kicked off to start the second-half, Campbell grabbed th ball and headed up the middle getting good backing all the way and breaking into the clear at mid-field only to be pulled down on the 40 from behind. Harold Glad reeled off eight yards over his right tackle and short gains by Sharp sandwiched around it gave MC a first down on the CN 30.

The Scotties attack ran out of gas, though, and faltered with Sharp kicking out on the visitor's five. Another series of kicking exchanges followed, and the Scots gained a break in the waning moments of thee third period when Homer Garren fell on Ashe's fumble of Sharp's kick.

Too Much Mud

The snap from center failed to get back to Sharp on the first play and the Eagles recovered. After another exchange of kicks which saw the Eagles partially block one of Sharp's boots, the Eagles marked up their second and final touchdown.

With the Scots down on the 21, Sharp booted out but the partially blocked ball spiralled only 23 yards upfield out of bound on the 44. Ashe hit his right end for 23 yards to the 26 and down to the 16 one play later. Evans hit the middle for two and Connor smashed down to the two for a first down. Evans then slipped over two plays later to make it 12-0 as Smith again failed to add the extra point.

Two Guys With Sore Feet

With the Eagles minus several men, the rain was a break for them. Ashe's punting was the best offense and defense they had. Had it been on a dry field, the game might have turned out differently, but it was not and Sharp's punts could not match those of Ashe. Sharpe nevertheless did well under the odds and is to be commended for it.

The Scots get another chance at the Eagles on November 10, there.

Scotties Meet Tigers With Casualty List Full

The Maryville Scotties will take to the field at Hinton Field this Saturday night to meet the Georgetown, Kentucky Tigers in not the best shape of the season, as Charlie Allen, Jimmie McBrayer, and John Morton will be out of action for sure, and several others, such as Harold Glad, will have to be careful not to aggravate old injuries. The Scotties are hoping for a dry field for this game, something which they have not had very often this year, in the hope that maybe they will at least get to try some of the plays they have been practicing so hard all year.

Last Year's Game

The Tigers and the Scotties have met only once during their respective football histories, that being last year when the Tigers ripped out a 26-14 win over the Scotties in another game played on a wet field. The Tigers led all the way as Quarterback Ronnie Pinchback passed to Halfback J. R. Turner for a touchdown that put the Georgetownians ahead 13-0, after Pinchback had already passed for the first touchdown.

Longest One Yet

Charlie Allen then put the Scotties back in the game as he gathered in Jim Jenkins' punt on his own thirteen yard line, cut to the left and then right, and raced 87 yards for the touchdown, outrunning the entire Georgetown team in the process. But the run only seemed to enrage the Tigers and they drove right back to score again, on a run this time, and the half ended with the score 19-7.

The second half opened up in a rush, as the Scotties dove some eighty yards for a touchdown the first time they got their hands on the ball, a drive climaxed as Allen tossed a pass to Jerry King for the score. When Glad kicked off again, the Tigers again took the ball, and controlled it completely until they managed to score again with only a few seconds left to play.

For the Orange and Black

Not too much is known about the men from Georgetown this year except that their roster shows only four of last year's starting lineup back again this year. Head coach Leo Yarutis, a professional psychologist starting his first year as head coach at the college, and his assistant, Miles McMillan, also starting his first year at the school and also his first year as a collegiate coach, seem to be in the midst of a rebuilding period, for there are only three seniors listed on their team, all of whom are on the starting line-up.

Pinch Pinchback

In the Backfield, Coach Yarutis has it the easiest, on paper at least, with last year's star passer, Ronnie Pinchback, ready to go for him, and both of last year's starting halfbacks and the full back back again this year. At left half will be J. R. Turner, a 150 pound junior, who plays both offense and defense, and is one of the team's best ball carriers. At the other halfback slot there will be more experience at the tackles. Jack Carye, a letterman, will most likely start for the Orange and Black. Jack tips the scales at 220, and not very much of it is fat. At the other side of the line, J. C. Morrison, a senior will be in at the starting gun. At the guards, the two starters may well be Phil Browning, a letterman who weighs 170 and Rick Newell, a sophomore from Berkly, Michigan. Others in the fight for the guard slots are Sheriil Henegar and Lewis Loving.

In The Middle Of It

Starting at center will be Lester Craft, who weighs only 150 pounds, but will be at center on offense, and back up the line on defense. Coming in to spell him might be Bob Baugh, a 240 pound freshman, or Bill Van Winkle, another freshman.

And SO

Saturday night will be Homecoming at Georgetown, and the Maryville Scotties will be out to ruin it for them. Considering the lack of experience of the Tigers, the Scotties, if they ever get the breaks, might be able to do just that.

Experimental Theatre Does 'Hero,' 'Proposal'

Experimental Theatre presented two one-act plays last night. The first entitled, "Enter the Hero," starred Darothy Greenhagen and George Caldwell. "The Marriage Proposal," starring Marion Sue Munson, Kent Buser, and Bruce Meuser, was shown second.

House Manager, Walter Elwood, announced there was a full house for both the 7:30 and the 9:00 showings. "Enter the Hero" was written by Theresa Hillman and included Elaine Barker and Anne Buckley. Anton Tchecov is the author of "The Marriage Proposal."

Theatre-in-the-round was the method of staging the plays.

'Die Fledermaus' Heard By MC'ers

By Roberta Hadley

Approximately 50 Maryville students journeyed to Knoxville last Friday night to witness the first of the UT Concerts, Johann Strauss' scintillating operetta, "Die Fledermaus."

The people of Vienna turned thumbs down on "Fledermaus" when it was first produced in the eighteen-seventies, but one year later this lively masterpiece was wholeheartedly accepted by Vieneese audiences as it now has been throughtout the world.

With a company of 65, the English version of "Fledermaus" found Knoxville a receptive audience. Musical directors were Thomas Martin and Michael Kuttner.

The well-versed cast with several excellent voices distributed among the leads, aided by three changes of set and attractive costumes received good suppoert from the orchestra, although the orchestra lacked volume during the overture.

Irra Petina, mezzo-soprano, was starred as Dosalinda while Michael Bartlett played the part of Eisenstein, her husband. Miss Petina's voice was unquestionably one of the best, but vivacious Adelaide Bishop, who played the part of Adele, her chambermaid, stole the audience's heart with her sparkling personality and clear soprano voice.

Alfred, an opera tenor and Rosalinda's lover, played by Lloyd Thomas Leech, showed excellent adaptation to his part and gave an outstanding performance. Orlofsky, a wealthy but bored prince, was ably portrayed by Earl Redding. His manner and expression were perfectly suited to the part. John Pelletti lent more amusement to the opera in his non-singing part of the drunken jailer.

The chorus and dancing team added the final touch of color and gaiety to this charming opera.

MC Observes Annual Homecoming Ceremonies

Founder's Day and Homecoming ceremonies began last Saturday morning with the annual chapel service at which Dr. Eugene Carson Blake of Philadelphia, Pa., spoke and the Vesper Choir sang. Dr. Blake is Stated Clerk of the Presbyterian USA General Assembly.

The Homecoming parade left from Thaw Hall for town at 3:00 p.m. with floats from the dorms and many campus organizations. The Everett High School Band marched as did the MC band.

Alumni were entertained at a barbeque on the baseball field later Saturday afternoon, and despite rain that began about dark, a majority remained to see other returnees.

At the game half-time, Beryl Stewart was crowned Homecoming Queen, with Hazel Woozd and Gracie Scruggs attending.

Memorial Hall was judged winner of this year's dorm decoration contest.

Tish Buchanan was Memorial's decoration chairman.

Classes Sponsor Hallowe'en Parties

The Junior class presented its annual horror show, "The Mummy's Case," by Art Van Alstyne, at 9:45 p.m. in the Alumni Gym on Wednesday, October 31.

The one-act play, which was viewed by hundreds of Maryville students, was directed by Van Alstyne and Austin Van Pelt. The plot centered about the search for a valuable ruby in the coffin of an Egyptian king, which had been brought to this country by a Dr. Condor and placed in the Egyptian Room of the Greenback Municipal Museum.

Mystery and suspense were provided as the mummy who inhabits the coffin decided to do a little exploring.

The cast included Hershel Mosier, Mummy; Agatha, Shirley Postelthwaite; Meshack, Arnie Munn; Boris, Lee Cook; Zora, Ruth Burgoss; Dr. Condor, Dick Dart; Baxter, Joe Stater; Mike, Bill Green; Joe, Bob Navratil; Lois, Isabel Leitch; Ralph, Bruce Miller; body, Kathleen Craven.

Jay Spenser was in charge of properties and Van Alstyne handled the special effects.

Preevious to the horror show each class held parties which began at 7:30 p.m.

The freshman class met at the Intramural Gym to view a variety show and take part in group games. Bill Breen was general chairman for the group.

The sophomore class sponsored a hobo party which was held in Barleett Hall. Sophomores dressed as hoboes, chose Walt Elwood and Mary Jim Bevan as King and Queen of the hoboes, respectively.

Isabel Leitch and Nancy Ferguson directed the junior class party which featured a spook house, variety show, and square dancing.

As is customary, the senior class visited the parties of each of the other classes.

Vols To Hear Russell

Cornelia Russell, itinerant worker for the National Student Volunteers Organization, will speak at Student Vols Sunday, November 4 in Bartlett Hall after Vespers.

Miss Russell, who will be a representaitve at the International Student Volunteers Conference at Kansas University during the Christmas vacation, will tell of her work in order to stimulate further interest in the work of the Student Volunteers.

She will remain on Maryville campus through Monday in order to interview any interested students.

IRC Plans Forum

"Resolved: that Iran and Egypt are justified in demanding nationalism for their people" is the statement to be discussed at the student forum being held by IRC, November 5 in Thaw 214 at 6:30 p.m.

Russell Owens is moderating. Several other students, Van Holland, Charles LaRue, Lynn Miller and Carson Seeley, are investigating facts of the topic to provide background material.

Major To Visit MC

Major Christine D. Ehlers will be on campus Thursday, Nov. 15, for the purpose of contacting women majoring in the fields, physical education, home ec., arts and crafts, and the biological sciences. She will speak in Bainonian Hall at 7:15.

Major Ehlers, who is attached to the Women's Medical Specialist Corps (Physical Therapists) will explain the possibilities of becoming professionally qualified as a dietician, a physical therapist, or an occupational therapist through the W.M.S.C.

Majoh Ehlers, originally from Westhampton, N.Y., is permanently assigned to the US Army Hospital, Ft. Benning, Ga. She holds a BS degree in Physical Education from Arnold College, and a Physical Therapy Certificate from Harvard Medical School.

She has eight years of service with the army, two of which were spent overseas. At present, Major Ehlers is assigned to TDY Hqs. Third Army, W.M.S.C. Procurement Activities.

Meds See Movie

The movie, "Journey Into Medicine" was shown to Pre-Med Club at its last meeting, Thursday, November 1, in Fayerweather Science Hall.

The film was borrowed from the American Medical Association, and concerned the typical life of a medical student as he progressed along the steps of becoming a doctor.

New members were also received into the club. Present officers are Glenn Watts, president; Jim Callaway, vice-president; Mary Ann Brown, secretary-treasurer, and Mary Jo Pribble, program chairman.

Schroeder To Pray

Wally Schroeder will lead Prayer Meeting next Thursday night, November 8, 1951, at 9:30 in the Y Rooms. He will speak on the topic, "A House Not Made With Hands."

George Day will provide the special music with a solo and a duet with Charlie Schroeder, who will lead singing. Barbara Scott is to play the piano.

Isabel Leitch led last week's meeting.

Shellkopf To Speak

German Club will hear a speech by Earl Shellkopf on the legends of wherewolves, vampires and other superstitions in Germany, November 12 in Thaw 206 at 6:30.

Plans for a Christmas party will also be discussed.

To Visit Maryville

United States Marine Corps Headquarters is sending Captain James W. Donnell, U.S. Marine Corps, to Maryville College for a reconnaissance and "get acquainted" visit on November 26.

Captain Donnell and Staff Sergeant Howard P. McGriff, U. S. Marine Corps, will be on campus to explain Marine Corps Officer Training programs to college officials and to arrange for a future visit in early 1952.

Undergraduates have an opportunity of enrolling in the Platoon Leaders Class of the Corps while attending an uninterrupted four year college course. A similar Officer Candidate Course is available for college seniors and graduates.

The Captain travels out of Atlanta. His address is: Office of Officer Procurement; Headquarters, Southeastern; Recruiting Division, Building No. 45; U. S. Naval Air Station; Atlanta, Ga.

Bainonians To Meet

Bainonian will meet at 6:15 Saturday evening in Bainonian Hall. The program will be a freshman talent show.

VOLUME 37 | MARYVILLE, TENNESSEE, NOVEMBER 17, 1951 | NUMBER 8

Senator Estes Kefauver Visits Maryville Monday

Praises College In State Tour

Feted At Reception

By Dick Newman

"I always enjoy coming to Maryville, especially Maryville College," was the statement of Sen. Estes Kefauver (D., Tenn.) in a Highland Echo interview Monday. "My heart has always been with this college, and I hear from many miles away the great work Maryville is doing," he said.

The Senator was entertained by the local Democratic women's club at an informal reception Monday evening at Chilhowee Club House. Mentioned prominantly as a possible candidate for national office next year, he is currently making an extensive tour of the state.

"Maryville College is recognized as one of our soundest, most progressive institutions," Sen. Kefauver stated. "While here, I am especially enjoying being with my old and good friends the Queeners."

Dr. Verton M. Queener, professor of history, is chairman of the division of social sciences. Mrs. Evelyn Queener is assistant professor of physical education for women. They have been intimate friends of Sen. Kefauver for a number of years.

Two of the Senator's sisters attended Maryville College. Nancy Kefauver, now Mrs. Leroy Fooschee, ex-'29, of Knoxville was at MC from 1925 to 1928. Nora Kefauver, ex-'33, of Madisonville, spent her freshman year, 1929-30, here.

Sen. Kefauver himself attended the University of Tennessee at Knoxville, whre he played tackle with the UT football team against Maryville for three years. Maryville was always a "good hard game," he recalld. In 1922, UT defeated MC, 21-0; 1923, 14-14; 1924, 28-10.

In an informal address at the reception, the Senator, introduced by Dr. Queener, stated that TVA is going to need another step-up in power to keep abreast of defense and manufacturing activities in the valley region.

TVA, which he defined as "democracy in action" has proved its national value since more than "one-half the defense plants necesitated by the present emergency have been built in the TVA region."

Regarding industrial development of the state by private enterprise, he said that studies show that in only "two or three cases" have the industries resulted from moves from other states.

"They are all new businesses or expansion of industries in other states," he said. "In this way TVA, a governmnt operation, is lending vitality to our private enterprise economy."

Mentioning the crime investigation which brought him national recognition, Sen. Kefauver stated that an enlightened citizenship makes organized crime impossible. The election of reform candidates makes organized crime ble. The election of reform candidates in a number of elections earlier this month is believed by many to have heightened the Senator's chances of a place in '52 nominations.

Although he claims he is not a candidate, a growing number of admirers recognize in Estes Kefauver the qualifications of a man capable of national office.

YW To Hear Mrs. Lloyd

YWCA will meet at 1:30 Sunday afternoon in the Library. The speaker for the program will be Mrs. Ralph W. Lloyd who will speak on "Thanksgiving."

Those participating in the program will be Sandra McDougal, invocation; Elizabeth Murphy, song leader; Phyllis Schamehorn, scripture; Janet Kihlgren, prayer; Ruth Orr, solo; Ann Dishner, pianist; and Lori Pettersen, benediction.

McClure To Preach At Vespers Tomorrow

The Rev. M. Scott McClure will be the guest preacher at Vespers Sunday evening at 7 in the FAC Music Hall. McClure is a graduate of Maryville, class of '48, and also a graduate of Princeton Theological Seminary.

He is now General Presbyter for the Union Presbytery.

Sunrise Service To Be Thursday

On Thursday morning at 7 a.m. the annual Thanksgiving Sunrise service will be held in the Broadway Methodist Church.

Grace Myers, sophomore religious education major from Girard, Pa.; Nannette Enloe, senior sociology major from Atlanta, Ga.; and Ronald Fleming, from Dravosburg, Pa., a senior English major, will speak.

George Day, senior biology major from Philadelphia, Pa., will lead the hymns.

After this union service, which is sponsored by the Baptist Student Union, everyone is invited to a dutch breakfast at the College Hill Grill.

MC Orchestra Readies Concert

The Maryville College Orchestra under the direction of W. Curtis Hughes, will give its Fall Concert in the Music Hall of the Fine Arts Center on Monday evening, November 19 at 8:00 p.m.

Featured will be Carolyn Marshall, senior piano major from Etowah as piano soloist. Katherine Crews will be concert mistress.

The program will include "Symphony No. 5 in B flat Major" by Franz Schubert, "A Manx Overture" by Haydn Wood, and "Piano Concerto No. 26 in D Major" (Coronation) by W. A. Mozart.

Members of the orchestra include the following: violins, Katherine Crews, Pierina Bernardini, Anne Yoakum, Bill Deihl, Alice Eaddy, Catherine Snedeker, Rosemary Avery, Ann Kirkpatrick; viola, Dorothy Horne; violoncella, Doris Somerville; double-bass, Ruth Blackburn;

Flutes, Barbara Rosensteel, Nancy Dunn; clarinets, Randal LeQuire, Mary Anne Browne; bassoon, Larry Thompson; trumpets, Clarence Reaser, Jim Fisher; French horns, Evelyn Guss, David Gates; trombone, Walter Rowley; percussion, Marcia McKinney.

Classical Art To Be Offered Next Semester

A new course, Classical Art (Art 302) is scheduled to be offered next semester, it has been announced.

"While it should be of particular interest to history, philosophy, and literature majors, it is available to any student interested in the field. Since the Greek and Roman civilizations have tempered Western thinking and art expression even to the present day, the course is a basic one," said Charlotte B. Johnson, assistant professor of art.

"The art courses are designed to contribute to the liberal arts curriculum at Maryville," she announced, "offering the students the opportunity of a broader cultural background." The survey (Art 202) to be offered next semester emphasizes the history of painting in presenting the development of art principals.

For those interested in the beginnings of modern European history and culture, Miss Johnson pointed out, there is Art 306, Italian Renaissance art from 1500 to 1700, centering around Michaelangelo of Rome and Titian of Venice.

In the applied arts field, there are several studio courses (Art 52, 62, 72, 82) in drawing and painting, for which students may register according to their level of advancement. "It is not at all necessary," Miss Johnson said, "for a student to be outstandingly talented to take a studio course, rather these are open to students interested in learning something of the principles of art expression through practical application."

The crafts course, Art 42 (one hour credit), presents techniques in leather, metal, brading, basketry, and ceramics.

"While an art course will enhance your major or just open up a new field during the college career, it can bring pleasure and broader understanding in later years," Miss Johnson stated.

Vols To See Movie

"They Follow On" is the title of the movie which is to be shown at Student Vols Sunday evening after Vespers in Bartlett Hall.

The movie is based on the answer to two questions. The first question being, "Should I go into the mission field?" and the second, "What about girls?" It deals with the problem in school of preparation while in school for the mission field.

There will also be special music sung by a male quartet.

At Council

Town Night Set For Wednesday; WSGA Approves TN Revisions

Town Night next week will be on Wednesday, November 21, instead of the usual Tuesday, it was decided by Student Council last Wednesday.

The change was made since November 22 is Thanksgiving Day, and Council felt that advancing Town Night would make for more of a holiday atmosphere.

NOVEMBER 7

The three proposals concerning revisions in Town Night procedure which Council had passed and sent on to the Coordinating Council of WSGA were approved by that group and proposed as amendments to their own constitution.

Council sent them on to the Student Faculty Senate. (The report from Senate at Council on November 14 stated that action on them would have to be postponed until the next meeting of Senate.)

The possibility of having a Student Office for Council and other organization records was discussed, and passed on to Senate.

Jessie Dye representing WSGA requested that Council members cooperate in the enforcement of Town Night regulations, especially the clearing of the parlors by 10:00 p.m.

Tom Jones, chairman of a committee to investigate Town Night penalties, reported that no changes were necessary.

NOVEMBER 14

President Bob Cuthill reported from Student Faculty Senate that a revised MSO Constitution had been passed by Senate and sent to Council and the Executive Council of the Faculty for approval.

A Student Office was approved by Senate, and the proposed Town Night changes were postponed for a lack of time.

After a brief business session, Council members attended, as guests of Student Body President Bob Cuthill, a party in the Student Center.

1951 Barnwarming Set For Thursday

'Mice' Staged By Playhouse

Second Showing At 8 Tonight

By Carol F. Moore

Samuel Spewack's three-act Broadway comedy, "Two Blind Mice," played to a full house in Alumni Gym last night and will stage its last presentation tonight at 8 p.m.

Leading the College Playhouse in their first production of the year were Lou Masters, senior English major from Roseville, Mich., and Sue White, sophomore sociology major from Middletown, Ohio, who portrayed the title leads.

Joanne Edwards, sophomore dietetics major of Hawthorne, N.J., and Austin Van Pelt, senior sociology major of Denver, Colo., furnished the romantic interest in the production which was directed by Kathleen Craven, instructor in drama and speech.

Committee chairmen for "Two Blind Mice" are stage manager, Louise Packard; properties, Cliff Church, costumes, Dottie Crawford; electrician, Dave Reed; make-up Alan Caldwell; tickets, Mary Ann Hicks;

Publicity, Dottie Greenhagen; scenery, Art Van Alstyne; sound effects, Grace Meyers; call boys, Cliff Church and Jack Barber; prompter, Katherine Blackburn; checker, Dottie Crawford; house manager, Joe Stater.

Tickets will continue to be on sale today, before and after meals, in front of Pearsons Hall.

Dr. Holt Speaks At FTA Chapel

Dr. Andrew D. Holt, Administrative Assistant to the President of the University of Tennessee, was the guest speaker at the chapel service on Thursday, November 15, in Alumni gym. The program was planned by the Maryville Future Teachers of America Organization.

Dr. Holt, who is a former president of the National Education Association, spoke in the observance of National Education Week. He chose as his topic, "What We Expect of Our Schools".

Dr. Holt suggested six basic ideas of what the public wants from schools. In summary, they were (1) a good broad education, (2) a good physical background, (3) proper training in the type of work in which one can be happy and useful, as well as to be able to make a good living,

(4) the development of a taste for good literature and music, (5) the training of the characteristics of a good citizen, and (6) the development of being able to see the difference between right and wrong, which could be achieved only through the example of a good teacher.

Dr. Holt pointed out that parents, likewise, have a responsibility to their children in the home. He also stated that for the above plan of the teachers to succeed, they must receive both the financial and appreciative support of the parents.

Theatre Plans Christmas Play

The second experimental theatre production, "Star Song," will be produced on December 8 in Bartlett Auditorium. The Christmas pageant, written by Florence Yerson will be presented twice, at 7:30 and 9 o'clock.

The following cast has been announced: Shirley Postelwaite, from Ocean City, Md.; David Reed, Hamden, N.Y.; Jane Shields, Maryville; Nancy Manderville, Beaver Falls, Pa.; Mary Jane Hahn, Bellaire, Ohio; Diane Evans, Pitcarn, Pa.; and Ken Rutherford, Horsham, Pa.

The play takes place on the eve of the Saviour's birth in the community of Bethlehem. The story is about the daily activities of merchants, the inn keeper, traveling people, and how the great event affects their lives.

The music department will supply background music and incidental characters

The play is a cumulative project of the class of religious pageantry. The director is Fred Ernest Short, instructor of drama and speech. Short also announced that the play will be adapted for radio presentation.

MC Directors' Board Plans Fall Meeting

The Maryville College Board of Directors will hold its annual fall meeting at 10:30 0a0.0m fall meeting at 10:30 a.m., November 20, at the Fine Arts Center Lounge.

Business of the meeting will include the annual report of President Ralph Lloyd and the election of new officers.

Present officers are chairman, Judge Samuel O'Grady Houston of Knoxville; vice-chairman, Frank Moore Cross of Birmingham, Ala., and recorder, Joe Caldwell Gamble of Maryville.

King, Queen, Court To Be Revealed

Gym Becomes Main St.

By Joan Frei

"Main Street Fantasy" is the theme of the 1951 Barnwarming show, to be held in Alumni Gym Thursday night. The doors will open at 7 o'clock and the program will begin at 8. Admission is 40c. In addition to the show, there will be booths to visit all around the gym, and the Barnwarming queen and court will be presented.

The plot of "Main Street Fantasy" is a quaint love story set to music which includes many favorite melodies. The heroine is a little Swiss doll who sits on top of a grandfather clock and sings her way into the heart of the handsome captain of the wooden soldiers.

Then Parle arrives from Paris to steal the captain away and leave the Swiss doll all alone with her big clock. Other characters include the harem girl, with wonderful tales to tell; the lovable, scatter-brained Mr. Petenpole; the jolly umbrella man; and Popo the puppet.

Featured in the show are Betty Hammers, Wally Schroeder, Carol Moore, Nina Ruth Gillette, Dave Reed, Bill Robinson, Maree Richards, Jodie Richardson, Charlie Schroeder, and many more.

The script was arranged by Lynn Miller, Bev Jacobi, and Wally Schroeder. Dances are by Bill Stein and Maree Richards. Lou Masters heads the make-up committee and Bev Jacobi the costumes. The pianists are Doris Holt and Lesta Merrick.

The Barnwarming queen, whose identity has been kept secret, will be crowned, and her court presented. Candidates for queen are Lynn Miller and Ella Swift, and for king, Walt English and Bob Lynn.

Nominees for senior class sponsor are Joyce Lenderman and Edith Lancaster; for the junior class, Sid Wiley and Barbara Miller; sophomores, Carol Cornell and Ruth Roach; and freshman, Ann Dishner and Pat Ingles.

Barnwarming is one of Maryville's oldest and best traditions. It provides an evening of first-rate entertainment after a day off from classes and a big Thanksgiving dinner. But it is also a chance to help some worthy cause. This year the proceeds will go to a mission station in this country. Barnwarming is an affair that no one should miss.

Student Recital Set For Tuesday

The Division of Fine Arts will present a student recital in the Music Hall of the Fine Arts Center on Tuesday, November 20, at 4:30 p.m.

Included in the program will be Ann Taylor playing "The Little White Donkey, by Obert, and "Nocturne, Op. 27, No. 1" by Chopin. Carolyn Beatty, accompanied by Carol Barnett, will sing "Consolatice spera," by D. Scarlatti.

The Entrance scene from "Forest Scenes, Op. 82, No. 1," by Schumann and Debussy's "Doctor Gradus ad Parnassum," will be played by Mary Lee Snodderly. "L'Esclave," by Lalo will be sung by George Caldwell, accompanied by James Kesler.

Carol Barnett will play "Prelude in F Minor (W.T.K.) Book II " by Bach, and "Arabesque in E Major" by Debussy.

Peri's "Invocaione de Orfeo" will be sung by William Cunningham, accompanied by Ann Hoover. "Prelude, Op. 32, No. 12" by Rachmaninoff will be played by Ann Hoover.

Sugimoto Makes Study Of MC Administration

By Van Holland

A familiar face on the MC campus the past two months was Tamisaburo Sugimoto of Tokyo, Japan, who, under the auspices of the Presbyterian Board of Foreign Missions, is on a six months stay in the US to study the administrative organization of different institutions of learning.

For the past nine years Sugimoto has been General Secretary of the college of Meija Gakuin (3,400 students) in Tokyo. This college was founded in 1877 by the Presbyterian Church USA, and the Reformed Church in America.

On the advice of the American Educational Committee, knowing the importance of an educated public in a democracy, the whole Japanese educational system is being revamped and modeled after the American system. It is in connection with this changeover that Sugimoto is studying administrative organization in the US.

Commenting on the changeover, Sugimoto said, "The Japanese are adopting the European system of education, but, unfortunately, they are often learning only the appearances of European civilization. They are not learning the important spiritual values.

"Another difficulty," he mentioned, "is the economic situation. It is impossible for the people of Japan to understand the wealth of America; likewise, America does not understand the extreme poverty of Japan.

"The institutions of learning are very poorly equipped, understaffed, and overcrowded. And the people are very, very poor. These conditions are what make the country an easy prey for communistic influence."

When asked about the past war, Sugimoto answered, "Perhaps the Japanese defeat was a good experience. We lost all after the war, now we must begin again.

"The signing of the recent Japanese peace treaty was good, but our hope is not on the signatures written by man. Our hope must be in the spirit and love of Jesus Christ."

Asked his impression of Maryville College, Sugimoto replied, "I, personally, came to America to discover its conscience, its religious side, not the other side that my people are prone to imitate. I am very grateful that Providence led me to Maryville College where I found the angel of religious influence."

Sugimoto was also very much impressed by the beauty of the campus and the friendliness of both students and faculty. He was particularly emphatic about "your president, who is just smiling all the time!"

What seemed especially strange to Sugimoto was the American custom of handholding by couples. He also mentioned that Carnegie Hall was not the quietest place he has ever roomed.

Sugimoto arrived at MC September 15. During his stay he visited several of the local high schools, and made short trips to Johnson C. Smith University and Warren Wilson College in North Carolina.

Our Responsibility

By Gail Brown

Because the policies of The Highland Echo are established by the editor and carried through by the staff, cannot this paper be representative of all the students of Maryville College? This student publication should express the sentiments of the entire campus, not just a select few. But the individual college student must execute his obligation toward the betterment of the Highland Echo.

One obligation is contributing to Echo Forum. Through this column the college student can state singularly his own views on campus matters. Also in this way, the attitude of the college in general can be brought out into the open.

Essentially, a college is more than an institution; it is an atmosphere where development of a philosophy of life as well as the gathering of facts should be emphasized. Nothing will influence an individual along the line of a healthy philosophy more than taking an interest in the political, social, and curricular affairs of the campus and surrounding life, and expressing the resulting views. Our interest in Student Council activities, the Saturday night program, regulations, etc., must be vital. A mature college program can be effective only if we students make it so.

The serious-minded and understanding student is well aware of his responsibility to school progress. That person by contributing in various ways, such as writing letters to the Forum, can stimulate other students less mature. For, failure to think things out to conclusion results in a cynicism not at all conductive to healthy school spirit. Our activities need support, co-operation, interest. More than that they need constructive criticism.

Of course, the purpose of the Forum column is not criticism alone. It is a means to express feelings and opinions on all phases of college life, from consoling the football team to congratulating the "Two Blind Mice" staff. But our student government, our leaders in our activities, our faculty, our college administrators do appreciate beneficial criticism. And to accomplish anything, they also need our co-operating effort in planning and suggesting.

It would be of great advantage if the administration and students could always work in the same dirction toward the same goal. But is appears that such a Utopian state will never exist. Nevertheless, to arrive at a compromisory goal, the attitudes of us students must be known. And the administration cannot realize the discussions on Student Council and on other pertinent subjects that are held in dorm rooms or in the dining hall. The arguments have to be brought out in public. The drawback is that the number of students having grievances is far more than the number having the nerve to appeal. We are afraid that our cases presented singularly will be treated as personal grudges.

But if a college does not go forward, we assume the president has no leadership. If the classroom is boring, we take for granted the teacher is responsible. If the Highland Echo is lacking in force, it is because the editor is "no good". To a large degree all of these assumptions would be true provided that we individuals had done our part. Perhaps if the individual had executed his obligations none of the "if's" would happen. Education is valuable not as a means within itself, but in its capacity to prepare a person to make a worthwhile contribution to his fellowmen. We must remain alert and vigorous—ever ready to defend our own rights. We must express our attitudes in our publication, our Highland Echo.

On Griping

By Joan Frei

The good old institution of griping is a wonderful thing. Life wouldn't be the same without something to complain about. It's sort of fun to get furious and indignant about something. The trouble is that with most of us that's as far as it goes.

We are irritated, we hold forth at great length to the roommate or start a discussion at the table, and then keep quiet—until the next time. If we are in earnest about our complaints we should take some kind of action. At least know the facts. If you don't like stuffed peppers or dry chapel services or enforced Sunday school attendance or strict rules, find out the history of these venerable customs. Perhaps there are factors of which we are unaware. Maybe there are good reasons for their existence.

If you are still dissatisfied with the situation, find out whether other people feel the same way you do. See what constructive action might be taken by you, either as an individual or as a member of a group. After all, Maryville has made some progress since the days when boys and girls sat on opposite sides of the library. If you think that more progress is in order, do something about it. We should not merely accept half-heartedly whatever is doled out to us, but act as intelligent citiens of the college community and of the world.

THE GREAT WHITE WAY

Showing at the Capitol for Monday and Town-nighters will be a cliche-ridden adaptation of a novel by Rebecca West, reputedly superior to the movie, which, by the way, is entitled "A Life of Her Own." This rather extant film tells of the failure of Lana Turner's well-begun career as a model because of some personal moral downfall, but it seems that Lana doesn't really care that she failed.

Ann Dvorak, Margaret Phillips, Louis Calhern, and Tom Ewell, on the other hand, do a superb job of acting. It is good entertainment if you're interested in model agencies and beautiful girls.

Following this, the end of the week brings us Randolph Scott in a shoot-'em-up all about how Fort Worth, Texas, was built into a flourishing rail terminal despite big bullying banditry and gross greedy tycoonery (by David Brian) with the aid of Mr. Scott's potent post-Civil War newspaper.

Town Night movie attenders are reminded that Town Night has been changed to Wednesday this week by Student Council because of the Thursday holiday.

Park Space. . . Monday at the Park the Bowery Boys will be showing in "Blues Busters." The Boys remodel Louie's Sweet Shop, whatever that is, in preparation for the newly acquired crooning voice of one of their members.

Their crooner, though, falls prey to a business rival and signs a contract with him. Leo Gorcey, who seems to be a rather brash young man, solves their financial problems eventually.

Tuesday and Wednesday moviegoers can thrill to all there is of the singing of Ezio Pinza in "Mr. Imperium." He seems too preoccupied with making love to Lana Turner, over the neat, technicolor landscapes.

"The Prince Who Was a Thief" is the Thursday-Friday offering at the Park. It's an Arabian Nights extravaganza in technicolor that tells us all about the defrauded heir to some Oriental throne. He lives by his brain power and fights to regain his throne. His lack of scruples is supposedly justified by the unreality of the story and setting.

Saturday's double feature offerings include what will probably prove to be a grade B mushy-mishy romance with a title that says something about stars but we forget what it was.

Its running mate is "Canyon Raider," the usual wild westerner, complete with horses and six shooters.

ISSOMHSC

No, that isn't a typographical error! Maryville First-nighters at "Two Blind Mice" last night might clue the curious as to the significance of ISSOMHC. We understand that it's some new governmental department. Ken Tuck—Sorry, that was supposed to be Senator Kreuger—might tell you.

He is a Senator from Virginia in the play and, we think, very well acted. (Could be prejudiced since "Ah'm frum Virginia too.") Jerry Williams is quite convincing in his premiere Playhouse role as Henry.

The mice, twittering around on their little old ladies' feet, are adorable as done by Lou Masters and Sue White. Edwards and Van Pelt are excellent in providing the romantic element.

"Two Blind Mice" is the first play of its type to be presented by the Playhouse for several years and it certainly comes at an opportune time with its presentation of "bureaucratic Washington." It seems to be good straight comedy, well-presented, even though the play itself may lack body.

ON THE BOOK SHELF

Investigating the additions to the new book table for two weeks we have discovered varied and delightful mentionables.

French Quarter. . . Two large and shiny magazines were noted and a retake was made upon leafing through and discovering that the contents are written in French. Of course we don't all read French, but much can be learned from looking at the purty pitchers!

In the "Plaisir de France" the more interesting articles (according to Someone Who Should Know Such Things) are translated into English. Included are stories on the University of Paris, the Paris theater and drama in general, and one especially intriguing article entitled "L'Esprit des Rues" with scenes photographed excellently in Paris.

The charm of the "France Illustration" is in the reproductions of paintings. We have always held French art in high esteem and these selections are indeed worthy of praise. The French seem to capture some daintiness that many others lack.

Back to Maryville. . . Bible students, and casual passers-by as well, can appreciate the new copy of "The Basic Bible" which clarifies by its thousand word vocabulary many of the archaisms found in the old King James version. Our own personal experience proves its usefulness in freshman Bible particularly, and it shall, no doubt, be employed in next semester's sophomore course.

Also of interest along this line is the "New American Catholic Edition of the Holy Bible." Although generally the same as our King James version, investigation of some of the more moot points might prove thought-provoking.

A hurried scanning of the introduction taught us that this is the only version that it is permissible to read to the Catholic public, i.e., the English version of the gospel read in public must be taken from the Vulgate; the Old Testament from the Douay version.

Among the differences noted are that the book of the Bible that we know as "Ecclesiastes" is entitled "Wisdom" in the Catholic version, and the "Song of Solomon" becomes the Canticle of Canticles."

THE ART DEPARTMENT

Sophomore lit students especially would learn much by meandering down to the art gallery in the Fine Arts Center to see the three-weeks exhibit, lasting through the 27th, on "The Theater from Ritual to Broadway," a photographic exhibition on loan from LIFE Magazine.

Starting with the Greek tragedy, it follows the theatre through Shakespeare up to the modern day. Valuable bits of information may be gleaned from this excellent pictoral essay.

While you're there, if classes aren't in session, take a peek in the art studios at the work being done by our own fellow students. A lot of it looks plenty good to the untrained eye. We insert a word of warning not to touch anything. It might be wet!

BACK TO THE PRINTER'S INK

Under the heading of Books to Read For Sheer Enjoyment comes James Thurber's "The Thirteen Clocks." We personally think it's marvelous. It's a short fairy tale not exactly meant for children, though they'd enjoy it too. Writing in a poetic prose form, Thurber has created a masterpiece.

For the more adventuresome damsels in our midst, Marguerite Higgins' "War in Korea" is recommended. Miss Higgins a war correspondent for "The New York Herald Tribune" and is the first woman to go right up to the front with the fighting men.

A full investigation into the story that Communist captors have wantonly murdered 5500 American prisoners of war was ordered by General Matthew B. Ridgway.

Communist negotiators denied Thursday that they sought a cease-fire in Korea before the formal signing of an armistice, but continued to insist that the United Nations agree to a provisional spot-shooting line now.

Sports Echoes

●WELL IT'S ALL OVER WITH NOW and all the fairweather friends can start their chirping until basketball and wrestling season starts when their ire will be taken out on members of these sports.

All in all, and sincerely, little can be said of the past football season, save by chapel speakers and neighboring sports writers, except that there was a lack of manpower. The season opened with the Scots shy of experience and beef and it ended with the guys short of beef even more because of injuries though the freshmen members ended the season up with considerably more knowledge of the college game than when they entered.

The guys who really gave it what they had are, in our estimation, Harold Glad who carried the brunt of the offensive attack along with Captain Charlie Allen who unfortunately was hurt with two games to go, thus shifting the load more so on Glad's shoulders; Grant Sharp, who took over punting duties very capably not to mention his blocking at the wingback post; John Morton, Jimmy Callaway, Ralph Greaser, and Paul Merwin on the line.

But back to the manpower situation. One could immediatley tell why MC wasn't winning any games had he attended any of UT's games or had he been so fortunate as we, along with MC's cross country team, to get a complimentary seat in the end zone at the Tech-Duke game. When both sides behemoths came out on the field, we immediately wondered how in the world a team with MC's size got along. These words were reiterated in substance also by retired-mentor Frosty Holt up at the C-N fiasco last week end. "Those boys out there are really trying but they just haven't got the size." These words coming from a man as the always-nervous Holt have made us wonder this week whether he was being kind to a fellow coach—meaning LSH—or whether he was giving an impartial view since his team was ahead. Anyhow it seems as if it was the latter.

The C-N games brings up another phase of the game that has come into prominence this fall. This is the roughness and shady play that has been a keynote in many of this season's contests. We noticed it at the Tech-Duke game when several fists were flung toward the kidney regions of backs when they were down and it also marked the Georgetown game when some four Scots got a black eye on one play. MC hasn't been innocent of this kind of play this year but Coach J.D. Davis says "Our boys are too slow and if we do it, it is usually after the other team gets its first licks in."

This may be taking a "we're pure" attitude to the whole affair but it has been the trend this year. The C-N game last week, according to ex-coach Holt, was the first one in twenty-five years in which there was a fight. For the first three quarters, the game was good, but in the fourth quarter it degenerated so much till it seemed at times as if both teams went through the motions because of their grudge towards each other.

The complaint in basketball is that there is too much whistle-tooting but, if so, which we doubt, perhaps some of it can be transferred to the gridiron field before there is a Johnny Bright on every team. We don't like it because it completely takes away from the game that which one is supposed to get out of it, enjoyment from playing the game as a game, though this, too, has degenerated greatly.

●SOCCER HAS ITS BIG DAY TODAY as the United Nations and the YMCA battle it out for the championship at two o'clock on the baseball field. Both Ben Olsen and Bob Kees' aggregations have played good ball this season and have taken advantage of their opponents' mistakes to win ball games. A team being able to do the latter is really fortunate because one or two points in a league like MC's is usually sufficient enough to win. Alpha Sig's Scotties and Pre-Mins lacked co-ordination in their attack at times and in manpower others but played good ball and we daresay of the fifteen or so new men who began playing the game, at least fourteen liked it and will be playing next year.

As for the refereeing, thanks go to Horace Beckwith, Dick Erickson, Ben Olsen, Herb Catlin, Al Springfield, Branin Boyd, Russ Owens, Georg Kipp, Charles Yates, and all the others who helped out by blowing a whistle or watching a timeclock.

Play starts this week Friday in the Intramural Gym and maybe Bartlett in Intramural Basketball and so all teams are urged to get their rosters in. So far now, teams are expected from Athenian (2), Alpha Sigma (2), Pre-Mins, the footballers who went by the name of Hig Nips under the captainship of Jerry King last year, YMCA, plus several other independents. The big need is for refs again so better get your excuses ready because we will be asking you to call some.

●VANDERBILT'S COMMODARES must have been looking at the football scores recently because they have scheduled the Scots for a pair of matches and Middle East Tennessee State has also been added to the mat schedule giving Scot wrestling fans a real run for their two-dollar student activity money. It's too bad that the Scots have lost a lot of talent through graduation and enlistments. Perhaps, General Hoyt Vandenberg can be persuaded to tell his subordinate officer, Dean McClelland to order Lawrence Major, an ex-grappler and crowd thriller to report for active duty against Knoxville Y on December 3.

●NOTHING ON CROSS COUNTRY this week. . .too many other things to do and nothing is happening next week. . .Forgotten in the rush for life preservers over the past week is the story that Miss Jessie Heron is throwing another big party for the football team out at the Heron's Roost out in the country for the fifteenth time in the last 15 years. See elsewhere for sory which has been gained in the main by staff correspondent James Campbell.

Since we didn't have room anywhere else for it, we'll have the story in next week's column; so be in chapel then.

Thinlies Face Louisville Sewannee In Tri Meet

Harriers Go Away Today After Tech Tie, Bryan Loss

By Hersh Mosier

Today the Maryville cross country team travels to Sewannee, for for a triangular meet with the University of the South and the University of Louisville. When these teams met earlier this season on the Scotties soundly trounced the Tigermen 18-45. The Scot thinlies led by Dick Kerr, Ric Rogers, and Tom Kelley will be out to cage the Tigers again.

On Wednesday, November 3, the Scotties tied the Engineers of Georgia Tech 28-28 on the latter's course. Legan of Tech broke the tape first with a time of 24 minutes and 15 seconds. This was a moral victory for the Scots because Tech has one of the better teams in the Southeastern Conference.

The runners finished in this way Legan (GT), Kerr (M), Gilbreath (GT), Savage (GT), Rogers (MC), Day (MC), Pearson (MC), Kelley (MC), Jackson (GT), McMillan (MC), and Hostetleer (GT).

Maycumber Runs Again

Last Wednesday the Scotties lost a closely contested meet to William Jennings Bryan by the score of 28 to 27. Randy Maycumber lived up to form by leading the pack from the beginning and finishing with a time of 23 minutes flat.

Dick Kerr of Maryville finished in second place although a good distance in back of Maycumber. Kerr's time was 24:05. Harry Goehring of Bryan was in third place and Ric Rogers and Tom Kelley finished in fourth and fifth place respectively for Maryville.

Close First Mile

George Day broke to the front of the pack at the beginning of the rac but he was soon passed by Randy Maycumber of Bryan who kept the lead thereafter. At the end of the first half mile Maycumber was leading, followed by his teammate, Harry Goehring, Tom Kelley of Maryville, Don Walker of Bryan, and three Maryville runners: Ric Rodgers, Dick Kerr, and George Day.

WJBU Wins At End

After the grueling golf course grind, the runners remained in the same positions but were more bunched up than before. When the runners came out of the woods, Maycumber still led and was followed by Dick Kerr, Ric Rodgers, Harry Goehring, and Tom Kelley. Maryville lost the race in the last mile when Walker and Merssner pulled ahead of MC runner, Neale Pearson.

The order of finish was Maycumber (B), Kerr (MC), Goehring (B), Rogers (MC), Kelley (MC), Walker (B), Merssner (B), Pearson (MC), Day (MC), Koontz (B), and McMillian (MC).

Carson-Newman Drops Scots 27-6, Ending Disasterous Year

Carson-Newman's Eagles played Maryville's Scots for the second time this year and once again it was Hubert Ashe who spelled the difference. Ashe had won the first contest between the two squads with a phenomonal 40 yard kicking average that set MC back on its goal line tim after time until the Eagles got a break; but in the second bout between the two squads Ashe took to the air lanes to do most of his damages—two td's and ran the other one over himself.

Second Time Is Charm

The game opened up with Harold Glad returning Clanky Smith's kick-off ten yards to the 35 where after two plays, Sharp kicked 40 yards to the C-N 28. C-N likewise kicked after three downs got them nowhere but when they got the ball for the second time in the quarter on their own 25, the Eagles went into action.

Earl Ogle caught the first of several passes he was going to snag and movd the ball 25 yards down to midfield where Jerry Connor and Pat Evans alternated on carrying down to the MC 29.

Ashe Fires One

At this point in the game, Ashe unlimbered his throwing arm and on a wide-split T took a handoff from Evans, raced around right end and fired a 29 yard pass to Ogle who had gotten behind the secondary for the touchdown. Smith's kick was wide and C-N led, 6-0.

Almost But Not Quite

After an exchange of kicks, MC made her first scoring threat of the evening as Jimmy Campbell, Grant Sharp, and Glad moved the ball downfield from the twenty to the Carson-Newman fifteen—MC traversing the last 10 yards on a pass from Wes Kinser to Sharp. Kinser cracked the line for but one yard on two tries and Campbell could gain only one off tackle. On fourth down with seven to go, Kinser tried to pass, but was thrown for a loss.

The Eagles could'nt do anything with the ball and so MC took over on her own 49 and began a 51-yard march to paydirt. Utilizing a spread formation to the best extent possible, Kinser completed five out o fsix passes to move MC down to the Eagle eight—the completions all coming in succession and with Jerry King, Don Alford, and Bobby Berrong, who was an end on one play, but who fooled the C-N defense, as recipients.

Harold Hammers Home

Glad carried for two and one and over after Sharp had sandwiched a two yard gain in down to the two. Jimmy Callaway's kick was blocked by a charging C-N line and MC kicked off with but eight seconds to go in the half. Evans and Connor completed passes to Ogle and Trudley Carr good for 30 and 20 yards and then Ashe repeated the play by which C-N had first scored but with Connor the man that got behind the secondary and fired a pass good for 35 yards and the score. This time, Smith's kick was good.

A Repeattol

After halftime festivities during which the bands of both schools paraded, C-N took the ball the second time she got her hands on it with Ashe carrying over via land territory from the one-half yard line. Mainstays during the Orange and Blue drive which covered 54 yards were Connor and Jim Aycock, sophomore left half who was to show a lot on C-N's last scoring drive. Smith again made a perfect placement and a Family Night crowd of 2000 was satisfied.

Not Much Doing

Play was centered in midfield for the remainder of the third period and fourth until with about a minute to go Harold Sorrells and Bill Jennings, who hurt MC last year, spearheaded a drive from the C-N 26 where the Eagles had recovered a Glad fumble. Jennings cracked over for the touchdown from the two for the TD while Smith added the point. Some nine plays later the game was over as MC grounded Ashe's pass in the end zone for an automatic touchback.

Aftermath

The game was played roughly all the way through with some six players being thumbed out for unnecessary rough play and soon after play had begun in the fourth quarter a few fists began to fly as players of both teams, equally wrong, squared off. However order was restored and the game carried on though the heatened tempers could be seen to affect both teams' players play.

C-N Shows In Averages

C-N showed herself the winner in the statistics department also as Ashe & Company ground out 219 yards on the ground and 149 through the air on five of eleven completions while MC gained 85 and 100 yards over the ground and through the air, respectively, also with seven completions in twelve tries. However C-N's completions averaged 25 yards a throw to MC's 13 plus.

The Pigskin Postlude of 1951

This in intended for those few who did not follow the history of the 1951 edition of the gridiron Scotties, because it is unnecessary and impossible to tell the loyal followers of the intestinal fortitude, spirit, and drive of our boys. There were many things lacking from the team that are vital for a champion, there just wans't enough depth, there were no All-Amricans, no really great star to rally around, there wasn't an over-abundance of weight and size, but whatever may have been lacking there was one thing that never vanished—just plain guts, and without that there never has been a champion. Out on the field, week after week, were a group of boys playing football because they liked to play football, all too often against teams who were rested and at ease again.

Footballers Rest

I've been looking around for Charlie Allen, Jimmy Campbell, Dick Gardner, Bert McMahon, and the rest of the football crew (who knows—we may be treated to two sports for the price of one this year), but I guess Coach has let them take a well deserved rest.

Down at the other end of the Gym some more hopefuls are running their heads off. There's a string of them going in for crip shots—John Hale, Bob Green, Dick Lebold, Bill VanBenthysen, Joe Hopkins, Ken Buser, Marshall England, Ronald Jennings, Allen Grippo, and Phil Young.

This year's schedule doesn't look too bad and this seems to be a hustling crew; with crossed fingers and a look towards the sky as I step through the door, I come away with a feeling that things are looking good—optimist that I am.

Wrestlers, Cagers Start Workouts To Get In Shape For Season's Openers

Echo Sports Writer Spots Cagers In Alumni Gym

Scot athletes switeched to the indoors this past week as football ended last Saturday and the cold drafs of winter began to make themselves known. With opening dates not too far off, workouts will be stiff and long for the next two weeks with mainly fundamentals being stressed.

By Bob Navratil

Now that the thud of the toe against the football and the crisp contact of pads has died away, the less hardy souls have been attracted to the gym where the rat-tat-tat of the basketball becomes more audible. We might as well take a look inside.

There's Coach Honaker; he's taking over the reigns from Coach Ken Johnson who has been running the arlybirds through their paces these past three weeks or so. There, too, is Coach Scott Honaker—hardly distinguishable from some of the youths he's running into the floor.

Abbotts, Shields Ready

Dick Abbott is driving in for a lay-up shot; he may miss one day. Hi, Mino (John Shields for you less informed)—he fakes so much that Coach is still trying to get him to hold still long enough to prove something.

I think Coach better watch that guy they call Wiley: If he starts making those left-handed shots he's been practicing, gamblers will be trying to get him to shave points. That stringbean came to life, A. C. McWilliams, runs so much that I'm tired just watching, but then I look around for Bob (The Monk) Johnson and I feel all paid for it, but they always did their best, and what more could you ask?

Y Plays UN At Two

With play in both halves being finished up this past week, the Intramural Soccer league came to a close with both YMCA and the United Nations in ties for first place. Both defeated Alpha Sigma's Scotties and Pre-Min and tied each other with the result that a playoff game will be held today at 2 o'clock. Play will start in the Intramural Basketball League next Monday in Intramural Gym with games there on Mondays, Wednesdays, and Fridays, of each week. To all intents and purposes, Bartlett Gym will not be used this year for the cage contests.

Get Basketball Lists In

Team managers are asked to get their rosters in by noon today at the Intramural Office so that the schedule ca nbe made up and also to denote which members of their teams are willing to referee games.

Final Soccer Standings

First-Half	W	L	T	Pts.
United Nations	2	0	1	5
YMCA	2	0	1	5
Alpha Sigma	0	2	1	1
Pre-Mins	0	2	1	1
Second Half
YMCA	2	0	1	5
UN	2	0	1	5
Pre-Min	0	3	0	0

Matmen Shy of Vets As Practice Starts

Eighteen huskies were on hand to greet Coach J. A. Davis who will seek to recreate Maryville's strong wrestling teams of the past. With only two lettermen and four men with some experience returning, Coach Davis really has a building job on his hands.

Bill Morse, who paced last year's runnerups in the SEEAU tournament by winning the 123 pound title, will be back along with Captain Jim Callaway, a Scotty mainstay in the 147 pound lcass for two years now.

From here on the outlook grows dimmer, although Don Benton, Curt Wilbanks, Al McCullock or Bob Sangster could change the picture considerably. The heavy heavier weights need much boosting and the team could go a long way if some strength develops here.

The Schedule—

Dec. 8—Knoxville YMCA (there)
Dec. 11—Knoxville YMCA (here
Jan. 22—Univ. of Chatta. (there)
Jan. 25—U. of Vanderbilt (there)
Jan. 26—M. E. Tenn. State (there)

COLLEGE HILL GRILL

Mr. and Mrs. Vincent Farmer

College Will Offer Lessons In Band

Because there have been several requests for individual lessons in band instruments, the college is planning to offer these lessons next semester if enough students are interested to warrant bringing in the extra teachers.

If any students are interested in taking either beginning or advanced lessons on any band instrument, they should see Katherine Crews at the Fine Arts Center as soon as possible. A tentative list must be made before December 1.

Lessons will be $25.00 per semester, the same as for piano, organ, voice and violin lessons.

Piano Quartet At UT

The second University of Tennessee Artist Series concert will feature the renowned First Piano Quartet on Wednesday evening, November 21.

Transportation to the concert will be provided for Maryville students, with chartered buses leaving from the old chapel site.

Spaniards Postpone Meet

The regular meeting of the Spanish club has been postponed until Thursday evening, November 29 at 6:45 p.m. in Howard Schwam's classroom.

Speakers at the last meeting were Lillian Rivera of Puerto Rico, Clara Arehart of Brazil, Eddy King, a student of Maryville High School who spent six weeks in Cuba this summer.

SUGIMOTO . . . .

Sugimoto left to spend one day at Tusculum College in Greeneville, and then will travel to Philadelphia, Pa., where he will meet with officials of the Presbyterian Church. Then he will continue his study in other colleges and institutions until March, at which time he will return to Japan.

No Disc Meeting

Disc Club will not meet Thursday night because of Barnwarmwarming activities.

Fred Hope Fund

As of November 13, 368 people have pledged $1,370.65 toward the Fred Hope Fund, an increase of 35 pledgers and $148.53 since the drive opened October 11. Total amount now paid is $720.50.

This year's fund is being sent to the Cameroun Christian College in Labambu, Cameroun, West Africa.

Money can be paid in Anderson Hall on student-help pay day, or to Mrs. Kenneth P. Johnson at the Office Annex at anytime. There is no deadline except that which the pledges have set for themselves.

Alpha Sigma

According to President Neale Pearson, Alpha Sigma will hold an important meeting Saturday evening at 6:15 in the YW rooms.

All members are urged to attend.

Camera Club To Meet

Camera Club will meet Monday evening at 6:45 in the chemistry lecture room in Fayerweather Hall.

Ken Bowers is in charge of the program and all camera enthusiasts are invited to come.

Pre-Mins Schedule Meet

Pre-Ministerial Association will have its regular meeting Thursday, November 29, at 6:45 p.m. in the Y Rooms.

They will continue their study of world faiths.

Alumni Mag Mailed

The October issue of the Maryville College Alumni Magazine has been sent out to all alumni whose addresses are known. The magazine is published by the alumni and is sent out twice a year, one issue is May and one in October.

The Alumni Office, under the guidance of Mrs. J. Horne, has charge of compiling the magazine which now has a circulation of 3,700.

Blum, Shellkopf To Read

Writer's Workshop will meet Monday, November 19, in the Y rooms. Barbara Blum will read, "Then Face to Face"; Karole Kapp will criticise.

Earl Shellkopf will read a story to be criticised by Sue Watson.

Miss Catherine Wilkinson Called One Of MC's Most Popular Teachers

By Walt Elwood

One of the best known personalities on the campus is that of Catherine Wilkinson. Miss Wilkinson is no stranger to MC'ers, but is best known to students in the French department. She is a familar figure on the Hill with her pleasant smile, and her hearty "Hello."

Miss Wilkinson's family has been connected with Maryville College for many years. Three of her great uncles studied under Dr. Isaac Anderson, founder of the college. Her grandfather attended MC as did her mother and father. She and her brother and sister all graduated from Maryville, and two of her nephews graduated here.

Miss Wilkinson received most of her education here. She attended the grade school and prep school which were associated with the college and then earned her B.A. degree at the college itself.

After graduation from college, a neighbor of the Wilkinsons, who was at that time principal of the prep school, urged her to apply for an opening in the French department. She received the appointment and taught French, algebra, history and Latin, in the prep school for four years. When the prep department was discontinued she began teaching French on the college level.

Besides her studies at MC, Miss Wilkinson attended Emory University where she received her M.A. degree.

A distinctive phase in her education came when she studied at the famous French University, the Sorbonne.

In the early part of her teaching career at Maryville she founded the French Club. She still takes a very active interest in the organization, devoting a great deal of her time and talents to promoting its growth and varied activities. The club was organized for students in advanced French who are interested in French culture and customs.

The membership is selected from these students and is limited to 30 members. No one who is a member of the club will forget the picnics which are held annually at the Wilkinson home, or Miss Wilkinson's famous potato salad.

Miss Wilkinson's interests are not only connected with the College. She is a member of The American Association of Teachers of French, The South Atlantic Modern Language Association, and Delta Kappa Gamma, and The Tennessee Philological Association, of which she served as president two years ago.

Miss Wilkinson has traveled very extensively both in this country and abroad. She has traveled on several occasions over most of the eastern part of the United States. One of her trips took her into Canada. "The most interesting part of that trip to me was the Gaspe Peninsula because its background is so like that of parts of France," she said. "While in Europe Miss Wilkinson traveled through England, Switzerland, France, Italy, Germany, Austria, Belgium, and Holland.

Miss Wilkinson's plans for the future are to keep on teaching. "Maryville is just a part of me," she said, "because of the many years my family and I have been connected with it." One of her fondest dreams is another trip to France. She hopes to make the trip with her sister, who teaches French in Everett High School, sometime in the not too distant future.

She is both teacher and friend to many students both present and past. This fact is acknowledged by her great host of friends and acquaintances. In her quiet and unassuming manner she goes to her daily task, one of the noblest tasks of all, that of giving of her knowledge to others.

Theta Meets Tonight

Theta Epsilon will meet at 6:15 this evening in Theta Hall. Program chairman Connie Howell and "E" McMillan have planned a program which will consist of a variety of games in which the audience will participate.

The Theta hats have arrived and will be distributed at the meeting to those who ordered them.

French Club To Meet

French Club will meet November 29, in Catherine Wilkinson's classroom in Anderson Hall. A French movie will be shown and plans will be discussed for a Christmas party at Miss Wilkinson's home.

At the last meeting Louise Lloyd showed picture slides of her European trip.

Men's 'M' Club Has Party

The Men's 'M' Club will hold its annual semester party 5:30 Tuesday at the picnic grounds in the College Woods. A program of fun and entertainment has been planned for all old members. Clyde McCampbell is in charge of the event while Harold Glad is in charge of dates. All men who are going are asked to see Glad by Monday.

Y Radio To Air 'Dust'

"Dust of the Road," a Thanksgiving drama, will be presented Wednesday evening, November 21 at 9:00 p.m. on the Y Radio show, station WGAP.

Joanne Edwards, Joe Stater and Jim Darroch will take part in the program with Herb White as announcer. Directors are Lynn Miller and Herbert Hoover.

Tau To Lead Bainonian

Tau Chapter will present the program at the meeting of Bainonian tonight at 6:15 in Bainonion Hall. President, Ella Swift urges all members to be present as Bainonian hats have arrived and will be distributed.

Joyce Lingenfelter Initiated Into TKC

Joyce Lingenfelter, sophomore music major from Alcoa, was initiated into Tau Kappa Chi, honorary music society, at installation services held November 12 in the Fine Arts Center.

In order to be accepted into the society, the student must maintain an average of B or better scholastically, and be recommended by his music advisor. Carolyn Marshall serves as president of the club.

Other officers include, June Hood, vice-president; Barbara Sandos, secretary; and Lena McGaha, treasurer. The club sponsored the reception held after the Nelson and Neal recital this year and plans to sponsor other events later in the year.

YM Plans Round Table

YMCA will have a round table discussion of "Roman Catholicism" at their meeting on Sunday, November 18, at 1:30 in Bartlett Auditorium.

Dr. Ralph W. Lloyd, President of Maryville College, Lynn Miller, senior sociology major from Illinois, and Russell Owens, senior philosophy major from Pennsylvania will participate on the panel.

Schools Plan Programs

The Presbyterian Sunday School will present a program entitled "What Every Good Protestant Should Know" Sunday, November 18, at which Mrs. Margaret Cummings will speak.

The Baptist Sunday School will study the history of the Israelites, after which there will be a violin solo by Jigsy Bernadini. Mrs. G. H. Traylor will lead the discussion.

IRC To Have Supper

In place of the regular meeting, IRC will hold a supper in the Y Rooms Monday night at 6 p.m. No program is planned for afterwards, but the club has been invited to attend the Business Club meeting.

Jay Spenser, Louise Packard, and Virginia Cooper are in charge of the preparation of the meal.

Football Review

By Bob Coles

ville. . . If there is any one thing that stands out about the entire season, it is the mud. Mud, mud, and more mud, everywhere you turn.

Hiwassee In The Mud

The mud began with the Hiwassee game, when the game was postponed from Saturday because the field was wet to Monday, when the field was a quagmire. Of all the games; this was perhaps the toughest one to lose, for the Scotties outplayed the men from Hiwassee throughout the entire game, except for one play, and on that one quarterback Raby did some fancy faking and then circled his own right end for 98 yards and a touchdown. Mainous scored the game winning extra point on a fake placement, when instead of holding the ball to be kicked, he ran with it around right end all by himself. It was the second half when the Scotties got into the game again when Jerry King recovered Raby's blocked kick on the 14, and Harold Glad plunged over on his fifth consecutive try, but the plunge for the extra point was stopped and that was the game. Final Score 7-6.

On To Jacksonville

More mud and Billy Joe Dacus. The first half was a picture of good offense and defense for the Scotties, but the heavier man power of the Gamecocks prevailed in the second half until they rolled up a 26-0 score, in what was perhaps the hardest game of the season for the Scotties as far as size is concerned.

Home Sweet Home With Center

This time there was no real mud, although the field had seen drier days. Again it was a tough one to lose for until the final gun was but a few seconds away the Colonels hadn't earned a single point. They scored first in the third quarter when they got two fifteen yard penalties which put them on the Maryville one yard line from which Tip Evans scored on a line plunge.

The Scotties got back in the game when Sharp plunged over from the two, but Callaway missed the point, and the game was gone. In the closing minutes the Colonels scored again, but it wasn't necessary, for the Scotties never had a chance to get another drive going. Score 14-6.

The Buccaneers Plank MC

The pros came to town on October 13 in the form of the East Tennessee State Bucs, and sparked by Cecil Puckett and Jerry Ford they went home with a hard-earned 27-0 victory. But they had to work for it as the Scotties fought hard, but were simply outmanned. It was in this game that the Scotties began to show a good passing game—if thy ever got a chance to use it in the mud.

Little All-Americans?

The Highlanders hit the road on the 21st to Abingdon, Virginia to take on the powerful Wasps of Emory and Henry, and again the Scotties put on a fine showing against one South's finer small college team. Much to everyone's surprise, they succeeded in stopping Bob Miller, Little All-Americans, but Chick Davis and the others were too much, and went wild in the second half to rack up a 38-12 victory over the Scotties.

Homecoming And Mud

And who will ever forget Homecoming? All the pretty mud and rain. To play at all in that gumbo required lots of nerve and skill. For this game by far the greatest student entuhsiasm of the year was generated, and there was a general feeling in the air that this was the game to win. For the first time since 1949 the fans went to town after a pep meeting, but Jupiter Pluvius had no sympathy at all, and, to put it mildly, the rains came. The game itself was a travesty of football, except for the kicking, which was superb for both teams. Who can say how it might have ended if veteran tailback Charlie Allen had not been injured in the first half, but Jimmie Campbell did a good job in his place. The Eagles scored first when, after recovering a fumble on the nine, a fourth down pass to Clarence Smith, scored. Another drive, the only one of the game, late in the fourth period, gave the Eagles the chance that they needed to send them home happy if wet.

Georgetown And Blood With Mud

This is known as the mystery game at Maryville since so little nfoi on the game was forthcoming from the Kentucky school, but like so many Maryville games, it was played on a wet field, covered here and there with patches of snow, and in a temperature somewhat below 28. The game itseelf was rough, just ask Paul Merwin, and elbows and fists were a litle loose, but in spite of, or perhaps because of the rough stuff, Georgetown won, 21-0, as three Ronnies, Pinchback, Turner, and Menne led the Tigrs to victory as both sides did some good passing.

Poll Finds Students Against Movie Rule

Divide 56-44% On Regulation

By Van Holland

Results of a poll taken this week among MC students reveal that 56% of the students do not think that Sunday movies should be out of bounds, where as 44% do.

The students interviewed were a representative group systematically chosen from the student directory, excluding Echo staff members and student government officers.

"Do you think Sunday movies should be out of bounds for Maryville College students?" was the question posed to those interviewed. Some of the answers to the question were:

YES!

"Maryville is a Christian college founded on a Christian basis and should remain that way!"

"I, personally have nothing against attending movies on Sunday. I attend them at home, but I do believe we should follow college policy."

"Yes, indeed! They don't fit in with the enterprise of keeping the Sabbath for God!"

"I don't condemn anyone for attending movies on Sunday, but I think there are more profitable activities that can be enjoyed on Sunday."

"There is no reason to attend shows on Sunday when there is so much else to do."

"I believe a person should always be able to go on his own conscience, but MC has sets its own standards which must be upheld. If you don't like them, you can leave!"

NO!

"It should be left up to the individual. After all, we're considered adults, and as such, should be able to use the adult's privilege of choice."

"I think the college is making a mountain out of a mole hill!"

"If a person goes to church in the morning, he should be free to do whatever he wants in the afternoon, Movies certainly are not a sin; they show movies in church."

"I think this policy is just as unnecessary as the honor Sunday School report. A lot of the boys go to the movies in Knoxville on Sunday, anyway."

"A student knws what he wants and should have enough discretion to choose for himself. College authorities should not have the privilege of deciding for him!"

"I don't see any evil in movies. If it is not evil to go to the movies during the week, why is it evil to go on Sunday, as long as they are not open in the morning?"

The opening of the Capital and Park Theatres on Sundays came last week as a result of the Maryville City blue laws being declare unconstitutional.

The day before the first Sunday opening President Ralph Waldo Lloyd announced in chapel that in order that there would be no misunderstanding, Sunday movies were definitely out of bounds for MC students.

Englehardt Announces Alexander Contest

All men students who are interested in trying out for the 1952 T.T. Alexander Bible prize are to report to Dr. H. E. Orr's classroom, 201 Anderson Hall, on Wedensday, Decembr 5 at A hour, David L. Englehardt has announced.

The competition consists of the writing of a paper on a designated religious subject. The manuscripts are judged by members of the Bible and religion department. The two finalists give their addresses in chapel, judged by invited guests.

All men students are eligible.

Administrators ToAttend Southern Ass. Meet

President and Mrs. Ralph Waldo Lloyd, Dean Edwin Ray Hunter and Nancy Hunter, secretary to the president, will attend the fifty-sixth annual convention of the Southern Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools to be held December 3-6 in St. Petersburg, Fla.

The Southern Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools of which Maryville is a member is the regional accrediting association for the entire Southeastern United States.

Singers, Choir Plan Concert

The Madrigal Singers and Vesper Choir gave a joint concert November 29 in the Music Hall of the Fine Arts Center.

The concert was for local and surrounding chapters of Delta Kappa Gamma fraternity. Chapters which attended the concert were Knoxville, Cleveland, Etowah, Lenoir City, Alcoa, and Maryville.

The Madrigal Singers are a group of 12 singers from Maryville College who sing without direction or accompaniment.

On November 30 the Madrigal Singers presented a concert for the Knoxville Tuesday Club at Church Street Methodist Church.

They will also sing before the student body at the Christmas Vesper Service on December 16.

Disc Club To Meet

Disc Club will hold its last meeting of this semester on Thursday evening, December 6, at 6:45 p.m. in the lounge of the Fine Arts Center.

Don Brakebill is in charge of the program, which is to have a Christmas theme.

Few Changes Mark Second Semester Class Schedule

Although few changes in curricular offerings appear on the second semester schedule, Dean of Curricular Edwin Ray Hunter has announced a few points of interest.

The course in Art Appreciation, Art 313, is not being offered, but, instead, attention is called to Art 202, a general-acquaintance-with-art course. The Art 302 is of special interest to students of the classics and of the revivals of classicism in later periods.

Government and Business, the 323 Economics course, is being given by Archibald Franklin Pieper, associate professor of Political Science. Education 317, the History and Philosophy of Education, is to be given after a lapse of a number of years. This satisfies the requirements for elective courses in education of a number of State Departments of Teachers Certification.

A new course in German Realism is German 312. It is a companion to German Romanticism, 315, which has been given this first semester, Intermediate French Readings, French 203, a new course, may be taken immediately after French 102. Catherine Wilkinson, associate professor of French is to teach this course.

Commodore Fisher, associate professor of history, will have the course in Far Eastern History which is now styled History 304. The first half of General Sociology 201 is being given for the first time as a second-semester offering.

An advanced course in Physical Education meeting twice a week with a credit value of one hour is Physical Education 302, Folk and Square Dancing.

Lloyd Sees Church Union Chances Strongest Ever

By Abby Crosby

Progress is becoming more hopeful for the reunion between the Presbyterian Church U.S.A. (Northern) and the Presbyterian Church U.S. (Southern), according to MC President Ralph Waldo Lloyd, chairman of the U.S.A. Permanent Commission on Inter-Church Relations. Negotiations for this reunion have been in process since 1938.

The split in the Church came shortly after the firing on Fort Sumter in 1861. The Presbyterian churches in the part of the country that became the Confederacy withdrew and organized themselves into the Presbyterian Church in the Confederate States of America. The organization has continued to this day, but at the close of the Civil War its name was changed to the Presbyterian Church in the United States.

The first move in the reunion was made by the Presbyterian Church US when the General Assembly of 1937 extended an invitation to the Presbyterian Church USA to discuss the possibilities of uniting. This invitation was accepted by the General Assembly of 1938.

Committees from the two churches began to meet regularly about three years later, and the first draft of a Plan of Reunion was printed in 1943. As the committees continued to meet and make necessary revisions in this plan they published two more plans for study, one in 1947 and the other in 1949.

In 1948 the committee of the Presbyterian Church US was instructed by its General Assembly to hold up further negotiations for a five year period so they could concentrate on furthering acquaintance and cooperation between the two churches. A great deal has been done in the first two and a half years of this period by cooperative programs and mutual acquaintance programs in synods, presbyteries, local church and young people's groups.

A joint invitation was issued about two years ago by the two churches to the other Presbyterian and Reformed denominations to join in the negotiations. These other denominations include the Dutch Reformed Church, the Evangelical and Reformed Church, the United Presbyterian Church, the Cumberland Presbyterian Church, and the Associate Reformed Church.

One of these, the United Presbyterian Church, has accepted this invitation, and four conferences have already been held to discuss the possibilities of a three-way union. Two of these meetings were held at President Lloyd's home here at Maryville and the other two at Cincinnati, the last one being held on October 18 and 19.

The plan on reunion on which the two churches worked is being revised, and there are to be further meetings on the matter in January and March with the three denominations represented.

Now that it has become a three-way program, it is hoped that there will be a fourth Plan of Union ready for printing after the three General Assemblies meet in May and June. If this is done, it is expected that this Plan will be distributed to the ministers and lay leaders of the three denominations for study during the next year so the committees will have criticisms and suggestions ready for the further development of plans for reunion.

Dr. Lloyd, a prominent figure in this movement, stated, "No one can know how soon a definite vote

Dr. John C. Trever, Bible Authority, To Speak Here

Dr. John C. Trever of Chicago, an authority on the Bible, will speak at the chapel service Tuesday, December 4 at 8 a.m. His subject will be "The New Authorized Version of the Bible".

As a representative of the Committee on the Revised Standard Version of the Bible, Dr. Trever has had frequent opportunities to observe the scholars at work. He has gained first-hand information about the methods of their work, the problems they face, and other intimate details which will help Bible lovers to appreciate the magnitude and significance of the new version.

Recently returned six months of concentrated study on ancient Biblical manuscripts, an experience which took him into the libraries and museums of England and France and into numerous conferences with leading Bible scholars of these countries, Dr. Trever has many new and fresh insights to make his addresses vivid and timely.

His eight months of study in Palestine in 1947-1948, his trip to Egypt and explorations with an expedition into Sinai, his archeological journeys in Palestine, provide him with rich resources for absorbing and informative presentations.

A graduate of the University of Southern California, Dr. Trever received his Bachelor of Divinity degree from Yale Divinity School and Ph.D. degree from Yale Graduate School. He was formerly head of the Department of Old Testament of Drake University College of the Bible in Des Moines, Iowa.

The Rev. Dr. Stewart Williams Hartfelter, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church, El Paso, Texas, spoke at chapel services this morning.

Artists Exhibit In Knoxville Show

Several Maryville students and faculty have paintings on display at the current art exhibit at the Knoxville Art Center. This exhibit is to run until December 7, and shortly after the time the Maryville College student art exhibit will begin.

Those who have paintings at the Knoxville Art Center are Joe Cox, "Storm over Popocatapetyl" and "Study in Line"; M. J. Dashiell, "Lumber Yard Sliding" and "Brightwood Crossing"; Charlotte Johnson, "Italy, 1950" and "Maryville Farm"; and Edna Waters, "Autumn Landscape."

Also having paintings on exhibit is Kermit Ewing of the University of Tennessee. His paintings are "Bourbon Street" and "Marine No. 7."

Short Announces New Debaters

Fred Short has announced the debaters for the school year. Upperclassmeen are Tom Kelly, Naomi Burgos, Robert Cuthill, Jerry Knecht, Charles La Rue, Lynn Miller, Newell Witherspoon and Evelyn Fields.

Underclassmen are Barbara Chubb, Charolette Moggard, Herbert White, Lou Hutson, Sue Hutson, Sue Carter, and Sarah Pledger.

The tentative schedule for debates include trips to the state tournament in Jackson, Miss.; Columbus, Miss.; and Hickory, N. C.

The national collegiate debate question is, "Resolved: The Federal Government should establish a permanent system of price and wage controls."

Underclassmen will work on the national high school question, "Resolved: That all American citizens should be subject to conscription for essential service in time of war."

Craven To Speak

Faculty Club will have a dinner meeting Monday, December 3, in the Home Ech rooms. Kathleen Craven instructor in drama, will speak.

Christmas decorations are to be used.

Societies Present Annual Fall Dance In Alumni Tonight

Faculty Plans 'Arsenic, Lace' Presentation

"Arsenic and Old Lace," a comedy by Joseph Kesselring, will be given by Maryville College faculty on Saturday evening, December 15, in Alumni gym. The cast includes Assistant Professor Arda Walker and Dean Frances Massey as Abby and Martha Brewster, the two gentle old ladies.

Instructor Malcolm Dashiell, Instructor Paul Kolter, and Associate Professor Commodore Fisher are their nephews.

Others in the cast are Professor Ralph Case, Professor Lyle Williams, Assistant Professor James Schwam, Assistant Professor Carolyn Blair, Professor David Briggs, Assistant Professor Harvey S. Reber, Associate Professor Archibald Pieper, Instructor Fred Short, and Dean Edwin R. Hunter.

Proceeds will be given to the library.

Directors Hold Annual Meeting

The Board of Directors of Maryville College held its annual fall meeting on November 20 in the lounge of the Fine Arts Center.

Elected to serve for one year were Chairman of the Board, Judge S. O. Houston, Knoxville; Vice Chairman of the Board, the Rev. Dr. Frank M. Cross, Birmingham, Ala.; Recorder of Board, Joe C. Gamble, Maryville.

Ex-Officio members of the Committee on Administration include the President of the College, the Chairman of the Board and the Chairman of the Commitee on Finance. Elected members of the committee are A. D. Huddleston, Maryville; Ciemmie J. Henry, Maryville; the Rev. J. Hayden Laster, Milan, the Rev. Dr. Donald A. Spencer, Chattanooga.

Members of the Committee on Finance include F. E. Barkley, Knoxville; A. M. Brinkley, Jr., Kingsport; Hugh R. Crawford, Maryville; Joe C. Gamble, Maryville Nellie P. McCampbell, Knoxville; Clyde T Murray, Maryville; and the President of the College, ex-officio.

At a meeting of the Committee on Finance after adjournment of the Board, Joe C. Gamble was re-elected chairman and Hugh R. Crawford was re-elected Secretary.

R. T. Allen To Preach At Vespers Tomorrow

The Rev. Reuben T. Allen, pastor of Trinity Presbyterian Church, Alcoa, will be the preachr at the Vesper service tomorrow evening at 7 p.m. in the Music Hall of the Fine Arts Center.

The All Girl Choir under the direction of W. Curtis Hughes will sing.

Installation Begins Of Arts Center Concert Organ

The long-awaited concert organ for the FAC Music Hall arrived at Maryville Monday, November 12. Installation will require several weeks.

It is a Holtkamp organ, built by the Holtkamp Organ Company of Cleveland, Ohio, the oldest organ manufacturer in America. The small teaching and practice organ installed last year also was made by Holtkamp.

The new organ was especially designed for concert and teaching needs, and was under construction in the factory for a year and a half. To fit the FAC Hall, it is, of course, not as large as organs designed for big auditoriums. However, it is designed to play music literature of all types and periods.

The organ cost approximately $25,000 and was made possible by the donors of the Fine Atrs Center.

Three men who have been working to complete the installation, have just come from installing a similar, though larger, organ at Yale University.

Council Obtains Student Office

Bob Cuthill, president of the Student Body, reported that Council had been given a room in the Office Annex to use as a student office, at the November 29 meeting of Council.

James Allison, chairman of the committee for the investigation of the National Student Association, reported the findings of the committee, and it was decided to table the subject until such time that it might be more pertinent.

Five Town Nite violations were reported and the penalty applied.

The Echo Offers A Modest Proposal For Improvement Of Maryville Faculty

Adapted from the University of Chattanooga's "University Echo" by Neale Pearson and Gail Brown.

Maryville College has one major shortcoming which can undoubtedly be blamed on our faculty. It's a shame and an unmitigated disgrace to find that we haven't had a single decent scandle. Think of it, no titterings, evil whisperings, or raising of eyebrows behind professors' backs, not even the slightest blemish to enhance the moral fiber of our teachers in the eyes of the taxpayers.

We are being deprived of a traditional part of campus life by the reluctance of our colorless faculty to enter into any sort of unethical carryings-on. This certainly shows a lack of character on their part.

Such an unfortunate situation can hardly be the fault of the student body. Some of us would go to great lengths to uncover tasty morsels of questionable conduct and would even turn to fabricating rumors, purely for their entertainment value. In most colleges teachers furnish enough inspiration for millions of adolescents forging their first footsteps on the paths to infamy. But not our faculty; the majority of Maryville's teachers are insipidly upstanding, sober, and revoltingly respectable. How can a school paper thrivee under such conditions?

Happily, this problem is not without solution. With a little cooperation from each faculty and administration member we can splash MC across the front page of every newspaper in Tennessee. Below are a few suggestions that might aid our drive for nation-wide recognition and notoriety.

First, the character of our administration officials should be diligently undermined. Dean Hunter should buy at least one yacht and begin immediate negotiations for the purchase of a Country Club for a home. The athletic department might provide each discouraged football player with a convertible and a chorus girl. The bookstore should start trafficking in lewd comic books and Erskine Caldwell novels. The least President Lloyd could do would be to donate his backyard for the cul-

'Dance of Gods' Is 1951 Theme

By Pat Lovette

"Dance of the Gods" will be the theme of the third annual fall dance to be held from 8 to 11 p.m. tonight in Alumni Gym. The dance is sponsored alternately by the two brother and sister societies on campus, this year being sponsored by Athenian-Bainonian.

According to rules set up by the Student Body, the dance is informal—meaning hose and heels for girls and suits and ties for boys. There is no admission charge, no corsages, and music is recorded.

Barbara Blum, June Hood, Ray Rose and George Day are in charge of the dance with Austin Van Pelt serving as master of ceremonies.

Nina Ruth Gillette, Nannette Enloe, Sandra McDougal, and Florence Clerk are in charge of decorations; Ann Leeder is in charge of refreshments; and Izzy Leitch is publicity chairman.

There is an interesting fable concerning the theme of the fall dance, according to the dance chairmen. It seems that Orpheus, while practicing for a concert in honor of the birthday of the oldest of the Fates, discovered some strange new music, which he declared was called twentieth-century something or other.

He played some of it for a few of the gods, and they became so excited about it that they told Zeus, their great father. Zeus was so pleased with the music that he decided to give an informal ball on the evening of Saturday, December 1, 1951 in order to present and to try out this new music.

Mercury brought a messenger to the Editor of the Echo saying that the entire Maryville College Student Body and Faculty were invited to attend, since Zeus was quite anxious to popularize the strange new music. "It is hoped that quite a number of Maryvillians will take advantage of this 'once in a lifetime' invitation," said Miss Blum.

Miller, Lynn Reign Over Barnwarming

Her Royal Highness Carolyn Miller and King Bob Lynn reigned over the 1951 Barnwarming festivities last Thanksgiving evening in Alumni Gym.

The royal court, consisting of the class sponsors escorted by the class presidents, were freshman sponsor, Pat Ingles escorted by Harry MacCall; sophomore sponsor, Ruth Roach escorted by Jim Hunt; junior sponsor, Sid Wiley escorted by; senior sponsor Jackie Lenderman escorted by Ralph Thiesse. Miss Miller, senior sociology major from Monmouth, Ill. has been very active at Maryville. She was recently announced one of the eight MC students to appear in "Whos' Who." Also, she is vice-president of Pi Kappa Delta, a member of the debating team, Writers' Workshop, YW, and Bainonian. She edited the 1950 Chilhowean, and is currently secretary of Student Council.

Bob Lynn is a senior economics major from Elmhurst, Ill. He is a member of the Spanish Club, Business Club and was business-manager of the 1950 Chilhowean.

"Main Street Fantasy," the Barnwarming theme, was a musical comedy program featuring Maryville students. Betty Hammers, Wally Schraeder, Jody Richardson, Charlie Schraeder, and Arnold Munn starred.

The Time Is Now

By Van Holland

One does not have to look very far to see that momentous world-wide events and changes now are taking place in the political, scientific, economic, spiritual, and philosophical fields. Two world wars have rocked and shaken the peoples of the earth in the past 30 years, and now we are on the threshold of another. The freedom-loving countries and Russia and her satellites are presently arming themselves for another conflict, which might have its genesis in the Korean battle that already has resulted in 100,000 American casualties. The far eastern countries are now in a process of social revolution, and are clamoring for political recognition.

This is the age of the atomic bomb, the most devastating power ever put in the hands of man. Socialism is seeking to replace capitalism, and communism is threatening to overthrow both of these two economic systems. And focusing the problem to a national level, more corruption in the government and college sports is being exposed each day.

Naturally, such disturbing events have affected all of us, particularly, we of the younger generation. And what are the affects. Well, "Time" magazine (Nov. 5) has labeled us as "grave, fatalistic—morally confused—short on ideals, lack(ing) self-reliance —for personal security at any price—(but) it has learned that it must try to make the best of a bad job, whether that job is life, war, or both."

Sadly enough, this is a true appraisement of the younger generation. Although we realize that we must make the best of a bad job, we lack confidence in ourselves, are confused in our thinking, and value security more highly than freedom. We tend to be placid in our acceptance of world conditions. We are very unenthusiastic in our beliefs and ideals. We are behaving more like nutty neurotics than like a large resolute breed of men and women.

Let us remember that the old order is always changing and that the future is oftentimes obscure. But, "is it not the age of Revolution, when the old and he new stand side by side, and admit of being compared; when the energies of all men are searched by fear and hope; when the historic glories of the old can be compensated by the rich possibilities of the new era" that we would most desire to be born? Is not faith in the supreme worth and freedom of the individual something to cling to and cherish?

It is important that we, who have been fortunate enough to attend college, work toward becoming a large resolue breed of men and women. Now is one of the most formative stages of our development, embracing ideas and principles that will affect the course of our whole lives. It is hoped that Christian ideals, the fundamental concepts of freedom, and international concern will constitute part of our personal philosophy. But education in college, as well as anywhere, depends solely on the individual. As all life is one whole process of self-education, so is college just an organized opportunity for self-education.

"This time, like all times, is a very good one, if we but know what to do with it."

Scots & Soda

By Pat Ingles

It has been said that George Carpenter, in an attempt to start his day off right, stepped into the shower one morning after turning both faucets on full force. His idea of a slow, comfortable awakening was short-lived—the hot water had been shut off. How would you react to a full blast of cold water at 6:15 a.m.?

Jim Demers, better known as "Rocky," did more than to walk into a cold shower—he hit the front window of the FAC at full speed one day. We wonder if there is any special significance in the cactus plant which has subsequently been placed there! You did say that you came from the big city of New York, didn't you, Jim? Or don't they have all the new fangleed "inventions" there that Tennessee does?

It's driving me nuts——I find it in the dining room, it pops up during some dreamy dance, it shows up all over campus——I can't get rid of it ——that noise——that HEEK! Upon first hearing it, I thought that some specimen from the Maryville dairy had escaped——and maybe I'm not so wrong at that, as it seems predominantly present wherever any football players congregate.

Baldwin is definitely becoming radical. They seem to be gathering some of Carnegie's vicious ideas for disturbing the unfortunate beauty-sleepers. At first it sounded as though all the windows on the south side had blown in, but upon investigation it was discovered that some sharpshooters hit the jackpot. . . with a basket full of coke bottles. The bottles didn't miss one of the stairs from 3rd to 2nd floor.

It cannot be said that Lynn Miller had any kind of a "swol" head the night of Barnwarming. In fact, her crown rested quite uneasily on her humble brow. Can't help adding what a lovely bit of royalty she made.

Although it was some time ago, those who suffered through the formal dinner one Friday night, might have been ignorant of the fact that the chief object of the candlelight was to keep one's mind off what one was eating. The results were not so good. . .especially for those who discovered that they had several helpings of potato, and nothing else!

However, this leads me on to the subject of Table Etiquet in Pearsons. These are some suggestions for improvement of table manners. (1) Those bisquits we get once in awhile should be opened with the fingers. However, in extreme cases, an ex might be permissable. (2) Never eat peas with a knife. Knives should always be eaten alone. (3) Waitresses, and waiters, should stack all their weapons in a corner before the meal. (4) Never rattle your knife and fork; glasses are much more musical.

Seeing Charlie Schroeder drive by in a Crosley the other day, reminded me of the standard joke(?) that is associated with one. . . .

A genius is a fellow who can shift gears in a Crosley without getting his face slapped. (No offense, Charlie.)

Wally Schroeder did not let brother Charlie get one ahead of him. After successfully(!) completing a piece of work in Miss Horne's Music Theory class, Wally was slightly surprised when she came out with the joke of the boy who never did anything right.

It seems that one day this little boy did do an assignment perfectly right for once. It caused the teacher to remark. . . . "That was very good, Johnny."

To which Johnny replied, "Very good, —, that was perfect!"

I hear that Tasker Robinette has been practicing dart throwing on a make-belive dummy lately. I wonder when he is going to be using live bait. If you ever want suggestions for victims, Tasker, I'll be glad to help you out.

The whole campus has been ringing with Christmas carols lately, and that leads me to say that it is only about 20 more days before most of us will be leaving for home! That means sleep, sleep, and more sleep. . . .something we'll really need after finals—which are coming up in about 16 days.

Speaking of finals reminds me of how little I really know. . . .but to quote an old saying. . . . "If ignorance is bliss, then I'm really blistered."

Voices, Masks, and Shadows

ON THE SCREEN

MC movieguers will view a product of many talents this Tuesday night when MGM's grand show, "An American in Paris," is shown at the Capitol Theater. The technicolor film is smart, dazzling, genuinely gay and romantic, and as hard to resist as its George Gershwin score.

The movie's boy-meets-girl story is simple, light-hearted and reveals thoroughly likable characters. An ex-G.I. painter (Gene Kelly), happily roughing it on the Left Bank, picks up a charming shopgirl (Leslie Caron), and they fall in love.

Throughout, the film breathes the bouyant spirit of Mr. Kelly which theater audiences have loved for years. Leslie Caron, a young (19) French ballet dancer discovered by Kelly combines dancing skill with a fetching simplicity.

The Gershwin score presents a dozen of his works, some heard only in snatches, some unfamiliar, ranging from "Embraceable You" to "Piano Concerto in F" played by Pianist Oscar Levant, who doubles as a comedian.

Three designers, including Broadway's Irene Sharaff, film "An American in Paris" with costumes which, like the rest of the movie, score as high in imagination as lavishness.

ARTIST'S CORNER

At the Art Gallery of the Fine Arts Center this week and until December 7, 31 paintings are being shown.

The works were selected as the best from a recent exhibition by the Knoxville Art Center, an organization composed of citizens of Knoxville and Maryville and students and faculty of the University of Tennessee.

Local artists whose paintings were chosen for the exhibit include M. J. Dashiel and Charlotte Johnson, instructors in art, and Edna Waters of Maryville.

Dashiel's oil paintings were both done at Indianapolis, Ind. during student days. They are experiments with pattern and color relationships. Miss Johnson has two linoleum cuts on display, "Italy, 1950" and "Maryville Farm," while Mrs. Waters' has an oil painting "Autumn Landscape".

Outstanding works on display are those by Joe Cox, art instructor at UT, whose vinolite and oil painting entitled "Study in Line," displays subtle and sentitive tones.

A Knoxville businessman and and outstanding water color painter, Ted Burnette, created a pattern in his "Man-made Forms" suggestive of his work and background, the clothing business.

Kermit Ewing, head of the art department at UT, did his "Bourdon Street" in brilliant light and colors which immediately impresses one with a definite mood. Another notable water color is Arlen Goff's (UT graduate) "Littered Beach" which has a very original patern superimposed on a normal landscape.

QUIET ZONE

Of interest to Tennesseans will be Irving Stone's newest novel, "The President's Lady." Here we find the deeply moving story of Rachel and Andrew Jackson. Theirs is a tender and poignant love story, and the reader will find that Rachel Jackson lived in the most controversial and amazing melodrama that ever engulfed an American woman. This book is one of the newest to be added to the library's collection along with "The Vicious Circle" by Margaret Case Harriman.

The Algonquin Round Table, or The Vicious Circle, as they gayly called themselves, came to New York's already legendary Algonquin Hotel the way lightning strikes a tree—by accident and mutual attraction.

Dorothy Parker, Heywood Broun, Woollcott, Benchly, Harold Ross, George Kaufman, Robert Sherwood. . . they were only part of that celebrated group of wits which gathered there daily throughout the twenties and thirties to enjoy each other's company, produce some of the most unparalleled dialogue in history, and become, more than any other single group, the nerve center and bloodstream of American literature and drama for more than a decade.

Remembering it all, Margaret Case Harriman, with the help of Al Hirschfeld's incomparable drawings, recaptures these extraordinary people with affection, perception and a wit that benefits them.

FTA Plans Program

Future Teachers of America will have a Christmas program on December 13. Izzy Leitch is to be in charge of the meeting.

Last Thursday the group had joint meeting with the FTA of Knoxville College. Joan Platt was in charge of the program, which was held in the Y Rooms.

Y Radio To Air 'Answer'

"The Church's Answer to the Four Fears," will be the theme of Y Radio, December 5, at 9 p.m. over station WGAP.

Tom Jones, Dave Reed, and Barbara Chubb will participate with Rosalie Munson and Ken Shaeffer as soloists.

Lynn Miller and Herb Hoover are the directors.

1952 Yearbooks Ordered, According To Robinette

Tasker Robinette, business manager of the 1952 Chilhowean has announced that an order for 550 yearbooks has been placed.

Because of the smaller student body this year, the total is higher than last year, although at that time, an order of approximately 600 boks was made. Enough books have been sold, however, so that an excellent yearbook can be produced without deficit.

The Chilhowean stand will be in front of Pearsons' before and after meals on December 10, 11, and 12, to collect second payments on the books.

Sigs To Hear Morse

Alpha Sigma will meet tonight at 6:15 in Bartlett Hall. Bill Morse, captain of the wrestling team, will give a wrestling demonstration and movies will be shown of last year's wrestling team.

As the Athenians have no regularly scheduled meeting, Neale Pearson, Alpha Sigma president, has said that all male students will be welcomed.

Prayer Meet Scheduled

Prayer Meetmg will be held Thursday, December 6, at 9:30 p.m., in the Y-Rooms. Bob Moser and Al Springfield will lead.

Thetas Meet This P.M.

Theta Epsilon will hold a very important meeting this afternoon at 1:15 p.m. in Theta Hall.

Gracie Scruggs, president, has announced that nominations of officers will be held.

ECHO FORUM

To the Editor of the Highland Echo:

It is very difficult for us to express adequately the appreciation we feel towards those who worked so hard to make Barnwarming the success it was.

We feel sure that the cast has already felt the enthusiasm on the part of those that come to Barnwarming. However, to those students who worked long hours behind the scenes and perhaps haven't felt the thrill of verbal recognition, we here wish to thank them heartily.

As members of the YWCA we cannot help show pride in the success of the show. We sincerely hope that the proceeds will be used in useful Christian service.

The cooperation and fellowship that was shown before, during, and after Barnwarming only goes to show that we on Maryville campus are of one body, working together for a common goal.

To the students, faculty, and administration we wish to express a deep appreciation for your cooperation and willingness to help.

Sincerely,
Katherine Blackburn

A COMMENT ON PRESENT-DAY FOOTBALL . . . . Many have been the comments on campus, in town, and in the nation as a whole, glorifying the virtues of football as played in the Southwest in regards to effective scoring procedures through the air. Passing has its many advantages but one point over-looked by far too many people these days is the fact than any team, to be really good, has to have a ground attack that can score touchdowns when needed. This point has been aptly illustrated by our neighbors to the Northeast at UT whom we often castigate but whom we feel are a very good example of our point. In their game with Kentucky both this year and last, it was a case of a team with a superb ground attack pitted against a team with a superior passing attack. In both cases, the Vols won easily because they had a scoring punch when needed. But to say the least, Kentcky had almost just a one-man offense in Parilli with his passing, and not taking anything away from the Babe, the Wildcats had nothing when they found themselves near the goal line and needed a score.

Using the Vols again as a case in point, this theory was also demonstrated very well in last year's Cotton Bowl when the ground-gaining Vols stopped Texas' passing Longhorns. Kentucky won her Sugar Bowl contest from Oklahoma for a like reason—not because she had a fine passing attack—which was already granted—but Bear Bryant saw that his Wildcats would need some semblance of an offense on the ground following their UT loss. In the period between that loss and New Year's day, Kentucky developed an offense that could traverse over the ground and in an upset was used to beat Oklahoma.

Football in this respect hasn't changed a bit from the old days. And we have just been thinking about propounding another theory along that line. The team with a good ground attack has likewise a good defense both on the ground and in the air in light of the fact that if the opponents are strictly dependent on an air attack the defense can do just like the Vols did—play a four man line and cover everybody going down field; perhaps even letting them complete a few now and then for a couple of yards but never letting them pull any real long fancy gains. The fact also enters in that any team can complete only a certain percent of its passes—we daresay about one out of two—regardless of the pass defense any team sets up and if that pass defense is even half-way decent, where is your offense going to be when you get down inside the ten and have to score! We don't know if this theory is real, true, or valid, but it's being cast into the wind right now for further hashing out.

●SEEMING UNLOGICAL, also, is a statement by Tom Siler in the other paper last Thursday whereby in an article that if de-emphasis were needed, it ought to be applied to the bands first. Anyhow, as the article goes on to say, "Silo" states that with the youth of this nation becoming soft on a milk-shake and comic book economy, what is needed for the youth of this nation is the teamwork and self-denial taught them by football. This is all well and good but we just wonder whether the 3,950 other students over at UT who don't play football for the Vols are learning the lessons of teamwork and self-denial through their participation in athletics—football in particular. It would seem to us that the only ones who were learning those lessons were the boys who were asked to do such. Siler has a good point in the total situation if these students that could not possibly make even the x-string play the game in some way—Intramurals seemingly being the best outlet for such—but to say that in a school where the athletes are on a scholarship basis that all the students can get their knowledge of teamwork and self-denial through participation in these varsity sports seems kind of absurd.

The way most college students get their exercise, we figure, which is needed, is by walking the three-quarters of a mile to Town on Tuesday night, Sunday morning, or else in getting out of the sack at 7:05 a.m. and hustling over for breakfast though some people have managed to get their work-outs in co-operation with the opposite sex.

Intramurals and participation in athletics for the fun and exercise of a game should be pushed more on college campuses but the fact also stands out that in most bigger schools, the only individuals putting out Intramural teams are frats and the leagues which should number thirty and forty teams because of the college or university's size may have fifteen or sixteen squads at the most because there are only that many frats and the Independents or non-frat members would rather whiz around town in automobiles or stand in front of the local ice-cream dispensing establishment and exercise their lungs by forcing air through their lips to form two certain well-known melodious tones.

●"NOW, ALL YOU HAVE TO DO IS TO GET MISS HERON". . . these familiar strains are those attached to MC's number one athletic fan and concerns those individuals who arrive on campus and ask what courses to take and who is the easiest, etc. . . The proverbial answer has been, if you have any type of athletic ability, get Miss Heron, and if you're a football player, it's a cinch." These words have some truth about them since "Miss Jessie," as she is usually called by athletes, has always helped athletes in their studies but she hasn't shown quite as much favoritism as she has been charged with. With some facts gathered by staff correspondent for this week James Whitcomb Riley, we dedicate this next article to Miss Heron, MC's number one fan.

As was mentioned in last issue, the football players were treated to a big feed out at the Heron's Roost a couple of Saturday's ago. It was the fifteenth in a series dating back to 1935 and was in turn reciprocated by her being invited for the umpteenth time as the sole woman to ever attend the football banquet in Pearson's Hall. Miss Jessie's seen many sudents come and go ever since her first arrival in 1919 and knows just about as much about Maryville College Athletics as the Gray Eagle who is Chairman of the Division of Physical Education and Athletics.

She also seems to have picked up a liking for the game from a brother who wanted to be a sports writer— which shows what influence these unworthy individuals have on people and consequently attended her first game in 1915 and has been attending them since—so, much so, that if any attendance awards were given out, she'd win them all.

In her early days on campus, she also met Miss Jessie K. Johnson, also of the English staff and as a result of the latter's ability on the tennis courts and the first meeting between the two led to a close friendship that has lasted all these years.

Of all the many incidents attached to the feeds she has been throwing athletes for the past many years as well as those in which she was attending as guests of the players, perhaps the most humorous one, is one that occurred a few years ago when the Journal sent a photographer over to take some pictures of the newly elected Highlander grid captains and their seats were in front of hers. As a result when the gentleman with the "birdie" got set to take his picture, guess who was in the background of an all-male affair—none other than Miss Heron, after which point the college's record for the quarter mile was unofficially broken as she made haste out of range.

To also prove the worth of Faculty receptions, she got Coach Honaker to admit that which he dos not like to admit—his all-time MC team, or at least part of one. His best back was Shorty McCall of the '27 team while his other stars were Hersh Merriman, back, Marv Mitchell, Cotton Easter, and Pie Garner who played line for the powerful '46 and '47 teams. But that's about all she could get out of him with her sly question of "Who's been your best players?"

Though more justice could probably be done to this story, all we would like to say, and we're speaking we think for all Maryville atheletes, "You've been a real sport 'Miss Jessie' and it's been nice knowing you."

●SOMETHING WORTHWHILE FOR ALL MEN will be the wrestling exhibition at Alpha Sigma's meeting tonight that is in charge of Bill Morse, mat men captain. Several of Coach Davis' wrestlers will demonstrate the various holds used and after that perhaps they can be used at the shindig which follows a couple of hours later. Anyhow we don't know, but it ought to be worthwhile. George Day who is in charge of Athenian's programs has also announced

Cagers On Courts Tuesday For Home Opener

Thinlies End Season In Cold With Three Wins All Told

MC Takes Sewanee U. of L.; Finish Year Real Well

By Hersh Mosier

On Saturday, November 17, the Maryville College Cross country team ended its season with a victory over the teams of the University of the South and the University of Louisville in a triangular meet on the Sewannee course. The Scots with a final score of thirty-three to Louisville's forty-eight and Sewannee's forth-nine points finished their season on a happy note.

Hooray, Middle Section

Although Cass Trumons and Jack Chactain of Louisville and Bill Pilcher of Sewanee crossed the finish line before the first Scorrie, MC led by Dick Kerr who finished fourth and Tom Kelly, who finished fifth took the meet with a splendid teamwork.

The runners finished in this order: Trumons (L), Chactain (L), Pilcher (S), Kerr (M), Kelly (M), Puckett (S), McMillan (M), Rogers (M), Day (M), Pearson (M), Hogan (S), and Jahns (S).

Not Bad, Huh?

The win was the Scots' third of the season against three losses for a .500 average but two of these losses were with UT's mighty Vols and there was the tie with strong Georgia Tech also. So the Scots could almost be said to have had a 3-1-1 season which is very good.

But This Was Tough

When workouts began early last September, Coach Kenneth Johnson had the nucleus of a fine team what with four lettermen and four other returnees back. After some four weeks of workouts, UT's Vols were the first opponents on October 3. MC's top men at the time were Kerr and Pearson who had divided honors in time trials held the week before the meet.

The race started out with MC's Pearson keeping up with UT's mighty Alf Holmberg and John Waites but after two laps the UT stalwarts pulled away and at the race's end it was the Vols' Holmberg and Trent as winners. UT's Albertson, Kuykendahl, Waits, and Kidwell followed before MC's

Howies Vie With Chillies In Three Games Which Should Be Dillies

Soccer is well under way in Women's Varsity with captains and managers already elected for each team. Gracie Sruggs will captain the Chillies with Emma Curtis as manager while Ruth Cliver is leading the Howies with Carolyn Cooper as manager. Barbara Rogers is game instructor.

First tournament game will be December 6 at 4 p.m. with the winning two out of the three-game tuornament Soccer Champions. The games promise to be hot ones with talent about evenly distributed between the two teams.

Everyone is invited to come to the games which will be on team winning two out of the three-game tournament Soccer Champ-next Thursday, and the Tuesday following in the Intramural Gym.

AS SCOTS PICK OPPONENT TEAM FOUR '50 CHOICES AGAIN GLEAM

	RH Ashe (C-N)	FB Dacos (Jax)	LH Miller (E&H)
RE Blackwell (Geo)	QB Puckett (ETS)	LG Henson (C-N)	LE Morrison (ETS)
RT Bryan (ETS)	RG DeFillippo (ETS)	C Croft (Geo)	LG Connell (Jax)	LT Neblett (E&H)

The players above represent a twelve-man squad picked by Maryville players the last two weeks as the best players on the squads played by Maryville this year. Hal Morrison of ETS, Art DeFillipp of ETS, C-N's Nig Henson, and Emory-Henry's Bob Miller are repeats from the 1950 All-Opponent Team—Morrison being only a sophomore at that and Miller hitting it for the third time while DeFillipo got his for his play with Tuscumlum last annum.

Davis Chucked

One luminary from last year's squad, Chick Davis of Emory & Henry, failed to get the nod this year as he picked up only six votes to the average fifteen gained by the backs chosen. E & H's Creed Bruce also was in the running for a while with eight votes but his entry was only an early standout.

Five Teams Represented

Voting was closest in the nominating for the line positions though Morrison and Bryan ran away with the votes in their divisions. Georgetown's Ray Blackwell had some contention from C-N's Earl Ogle and Jacksonville's John Meadows for the right end post but it was not enough to matter. The left tackle position was decided on the last ballot as the Gamecock's Wyatt and the Blue Wasp's Neblett tied for six apiece.

In The Middle

Picking the guards seemed to be a difficult choice as DeFillippo took the right guard appointment while Connel Jax's left guard picked up four votes for the right guard also to give him eleven votes to Henson's eight for the left post—perhaps sufficient reason to put both on the squad. Centre's Jim Brown gave Croft some contention with four votes, too.

The above are statistics for all the Scotties' games save Jacksville State and Georgetown away.

There's the Whistle

In the kick-off department, Jim Callaway did most of the booting, with one assist from Harold Glad, who did most of last year's work. Jimmie did a pretty fair bit of work this year as he let his dainty tootsies drive the ball for a total of 409 yards in nine tries, which gives him a years average of 45.44 yards per try. Glad, in his only time up, kicked for thirty yards.

On the other side of the fence

Five Gridiron gallants had the opportunity to gather in opponents kick-offs and try their luck at carrying it back up the field. The group split up the chore rather fairly, but Jim Campbell emerged as the one most nearly specializing in the job, carrying it up the field some 157 yards, in six tries, an average of 26.1 yards every time, an average which emerges as the best of the team. Charlie Allen carried four time for 82 yards (20.5). Others who got in the act were Jerry King (3-49-16.1), Grant Sharp (1-20-20), and Harold Glad (110-10). The longest single run was also turned in by Campbell in the opening play of the second half of the first Carson-Newman game, when he galloped for 40 yards on a kickoff return.

Educated Toes

The punting for the Scotties this year was "shared" by three men. Although he was out for the last few games, Charlie Allen did the most booting, in the six games accounted for and compiled the best average. Charlie kicked thirty-three times for a total of 1,292 yards. In case you don't have time to figure it out, that is an average of 39.2 yards per kick, a better than fair average in any man's league. And Mr. Sharp did pretty well by himself too, kicking 19 times for 655 yards and a 34.5 average. The third man of the group was Jim Campbell again, who got into the act by kicking once for 23

Hard Workouts Held During Past Week As Scots Their First Victory Do Seek

First Hoop Game With Hiwassee Away

Wrestlers Grunt and Cry For Match With Knox Y

The Scots first game of the season will be with Hiwassee away Monday.

Heavy workouts were th by-word during the past week as Scot athletes made preparations for openers in Winter Sports next week. On Tuesday night Reliable Motors of Knoxville will bring a tall and high scoring quintet to Alumni Gym for a game with the hard-wood men while on the following Saturday, the matmen will en-car for a match with Knox Y there.

Looking forward to a winning season, Maryville's 1951-52 collection of rebounders will open the season with almost the same Scottie five that won five of its last eight games in winding up the 1950-51 season with a record of seven wins and 14 loses—beating several opponents that had taken their measure earlier in the season.

Bab Keny, Bob McClelland, Stan Downs and Dick Gardner will be among those missing when this year's quintet takes the floor.

Pasqualy Faking 'Em

Mino Shields, last year's leading scorer, Charlie Allen, smooth, ball-handling guard, Dick Abbott, hard driving forward, and Bert McMahon, valuable rebounder—all re-returning lettermen—will supply Coach Honaker with a good nucleus to build a team around.

Equally bright is the work of Joe Hopkins (vastly improved since last year's finale) at center, Jim Wiley, and Jim Campbell at forward, and Wes Kinser at guard. All saw somee varsity srvice last season. Sophomore Bob Johnson should help coach more than a little from the pivot, and hard-driving frosh guard A. C. McWilliams has been a standout performer who, too, should see plenty of action.

Chances Are Good

This Highlander five could turn in a winning season if they can get untracked early. The rebounding should be adequate, the ball-handling beter than usual, and the floor game fair—all of which points to happy days which are long overdue on the hill.

WRESTLERS TUNE UP

So far this year the wrestlers have been working to get in shape, taking a few extra pounds off here and there. So far, the greatest weakness is in the heavyweight division where there is no one. Bob Buchanan is the heaviest man out at 177, and Bob was a 155 pounder last year. Leading the returnees is Bill Morse, SEC champ in his 123 division last year, and Don Benton, Jimmy Callaway, and Jim Squires who have had some experience. Others, many of whom were out last year but without experience, include Herb Catlin (157). Curt Wilbanks (147), Jack Maxwell who will most likely try to get down to a lighter weight of 128, Dave Helwig (138), Max Southern (146), Tom Fairhurst (153), Dave Ritzman (140), Al Mcculloch (134), Bob Sangster (149), Dick Erickson (145), Don Moffet (151), Jim Bang (142), Charlie Schroeder (139), Sammy Faulkner (149), Harry McCall (159), and John Hendricks (144). Just where these men will finally end up is just about anyone's guess, at least for the first few matches. All we can do is wait and see.

Intramurals....

McCulloch Tops Helwig To Win Harrier Jog-Jig

In the annual Intramural Cross Country Race, Al McCulloch put on a stirring finish to overpass Dave Helwig on the last curve to win with the good time of 13.33 over the 2.8 mile course. McCulloch trailed Helwig onto the final lap by several yards before putting on his kick. In third place was Jack Maxwell followed by Wayne Brooks in fourth place, and Bob Toney in fifth place, while a host of six aspirants for the wrestling team finished up the rear.

Club Feet Win Wed. To Help Lead Cage Play

Hank Van Hassel's Clubfeet clubbed thir way to victory in the opening game of play in the 1951-1952 Intramural Basketball season and took two wins over other weak opposition to take a lead in league standings. With Jerry Baker's ten pints tops for either sides, the Clubfeet came back in the second half of their game with Athenian's Owls to win, 32-28.

It's A Question?

Hot on their heels though are the powerful Question Marks of Dick Patton and Harold Glad and the Globetrotters with Don Alford as the big gun and Tom Jones' Pussycats with two wins apiece. Having an outside chance also of cracking these teams' monopolies on the lead are Alpha Sigma's Scotties who played two of the toughest teams in the leagues, the Question Marks and Globetrotters in their first two encounters but who can move up if they work some semblance of an offence out.

Other Highlights

Dick Thom's Anons who certainly have one of the tallest teams in the league with six regulars over six feet one had thir hands full as an inspired Pre-Mins team made a strong comeback in the last period to almost trip them up. As it was, Anons held on to win, 19-17, but a strong factor in keeping the score down was the fact that Anons missed 18 of 23 free throws. Chuck Holsinger and Hugh Bowers of Pre Mins were the top offensive and defensive men of both teams with the former garnering nine tallies.

Hamburgers Grilled

In another closie Tom Jones Pussycats really pulled a squeaker out of the fire as they fried Hamburger Squad, 27-26, after almost losing the lead in the third quarter of play. Paul Merwin's Hamburger's also were the victims in one of the season's big romps when Horace Beckwith's Alpha Sigma Quintet won

Dr. Edward Elson Of Washington Speaks At Chapel

By Darothy Greenhagen

Guest speaker at the morning chapel service on November 20 was Dr. Edward L. R. Elson, pastor of National Presbyterian Church, Washington, D.C.

Dr. Elson was a pastor at San Diego, Calif., for 10 years and in the war for five years. As a colonel in the army he was the highest decorated Presbyterian Chaplain in the service.

He holds the office of vice-president of the Washington Federation of Churches and is the National Chaplain for Disabled Veterans. In addition, he is the chairman of the Commission on Religious Life in the Capitol. Dr. Elson is also a Presbyterian representative to the National Council of Churches.

He also serves on the Board of Pensions of the Presbyterian Church and is on the Board of Directors of Maryville College. From the nine colleges that he has spoken to since October, this is the only one where he has official relations.

Dr. Elson is a graduate of Greenbrier College, Ky., where he is now a trustee. In his undergraduate days, he was active in baseball and basketball. He was editor of the campus newspaper and business manager of the yearbook.

The National Presbyterian Church is one of the most historic churches in America. It is a creation of the General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church and is responsible to the General Assembly. The congregation was originated at the White House in 1795, where Scottish masons were at work on the White House steps. They held their first services in a carpenter shop.

All the presidents except two have worshipped there. Among those who have attended services are Jackson, Pierce, Polk, Cleveland, Buchanan, Grant, Harrison and Secretaries Hay, Foster, Lansing, Stimson, and many Supreme Court justices, senators and congressmen. On the front lawn of the church is a monument of John Witherspoon, the only clergy man to sign the Declaration of Independence.

Dr. Elson was very happy to announce that his book, "One Moment with God," was published by Doubleday and put on the market last week.

Although Dr. Elson came in the dark, he said that he had a favorable impression of Maryville. He was very glad to see some of his parisioners who are attending school here. He also said that the Vesper Choir made a very favorable impression on the congregation when it visited Washington last spring.

WANTED: ANY MALE STUDENTS OVER 165 POUNDS . . . This is the cry going out from Bartlett Hall as Coach John Davis puts his wrestlers through their daily workouts. This heavyweight situation which has always been a crying need at MC is worse this year than it has ever been before and unless some individuals of the above weights come out, MC may likely be giving some five point forfeits up.

BASKETBALL SEASON ALSO OPENS UP NEXT WEEK—come to the games.

Marine Visits Maryville To Discuss Training

Capt. J. W. Donnell, USMC, visited the campus this week to discuss the Marines' officer training programs for college men with Dean of Students Frank D. McClelland. Tom Kelly, Herb Hoover, Bill Morse, Dave Reed, and Joe Bender are now members of the Platoon Leaders' Class.

The Marine officer will return in late February to interview interested students in regard to the Marine Corps Officer Candidate Course for seniors and college graduates, and the Platoon Leaders' Class for freshmen, sophomores and juniors.

He also will provide information on the Women's Training Class that is open to Maryville coeds.

can be taken, but it is possible that tivation of a garden plot of marijauana.

The social science department could start a communist cell and distribute pamphlets and stickers proclaiming "the revolution". History teachers could make Marx and Lenin required reading for Freshmen. Alpha Sig and Athenian with their respective moll clubs could engage in armed feuds. The Student Center is readily adaptable for a combination opium den and dime-a-dance ballroom.

Joining this all-effort the Highland Echo could print a front page expose, with pictures of students working on a gin still in the chemistry lab, and physics profs secretly at work on an atomic bomb. We'd let the world know that the art classes spend all their time looking for pictures of nudes in the art magazines, that the home-ec group is offering a special course in husband-poisoning, that math students are figuring nothing but gambling odds, and that the business club people are playing the stock market.

These activities, plus a few student up-risings, should net us a Senate investigation—maybe three; they're small.

THINLIES END SEASON

first man, Kerr, came in followed by Pearson. The score was 15-48.

On The Sunny Side

After a two week's interval, the Scots traveled to Dayton, Tennessee, where they eked out a 28-29 win over William Jennings Bryan by virtue of George Day and Dick Kerr's garnering of third and fourth places behind Bryan's Randy Maycumber and Harry Goling who took first and second in a time of 20:57 for the 3.7 mile course. MC's Kelly, Rogers, Helwig, and Pearson grabbed off the sixth to ninth positions to insure the win.

For A While At Least

The Scots got a chance to run the Vols on the Vol's course and the Vols took another triumph, this time by 15-40, as Holmberg and Albertson took a rest because of blisters and sickness. Winner of the 4.2 mile race was UT's John Trent followed by Kuykendahl, Waits, Gamble, Kidwell, all of UT, MC's Kerr, Pearson, Kelly, and Rogers. Best consolation of the race was Kerr's staying with Trent and Co. for most of the way before they wore him down.

Sewannee's Purple and White next raided MC's campus but were turned back in perhaps the Scots' best race on home grounds, 18-45. Kerr was first followed by Rogers, Bill Pilcher of Sewannee, Pearson, Day, Kelly, Rod McMillain, and Dave Helwig, before the Tigers got a mon in.

MC Wrecks Tech's 'Reck

A race with Georgia Tech followed next and after a grueling race over a wind-swept course, the Scots tied the Engineers, 28-28. Legan of Tech broke the tape first with a time of 24:15 for the 4-mile course followed by Kerr, Gilbreath and Savage of Tech, and Rogers, Day, Pearson, and Kelly of MC who insured the Scots a tie by filling up the middle action.

While Bryan Gives Us Heck

Bryan then stopped the Highlanders in the return race, 27-28, with the race's difference being Bryan's Walker and Merssner pulling ahead of Pearson and Day who had beat them on the Bryan course to take seventh and eighth places. Maycumber took first with a time of 23 minutes flat followed by Kerr, Goerhing of WJBU, and MC's Kelly.

Then came the triangular meet with Sewannee and Louisville wherein the Scots once again hung together over the whole race to fill in the all-important middle section.

A Plaudit Here And There

When letter rewarding time rolling around Dick Kerr deserves extra praise for the fine running he has done this season for the Scots. Dick won the first Sewannee meet and placed second in the second meet with Bryan. In the other meets Dick was one of the first Scotties to cross the finish line, while Ric Rogers, Tom Kelley, George Day, and Neale Pearson were always giving the opposition a run for their money.

If an award was given out for the most improved runner for the Scots this year, it would go to Rod McMillian. Rod, who is a freshman, steadily got better as the season progressed and ran his best race in the triangular meet in which he took seventh placee.

Is All Right Anywhere

Also coming in for their most plaudits are Dave Helwig, Jack Maxwell, Wayne Brooks, and Morris Taylor who stuck it out through sweat and tears all year. Along with Kerr, and McMillan they should form the nucleus of another strong team next year.

Going The Other Way

It was also Allen who returned the most punts. He gathered in eight enemy punts and ran them back 72 yards, an average of nine yards a try. This was not the best average, however, for that was turned in by Grant Sharp, who carried four times through an average of 9.8 yards every time for 39 yards. Also in the field were Kinser (3-16-5.3), Alford (8-1-5.5), and King (3-49-16.1).

Scoring If Any

This, unfortunately, didn't happeen often enough. The lead was shared by two men, Jim Campbell and Harold Glad, each scoring twice. Sharp also scored once. The extra points were nil, none were scored throughout the year.

Through the Air

The passing department was left mostly in the hands of Charlie Allen until he was hurt, when Wesley Kinser took over the job. Allen completed ten of thirty-five passes, an average of 20%, Kinser threw twenty times completing eight, a 40% figure. Allen's passes went for joy 196 yards and Kinser's for 79.

Vols Meet

Student Vols held their last meeting of the semester Sunday, December 2.

Opera Workshop Readies 'Frog'

The opera "Jumping Frog of Calaveras County" will be presented by opera workshop Saturday, March 22, at 8 p.m. in Alumni Gym. It is an opera of two scenes based on the original story by Mark Twain. The plot is based around the days of the gold rush in California.

The cast includes six men and one woman. Smiley will be portrayed by Wally Shroeder; Uncle Henry, Don Brakebill; Stranger, Bill Robinson; Lulu, Betty Hammers; guitar player, Conrad Eaddy; and the two crapshooters, Ken Shaffer and Bill Cunningham.

Austin Van Pelt will be student director. The technical direction and staging are under the direction of Assistant Professor of Drama Kathleen Craven.

Sets and designs will be originals of the senior art majors executed by next semester's art classes under the direction of Assistant Professor of Art Charlotte Johnson.

Harry Harter, assistant professor of music, will be in charge of the musical direction, and Mrs. Conrad Eaddy, instructor in music, will be the accompanist.

Tomorrow's 'Messiah' Production Makes Nineteenth For Maryville

By Emily Smith

Tomorrow afternoon will see the nineteenth annual production of George Frederick Handel's sacred oratorio "The Messiah" at Maryville College. The 1951 performance is the largest chorus in the history of its presentation at the college.

"The Messiah" at Maryville has come far since its first presentation in Voorhees Chapel in 1933. That first chorus was under the direction of Mary Frances Henry, then instructor in voice, and Mrs. Martha Henry Burchfield accompanied at the piano. The chorus numbered 100, and the six soloists included alumni, townspeople, students, and one part-time teacher.

The following two years four soloists were imported from Knoxville with their own accompanist and Charlotte Upp, a student, accompanied the chorus.

In 1936 the solos were again done by students and townspeople, the Maryville College Little Symphony Orchestra accompanied the chorus for the first time, and Garnet Manges, who teaches piano in town, also gave her services as accompanist at the piano for the first time that year.

Many advances were made in the years ensuing under Ralph Colbert's direction. Colbert began his direction of the chorus in 1936. The 1937 performance was broadcast by WNOX in Knoxville, in 1939 an organ was added to the orchestra and piano accompaniment, and in 1940 "The Messiah" was broadcast by WROL, Knoxville.

In 1942 Richard Vine directed the chorus for the first time, but that was the seventh year Dorothy Horne had served as concert mistress and Miss Manges had accompanied.

The war called Vine to other duties in 1943 and he was replaced by Philip Jones as director. Other changes brought about by the war and subsequent shortage of male voices included the importing of men from town, from Johnson Bible College, and from Kimberlin Heights, Tenn. The Air Force training program was then prevailing on campus and many uniforms were in evidence in the audience.

Vine reassumed the directorship in 1944 and continued through 1946, when Harry Harter replaced him for the 1947 presentation.

"The Messiah" was performed in the chapel every year, but since the chapel burned in the spring of 1946, the battle has been constant with poor acoustics and difficult seating arrangements in the Theatre Readies Christmas Play For Tonight

Experimental Theatre will present "Star Song," a long one-act Christmas play written by Florence Ryerson, tonight at 8 and 9:15 o'clock in Bartlett Auditorium.

Fred E. Short, instructor in drama and speech, is director of the play.

Members of the supporting cast include Jim Kren, James Shields, Ella Swift, Mary Jane Hahn, Sarah Pledger, Ken Rutherford, and Diana Evans.

Jean Ellis is house manager, and Austin Van Pelt is stage manager. The music department will supply the choral background music and incidental characters.

The play takes place in a small inn of Bethlehem on the night of the Saviour's birth. The people in the inn are so busy with their own personal worries and squabbles that they do not sense the great event when it arrives.

"Star Song" is a cumulative project of the class of religious pageantry. Tickets for the performances are available before and after meals in front of Pearsons Hall.

Workshop To Meet

Writer's Workshop will meet Monday, Deecember 10, in the Y Rooms. Readers at this meeting will be Carolyn Symmes and Art Van Alystine. The critics will bee Bob Coles and Dr. E. R. Hunter.

This is the last meeting of this semester.

No Vespers Tomorrow

There will be no Vesper service tomorrow evening because of the presentation of Handel's "Messiah" in Alumni Gym tomorrow afternoon.

Hunter Authors Poem Published By 'Quarterly'

By Van Holland

"A Man From Stratford Entertains Ben Jonson, In Stratford, August 7, 1623, For Mistress Anne Shakespeare's Funeral" is the title of Dr. Edwin R. Hunter's poem published in the "Shakespeare Quarterly" last April, 1951.

The poem is a dramatic monologue, a literary form, which through the conversation of one character (written in blank verse), reveals "a soul in action". It is intended to be a companion to E. A. Robinson's "Ben Johnson Entertains a Man From Stratford."

Robinson's poem deals mainly with the character of Shakespeare as revealed by Ben Jonson to a man from Stratford who is visiting London. But in Dr. Hunter's poem, Ben Johnson is in Stratford for Anne Shakespeare's funeral, and while being entertained by the same man he entertained in London, reveals the character of Anne and her home life.

Dr. Hunter said that the poem came as a result of long interest and thought about the character of Anne Shakespeare. Also, he read this composition as his requirement for Writers' Workshop in 1949.

"The Shakespeare Quarterly," which deals more with learned reports that creative work, is published by the Shakespeare Association of America. Dr. Hunter, a member of the Association, referred to the Quarterly as "a thoroughly sound journal." Before its revision a few years ago, the Quarterly was known as "The Shakespeare Association Bulletin."

Under the heading of "Contributors" to the April Quarterly was: "Edwin R. Hunter . . . divides his loyalty between Geoffrey Chaucer and William Shakespeare. He admits contributing to a number of learned journals but says nothing of a book of unpublished verse which should be lurking somewhere."

Dr. Hunter made no comment about this last statement.

MC'ers To Attend Vols Conference

Six Maryville College students will attend the sixteenth Student Volunteer Movement Quadrennial Conference at the University of Kansas from December 27 through January 1.

Sent by the MC branch of Student Vols will be Jerry Knecht. Homr Rickabaugh is the delegate of the college YMCA, and Benita Biswas is being sent by the Presbyterian Board of Foreign Missions.

Ann Leeder, Lynn Miller, and Ken Upham are to go independently, representing the local Student Vols and YM and YWCA.

"Christians in a World in Struggle" is to be the theme of the conference which will bring together over 2,000 North American students.

Speakers include Dr. Reinhold Niebuhr of Union Theological Seminary, New York City; Dr. D. T. Niles of Ceylon, author of "That They May Have Life"; Dr. Ruth Isabel Seabury of the American Board, Boston;

Dr. Charles W. Ranson of Ireland, General Secretary of the International Missionary Council; and Dr. John S. Badeau, President of the American University, Cairo, Egypt.

Spanish Club To Elect Next Semester Officers

Spanish Club will meet Thursday, December 13 in the Student Center. At that time officers for the following semester will be elected.

Nominations are president, Karole Kapp, Dick Kerr; vice-president, Trudy Singleton, Dave Helwig; secretary, Harriet Brown, Ellen Turner; treasurer, Jack Maxwell, Pat Lovette; director of programs, Barbara Rogers, Ethel Shockley, Carol Cornell, Neale Pearson.

The traditional Pinata and other Spanish Christmas games will be played. A play entitled, "Repaso de Examen" will be included in the program. The cast includes Ellen Turner, Jo Ann Bash, Mary Ann Hicks, and Grace Greenwalt.

At the last meeting of Spanish Club the play "El Pozo" was presented. Bob Lynn, Karole Kemp, Charlotte Beech, and Harriet Brown made up the cast.

Dr. Queener Injured In Automobile Accident

Absent from classes the latter part of this week has been Dr. Verton M. Queener, professor of History and Chairman of the Division of Social Sciences.

Queener was visiting his son in Madisonville Wednesday night and in pulling out of a lane to make a left turn his car was struck on the right side causing Dr. Queener to be thrown from the vehicle and injured slightly. X-rays showed no broken bones and it is expected that he may be back in school this coming week after several days of recuperation at Blount Memorial.

Council Passes MSO Revisions

Student Council at its regular Wednesday night meeting discussed and passed the final revision of the MSO Constitution, which had been passed by the Executive Council of the Faculty, and now goes before the men.

Town Night conduct was reported satisfactory, but it was pointed out that this may be a result of fear rather than understanding. Council President Bob Cuthill stated that he hopes a growth in understanding will continue the good conduct.

Relative to this discussion, loitering in the downstairs of Pearsons Hall was brought up. It was definitely stated that the first floor in Pearsons is not a lobby.

Dr. Hunter To Read Dickens' 'Xmas Carol'

The annual Christmas reading will be held Sunday evening at 7 in the dining hall. Dean Edwin R. Hunter wil read Dicken's "Christmas Carol."

As in other years, a fire will be built in the fire place and the Christmas tree will be lighted. Dr. Hunter will take his seat in the easy chair before the fire while his audience will be grouped around his feet.

To set a festive mood, there will be the traditional group singing of Christmas carols preceding the reading.

The program is sponsored by the joint Y's.

Oratorio Planned For Alumni Gym

By Lora Kingsinger

Maryville College's nineteenth annual presentation of "The Messiah" will be given tomorrow, December 9, at 3 p.m. in Alumni Gymnasium. Directed by H. H. Harter, a chorus of 250 students and townspeople will be accompanieed by the college symphony orchestra, an organ, and a piano in the performance of Handel's oratorio.

Thirteen soloists will take part in the performance. Helen E. Seay, sophomore religious education major from Irvington, N.J., will sing the recitatives, "And Lo the Angel of the Lord Came Upon Them" and "Suddenly There Was With the Angel." Barbara L. Brown, freshman voice major from Maryville, will sing recitatives "There Were Shepherds Abiding in the Fields" and "And the Angel Said Unto Them."

The air, "I Know That My Redeemer Liveth," will be sung by Margaret Ann Warren, senior sociology major from Selma, Ala., and "Come Unto Him," by Sheila Sutton, freshman music major from Chadbourn, N.C.

Rosalie Munson, senior voice major from Rochester, N.Y., will sing the air, "If God Be For Us, Who Can Be Against Us?" Junior sociology major, Betty Hammers from Stewartstown, Pa., will sing the recitative, "Behold a Virgin Shall Conceive" and the air, "O Thou That Tellest Good Tidings To Zion."

Nina Ruth Gillette, senior elementary major from Vineland, N. J., wlil sing the recitative, "Then Shall the Eyes of the Blind Be Opened" and the air, "He Shall Feed His Flock Like a Shepherd." Louise Packard, senior French major from Hammondton, N. J., will sing "He Was Despised."

Tenor recitative, "Comfort Ye My People," and the air, "Every Valley Shall be Exalted," will be sung by Wally Schroeder, junior psychology major from Buffalo, N.Y. Donald Brakebill, junior voice major from Rockford, will sing the recitative, "Thy Rebuke Hath Broken His Heart" and the air, "Behold, and See If There Be Any Sorrow."

Kenneth Shaffer, junior religious education major from Philadelphia, Pa., will sing "He That Dwelleth In Heaven," and "Thou Shalt Break Them." "Thus Saith the Lord" will be sung by bass soloist, George Howell from Maryville.

Also from Maryville, William Robinson, senior music theory major, will sing three numbers, including the recitatives, "For Behold, Darkness Shall Cover the Earth" and "The People That Walked In Darkness," and the air, "Why Do the Nations So Furiously Rage?"

Special Studies Ordeal Plays Havoc With MC

By Betty Ham

Special Studies . . . Try these two little words in combination on any of the droopy-eyed seniors you see walking around and you're likely to get your head bashed in.

The trouble all started four years ago when the faculty got hold of the idea originated at Princeton of having the students of the college write papers on some subject having to do with their major fields of study.

Dr. Edwin Ray Hunter, Dean of Curriculum, says that he bears the brunt of the blame for special studies, but claims that it was not all his doing.

The faculty holds that from the writing of special studies the student gains much value in independent work. It helps him to develop initiative and gives him experience in writing.

Special studies are primarily for those who cannot go to graduate school. They begin at the second semester of the junior year and are turned in near the end of the first semester of the senior year. Each student has a faculty supervisor who advises research and reads the paper as it comes in, supposedly chapter by chapter.

After the papers have been accepted by the advisors they are sent to the library where they remain for a period of three years. Then the library chooses from the group the ones it wants to keep, and the others are sent to the various departments of the school, unless their authors want them for souvenirs.

The faculty is not unanimous in its approval of these studies. One reason for this may possibly be that eight special studies students are equivalent to one class in time and preparation. Several of the teachers are very much opposed to them.

In these four years no special studies book has been turned down because of length. The context is what is of value. Dr. Hunter says that special studies give a mastery of at least one small field of knowledge.

He contends that with the completion of the books comes a sense of accomplishment that cannot be equalled. The classroom cannot furnishing the feeling of having done something really worthwhile.

On the night of the deadline the seniors break out with a big celebration to ease the strain they have been through in the preceding two semesters which they have spent doing their special studies.

The first special studies group brought the day to a close by parading out to the football field and making a monstrous bonfire of special studies notes. The following year the seniors marched in

Gallery Plans Exhibit Of Student Art Work

The art gallery of the Fine Arts Center will feature from December 7 to 21 an exhibit of the work of students enrolled in the various art courses.

Some work of every member in these classes will be shown.

The exhibit will include the courses in introduction to art principles, second and third level studios, the adult art class, the junior and senior high school painting classes, and art education.

Examples will be shown of painting and drawing, including posters, block prints, finger painting, paper batik, composition, and figure study; modelling; basketry; metal tooled and repousse; and leather.

French Celebrate X-mas

French Club will meet on Thursday night at Catherin Wilkinson's home for a Christmas program and carol singing.

Cars will leave from the front of Anderson Hall at 7:30.

It's Appreciation

Maryville College is truly a college of music appreciation. Almost every evening one can stroll into the Intramural Gym and see fine, appreciative young men standing on one side of the room listening to the soothing strains of "I Get Ideas" and the smooth mellow harmony of "Red Sails in the Sunset." And on the other side of the room one can see less appreciative young women sitting under the windows. They, too, are enjoying the music, but not because they want to.

They are forced to listen quietly to the music because of that old social tabu which forbids women to dance together at social functions and by the men's deep love of the music. Somehow or other they feel that they could not properly appreciate the beautiful chords and intricate melodies while moving slowly about the floor in a dance position.

Oh, but you musn't get us wrong. We women have nothing against music. After sitting in the Intramural Gym night after night, somehow or other a feeling for music begins to penetrate and enter our hearts. It makes us very happy to know that the men of Maryville possess this enjoyment for the finer things of life, but we wish they'd cultivate their interests elsewhere—perhaps at concerts and recitals.

Ah, yes—we Maryville women certainly are glad that our men so appreciate music—but we wish that between 6:30 and 7:15 they'd appreciate us more.

It's So Easy To Publish A Newspaper . . . .

It's so easy to publish a newspaper. . . You never get tired. You never need a vacation. Your head is always clear. You're always bright as a silver dollar. Everybody writes in beautiful letters telling you what a nice papere you have. Everybody phones in news. You never have any trouble getting paper.

Everybody pays you on time. You never have to remind people over and over again that their subscriptions are due. If you're late paying a bill, they say it's alright, let it go. You never make people mad at something you have written or have not written.

Your proof reader never makes a mistage. The front page always looks nice. The ads are always eye-catching. You just sit at your typewriter and write beautiful lines.

People never say your paper is political. They never insist you are taking sides. They always agree that you're independent.

Everywhere you hear the people say you're a good guy. They always say you work hard. The waste baskets never fill up, so nobody has to empty them. The pressman never needs a helping hand to slip a new roll of paper into the press. Rolls of paper you receive are not torn, and you don't get any waste. Your mail galley never gets pied.

People never think of asking you for favors that are entirely out of your reach. After every issue, advertisers call up and say: "Say, that was a honey of an ad you ran for me last week. Thanks." If an advertiser gives you copy announcing a week end special, it's always sunny that week-end and very warm, and the buses are sure to run on time.

You always have plenty of time to spend with your family. Your little boy never asks: "Mama, have I really got a daddy?" . . . Never do you place an ad upside down. When you mis-spell a person's name, he calls up and says, "Forget it. It's alright" . . . Oh, it's wondrful to be a newspaper publisher. It's so easy. So simple.

Since their experience this past Tuesday night the Vesper Choir has chosen as their theme song, "Anchors Aweigh". This couldn't possibly have anything to do with the fact that the "music lovers' of Carnegie greeted them with showers of water could it?

It wasn't bad enough when both Steve and Ruth got colds, but when they both landed in the infirmary, we know that something is fishy.

We certainly do have some daring people on our campus! Just recently Peggy Evans was seen trapsing around on the back roof of Memorial. Peg insisted that someone had thrown her shoes out the window and while she was looking for them they had closed the window so she couldn't get in, but who in Memorial would do such a naughty thing as that?

We hear that one of Miss Wilkinson's French classes is reading a rather "racy" story. When they come to any part which was particularly risque, she suggested conjugating verbs. It couldn't be that bad could it?

We've heard of hiding many various and sundry things in one's bed, but never a window screen. But then, what elsee can one do with such an item when one can't get it back on the window? Note the screenless window on 2nd floor Carnegie.

Members of the Men's M Club are all sporting shiny shoes due to the efforts of "Little Dogs." One poor freshman girl, not realizing that before you can become a member of the Men's M Club you must be a man, aproached, "Little Dog No.?" and shyly asked for a shoe shine. Do you think someone should tell her why she was flatly refused?

Everyone was really up in the clouds last Saturday night when they attended the Fall dance and no wonder with all the wonderful decorations and refreshments supplied by Bainonian and Athenian. All the kids who worked so hard to make the dance a success really did a swell job and deserve a lot of praise.

YE CAPITOLE CLASSICES

Coming to the Capitol Theatre, Sunday, Monday, and Tuesday, December 9, 10, 11, is the "Lovin'est Musical in Many a Moon," the great technicolor show, "On Moonlight Bay."

It is a folksy period film somewhat casually adapted from Booth Tarkington's "Penrod" stories. Set in an innocent, brightly-colored Indiana during World War I, the picture is summer material, but can be enjoyed in any climate or season.

Tarkington's beloved small boy fiend, no longer called Penrod, takes a back seat in this script to his teen-age sister (Doris Day), a tomboy in the process of discovering that romance can be even more fun than baseball. Doris is wooed by a dull respectable type (Jack Smith), who has her banker-father's approval, and an Indiana University senior (Gordon MacRae), bursting with collegiate radicalism, who thinks that all banks ought to be blown up.

Further complication is provided by the pesky kid brother (Billy Gray) who still gets out of scrapes by getting his family into them, e. g. he wins the sympathy of an angry teacher by confiding that papa is really a secret drinker.

Despite its familiarity, "On Moonlight Bay" benefits from congenial players, unpretentious staging, especially in its musical numbers. Leon Ames makes dad a likeable stuffed shirt; Gray gives it its closest tie to Tarkington; Doris Day (27) doesn't quite pass for 18, but her freshness keeps her character, and like MacRae, she sings pleasantly.

Its old and new tunes just give more strength to a wholly enjoyabe movie.

Wednesday and Thursday, the 12th and 13th, "Across the Wide Missouri," starring Clark Gable as a western trapper, and Maria Elena Marques, as the proud Indian maiden whom he marries in order to ease his way into the beaver-rich area of her grandfather, a Blackfoot chief, aptly portrayed by Jack Holt.

The marriage finally becomes one of love just before an arrow cuts down Gable's bride. Filmed in the grandeur of the Colorado outdoors, superbly photographed in technicolor, the film provides beauty, action and humor, all of which add up to a truly great western.

YE PARKE PREVUES "Apache Drums," starring Stephen McNally and Coleen Gray will be playing at the Park Tuesday and Wednesday, December 11 and 12. It is a technicolor western, packed with excitement.

The magnificent extravaganza, "Showboat," starring Katheryn Grayson, Howard Keel, Ava Gardner, Joe E. Brown, and Agnes Moorehead, will be showing at the Park Theatre Thursday and Friday, the 13th and 14th.

John Lee Mahin's screenplay hurries up the finale that reunites Magnolia Hawks (Kathryn Grayson) and her estranged gambler husband, Gaylord Ravenal (Howard Keel). Otherwise this is very much Edna Ferber's story of the famed stern-wheeler, Cotton Blossom, and of show folk on the Mississippi in the 1890's.

Director George Sidney paces the film to avoid possible romantic vapors, and his cast is personable enough to suit crinoline make believe. As the romantic lovers, Grayson and Keel, are at their best when serenading each other with "Why Do I Love You," and "Make Believe."

Agnes Moorehead and Joe E. Brown are acceptible as the trascible Parthy and beamish Captain Andy. And there is uncommonly good dancing by the spectacular team of Marge and Gower Champion.

William Warfield, who, by the way, will be here on our own campus in January, is superb in his magnificent vocalization, "Ol' Man River." And Mrs. Frank Sinatra does supprisingly well as the mulatto, Julie.

All, in all, there is good movie fare in store this week.

YE BOOKWORME'S CORNER—Here is Ross Carter's own story, told in a simple, forthright manner that makes it one of the most realistic and exciting as well as the most moving book to come out of World War II.

It is a tribute to the 82nd Airborne Division, one of the toughest, fightingest groups any army ever had. No wonder that a German officer wrote of them as "Those Devils in Baggy Pants," the title of the book.

It is a man's account of a death daring unit of 12 men, only three of whom survived the suicide stands of the platoon of paratroopers. Here we find the war as it really was: the terror of hand-to-hand combat, the breathtaking suspense before the invasion jump.

Its heroes ar not the self-pitying, weak, men of some recent war fiction. They are ordinary human beings, frightened only as brave men can be, who beefed, got drunk, took their women where thy found them, quarreled violently among themselves and yet achieved an epic grandeur in their deeds. They call each other a joker, but their inarticulate grief as one by one the members of the group are killed—sometimes horribly—is almost unbearable. They kid each other in a kind of desperation to carry them through a seemingly endless hell. This is a book that will hit you where it hurts. But it will inspire you, too, and make you proud.

Rachel Carson, in her book, "The Sea Around Us," has presented an enthralling, informative story of the dominating feature of our planet, the ocean. Told with literary skill and scientific accuracy, it focuses on what is humanly interesting.

Beginning with a description of how the earth acquired its oceans, the book covers such topics as how life began in the primeval sea; the hidden lands; the life recently discovered in the abyss by highly delicate sound apparatus; currents and tides; and mineral resources.

It answers many puzzling questions which have been in men's minds for years and is full of entreating lore. It is illustrated by two fathograms, charts of ocean currents, and a double page chart of the hisotry of the page chart of the hsitory of the

"The Sea Around Us," will fascinate everyone whose imagination has ever been touched by the magic and mystery of the sea.

BEFORE YE FOOTELIGHTES—Cast in the Experimental Theatre play, "Star Song," to be given in Bartlett Auditorium tonight at 8 p.m. are Jim Kren and Jimmy Shields as Gaius and Lucius, two Roman soldiers;

Ella Swift, Tirza, mistress of the inn; Jean Ellis, Rachel; and Ken Rutherford, Arod, her husband, travelers from the north; Dave Reed as Barshan, owner of a caravan;

Nancy Mandeville, Nuna, a lame girl; Shirley Postlethwaite, Octavia, widow of a Roman general; and Diana Evans, Siti, Octavia's Ethopian slave.

This play promises to be one of the best the theatre has presented.

PROSPECTS LOOK FAIRLY GOOD in the future for Maryville's basketballers as the season opened up Tuesday evening with Reliable Motors on the home courts. The Motormen won out in the end when the Scots lost their rebounding-strength and also a bit of their scoring punch. The Scots started off last year's season by dropping the National Business College of Knoxville, King, and LMU, for three in a row, before being bounced for a couple of losing streaks 'fore they got back on the right track towards the end of the season.

Meano Shields looked real good on his shooting as did the whole team save for Charlie Allen who just couldn't find the rims at all despite good floorwork and play-setting up. With Allen usually good for eight - ten points a game, the added points he should contribute should help a great deal. Bob Johnston filled in well at the keyhole spot especially on feeding the ball to Shields and Dick Abbott plus cleaning off the backboards and should replace the graduated Babe Keny very well. Burt McMahon did a good job during the first half in holding down Joe Eldridge, but Eldridge found the range in the last half, especially during the last quarter, and fired too many through to help the Scots.

Like the B team in the night's opener, the Scots tightened up during the game's last five minutes and missed some five "crips" from right under the basket—they being over-eager in making them.

The Frosh Flashes of Coach Johnson were tight during their whole game with Farr's Esso and never could relax enough to make their shots when they did ggt them—which was often time. The Frosh have a group of quick boys who have thee knack of getting open but as of yet, haven't settled down to normal. Perhaps, Tuesday night will find them in a different mood.

●TUESDAY NIGHT IS OPENING NIGHT AGAIN for the Grapplers who take on Knoxville Y at around eight o'clock on the Alumni mats. For the first time in many years, MC's prospects for a winning season are not hopeful with only a small squad out in the first place and seccondly in a lack of diversified talent. Knox Y has been having a rough time of it with the draft also, so both squads may be de-compensated for their un-happy outlook as of now. After Tuesday night's bout, fans may get a closer idea of how things are shaping up.

CONGRATULATIONS go to Homer Garren and Paul Merwin on their election to the posts of captain and co-captain, respectively, of the 1952 football team, and to Dick Kerr, captain of next year's bunion-burners. All three of them have earned their laurels and best of luck goes to them next year.

MORE WRESTLING TIPS Maryville wrestling teams have won fourteen of their eighteen openers since the mat sport got started in 1930-1931 when the Scots won four and lost none over the Knox Y and Chattanooga. After their winning opener over the Y in 1930 they won thirty in a row till they lost out in 1935 to Appalachian State's Teachers, 17-13. Since 1930, the Scots have also eleven state titles which is also very good . . . Wrestling scoring counts three points for the team when a man wins on points, five when he pins his opponent—there is a difference between pro and amateur "rassling."

Questions and terms to be asked of friends or which you may discover Tuesday night—Referree's position . . . escape . . . reverse . . . Fall . . . takedown . . . near-fall . . . flying mare . . . the referree's duties . . . Come out Tuesday night and bring a friend, male or female, it will be worth your student activity card.

ALMOST SLIPPING PAST OUR MEMORY but a thing which is worthwhile is the fact that seven MC boys are fighting for a worthy cause on their own beginning next Thursday night over at Knoxville. Last year, Jake Peppers went over to the boxing tournament sponsored by the Journal for the benefit of their Milk Fund and advanced to the finals only to lose by a T.K.O. when his nose bled so much he was ordered to discontinue the match. This year Jake is taking six other boys over and but for varsity basketball games away would have taken two more over.

The Scotsters who will be trading punches are Sonny Short and Don Alford, lightweights, along with Peppers, Snell Mills, welter weight, and Jerry King and Dick Gardner, middle weights. Best of luck boys—give a good account of yourselves.

Wrestlers On Home Mats Tuesday For Opener

GARREN, MERWIN, KERR PICKED TO LEAD GRID, HARRIER TEAMS

Homer Garren, junior business administration major from Maryville, was elected captain of the 1952 football team at the annual banquet held this past Wednesday in Pearsons Hall.

Paul Merwin, junior sociology major from New Jersey was elected co-captain at the feed which is sponsored by the businessmen of Maryville. Merwin was also presented with a $25 award by Coach John Davis, on behalf of one of the local businessmen who wished to remain unknown, for being the most improved player on the squad.

Guests And Such

Toastmaster for the event was J. C. Gamble, captain of the 1925 team. Senior members of the county high school teams of Porter, Maryville, Everett, Alcoa, Lanier, Townsend, and Walland, were guests of the football team as were Jessie Heron, number one MC fan, Louis A. Black, Paul Henry, Dean McClelland, and George Howell, members of the Faculty Committee on Athletcis, Maryville Postmaster Fred Henry, and Ernest C. Brown, College Engineer.

Earlier in the week, the Cross County team had met for a supper and had elected Dick Kerr, junior Spanish major from St. Albans, New York as captain of the 1952 thinlies.

Experience Plus Hustle

All three men have been out for their respective sports three years with Garren playing football in high school for Maryville High, while Merwin, first played the game only after coming to college having been born and raised in China. Kerr likewise only ran after coming to college.

Those Who Have Served

Retiring captains are Charlie Allen, captain, and Jimmy Callaway, co-captain, football, and Tom Kelly, cross country—all seniors.

Pussycats Remain On Top

As another week of Intramural Basketball rolled to a close, the Pussycats remained atop the heap by virtue of two wins during the week, while the still unbeaten and very powerful Question Marks stayed second by not playing any games at all as some teams began failing to show up. This week the Pussycats really had to work for their games, as they managed to stop the hitherto unbeaten Clubfeet on Tusday afternoon in the Alumni Gym, 17-14. Dave Gates and Frank Garren shared the honors for the Pussycats with six points apiece, but Jim Demer led both teams as he netted seven points. On Wednesday Pussycats met an inspired Pre-Min team playing its best game of the season so far, and had to keep up full speed throughout the game, finally ulling ahead in the last quarter to win 33-20. Again Garren led his team with 12 points, and Gates, Ron Fleming, and Harry Robinson each had seven.

A Tall Story

Anons finally began to show on the form that they promised on paper, as their height began to tell, and the team began to work better together. They began by taking the ever dangerous Hamburg Squad, 35-14. All of the Anons broke into the scoring column, led by Tim Bowman, who turned in 14 points for the week's high score. Then the Anons were again led by Bowman Wednesday when he meshed 12 points against Athenian's Owls. Once more all the Anons were in the scoring column, while the Owls' Hiller, had six points, in a losing cause, 39-18.

More Owl Hoots

In their game against YMCA, the Owls were more fortunate, turning in a 29-21 win. High man for the game was Dave Smith, who found the range with 11 points. Sharing high production for Athenians were Herb White and Dick Kerr, each of whom had eight.

Y Oh Y Did This Happen

YMCA was the victim of the week's high scoring team effort which was turned in by the Alpha Sigma team when they racked up 47 points to the Y's 16. Scoring was well divided for the Scotties with John Anderson, emerging at the top of the heap with 13. Close on his heels, though, were Howard Gress and Arnold Munn, each having 12 at the final whistle. Dave Smith again found the range for 11 points for the Y team.

The Close One

The week's closest game was turned in last Saturday afternoon in the game between the Scotties and Pre-Min. The game was deadlocked at 27-all, going into the last quarter, when Beckwith scored two field goals for the Scot-

MC Drops Opener To Reliable Motors

Loss of Abbott, Johnston Hurts

Maryville's 1951 varsity basketball team made its debut before a sparse home crowd and did itself proud, leading the favored quintet from Knoxville, Reliable Motors, for a better part of the game, but finally succumbing, 77-72 after losing Bob Johnson and Dick Abbott with about seven minutes left to play.

Scots Step Out

"Mino" Shields bucketed a two pointer to get the Scots off to a lead which they did not relinquish until early in the fourth quarter. Johnson and Bert McMahan combined with Shields to boost the home team to a 21-14 edge at the end of the first quarter.

Joe Eldridge, moving into the pivot spot, took charge of the scoring for the visitors and kept his team in the game, bucketing five field goals and flipping in a free throw for 11 points in the second quarter. Abbott joined Shields in the basket parade and th Scots left the floor at the half leading 38-34.

Scoring Galore

With Shields and Abbott racing down court and denting the net regulary and Johnson contributing handily from around the key hole, the Orange and Garnet clad hoopsters once again started to move away from Coach Thigpen's charges, but the sharp-shooting visitors came clawing back, Bert Keenan and Jack Thomas popping the chords and Eldridge rebounding more effectively under both baskets. The third stanza ended with the Scots still holding a dwindling lead, 62-59.

Motor Men Shift High

Both teams continued sniping, but the Reliable Motors quintet, gaining momentum all the time and capitalizing on the loss of Johnson and Abbott via the foul route, moved past the local cagers—Tom Ferrar leading the last drive which gave his team (a few of whom are ex-UT basketers) a 77-72 triumph.

Looking somewhat shy above is John Shields, commonly known as "Meano," who led the Scot scoring in Tuesday night's opener with Reliable Motors. Sheilds, a forward, led last year's scoring also.

"Mino" Shields, garnered high point honors for the night, turning in a 26 point performance. Joe Eldridge led the visiting scorers with 19 points, but was well supported by the remaining four starters, three of whom contributed 15 or more points.

"B" Team Battered

In the preliminary the Maryville "B" squad took it on the chin to the tune of 39-19 from Farr's Esso, led by a former Maryville varsity basketballer, Dick Gardner, who bucketed 16 points to pace the scorers.

The Boxscore:

Twenty-Nine Scot Athletes Get M's

Twenty-nine Scot athletes were voted letters by the Executive Committee of the Athletic Association last week as fall sports came to an end. Football players receiving letters were Charlie Allen, capt., Jim Callaway, co-capt., Bert McMahon, Frank Garren, Gene Russell, Harry Newberry, Don Alford, Jim Campbell, Wes Kinser, Paul Merwin, John Morton, Dick Patton, Grant Sharp, Harold Glad, Ralph Greaser, Homer Garren, Dick Gardner, Jerry King, Bob Madry, Bobby Berrong, Joe Bender, and Malcolm Moore. Receiving a manager's letter was Clyde McCampbell.

Bunion Burners Get Theirs

The six cross country men to letter were Dick Kerr, Ric Rogers, Tom Kelly, George Day, Neale Pearson, and Rod McMillen.

In new business, Hugh Walker was elected basketball manager for the coming year.

Scot Grapplers Meet Knox Y On Mats Here While Cagers Go On Road

Coach John A. Davis will trot eight men out to represent Maryville College nxt Tuesday night in the opening wrestling match of the 1951-52 season against Knoxville YMCA. The Frosh basketball team will have a game with an undetermined, as of now, opponent, at approximately seven o'clock.

Mat Season Opens

The 1951 edition of the Maryville wrstling team will make its debut next Tuesday night, against their age old enemy, Knoxville YMCA. The team of Y men is to be given credit for sticking to MC's schedule since 1930 for the record shows twenty-eight wins for Maryville to one for Knoxville, and that was a one point verdict in 1938, and the Scots came back again later in the season to beat the same team by thirteen points. This, however, is not to cast any bad light on the Knoxville team, for they always come up with a strong aggregation and manage to put on a good show despite their losses. Last year's team in theeir scond match could muster only a 19-11 victory over the Y, in a hard fought battle.

In This Corner

The Knoxville team makes its appearance this year on the Maryville campus a very considerable puzzle, since many of last year's familiar faces will be missing from their lineup. Strictly an amateur group, eligibility means little to them, and a man can wrestle at the Y as long as he is able, and so many of the team has put in an annual appearance for many years, but this year, there has been a high mortality rate among the Knoxvillians, for various and sundry reasons. Just who these men will be and how good is also a doubtful factor, but it is sure that if they are as good as last year's team they will give the Scotties some trouble, perhaps adding a second trophy to their belt.

'The Messiah' . . .

Alumni Gym.

Numerous misfortunes have occurred in connection with "The Messiah." Along with the chapel, valuable scores of the oratorio burned in the 1946 fire. Traditionally, rain has come at just the wrong time, and some remember the snow last year.

Some laugh about it this year, but no one can blame Shirley Postlewaithe for avoiding the bleachers at rehearsals this year. Last year on the first day of rehearsal, when Mr. Harter called for the altos to come from the bleachers and take their places, everyone was held spellbound as they saw one of the windows falling toward them from above.

The day was windy and the frame had not been nailed well, and chance would have it that it should fail at that precious moment. The window glass hit instead of the frame, and Shirley escaped luckily with only a small scar to show for it.

"The Messiah" has come up again, and though we who sing in the chorus may gripe sometimes aobut having to give up a Sunday afternoon nap or walk, we all know that we are gaining invaluable experience in choral singing, and, more important, that we are singing some of the most beautiful music in the world, written about the most wonderful subject in the world."

just about as unknown as for Knoxville. We do know that there is a team, that J. D. Davis is the coach, and a very able one at that, and that there is a captain in the person of Bill Morse, a pretty fair country wrestleer. Other than that the view is cloudy, even for the coach. Several of the men who were out have had to drop out in order to meet scholastic requirements, and it is still doubtful who will wrestle what weights, as the team has had only a few practice bouts, with more deciding ones coming up. The results of which will serve to clear the line-up picture, if not give much help on just how good the team is.

Ready. . . Wrestle!

So once more the colorful wrestling begins at Maryville. There the always those who think it is too rough, or fixed, or brutal, but collegiate wrestling is one of the most interesting and determined sorts there is to watch. It is nothing like the television matches, but is clean, honest, and hard fought. The referee, known to all and sundry as Julius is almost as interesting as the match, and also one of the best around the country.

Scotcagers On Road . . .

Last night the cagers of Coach L. S. Honaker travelled to Oak Ridge for a game with Carbon-Carbide on the Oak Ridge boards. The Scots first layed the Atom-City quintet in 1946-1947 winning both contests by good margins. Since then the Scots have met the Carbon-Carbide team four more times and have won all of them.

MC Tangles Hiwassee

On Monday night the Scotties will take on the Red and Yellow Tigers of Hiwassee on the Madisonville court. Two years ago the Scots won their first basketball contest from the Scots and then repeated twice more — once that season and once last season on their own court. In the return match on the Alumni hardwoods, the Scots meshed the nets for 63 counters to the Tigers' 43. Little is known of Coach Karl Reedy's team save that there will be a couple of newcomers coming back and that the junior collegians will throw a fast, fast break at the Scots.

Plank The Pioneers

Next Wednesday night, the Scots hit the road to play Tusculum's Pioneers on the Greeneville courts. The Scots dropped their first one to the Pioneers, 57-63, but came back to take the second encounter 70-65, on the Tusculum court with Meano Shields hitting for 17 and Charlie Allen hitting for nineteen. This year, the Pioneers having dropped football have only one returning letterman coming back to grace the quintet, T. J. (Tack) Countiss will field in his first season as coach at Tusculum.

Dr. John C. Trever Speaks In Chapel

At chapel on Tuesday, December 4, was Dr. John C. Trever, who spoke on "The New Authorized Version of the Bible." Dr. Trever is a representative of the Committee on the Revised Standard Version of the Bible, and has traveled extensively in England, France, Palestine, Egypt, and the Sinai in his studies of ancient manuscripts and acheology.

The translation of the Old Testament in the Revised Standard Version has now finally been completed, and the entire Bible will be available on September 30, 1952.

Dr. Trever gavee two reasons for the new revision of the Bible. One is that the English language is constantly changing. Since it is so flexible, words are constantly losing their meanings and taking an new ones, or even being dropped from the language entirely.

For example, in King James' time the word "conversation" was used where the Revised Standard Version now says "behavior." The change in the language can make a difference in the meaning of an entire passage, he pointed out.

Another reason for the adoption of a new translation of the Bible is the fact that many manuscripts have come to light that are much older than those that were available to the translators of the King James Version. Mistakes that have crept in are now able to be corrected.

New discoveries, too, have brought an understanding of the common Greek of New Testament times, which cannot be translated according to classical rules.

Dr. Trever pointed out that the King James version is simply a translation, whose place can be taken by another and more authenic one.

Chillies Swamp Howies In Soccer Game

Chillies swamped Howies, 7-2, in the first game of the Women's Varsity Soccer Tournament held in the Intramural Gym at 4:00, on Thursday, Dec. 6. There was no scoring by either team in the first quarter. The Chillies kicked three goals in the second quarter while the Howies scored their only two of the game in that quarter. The Chillies scored four more goals in the third quarter while neither team scored in the final eight minutes. Scoring for the Howies was Murphey and Buchanan while Moore, Enloe, Scruggs, Davis, and Fields did the scoring for the Chillies. The next game will be on Tuesday, December 11 at 4:00 p. m. in the Intramural Gym. Everyone is invited to come on out and watch these hard-fought soccer games.

The Adult Beginner's Recital will be held on Thursday, December 13 at 4:30, in the music hall of the Fine Arts Center.

Performers is this recital include students who are starting this year for the first time lessons in piano, string, or brass instruments.

Men's M Club To Meet

M Club will meet immediately following the first performance of the Experimental Theatre play in the Intramural Gym Saturday night to install new members into the group.

IRC Discusses UN

The last meeting of IRC was held on Monday, December 3 at 6:45 in Thaw 214. The program was a series of speeches by Newell Witherspoon and Carson Seely on the subject, "Has the UN Failed?"

No conclusions were inferred by the speakers who only presented the facts to the audience which was to draw its own conclusion.

YW Not To Meet

According to Susie Martin, president of YWCA, there will be no regular meeting this Sunday due to the performance of "The Messiah."

However, all women on campus are urged to attend the program which will be held in the dining hall Sunday evening at which Dr. E. R. Hunter, profssor of English, will read Dickens' "Christmas Carol."

a body to the library and returned all the reference books which they had used.

The third year was the biggest of all; students, bearing on a stretcher the dummy of a dead girl captioned, "This is what special studies has done to us," stomped through the library, turned out all the lights, tore up their notes all over the floor, and raided the student center. This year's gang repeated the first year's action.

Don't think that the seniors didn't appreciate this modest privilege given unto them by the faculty, though. About the only comlaint that reached our ears was this: "They could have at least given us a little more time. Good gosh, we've only had since last January."

Queener Elected Kefauver Head

Dr. Verton M. Queener, professor of history and chairman of the division of social science, was elected chairman of the Blount County Kefauver-For-President Club at an organization meeting Monday night.

Speakers at the county-wide rally included Frank Wilson, Democratic candidate for Congress in 1950, and George Dempster, newly-elected mayor of Knoxville.

Kefauver-For-President Clubs are being organized in every county in Tennessee, and the senators' backers expect to send Kefauver supporters to the national convention next year.

Kefauver received national recognition as chairman of the Senate Crime Investigation Committee, and is considered by many a leading contender for the 1952 Democratic nomination.

Three Choirs To Sing At Vespers Tomorrow

Maryville's traditional Christmas Vesper service will be held at 7 p.m. tomorrow night in Alumni Gym.

Taking part in the service are the All-Girl Choir, the Madrigal Singers, and the Vesper Choir. A candlelight processional by the Vesper Choir and the All-Girl Choir will begin the service.

The All-Girl Choir will sing "Christmas Bells," "A Slumber Song of the Madonna," "Carol of the Bells," and "When Jesus Lived in Galilee."

The Madrigal Singers will sing "Christmas Carol (Villanico)" "Lullay My Liking," "Joyous Christmas Song," and "Christmas Roundelay."

Following a brief Christmas meditation by Dr. Ralph W. Lloyd, the Vesper Choir will sing "I Wonder as I Wander," "Rise Up Shepherd An' Foller," "Song of the Birds," and "Ye Watchers and Ye Holy Ones" (from "An Apostrophe to the Heavenly Host").

Second Semester Begins January 16

Second Semester will begin Wednesday, January 16, 1952, with the 8 a.m. chapel service in Alumni Gymnasium. Full classes will be held that day with required attendance.

Absences will be reported according to class rolls made up from the registration cards. The usual penalties will apply for absences on the first two days after a recess.

Dormitories will be open for returning students Monday, January 14, and the dining hall will open for the evening meal, Tuesday night, January 15.

Registration cards, after being filled out and approved, are to be taken to the Treasurer's Office immediately. Payment may be made at any time before January 18.

The regular day for necessary changes in schedules after registration will be Friday, January 18.

Alpha Sigs Elect Robinette Prexy

Alpha Sigma will meet tonight at 6:15 in the YW Rooms to install as officers for the next semester Tasker Robinette, junior pre-med major from Berea, Ohio, president; Joe Stater, sophomore political science major from Trenton, Michigan, vice president; Curt Willbanks, junior psychology major from Ruckaway, New Jersey, program chairman; and Skit Nite Committee Chairman, Neale Pearson, senior history major from Lakeland, Florida, with Stater, and Ed Scott, junior pre-med major from Asheville, North Carolina, as other committee members.

Scott was also elected secretary for the coming year.

Robinette is Business Manager of the 1951 Chilhowean and is president of Business Club for next semester.

Balloting for the Alpha Sigma Sweetheart will take place tonight also.

MC Music Faculty To Replace Two Second Semester

During the second semester, Curtis Hughes, instructor in music, will be on sabbatical leave, pursuing graduate study at Northwestern University, Evanston, Ill.

Mrs. Wendel Carter of Maryville will teach organ during Hughes' absence. She took her early musical training at Maryville under Laura Hale and has recently studied organ at Julliard School of Music and church music at Union Theological Seminary, New York City.

She was organist at First Baptist Church, Maryville, for ten years, is an officer of the American Guild of Organists' chapter in Knoxville, has been on the state board of the State Federation of Music Clubs, and has given many organ recitals in East Tennessee.

Mrs. Marion Blair has resigned as instructor in voice effective at the close of the present semester. She will go to Chamblee, Ga., where her husband is teaching at Southern Technical Institute, a branch of Georgia Tech.

Edrei Sellick of Stratford, Conn., has been appointed instructor in music to teach students in voice, and during Hughes' absence, to direct the All-Girl Choir and Men's Glee Club.

She is a graduate of the Eastman School of Music and holds a Master of Sacred Music degree from Union Theological Seminary, New York. She has had extensive experience conducting and singing in Rochester, N. Y., and in New York City, and has taught voice for the last two years in Northport, Long Island, and in New York City.

Student Treasurers

Student Treasurers have been reminded to turn in books and final reports to faculty sponsors or to Dr. L. L. Williams, Fayerweather Hall. This must be done before the Christmas vacation, it has been announced.

No Council Meeting

There was no meeting of Student Council last Wednesday night, December 12.

New Providence, Eusebia Celebrate Anniversaries

By Joan Frei

This year New Providence and Eusebia Churches have both celebrated their one-hundred-sixty-fifth anniversaries as Presbyterian churches. They were founded at the same time, in 1786, 10 years before Tennessee even became a state, by a traveling evangelist.

New Providence observed its anniversary in September and October, in connection with the laying of the cornerstone of the new church and the evanglistic services. Eusebia celebrated it in November, when MC President Ralph Lloyd preached at the commemorative services.

When the two churches were founded, Tennessee was the home of the Cherokee Indians, and was covered with wild animals of all kinds. The great War Trail, which ran from Chickamauga to Virginia, went right through Maryville, or rather what was later to be Maryville.

The early settlers built Craig's Fort on a cliff above a spring, in what is now downtown Maryville. Eusebia Church was built near another fort 12 miles away.

The churches' first pastor was the Reverend Gideon Blackburn, who served both New Providence and Eusebia from 1794 to 1810. In addition to this work, he organized and carried on a missionary program among the Cherokee Indians. Under his leadership the first church buildings, small log structures, were set up.

Both churches also had schoolhouses connected with them. The second minister of New Providence, Dr. Isaac Anderson, was the founder of Maryville College, where we even now constantly hear his name because of the building named for him.

These old Scotch-Presbyterian churches were heated only by charcoal fires in the centers of the churches on the coldest days. The minister preached from a high pulpit. His salary was raised by the sale of pews, in which whole families sat together and it was supplemented by payments made in produce.

As New Providence and Eusebia celebrate their anniversaries of 165 years as churches, it is fitting that Maryville College, recognizing their importance and contribution to this area and to the college itself, salute them.

Faculty Presents 'Arsenic, Old Lace' In Gym Tonight

Proceeds To Library

By Carol Moore

The faculty presentation of Joseph Kesserling's "Arsenic and Old Lace" will feature a unique all-star cast when the curtain goes up at 8:00 p.m. this evening.

Carolyn Blair, assistant professor of English, appears as Elaine Harper. Playing opposite her as Mortimer Brewster, is Paul Kolter, instructor in biology.

Arda Walker, assistant professor of economics, and Dean of Women Frances Massey portray the two elderly Brewster sisters.

Malcolm Dashiell, instructor in art, plays Teddy Brewster, and Commodore Fisher, associate professor of history, has been cast as Jonathan Brewster.

Harvey Reber, assistant professor of German, plays Dr. Einstein. The Rev. Dr. Harper is played by Dr. Ralph Case, professor of sociology.

Archibald Pieper, associate professor of political science, enacts Officer O'Hara, while Fred Short, instructor in speech, impersonates Lieutenant Rooney.

Mr. Gibbs is played by Dr. David Briggs, professor of psychology. Dr. L. L. Williams, professor of biology, is cast as Officer Brophy, while James Schwam, assistant professor of Spanish, is Officer Klein.

Dr. Edwin R. Hunter plays Mr. Witherspoon, head of the insane asylum.

Kathleen Craven is directing the play and all proceeds go to the library fund.

White Recites Catechism Answer

Juanita White, sophomore Bible major from Maryville, recited the complete answers of the Westminster Shorter Catechism before the MC Bible faculty on Dec. 4.

The Board of Christian Education of Presbyterian Church USA makes available a certain number of scholarships to their church-related colleges. These are given to people who recite perfectly the 107 answers of the Shorter Catechism.

Two scholarships were made available for Maryville College students at the beginning of the fall semester. Nine students made application, but only Miss White completed recitation.

Students who are registered for the first year in a Presbyterian school are eligible to compete. Because Miss White is a transfer student from Carson-Newman, she qualified to recite.

Announcements concerning recitations next semester will be made early in January.

Theatre Presents Christmas Play

Experimental Theatre presented "Star Song," a long one-act Christmas play written by Florence Ryerson, Saturday evening Dec. 8 in Bartlett Auditorium.

Fred E. Short, instructor in drama and speech, directed the play.

Dave Reed, senior philosophy major from Hamden, N. Y.; Shirley Postlethwaithe, junior Bible major from Ocean City, Md.; and Nancy Mandeville, freshman from Beaver Falls, Penn., were cast in the leading roles.

Members of the supporting cast included Jim Kren, James Shields, Ella Swift, Mary Jane Hahn, Sarah Pledger, Ken Rutherford, and Diana Evans.

Jean Ellis was house manager, and Austin Van Pelt was stage manager. The music department supplied the choral background, music and incidental characters.

The play took place in a small inn of Bethlehem on the night of the Savior's birth. The people in the inn were so busy with their own personal worries and squabbles that they did not sense the great event when it arrived.

"Star Song" was a cumulative project of the class of religious pageantry.

Eleven MC Seniors To Be Recognized As December Grads

Chapel Services To Be Tuesday

Lloyd Will Preside

By Van Holland

Eleven prospective graduates will receive recognition Tuesday, December 18, at regular chapel services.

Those to be recognized are seniors who have completed their graduation requirements at midterm, but they will not receive their diplomas until May, 1952.

Prospective graduates are Dan Buchanan, biology major from Bethesda, Md.; Walter English, biology major from Philadelphia, Pa.; Ronald Fleming, English major from Dravosburgh, Pa.;

Hugh Hamil, physical education major from Friendsville; Joyce Lenderman, education major from Birmingham, Ala.; Robert Lynn, business major from Elmhurst, Ill.; Lawrence Major, physical education major from Mascot;

Louise Masters, English major from Roseville, Mich.; Jeanne Pelton, Spanish major from Monticello, N.Y.; Clarence Reaser, English major from Jersey Shore, Pa.; and David Reeve, biology major from Alcoa.

Dan Buchanan and Joyce Lenderman are not expected to attend the services.

President Ralph Waldo Lloyd will preside over the recognition service. He will be assisted by Dean E. R. Hunter and Dean Frank D. McClelland.

The Vesper Choir is also scheduled to paritcipate in the program.

'52 AB Calendar Features Six Maryville Beauties

By Pat Ingles

The fourth annual presentation of ABC girls was held last night in Intramural Gym and honored Bainonian girls Dixie Conner, Evelyn Fields, Nancy Florence, Betty Hammers, Frankie McEachern, and Shirley Postlethwaite, who have been elected to appear on the 1952 Athenian-Bainonian calendar. They will also appear in the '52 Chilhowean.

Ken Upham, who served as master of ceremonies, introduced Dixie Conner, freshman from New Market, Del., for January and February—The Valentine Doll—as a quartet sang "Paper Doll."

March and April—Windy Days—Nancy Florence, freshman from College Park, Ga., who was introduced as Wally Schroeder song "I Love You".

May and June—The Vacation Times Girl—Evelyn Fields, junior from Walstonburg, N. C., who was introduced as George Day sang "Song of the Open Road."

July and August—Good old Summertime—Shirley Postlewaithe, junior from Ocean City, Md., who was presented as the ABC Chorus sang "In the Good Old Summertime."

September and October—Our Cheerleader—Frankie McEachern, freshman from Jacksonville, Fla., who was introduced as the ABC Chorus sang "Cheer, Cheer for Old Maryville" and "On Highlanders."

November and December—The Christmas Package — Betty Hammers, junior from Stewartstown, Pa., was presented as Beverly Jacobi and Charlie Schroeder sang "Santa Claus is Coming to Town."

The program began as Galen Work sang the theme song "A Pretty Girl" with the ABC Chorus, and concluded with the same number.

The entire program was arranged, and the set designed, by George Day, program chairman of Athenian, and Ken Uphan, Vice-President of Athenian. The building of the set was under the direction of Beverly Edwards and Jack Maxwell. The chorus and musical numbers were directed by George Day, with June Hood as accompanist.

Newman Tells Of Staff Openings

Dick Newman, editor of The Highland Echo, has announced that a number of positions are open on next semester's Echo staff.

Try-outs will be received from all four classes, and new staff members determind on a competitive basis.

All those who wish to try out should leave their names in the Echo office before the end of this semester, he said.

No Prayer Meeting

It has been announced that prayer meeting will not be held this week.

Kerr Elected Spanish Club Prexy For Year

Dick Kerr, junior Sapnish major from St. Albans, N.Y., was elected president of the Spanish Club for next semester at the annual Christmas party held Thursday night in the Student Center.

Other officers for the coming semester are, Dave Helwig, junior political science major from Youngstown, N.Y, vice-president; Jack Maxwell, treasurer; Carol Cornell, program chairman, with program committee members Barbara Rogers, Ethel Shockley, and Neale Pearson, and Harriett Brown, secretary.

Kerr is a member of the cross country and track teams, having been elected captain of the former for next fall, and an Athenian member.

Kettles Elected Theta President

In elections held last Tuesday, Peggy Kettles, senior English major from Pittsburgh, Pa., was elected president of Theta Epsilon for second semester.

Other newly-elected officers include vice-president, Janet Woods, junior education major from Pitcairn, Pa.; secretary, Tish Buchanan, sophomore home ec major from Pittsburgh, Pa.; treasurer, Carolyn Sloan, sophomore speech major from Madisonville, Tenn.;

Sally Butts, freshman from Waterloo, Ia., will be sergeant-at-arms; Liz Murphy, freshman from Springfield; and Janna Boggs, freshman from College Park, Ga., are program chairmen; Betty Lester, senioer ducation major, from Birmingham, Ala.; and Barbara Rosensteel, senior education major from Mount Union, Pa., are skit night chairmen.

Theta will have its final meeting of the semester tonight at 6:15 in Theta Hall. At this time, the formal installation service for the new officers will be held.

The group will also be led in Christmas carols and Christmas games.

Priester Visits MC For Board Survey

A visitor to campus last weekend was the Reverend Marcus J. Priester of the Board of Christian Education of the Presbyterian Church USA.

Priester is making a survey of colleges under the control of the Presbyterian Church to determine what conditions are present in a religious environment. Similar surveys are investigating finance, curriculum and athletics in Presbyterian church-related colleges.

He interviewed a number of students, and led chapel services Saturday morning.

SATURDAY, DECEMBER 15

Semester's End

In response to a number of requests, The Echo is happy to reprint from the December 9, 1950, edition the following editorial. All that was said then seems fitting and appropriate now, moreso if that is possible. At least, all that was said and meant then remains the basic policy of this paper.

This semester has been a significant one in the history of Maryville College, even with the realization that each semester leaves its mark and makes its peculiar contribution. The Echo has tried to report the news fairly and honestly, making interpretations only in this editorial column, and here only because we feel that events have been important and that we are living in an important time.

Most significant, locally, is the new Fine Arts Center, both as a building and as enlarged and improved college facilities. As a building, it is unequalled and unsurpassed on a national level, architecturally speaking. Concerning usage, it adds inmeasurably to the facilites of the fine arts division, making it one of our strongest. This improved status promises to be extremely important in the current and future development and progress of the college.

The semester has had its share of good speakers, athletic excitement, elections, plays, queens and all those things which have come to be part of normal campus existence. The football team chalked up a perfect season, in some sense, but displayed an unmatched spirit and character, two intangibles which count for far more than big scores in the long run. There were some familiar faces missing in the faculty reception line this year, but some new ones had replaced them, as the new has a way of doing. There were new books in the library, controversies, Barnwarming, bull sessions, dances, Homecoming, special studies and on through the list of visibles and invisibles which go to make up Maryville College life as we know it.

Most significant, nationally and internationally, and by its very scope, almost crowding out the normalcy of our life here (at least of our thinking) has been the war. It has grown in seriousness since the beginning of the semester, and things at the present are the blackest yet. A number of reservists in the student body have already been called and many are exempt only until the end of the school year. So, the implications are only beginning to be felt. It is difficult, near impossible, for us to realize that if this spreads to a global scale, our whole society, our entire civilization are the elements at stake. We must explore every avenue of peace before we dare expose western civilization to the possibility of extinction. The greatness of our decisions is almost incomprehensible.

These are the times when the great religious background of this college is most vital and most necessary. Only through the concept of love as defined by Jesus of Nazareth can be found the ultimate solution to our problems, idealogical and practical. This must be our basis and our standard. So we leave the semester with mixed feelings and emotions. We have accomplished much, individually and collectively, and give promise of accomplishing more. But our world is in a serious time, and conditions call us back to basic faiths if past accomplishments are to be worth preserving and future accomplishments worth striving toward.

By Pat Lovette

With the Christmas season fast approaching, decorations have sprung up everywhere. The Memorial girls seems to be snatching all the available men and dragging them to the parlor of their dorm. Wonder if all the mistletoe, hung around at strategic places, could have anything to do with this.

Green Thumb

Dr. Briggs was discussing the social problem of drinking with his psychology class the other day, and he told the students about being presented with a bottle of liquor as a present by a student of his one time. He said he brought it home and poured it out in the backyard. Upon hearing this, Bill Van Benthuysen asked, "And how is your garden growing?"

On Chapel

Several of the faculty members were discussing the Chapel services the other day and one of them asked why Browning and some of the others were leading Chapel this year. To this one of the professors replied, "Oh, it's the Lloyd's will!"

Literally Speaking

Miss Blair, lecturing on "The Master Builder" in one of her English classes the other day, made the comment that the Ibsen woman in the story was later picked-up by Shaw. The class promptly went into gales of laughter. This is probably one time that an English teacher didn't mean what she was saying literally.

Dr. Hunter was comlaining about being a bit warm the other night as he read Dicken's "Christmas Carol" before the fire in the dining hall. One of his students who had sweated through Sophomore English remarked, "After all your experiences in Hell, you ought not mind the fire!" Too bad that students has to take English 205 over again.

Ghosts

Those of you who thought you were seeing ghosts haunting the College Campus one night the first of this week, don't be frightened. It was only some of the Carnegie Boys caroling to the dorms. They did a swell job too.

Air, Air

At Choir practice, Mr. Harter was explaining the technical parts of singing an anthem to the Choir and he said seriously, "Now this is the place you can breathe." For the Choir's sake, we hope the piece isn't too long cause we'd hate for all the members to smother!

At the Spanish Club party Thursday night, Jack Maxwell was trying to guess what "it" was in one of the games the group was playing. "Is it a body?" he asked Mr. Schwam who replied, "Whose body?" "Why anybody," Jack said seriously. As Jim Darroch remarked, "You're on the right track but the wrong train!"

Showers

Memorial Girls, going by the old adage that "experience is the best teacher" were equipped with raincoats and umbrellas when they went caroling at Carnegie Thursday night. They forgot to wear their "asbestos suits," however, which they needed when the firecrackers started showering down on them.

Study time

Books have suddenly taken on a new meaning to students as many have started staying up until the wee hours of the night to cram for their exams. There's one nice thing about exams and that is that they have to be over sometime. So everyone keeps telling themselves anyway!

Old Saint Nick

Maryville College is running over with people who think they're Santa Claus—people like Jean Downey, Bill Robinson, and Barbara Clark. We knew exams did funny things to people but not driving them to the brink of insanity.

Oh! Well! Merry Christmas everybody and oh yes, A Happy New Year!

TALK OF THE WEEK—

Voices, Masks, and Shadows

By Abby Crosby

QUIET ZONE

Among the new additions to the Maryville College Library is one that will be of especial interest to the MC men. It is "Modern Single Wing Football" by Charles W. Caldwell. Caldwell, Princeton's football coach of 1950, was last year chosen as "coach of the year."

Beginning with the fundamentals of blocking, Caldwell gives an expert's analysis of the signal system and of choosing the play, among other htings. Written about modern gridiron defense, this book has frequent diagrams and photographs.

Also making its presence known is the book by Kyle Crichton about the five brash sons of Minnie Marx. Although her boys fought viciously against becoming actors, they soon became the best-loved comedians in America. "The Marx Brothers" gives the mad, warm, genuinely moving, and outrageously hilarious story of their rise to fame.

FACULTY PLAY

"Arsenic and Old Lace" has turned out to be the funniest murder farce ever to hit Broadway, and now it takes to the Maryville College campus with Frances Massey and Arda Walker steering it along as Martha and Abby Brewster.

Carolyn Blair and Paul Koiter provide the romantic interest as the nephew of the Brewster sisters and his girl. The battiest Brewster is Teddy, Malcolm Dashiell, who firmly believes that he is Teddy Roosevelt and is out to convince everyone else of it.

Nephew Johnathon, Commodore Fisher another Brewster with homicidal leanings, escapes from the asylum to drop in on his aunts unexpectedly. From there on a merry competition develops as the two aunts vie with Johnathon to see who can claim the most victims.

Other faculty members cast in the play are Harvey Reber as Mr. Einstein; Dr. Ralph Case, the Rev. Dr. Harper; Archibald Pieper, Officer O'Gara; Fred Short, Lieutenant Rooney; Dr. David Briggs, Mr. Gibbs;

Dr. L. L. Williams, Officer Brophy; James Schwam, Officer Klein; and Dean Edwin R. Hunter, Mr. Witherspoon, head of the asylum.

The play is being directed by Miss Kathleen Craven, and all proceeds are to go to the library fund.

ECHO FORUM

To The Editor of The Highland Echo:

We feel that some of the wave of public disapproval upon a certain activity needs to be voiced more clearly. This matter is the treatment Christmas carollers get at Carnegie Hall.

First of all we wish to apologize for Carnegie to Mr. Harter and the Vesper Choir, and to the girls who carolled Thursday night for the childish way in which they were received. It seems that the men's and women's glee clubs were a little bit wiser, and we don't blame them in the least.

There are, it seems, a few (we hestitate to use the term "men" loosely) people in Carnegie who, somehow, have managed to stay in school in spite of their ungenerous and destructive attitude toward all other people and things, regardless of who or what.

Now some cutting up will happen, but we and a majority of Carnegie men are ready to draw the line at sousing carollers and trying to tell them they are not wanted by tossing firecrackers at them.

It looks like these children could put up with a few moments of being quiet for the men to enjoy. Goodness only knows how much more we put up with from them. This is a plea: either grow up or get out.

Yours truly,
Names Witheld By Request.

●"I WAS SURPRISED"——This seemed to be the general consensus of that happy opinion which followed the season's opening mat match with the grapplers of Knoxville Y. Though pre-bout articles generally painted a tale of woe in the usual accustomed-pre-season manner, the forseeable future was not a happy one as Coach John Davis admitted Monday afternoon as he ran his charge through a short physical workout.

With the loss of seven grapplers from last year's team, any coach and wrestling captain would have the "willies" over his team's chances as there was only one experienced man to take to the mats and thousands of things to be learned by those who would follow. "I can tell you a thousand and one things and coach you for ten years but you'll learn more out there in your first match than I could even tell you." This was the substance of various and sundry remarks pointed at the aforementioned wrestlers in the aforementioned workout and it turned out so but MC's matmen really put to good use that which they had learned.

Bill Morse was his usual superlative self and his only trouble was in trying to shorten the length of time it would take to put the final crux-de-guerre on Bob Warwick, his adversary in night's opening match. Al McCulloch, Dave Ritzman, Bob Sangster, and Curt Willbanks then gave substance to Coach's remarks as the no-doubt one-thousand-and-one things poured through their mind as they found themselves amidst the butterflies, ceiling nails, and other accompaniments that go with one's first match.

Ritzman showed a surprising bit of the aggressiveness needed for a good wrestler and many were the times he got "a-holt" of Jim West his opponent but couldn't get West down on the mat by locking his leg ahead of his opponent's or in common-place language, "tripping him." With Jimmy Callaway coming back next semester, it will not be too hard for Sangster and Willbanks to get down to the 137-class and Ritzman to get down to the 130-class to add a bit more power to MC'e lower ranks. In their next matches, Sangster, Willbanks, and McCulloch ought to do a lot better especially in the "escapes" class as they know what will work and what will not.

Benton who took on a real wrestler in the personage of Yorke will also come down—to the 157 class probably with Squires and Paul Merwin who may come back out next semester—studies permitting. With these thre men in the 157 class there will be little chance for such remarks as those spoken so truly by ex-MC-157-er Lawrence Major, in respects to the Willbanks-Emory match. "There's a couple of the smallest 157 pounders I've ever seen."

Major, for those unaccumstomed or unacquainted with him was MC's 157 pounder for the past three years previous to this one and a 167-pounder on occasion and was well-known for his "Lyric theatre" type of wrestling. "On duty" as a student at MC this past semester, Major has pitched in as a trainer for the football team and journey-man helper in various and sundry other athletic activities, and has been of a greater help than he could be compensated for—praiseworthy of course—and so here's a vote of thanx to him.

Yorke's presence on the mats also stirred up wordage from Major and Hersh Merriman to the effect of a quickie exhibition match between two of the three since the former Appalachian great more than openly wanted a match with either of the two.

Jerry King who has been catching up with school work among other things these past weeks is also likely to come back out to make a go of it once again in the 167 pound class and thus more strength is added to the heavier branches of the sport. With Bob Buchanan then eligible for both the 177 and heavyweight divisions with a poundage in the lower 170's, MC will have a better team than was expected especially if some heavyweight can be found to go in the heavyweight classes. Buchanan could make a go of it in that class with someone else going in the 177-bracket but his presence in the blimp-weight division would just be a staving off of the five points which come with a forfeit or pin in any expected match with the superior heavyweights usually had by other schools which have plenty of material to draw from—Georgia Tech in particular with Ray Beck, who has been mentioned sometimes as a pretty fair defensive guard, though he gives credit for this to wrestling, and Auburn, Vandy and Chattanooga, also.

All of this gets around to the fact that a most welcome gift to the wrestling room in Bartlett would be some individual of around 185 pounds and fairly fast reflexes who was willing to learn and suffer both the sweat and defeat which would be his for the time it would take to learn the tricks of the trade that is wrestling.

And though attendance was somewhat sparse Tuesday night with featured attractions elsewhere for many individuals, such attendance should pick up greatly in the next home match as the female-contingent of MC's campus comes out in hopes of seeing the correct way of pulling out a man's hair and also seeing some individual's head making repeated acquaintances with the floor to the tune of "Beat me Daddy Eight to the Bar." Nevertheless, if you but come out to the first home match next season, you will not leave disappointed.

●AS THE SEMESTER DRAWS TO A QUICK CLOSE so does nearly almost all of the first half of Intramural Basketball play. Intramurals which seemed to be off to a bad start at the first of the year have seemingly made a comeback with the advent of the cage season in which new numbers of freshman have caught the Intramural bug and are expending some of their energy in worthy pleasures. On tap next semester are tourneys in wrestling, golf, to name a couple, plus play in volleyball, softball, and the last part of the basketball tourney.

Orchids for these who have ben officiating through thick and thin go to Fenton Ferguson, James Demers, Bob Coles, Bob Navratil, Horace Beckwith, Jim Harrison, Max Sockwell, Dick Patton, Dick Kerr, Jerry Walker, and all those who have pitched in to make the cage sport a success.

●A BETTER EVALUATION of Maryville's basketball team is also possible after Thursday night's game with LMU in which the Scots did just about everything right to take a resounding 92-80 victory. Plagued by bad luck on the road which saw either Charlie Allen or Meano Shields given the heist before the game's finalities were over, the Scots were to find something new to fall back on in the case of dismissals. Shields had three fouls with about two minutes to go in the third period while most of MC's fans were crossing their collective fingers in hopes that he would not get numbers four and five. But within the space of a minute and a half, the diminutive forward who has a per game average of around 22 points a game fouled out and MC's lead wasn't enough. However, Jim Wiley, Dick Abbott and the others filled in where Shields left off to show one definite reason why the Highlanders won over a team whose score would normally have won any ball game.

Thursday night, the Scots were consistent and when one of those out on the court left off in a shooting streak, immediatelly someone else picked up. That was especially noticeable in the first half when with the Scouts dobber down as the Railsplitters were closing the game at the 35 point mark Jimmy Campbell came into the game to score three quick baskets—almost in a row to put some more fire back into the Scot fire wagon. Previous to that Wiley had engaged in the first of two scoring spurts to follow up where Meano Shields left off in the first quarter.

In the last quarter it was Abbott and Wiley alternating, though many were the cries from the MC bench to freeze the ball—the MC players being that confident of their shooting. Charlie Allen chipped in with a left-handed hook at the 80 point mark that aided the cause no little while being aided greatly on the defense by Bob Johnson and Joe Hopkins who tied up the Big Blue's Bargo very well and even outscored him by six causing LMU coach Dean Bailey to send in Freshman Jim Jordan who didn't get as many rebounds as the four year man Bargo did but who acquitted himself considerably well in managing to keep up with MC's fast break much better.

Also aiding in on the defense were Madman Burt MacMahon and A. C. McWilliams who did very good in intercepting LMU passes and in rebounding off the boards. With a team that looks just as

MC Matmen Surprise Knox Y Take Season Oppener, 16-13

Buchanan, Squires Turn In Wins To Turn Tide After Morse, Ritzman, McCulloch Put Points Aside

Maryville's Scots opened up the 1951-52 wrestling season with a surprise 16-13 win over the grapplers of Knoxville Y, Tuesday night. Coach John A. Davis' matmen who lost seven wrestlers from last year's squad had only one experienced man in the ranks back as they took to the mats of Alumni Gym for pre-match warmups and that was Captain Bill Morse in the 123 division.

Comeback Kids

Once the matches had started, MC went out to a quick lead on wins by Morse and Dave Ritzman in the 137 class but saw the Y-men come back and go ahead with wins by Don Jones, Jerry Emory, and Wayne Yorke. Jimmy Squires and Bob Buchanan then came back with conquests in the 177 class and heavyweight bracket to send a medium-sized crowd home happy.

Get Rid of Warwick

In the evening's first match, Morse took on Bob Warwick who had gone against MC in the 128 pound class last year and quickly gained a take-down. Warwick gave Morse a stiff fight as the latter tried to gain a pin which MC would need if she were going to get some points to win but after two minutes and forty-one seconds of the first period, referee Julius Nicely slapped the mat. The fatal hold was a three-quarter nelson combined with a cross-chest hold.

With A Tie In Between

Newcomer Al McCulloch then went in a bout with Bill Arnold, another vet of previous matistic encounters with MC in the 130-lb. division but neither man could gain a take-down during the initial period of wrestling while during the second and third periods, neither could shake loose from the other when the advantage position was assumed. As a result of their 0-0 draw, both teams got two points to make the count 7-2.

To Show Lessons Stick

Ritzman then took on Jim West in the 137 encounter and won with a time advantage of 1:52 to West's 40 seconds of riding time. Neither boy had a take-down in the first period but in the second Ritzman had an escape for one point and then in the third whn West gained a reverse, Ritzman got out of the Knox-man's clutches once again to give each boy two tallies—the match's outcome being decided on the riding time each had.

The Tide Begins To Change

Don Jones, Knoxville Y's 147 pounder then took on MC's Bob Sangster and gained points four ways to take a 12-5 decision. Jones had two reverses, two takedowns, a pair of escapes and two tallies for four minutes and seven seconds riding time to Sangster's 1:10.

A Y Finds The Range

Curt Wilbanks then came out of MC's corner to take on Jerry Emory in a 157 bout in what seemed to be the turning point of the evening with the score 10-8 and not too happy a future in the heavyweight ranks ahead. Willbanks went at it hustlingly but the veteran Emory, who carried some ten pounds more than the MC man, picked up two points for six minutes riding time and six tallies also for three reverses to win an 8-4 match—Wilbanks' score coming one a takedown and a reverse in the second period.

With Amateurs—"Pro's"

Wayne York, who had lettered at Appalachian State Teachers for four years in a row then took on Don Benton, also wrestling above-weight, without even warming up and threw a three-quarter nelson on the MC man good for a pin in two minutes and twenty-two seconds. Benton tried to "bridge out" but the more experienced Knox man applied enough pressure to make the bout's outcome unquestionable.

But Squires Takes One

The visitors were now ahead with a 13-10 lead as Jimmy Squires went out against Don Ottinger in a 177-bout. The first period was devoid of any action save the proverbial "butting of heads." In the second period after ten seconds had elapsed, Squires was out of the advantage position held by the former Hiwassee football player. Squires then got a take down when Ottinger tried to make a tackle but hit too high and instead got himself upended. He escaped from this hold and from Squires' on-top position at the beginning of the third period and the bout ended with boys real tired. Squires had two minutes and two seconds riding time also to make his bout a four and two one.

Bob Puts Fowler On Run

With the match now tied up 13 all, Bob Buchanan went against the Y's Dick Fowler in the heavyweight match which was to end the night's festivities. To the joyful surprise of all save those of the Knoxville contingent Buchanan went out right away against his heavier opponent and got a takedown which was the beginning of his having a riding time of 7:29 to Fowler's 1:11. When Fowler did get on top in the second canto, Buchanan reversed in short order to pick up two more points. When Fowler likewise reversed, he found himself on bottom in short order and almost the victim of a pin as Buchanan tried to apply a half nelson and crotch hold. Fowler got out of it with but a near fall but by this time, the rafters were ringing with cheers for the match's final outcome could be seen plainly.

Scots Trip Carbide But Drop Two To Hiwassee, Tusc'lum

Shields Hits But Foul-Outs Hurt

M.C. Drubs Carbon Carbide, 58-42

The Highlander quintet, traveling to Oak Ridge for the first of three games on foreign courts, pounced on the Carbide-Carbon five to the tune of 58-42.

Mino Shields, hitting the charmed 20 point circle for the second time in two tries, led the Scot scorers with 22 points and Dick Abbott chipped in with a healthy 19 to aid the Maryville cause considerably.

Taking the floor with a 21-17 lead at the half, the Scottie cagers poured on the steam and pulled away from the Oak Ridge outfit with Shields and Abbott leading the way.

Tigers Nip Scotts, 83-82

Maryville's cagers, continuing their tour of the South, ran into a barrage of baskets launched from an increased nest of Hiwassee Tigers and, before they could regain their razor-sharp touch, found themselves on the short end of a 83 to 82 score.

Mino Shields, continuing his red hot scoring spree, busted through with 34 points; but the efforts of Jim Henderson (22 points), Don Brown (20 points) and Bill Shelton (18 points) were too much for the Highlanders. The game was marked by the extremely large total of fouls—Hiwassee losing Youel, Henderson and Brown; and Maryville losing Charlie Allen and Dick Abbott on fouls.

Scotts Tripped Again, 82-78

Tusculum's speedy cagers handed Maryville's cagers its second defeat in the final of their three game jaunt, 82-78. Dropping a squeeker for the second night in a row, the Scotties let a 46-38 half-time lead vanish. Minus Mino Shields, lost on fouls soon after the start of the second half, the Scots didn't have the punch to stay with the sharp-shooting hosts.

Charlie Allen snapped back with a fine 20 point performance but Bob Stater, Howard Webb and Bob Mathias (no relation to the famed Olympic champion of the same name) accounted for 69 of the 82 points registered by Coach Countis' ladgs and were not to be denied.

Getting set to shoot above is Dick Abbott, sophomore forward on the Scot basketball team. Abbott co-operated with cohort "Meano" Shields and Jim Wiley to make 59 of MC's 92 points in Thursday's win over LMU's Big Blue.

Tuesday evening the Scottie B basketball team soundly defeated Knoxville Business College's quintet 71 to 38, on the Scot court. Although former MC basketeer, Ray Keny, was the game's high scorer with sixteen points, the Scotties led by Bob Davis and Marshall England, both scoring twelve, took a commanding lead from the start and were never in hot water. Kent Buser, Phil Young and John Hale of the Scotties and Finley of the Business college five were high men for the game.

On Saturday afternoon the Scot B basketball team defeated an Air Force quintet 48 to 36 on the Scotties' court. Kent Buser of the Scots and Buda of the aviators took scoring honors with fourteen and thirteen points respectively. After leading by the close score of 16 to 12 at the half the Scots poured on the steam in the second half and won going away.

Scot Basketeers Break Past Record In Beating LMU

Shields, Abbott, Wiley, Lead The Way 92-80 Win

After having been victimized by the slightest of margins in their last two outings, the Scot cagers finally got some of the breaks they had been looking for plus finding a long-lost shooting eye to take a 92-80 win over LMU in what might be called the season home opener for the Highlanders.

Out To Get Ahead

Coach L. S. Honaker's Orange and Garnet five jumped out to a quick 8-3 lead in the first seven minutes of play behind the ball-hawking of Meano Shields who was to again lead the way in scoring and left the floor at half time with a slight lead of 43-41. After LMU had narrowed the margin once again in the third period, the MC hardwooders began pulling away and enjoyed a ten point spread for the last ten minutes of the game though the Railsplitters left much cause for worry and anxiety.

Shooting Out of Red

The biggest factor in the Scots' win was their shooting—MC hit 35 out of 68 field goal attempts for an astounding 51% average—god in any man's league, while such individuals as Dick Abbott and Jim Wiley each got hot streaks along with Shields to keep the MC offense going. Shields who has been be-deviled by personal fouls all through the season had his fifth one tooted with one minute left to play in the third quarter and the Scots' only some three points ahead. Wiley and Abbott came to the rescue however along with Charlie Allen to preserve the thin lead and insure the victory.

New Records Perhaps

The score was also the highest ever racked up by an MC team in many ways—the old all-time high for total pointage in a game was 168 points in a game with Carson-Newman last year won by the Eagles 95-73, and was the highest count tallied by a Scot quintet against any college team in the history of the cage sport on the Hill—the Old high being 82 points in an 82-83 lost to Emory & Henry two years ago. The Highlanders tallied 93 against National Business College of Knoxville last year but the game could hardly be classified as one of collegiate status. The highest score ever made by an MC team will probably stand for a long time, though, it being a 107-16 win over Lenoir City High in 1909-1910.

Frosh Flashes Flash Ag'in

In the preliminary game of the evening, Coach Kenneth Johnson's Freshman B team turned back the Maryville High Red Rebels, 51-42. Like their bigger "Brothers" on the varsity, the Frosh team which numbers several

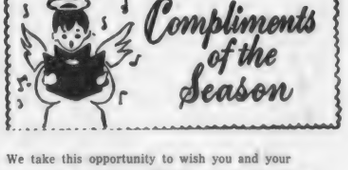
INTRAMURAL INFO. . . .

Question Marks remained the sole unbeaten team in basketball play as the Intramural Basketball League drew to a quick close this week with only three games to play this afternoon. After having fought it out nip-and tuck through three weeks of play with Tom Jones' Pussycats, Dick Patton's Question Marks met the 'Cats and dropped them in a closely-played game Thursday. Sonny Short led the winners with twelve points while other vital scoring was in the hands of Hub Upton during the second quarter. After a tight first quarter which saw both teams tied, 6-6, the Question Marks pulled slowly ahead to triumph over the outmanned in ability but not in spirit Pussycats.

The Question Marks were almost surprised in the second game they played Thursday when they met a spirited Pre-Min team and won only in the last quarter when they poured 11 markers through the nets to win a 26-17 battle. Tired after their battle with the Pussycats, the league's leaders could not get started till that last period as the Minnies sparked by Hugh Bowers and Harry Robinson jumped out to a quick 6-3 quarter lead which changed hands thereafter until at the beginning of the fourth period when it was 15-all.



Pussycats had one of their worst scares Wednesday when a hard-fighting Athenian Owls team applied the pressure to the 'Pusses all the way till with but a few seconds left to be played, Dave Gates hit a field goal off the fast break and Tom Jones meshed a free throw with the final whistle blowing. Score: 40-37. Walt English led the Owls with ten.

Question Marks also racked up the highest scoring games of the season this week as they racked up wins over YMCA and Hamburg Squad, 66-27, and 61-24, respectively. Against the Y, Sonny Short led the way with 10 points, and received able support from Dick Hyatt with 16. Y split their scoring—Ray Rose and Gene Parks each totaling 10. Short again led

Chillies Capture Soccer Tourney

The Chillies, captained by Gracie Scruggs, won the soccer tournament by winning the second game of the three-game series by a score of 7-3.

The Chillies kept the lead all the way with the Howies not offering a serious threat throughout the game. The Chillies scored one in the first quarter, four in the second, and three in the third, with the Howies scoring two in the third quarter and a lone tally in the fourth.

Doing the scoring for the Chillies were Davis, Moore, Scruggs, and Fields while Robinson and Murphy did the scoring for the Howies.

In the squad game played Thursday, December 13, the Howies triumphed over the Chillies to the tune of 6-3. The Howies got off to an early lead in the first quarter with the score 3-1 at the half.

The Chillies staged a rally in the third quarter to make the score 4-3, favor of the Howies, but the Howies kicked two more goals to keep their lead and win the game. Scoring for the Howies were Lovette, Peresenia, Buchanan, and Kostenbader while Scruggs did all the scoring for the Chillies.

Soccer ends women's varsity for the semester with basketball first on the agenda for next semester.

Mrs. Largen Announces New Swimming Courses

Mrs. E. D. Largen, instructor in physical education, has announced that Advanced Swimming, Senior Life Savings, and Instructors courses in swimming will be offered next semester.

The Advanced Swimming Course will be offered from Jan. 21-25, hours from 7 p.m. until 9. It is stressed that students should not sign up for this course if they do not have mastery over most of the different swimming strokes.

The Senior Life Saving Course will begin Feb. 25 through March 7 from 7 p.m. until 9. The Instructors Course will be offered from March 17 until March 21 with hours from 7 p.m. until 10 p.m.

Students wishing to take any of these courses are requested to put their names on the sign-up sheet in the Intramural Gym.

French Club Elects Lou Packard President

Louise Packard, senior French major from Hammomton, N. J., was elected president of the French Club for next semester at the annual club Christmas party held at Catherine Wilkinson's home Thursday, December 6.

Other newly elected officers are vice-president, David Gates; secretary, Mary Sue Heron; treasurer, Mary Sue Munson; program chairmen, Hank Van Hassel and Pat Walthal.

Athenians Elect

The election of second semester officers of Athenian was held Friday, December 14. The results of the election have not yet been tabulated.

They will be announced next semester.

Frosh Show Postponed

The Freshman talent show, originally scheduled for last night, has been postponed until next semester due to the large number of extra activities already planned for this week.

good as last year's and cases even better with its capacity for speed, the outlook is indeed a bright one provided the Scots keep up their good work.

The Freshman or B team (whatever you may want to call it, depending on which class aggregation is in) also showed itself up well in turning back the Maryville High team. With Bob Davis fouling out early, the Flashes seemed doomed for extinction but Dick Lebold and Bob Greene came in to fill the gap—especially the former who was plagued by a tendency to tighten up in the clinch but who seemed to have gotten rid of that worry this semester. The B's Phil Young also looks like another Shields, if he can put on some weight with Kent Buser and Was Kinser also showing up well via the scoring column. The B's also have the welcoming asset of speed to make up for their lack of height.

"CHRISTMAS"

'Twas the week before finals, and all through the dorm,
Not a creature was stirring not even a worm.
The score books and shets were laid with their usual care
In hopes that deadlines would be made with time to spare.
But with there being a shortage of that well-known commodity, time.
There seems to be little chance for rhyme.
So, Merry Christmas to you all,
With a better Sports Section next spring than this fall,
From Pearson, Coles, Mosier, and Navratil,
Who hope to give you the latest and best still
Of wrestling, basktball, and Intramurals,
With a story now and then of Mrs. Queener's gir-uls!

Limping?

Clubfeet turned in the busiest week as they pressed an opportunity to catch the leaders by playing three games. Their pennant chances got a severe jolt, however, when they ran into a strong Alpha Sigma team that dropped them for a second loss of the season. The Scotties scored 46 points to 40 for the Clubfeet. John Anderson led the way for the Alpha Sig team, scoring 20. For the Clubfeet, Demers had 12, and Breitbach and Grippo each had 10. Last Saturday, Clubfeet turned in a 23-15 win over the Anons who were missing some of their better players. Big Hank Van Hassel tallied six for Clubfeet as everyone joined the parade while high man for the day was Anon Chuck Holsinger with 8. Clubfeet also gained a forfeit over the Globetrotters for a third win.

Anons Triumph

Led by Tim Bowman, who took over as the league's leader in individual points for one game as he tickled the cords for 23 points, Anons swept to a 42-18 win over the Y Monday. Y was led by pick-up Jerry Reynolds who swished 7. Bowman scored twelve points in the third quarter to set up his total.

Hoot, Hoot

Athenian Owls turned in a victory this week by squeezing past Globetrotters, 28-27. Harless was high for the day with 14 points while Herb White led the Athenian team with 12. Globetrotters also forfeited a game this week to Pre-Mins, who had a rough deal earlier in the week with Hamburg Squad, losing out in the last quarter 28-26. Harry Newberry threw in 11 points to lead his team to victory, while Harry Robinson was the most prolific scorer for the Minnies with six.

MaGill To Lead Music At February Meetings

Song Leader Is MC Grad

The Reverend John Magill, pastor of Abington Presbyterian Church, Abington, Pa., a graduate of Maryville College in the Class of 1939, will be song leader at the February Meetings, it has been announced by President Ralph Lloyd.

The Rev. Dr. Sidney E. Stringham of St. Louis who has led the singing 29 out of the past 30 years, was unable to come this year because of conflicting engagements.

Magill came to Maryville College from Worcester, Mass., and after his graduation attended McCormick Theological Seminary, Chicago. Following seminary he was for four years a pastor in Chicago, and then for five years was pastor of First Presbyterian Church, Monmouth, Ill. He went to his present pastorate within the past year.

Before coming to college he had attained some reputation in the field of music and was active in that field here, serving as director of the choir at New Providence Presbyterian Church. He married Dorothy Wells of Maryville, also an MC graduate.

The Rev. Dr. George E. Sweazey is to be the leader of the Meetings, which will be conducted from February 6-14.

Faculty Recital Features Vawter

Dorothy Vawter, pianist, was featured at the faculty recital held Friday evening, Jan. 18, in the Music Hall of the Fine Arts Center.

Included on the program were the "Sonatas in G Major and E Major" by Scarlatti," Sonata in A Flat Major" by Beethoven, "Intermezzi" by Brahms and "Rhapsody in G Minor" by Brahms.

The faculty will present two more concerts in this series during the semester.

A-B's Present Calendar

Athenian and Bainonian presented the 1952 ABC girls at a program given shortly preceding the recent holidays. For several years the brother and sister societies have elected six outstanding Bainonian girls to serve as models for the Athenian-Bainonian calender.

Chosen for the coming year were Dixie Conner, freshman from New Brunswick, N. J.; Evelyn Fields, junior history major from Walstonburg, N. C.;

Shirley Postlethwaithe, junior Bible major from Ocean City, Md.; Frankie McEachern, freshman from Jacksonville, Fla.; and Betty Hammers, junior sociology major from Stewartstown, Pa.

Calendars are now on sale.

French Discuss Plans

French Club held its first meeting of the semester Thursday in Anderson Hall. Lou Packard, newly elected president of the club, presided.

First on the agenda was the completion of bnsiness from last year.

The club then discussed plans for this semester.

Anderson To Lead Vespers At 4:30

Dr. Harrison Ray Anderson, pastor of Fourth Presbyterian Church, Chicago, Ill., will be the speaker at the vespers service Sunday. The service is to be held in the FAC Music Hall at 4:30 instead of the usual 7 p.m., as Dr. Anderson has a service in Knoxville that evening.

Dr. Anderson is Moderator of the General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church, USA, a member of the Board of Directors of Maryville College, and has been a leader of the February Meetings. He is expected to arrive at Maryville sometime Saturday and will stay with the Lloyds at Morningside.

The change of time is especially to be noted.

Orchestra Plans Deihl Concert

The college orchestra, under the direction of Katherine Crews, began rehearsals this week on "Highlanday," a composition for orchestra and voices by Bill Deihl, senior music major from Raleigh, N. C.

Based on southern mountain folk music, this composition will be performed in the annual Spring Concert. Other numbers on this program will be announced later.

The orchestra rehearses each Tuesday and Thursday at 3:30 p.m. in the band room of the Fine Arts Center. In addition to working on numbers for the concert, the orchestra plays various symphonic and lighter works at each rehearsal.

Anyone desiring to play with the [illegible] Studio A. at the FAC. There are several college-owned instruments available to students.

Square Dancing

Square dancing will be held in the Intramural Gym next Monday evening from 6:30 to 7:15, it has been announced by Marie Richards, chairman of the social board.

J. W. Kleinsasser of Maryville will call.

Classes Nominate

The senior class, meeting after chapel Thursday morning, nominated Jack Waka, Shorty Lange, and Neale Pearson for the position of class treasurer.

The sophomores, meeting at the same time, nominated Jack Maxwell and Bob Johnston for class treasurer, and Connie Howell and Ginny Smith for Student Council representative.

Elections for both classes will take place next week.

MC'ers Attend Vols Conference

By Lynn Miller

By train, car, plane, and bus, seven Maryville College students rolled into Lawrence, Kansas, on December 27, for the sixteenth Quadrennial Conference sponsored by the Student Volunteer Movement.

Held on the campus of the University of Kansas, the conference covered a five-day period and included speakers, seminar groups, discussions, interviews, movies, panels, and assemblies as part of the intensive program.

The theme for this conference was "Christ's Kingdom — Man's Hope" and the platform speakers dealt with the theological and practical issues involved.

A few of the visiting personages speaking at the Quadrennial were John R. Mott, Frank Laubach, Truman Douglass, John MacKay, and Charles Ranson.

Although Dr. Reinhold Niebuhr, scheduled to deliver the opening address was unable to attend, his place was taken by Tracy Jones, Jr., administrative secretary for the conference.

Over 2,000 college students from 47 states, Canada, and 45 foreign countries were present. Those from Maryville who attended were Benita Biswas, Evelyn Fields, Ann Leeder, Lynn Miller, Jerry Knecht, Homer Rickabaugh, and Ken Upham.

Echo Reporter Interviews Dr. Verton M. Queener

By Pat Lovette

Verton Madison Queener, chairman of the social science division and one of MC's most popular faculty members, was born in McMinn County, Tennessee, where he grew up and attended grammar school and the first three years of high school at Etowah.

His family then moved to New Mexico, and, with the breaking out of World War I, Dr. Queener entered the service of his country, serving for 19 months in the U. S. Navy. After the close of the war, he decided to finish his schooling and attended prep school at Maryville and then went on to graduate from Maryville College in 1924.

Dr. Queener was active in affairs on campus; being the first president of Student Council, organized in 1923, and belonging to the literary society called Athenian. He recalls that debates and speeches made up the programs for these Saturday night meetings of the societies, which is quite different from the programs of today.

He was interested in debate, becoming a charter member of Pi Kappa Delta, honorary debate fraternity, and was elected president in 1922. Dr. Queener was editor of The Echo in 1924. He took an interest in athletics, liking especially to play tennis and golf.

Upon graduation, Dr. Queener went to Portamouth, Ohio, where he taught math, economics, and history in a high school there. He returned to Maryville in the fall of 1927 to teach European History.

During his absence from the school, a new women's physical education teacher, Miss Evelyn Norton from New York, had been employed by the College. The two met, fell in love, and were married in 1928.

Dr. Queener received his M.A. from the University of Tennessee in 1930, writing his thesis on Parson Brownlow, a pre-civil war Tennessean. He then started work on his doctor's degree, receiving it from Indiana University in 1940 and writing his thesis on "The Republican Party of Tennessee."

Two children were born to the Queeners during this time, George in 1929 and another son named Jake in 1934. George received his discharge from the U. S. Navy and Jake attends Maryville High School.

After the start of World War II, Dr. Queener accepted a position in Washington, D. C. with the Agriculture Department of War Food Administration, keeping records on the quantity of foods in the country.

When the war ended in 1946, Dr. Queener returned to Maryville, and has now taught at MC for approximately 25 years.

Dr. Queener is of medium height with black hair, slightly greying at the temples. He posseses a dry wit, well known amoung his students, making him a serious type of person with a definite sense of humor.

He maintained, until just recently, a poultry farm as a hobby in which he was very interested, enjoying the relaxation and enjoyment it brought him. He has taken

Schweiker, Elting FAC Architects, To Plan Chapel

Join Barber, McMurray

Schweikher and Elting, of Chicago, and Barber and McMurry, of Knoxville, have been engaged as associated architects for the proposed combined chapel-theatre-classroom building, President Ralph W. Lloyd has announced. Schweikher was on campus January 14 and 15 to discuss plans.

The associated architects have been asked to develop designs and working drawings with a view to starting construction by the end of the summer if building conditions then permit, President Lloyd stated.

The present plans call for four units in the new building. A chapel auditorium to seat 1,200; a theatre to seat 450, with standard stage and stage house, workshop, and dressing rooms; a classroom, office, and choir unit; a devotional chapel seating 50 to 100.

This combination building, which will bear the name of Samuel Tyndale Wilson, former President of the College, will replace Voorhees Chapel, which burned four years ago, and will add extensive facilities for teaching and production in the fields of speech and drama.

A fine arts buliding, with facilities for music and art, was completed a year ago. Chapel services, music, and drama were formerly in Voorhees Chapel. The combined floor space of the new chapel and fine arts buildings will be about five times that of the Voorhees Chapel building.

President Lloyd estimates that the total cost of the building furnished will be approximately half a million dollars. About four fifths of that amount has been received in cash and pledges. Gifts for the balance will be sought from alumni and friends of the College.

Dr. Lloyd Attends Church Meetings

President Ralph Waldo Lloyd will be in Nashville Monday with Presbyterian Moderator H. Ray Anderson for a conference on church union. Tuesday, the President is scheduled to attend a meeting of East Tennessee college presidents at Tusculum College, Greenville.

Last Thursday and Friday, Dr. Lloyd was in New York for a meeting of the National Advisory Council of the Student YMCA.

He attended on last Tuesday and Wednesday a meeting in Washington, D. C., on church union. Present were representatives of the Presbyterian USA, Presbyterian US, and United Presbyterian churches. Dr. Lloyd is chairman of the joint committee.

Radio Airs 'Confession'

Y Radio will present a radio drama, "Confession," over WGAP Wednesday, January 30 at 9 p.m. Members of the cast are Carol Demler, Jim Darroch, Herb White, Grace Myers, Jerry Knecht and Peggy Kettles.

Directing are Lynn Miller and Herb Hoover.

Y-Radio broadcast a program of the four fears facing the Christian world last Wednesday evening at 9 p.m. over WGAP. Dave Reed and Tom Jones announced.

Enacting the program were Barbara Chubb, Carolyn Symmes and Joe Stater. Ken Shaeffer, Carolyn Beatty and Barbara Ann Scott provided the music.

Westerners Visit MC

Visiting on campus the forepart of this week were Dr. Clifford Barbour, Dr. Jarvis Cotton, Andy Clark, and George Barber of Western Seminary, Pittsburgh, Pa.

Dr. Barbour, a member of the MC Board of Directors, former pastor of Second Presbyterian Church, Knoxville, and former Moderator of the Presbyterian USA General Assembly, is President of Western.

Dr. Cotton, Western's Vice-President and a Maryville graduate, preached at Vespers Sunday evening. Clark and Barber, students at the Seminary, were graduated from Maryville last May.

Warfield Appears In Concert Here

Newman Represents MC At State Kefauver Meet

Dick Newman, editor of The Highland Echo, attended in Nashville last Saturday the organization meeting of the Tennessee College Division of the Kefauver For President Clubs. Bill Peeler of Cumberland University, Lebanon, was elected state chairman.

The junior senator from Tennessee announced Wednesday that he would seek the Democratic nomination. "There is a great deal of support for Estes Kefauver here at Maryville," Newman announced. "There are extensive local plans for an active club and an active campaign."

Dorm Men Elect MSO Committee

With the ratification of the MSO Constitution complete, elections were held in Carnegie Hall Tuesday night for floor leaders and mmebers of the Steering Committee.

These two groups make up the MSO Coordinating Council, which will meet at 10 p.m. Thursday in Bartlett Hall.

Ballet Troupe To Appear

The next attraction in the concert series at the University of Tennessee will be Saddler's Wells Theatre Ballet of London, England. The performance is scheduled for Friday, February 1.

Attractions in the near future will include the Pittsburg Symphony and Patrice Munsel. Single tickets are available.

Architectural Mag Features MC FAC

The Fine Arts Center was written up as the feature article in the December, 1951, issue of "The Architectural Record." Pictures which were taken during the spring and autumn appeared on the front cover and throughout the story.

The utilitarian aspect of the building was particularly stressed, as well as the modern design. President Ralph Lloyd was told by the publisher of the magazine that he believed the FAC to be the most significant building built on any American college campus last year.

Pictures taken by J. W. Molitor in connection with the story are on display in the library of the Fine Arts Center. Those who are interested in purchasing a photograph may order it by signing the book, which will also be found in the library.

The eight by ten inch pictures will cost $1.50 each.

Rehearsals Begin For 'Jumping Frog'

Rehearsals have begun for "The Jumping Frog," an opera by Lukas Foos, which is to be presented by Opera Workshop in cooperation with the Music, Drama, and Art Departments on Saturday, March 25, at 8 p.m. in Alumni Gym.

Katherine Craven is to be the faculty adviser on staging, while Austin Van Pelt is Student Director.

Members of the cast are Wally Schroeder, Smiley; Ken Shaeffer, First Crapshooter; Bill Cunningham, Second Crapshooter; Bill Robinson, Stranger; Betty Hammers, Lulu; Don Brakebill, Uncle Henry; and Conrad Eaddy, Guitar Player.

Florence Clark and Beverly Edwards under the supervision of Charlotte Johnson are in charge of the stage sets. Mrs. Alice Eaddy will be the accompanist.

There will be no admission charge for this production, but reserved seats will be available.

'Showboat' Star Sings At MC

By Carol Moore

The Maryville College Artist Series presented William Warfield, baritone, to a full house of college students and townspeople at Alumni Gym last night. The evening concert, arranged through the management of Columbia Artists was climaxed by Mr. Warfield's encore of "Ol' Man River," the song which was the high spot of his recent movie, "Showboat."

His program included selections by Handel, Bach, Hugo, Wolf, Debussy, Verdi, Giordano, Copland, and a number of old American songs arranged by Nathaniel Dett, Harry Burleigh, and Hall Johnson. Otto Herz was pianist.

Mr. Warfields concert concludes the MC artist series for this year. Other artists who appeared at Maryville were Nelson and Neal, piano team.

Proffitt To Speak On CBS Broadcast

On Sunday, February 24, David W. Proffitt of Maryville, president of the Presbyterian Laymen's Association will speak on the CBS "Church of the Air" broadcast.

The Maryville College Vesper Choir will record the musical parts of the program including two anthems, the hymns, and responses on February 18.

WNOX, the CBS affiliate in Knoxville, will record the entire broadcast which will be sent to New York for the transcontinental program.

Proffitt has recently returned from a trip around the world visiting various mission fields.

Student Council

Maryville College will join in the National Council of Churches' World Day of Prayer on February 29 at 11 a.m., it was decided by Student Council at its Jan. 23 meeting. All classes will be interrupted for a moment of prayer.

Because of the confusion involved in campus and class nominations, the council debated new methods. No action was voted.

Two town night violations were reported, and the full penalties applied

IRC Elects Holland VP; Seeley Addresses Group

Van Holland was elected vice-president and program chairman for this semester of IRC at a meeting January 21 in Thaw 214. He succeeds Don Gray who resigned.

Gray was appointed to fill one of two vacancies in the program committee. The other will be filled at a later date by Holland.

Following the election, Carson Seeley, president, gave an address on various aspects of the current German social, political and economic position. The subject matter comprised entirely the thoughts and observations of a German teacher who had visited Seeley during the Christmas holidays.

Aztec Ruins Contribute To New MC Architecture

By Carol Moore

". . . and to our left we see the Aztec Ruins, popular social spot here at Maryville, where the elite meet . . ." The president of the Student Council, Bob Cuthill, was taking us freshmen about the campus showing us the high spots. (Well, that's one thing you can say for the Ruins!) He began by discussing the architecture of the miserly edifice.

"Note the sleek lines, (I'm talking about the building, sir!) the graceful landscaping, the imposing entrance, the interesting shrubbery pattern, the interior decoration, the vivid colors, the . . ." I had begun to notice.

Take, for instance, those sleek lines, (I'm still talking about the building!) Where else have you seen a house that had perforated walls (and only three at that!), a slanted roof and a stone floor? Why, it's unusual, it's different, it's an original of Maryville's.

Sorry, I must correct that last statement. I just received a wire that informed me that the Warden at San Qunetin built an identical structure ten years ago . . . found it quite useful in keeping the inmates happy.

The graceful landscaping failed to impress me, also. But don't misunderstand me, I think hills are terrific. It's just that by the time one reaches the Ruins from the street, he is too fagged out to have a fag; therefore we are defeating the purpose. Perhaps if Bob Moser would will his first million to the school we could have escalators installed!

At the entrance to the Ruins proper we find a stone path (crooked). From there one walks a few steps until he comes upon a structure which would look appropriate at a high school junior prom with the chaperones in it.

In fact, chaperones are probably the only people who would enjoy it! The bushes, placed in strategic positions about the structure, allow no sunshine and plenty of wind to enter. One finds the lighting of a cigarette rather difficult when he must first light a match to find the weed and then have it blown out by a sudden gust of wind before he can light up.

This procedure is repeated until the smoker's teeth are chattering so fast it is impossible to take a drag without having the precious fag (probably a bummed one) snipped in two by his clattering ivories.

The interior decorations could be summed up in two words; simple and essential. In the first category I will place the person who decided to paint the shack green so it would contrast with the orange trees, red grass, and yellow shrubs. In the second category, essential, we find the jail-like benches which support the walls and two worn out brooms, the only decorations, aside from the multi-colored cigarette machine which was donated by the Aztec Indians.

As the sun slowly sinks in the West we say farewell to the eighth wonder of the world, the monument to nicotine, the Aztec Ruins.

SATURDAY, JANUARY 26

Before You Talk

By Emily Smith

We hear much these days about frankness and honesty. These are, indeed, praiseworthy virtues, but sometimes they seem to be carried a bit too far here in our hallowed halls.

Meaning well, of course, we frequently will go to one of our friends and say something to the effect that "I wouldn't want to meddle, and I mean this for your own good and nothing else, but . . ." and follows a long, detailed report of the activities of boyfriend or girlfriend or a "straight-forward" personal criticism. These reports may include such facts as the all-important one that SHE brushed her teeth twice after lunch day-before-yesterday, or HE went in a room two doors down the hall thinking it was his.

Rumors that a romance, or even a casual friendship, is on the rocks only add to the watchfulness. Sometimes people you never even saw before will tell you things about yourself!

Supposedly we feel that it is our duty to keep our friends informed as to the comings and goings of all their flames—old, new, and indifferent, or precisely what we think is the source of an individual's problems. The theory is advanced that perhaps it was nobody's business after all who SHE was seen talking to after class and who HE smiled at in the library. If it is important that such things are known, surely the interested parties will tell. Frequently, also, meanings are read into perfectly innocent incidents by those who do not know the facts of a case and sometimes, perhaps, feel a wee bit malicious.

When other people carry tales we call them gossipy or catty. Of course we ourselves are above such behavior. We only tell that which we feel is for the good of all. Still, we call other who feel just the same mean and petty and thoughtless.

Maybe it would help during this new semester for us to think before we talk, to ask ourselves if it really would do any good for us to tell or if our listeners would only feel bad afterwards. Let's all think before we speak—lots of people might be happier for it!

By Crosby and Schamehorn

On your mark, Get set. Go!! Yes, fellows—this is 1952, and everyone knows what that means. 1952 is the year that everyone looks forward to—some with anticipation and others with dread: election year.

But to us here at Maryville—especially the women—1952 has a more significant meaning. You see—it's Leap Year when the MC gals get their chance to snare a man. Well—one third of a man, anyhow.

With the arrival of a few mid-term freshmen—all men—the ratio has rapidly soared upward in the girls' favor, giving new hope to despairing hearts.

No girls—don't give up hope. After much thought and deliberation we have come forth with this helpful little outline for desperate women.

I. Be agressive:
   a. Hold their coats.
   b. Carry their books.
   c. Open the door for them.

II. Swallow your pride:
   a. Speak first; yell half way across campus if necessary.
   b. Ask him for his help on something you know more about that he does.
   c. Don't let him get away without finding out where he'll be that evening.

III. Become athletic:
   a. Learn to run.
   b. Learn to tackle.
   c. Above all, learn how to throw a good body block!!

But you men musn't think we women have turned against you entirely. Here are a few pointers for you, too.

I. Don't let 'em:
   a. Keep your coat on all the time.
   b. Leave your book at home.
   c. Go around doors instead of through them.

II. Be Proud:
   a. Never answer.
   b. Know nothing about anything (Easy, huh!!)
   c. Stay in your room all the time.

III. Keep your sports secrets
   a. Learn to run faster.
   b. Don't explain or demonstrate a tackle.
   c. Ditto a body block.

Well, MC'ers—there it is. Have fun! Happy hunting, girls, and fellows—keep a stiff upper lip!

Scots & Soda

By Pat Ingles

The vacation for ye Old Echo staff is over, as well as for the rest of the student body, and with its close comes a return to the Maryville stuff and nonsense, which has likewise been taking a short vacation.

* * * * * * *

If anyone has been looking for a letter that was due some time before Christmas, they might see Jerry King, an employee of the local Post Office. While cleaning out his car recently, he discovered a package of Christmas mail that had spent a four-week holiday behind the seat.

* * * * * * *

Speaking of mail reminds me of the letter that Abbie Crosby returned to one of her friends with the quip:

"A letter came today, my dear;
Perhaps it was from you.
But I shall never know, I fear,
Because there's postage due."

* * * * * * *

Mary Alva White wondered if she carried a phony check when she vainly tried to cash it at a teller's window recently. It was not until she bewilderedly walked out of the building and discovered that she had mistaken the Maryville Police station for a bank, that she understood the clerk's astonishment at her request.

* * * * * * *

ATTENTION IMPORTANT! If anyone finds a pair of brown dress pants, please return them to Jake Peppers immediately. He lost them while traveling.

* * * * * * *

Say, what has Carson Seeley been doing in the fishpond, lately?

* * * * * * *

Many of our Maryville All-Americans (!) have been harboring fears of serving under Uncle Sam in the very near future. The following just about expresses their sentiments.

"They can't draft me,
I was in before;
They can't get me,
I'm not young any more;
They can't— they can't—
Hut! Two! Three! Four!

* * * * * * *

The Baldwin Hall girls wondered if there was a new rule on dating, when they noticed that on Sunday night, against former regulations, a Carnegie fellow spent several uncomfortable hours in the house-mother's office. What say there, Bob Johnston?

* * * * * * *

In speech class 104, Mr. Short casually remarked that "most southern girls have lazy lips . . ." to which he eventually added, "and boys . . ." to which he even later added, "in speech."

* * * * * * *

Members of the Vesper Choir were trying to imagine what Mr. Harter was thinking of when he announced that their next song would be "Rise Up, My Lover."

* * * * * * *

Anyone walking by Memorial the other night might have been in for a surprise if he noticed two Carnegie fellows disappearing into one of the second floor windows of Memorial via ladder, followed at some distance by Ralph. Upon investigation, however, it was discovered that they were simply trying to aid two girls who had been locked out of their room.

* * * * * * *

Although he has just returned to Maryville, Rolfe Duggar didn't lose any time in putting in his bid for "Margaret". Nevertheless, there was already a sizeable waiting list for the popular personage.

* * * * * * *

Lastly, the thought for the day; What I want to know is . . . . how did the fool ever get the money from which he is so often parted?

Voices, Masks, and Shadows

By Gail Brown

A IS FOR APT READING

For you enlightened ones who have read, heard, or run away from advertisements, and might possibly like to know why, this is the book: "Advertising Campaigns" by Irvin Graham.

To be found in this bit of literary matter are Corby's Whiskey weather forcasting stunts, Post Office requirement, illustrations fice Requirements, illustrations (Gerber's Baby Food, Ami-dent, Toxaphene-Kills Cotton Pests), matchbook advertising, and information on lotteries.

Nothing could be more exquisite than to sit down (on a Goodall Fabrics, Inc. advertised chair, of course) and read about advertisements. Especially if you have something to sell, would you want to include this on your sacred reading list, or if you want to run an ad in next week's paper.

There are for sale nine Garo Antreasion paintings, now on display at the Fine Arts Center Art Gallery, part of a print exhibition of the John Herron Art School.

The subjects vary from "Still Life No. 1," "Still Life With Fish," through "Magic City No. 2," and "Apparition." The other titles are equally exciting. If requested, prices on these pictures, one an etching, others color lithographs, will be quoted.

Also for artists and their friends, but back in the book line, there is a new selection of works of art, "Painting and Sculpture" from the Kress Collection. This catalogue contains illustrations of paintings and sculpture representing five centuries, including Ciambue, Durer, Bruegel, Lebrun, and almost one hundred other masters.

Throughout the collection good taste is evident, so that both artists and amateurs alike readily find gratification.

B IS FOR BETTER POETRY

"The broad-backed hippopotamus
Rests on his belly in the mud;
Although he seems so firm to us
He is merely flesh and blood.

Flesh and blood is weak and frail,
Susceptible to nervous shock;
While the True Church can never fail
For it is based upon a rock.

The hippo's feeble steps may err
In compassing material ends,
While the True Church need never stir
To gather in its dividends.

At mating time the hippo's voice
Betrays inflexions hoarse and odd,
But every week we hear rejoice
The Church, at being one with God.

The hippopotamus's day
Is passed in sleep; at night he hunts;
God works in a mysterious way—
The Church can sleep and feed at once.

—T. S. Eliot

C IS FOR CAPITOL

For a quick matinee or, for the privileged ones, an evening show tonight, George Montgomery and Gale Storm are playing in "The Texas Ranger."

Monday and Town Night Gary Cooper stars in "Distant Drums." This is a fast moving, bang-bang, there-go-the-Indians (Seminole, this time) type of picture. Quincey Wyatt (Mr. Cooper) is a soldier who goes running around blowing up forts, tracking through swamps, rescuing prisoners (this is where the 'doll' comes in), battling Indian chiefs under water, and putting on an all-round good show.

This movie is excellent for nature lovers, too, supposedly having tremendous color shots of the Florida swamps.

PARK, TOO

If you would rather pick up a double header tonight, "Rainbow Valley," with John Wayne, and "Submarine Base," with John Little are playing at the theatre-across-the-street.

"The Paleface" arives Monday in which Painless Potter (Bob Hope), who pulls teeth with a timid touch, is practicing his profession in a West where there are men, and again, where there is Jane Russell, as Calamity Jane.

Although there are supporting players, none of them are noticeable. Even Jane Russell cannot claim to have improved her acting since her early teens. Hope keeps the plot broiling with slapstick and even some engaging good humor.

On Tuesday and Wednesday "Fugitive Lady" flees from something to some kind of place because of some sort of reason, but we don't know why.

"Strictly Dishonorable," due for Friday, joins Janet Blair and Ezio Pinza in a comedy which is actually funny occasionally. It also has a few estimable musical inserts.

Pinza, a middle-aged opera star feels he should marry this little, naive, hero-worshipping southern gal to overcome nasty publicity of an unethical newspaper. Does he? See for yourself; we don't know.

Athenians Elect Day

Officers of Athenian who were recently elected include George Day, president; Allan Caldwell, First Vice-President; Jack Maxwell, Second Vice-President; Ken Upham, Secretary; Dick Dart, Treasurer.

Their business meeting held at the Student Center last week concluded with a Coke party at which new men students on campus were introduced to the society.

According to Jack Maxwell, program chairman, Athenian will meet this week in Bartlett Hall at 6:15 p.m. A sports movie and travelogue will be shown. The officers also urge that students wishing to buy the Athenian-Bainonian Calendar should make their purase soon as there is a limited supply available.

Play Clears $233.15

Professor George D. Howell, chairman of tickets and finance, has announced that the faculty play, "Arsenic And Old Lace," which was presented December 14, cleared a total of $233.15.

This money is being donated to the library for use as library officials see fit.

Marine To Visit MC

The U S Marine Corps is sending Captain J. W. Donnell to Maryville College to interview interested students for enrollment in its 1952 college officer training programs on February 15 and 16.

All undergraduates are eligible for Marine commissions nad may contact Captain Donnell in Carnegie Hall on that date.

Graduates Follow Different Paths

The December graduating class of eleven students find themselves in numerous pursuits.

Louise Masters of Roseville, Mich., is employed in Alcoa as a personal secretary. Employed in Knoxville, Jean Pelton of Monticello, N. Y., is also doing secretarial work.

Ronald Fleming of Dravosburgh, Pa. is studying at Princeton Theological Seminary. Clarence Reeser of Jersey Shore, Pa. is attending Moody Bible Institute.

Robert Lynn of Elmhurst, Ill., is about to be called into the United States Army. Laurence Major of Mascot was immediately inducted into the Air Force upon completing the semester.

According to his latest plans, Walter English of Philadelphia, Pa., will work for a short time before attending medical school.

Joyce Lenderman of Birmingham, Ala., became the wife of Lowell Myers Duffey upon graduating.

Daniel Buchanan of Bethesda, Md., is at home with his parents.

Also graduated were Hugh Hamil of Friendsville and David Reeve of Alcoa.

Power Plant Completed

Louis Black, director of maintenance, has announced that during Christmas holidays the new power plant was completed and installed, including a boiler and stoker.

Repairs on the campus that were also made at this time include in the library, additional shelves made for the reading room, and new radiators. Floors of the Alumni and Intramural Gyms and Student Center were refinished. The swimming pool was painted, and also various rooms in the FAC were painted. General repair work and cleaning was done on many buildings over the campus.

Bainonians Meet

Bainonian met Saturday, January 20, in Bainonian Hall. Cora Anthony and Ruth Cross were in charge of the program which was presented.

The program consisted of a baby contest, of which the winner was crowned Baby of 1952, and also a spelling bee contest along with several skits pertaining to the New Year.

The program ended with group singing led by Ella Swift as Father Time and Betty Hammers as the New Year.

Societies To Clash

Bainonians meet Thetas in the annual Tin Cup Classic basketball game tonight at 6:30 in Alumni Gym, according to Jean Davis, who is in charge of the game.

Non-varsity members of the two societies will vie for the cup won for the last two years by Theta. Serving as officials will be Tom Jones and Harry Newberry.

Alpha Sigs and Athenians are urged to join the girls in rooting for their favorite teams. The game will be over in time for spectators to attend activities planned for later in the evening.

Y's Plan Meeting

The YMCA and YWCA are to have a joint meeting at 7 p.m. Sunday, January 27 in the Fine Arts Center. At this meeting a movie will be shown entitled, "And Now I See," a picture telling the story of a church official and his Christian growth.

A free will offering will be taken during the movie to gain funds to supply the Y Rooms with needed utensils.

On Monday, February 4, YWCA will have open house to show the gifts; refreshments will be served.

Thetas See Pantomime

"The Light Went Out" was the pantomime read by Liz Murphy, program chairman, at last Saturday's Theta meeting. Acting out the romance were Marcia McKinney, Connie Howell, Libby Parrish, and Ruth Orr.

The program was followed by a business meeting, during which plans were made for this week's basketball game with Bainonina.

Vols To Present Panel Discussion

Student Vols will hold its first meeting this semester on Sunday, January 27, in Bartlett Hall, immediately following Vespers.

The program will be a panel discussion on "The World Mission of the Church," lead by Homer Rickabaugh. Others on the panel will be Lynn Miller, Doris Somerville, Evelyn Fields, and Jim Kren.

Workshop Will Hear Symmes, Alstyne

Carolin Symmes and Art Van Alstyne will read at Writer's Workshop this week. Their work wil be criticized by Dr. Edwin R. Hnuter and Bob Coles.

It has been announced that there are several vacancies in Workshop this semester that will be filed as soon as possible. Worthy students will be nominated by the membership committee and elected by the members of Writers' Workshop.

MC Staff Adds Four

Four additions have been made to the faculty and staff this semester.

Mrs. R. O. Smith, Jr., has been appointed instructor in home economics. She is a resident of Maryville and a graduate of UT. Her field is textiles and clothing.

Mrs. Carl Alette of Knoxville and Mrs. Albert W. Dockter Jr. are new part-time piano teachers. Mrs. Alette is an MC graduate.

Fred L. Blevins is the new assistant in the Treasurer's Office.

Spaniards Meet

Thursday night the Spanish Club reinstated members Barbara Buttrill, Virginia Devenport, Peggy Evans, Trig Moyer, Neale Pearson.

Voted in as new members were Henrietta Laing, Sylvia Peresenyi, James Demer, Robert Joney, Harry MacCall. Ethel Schockley led games.

Germans Will Elect

German Club will meet January 28 at 6:30 p.m. in Thaw 206 to elect officers for this semester.

Willocks Receives BD

Max Willocks, a graduate of Maryville College, received a Bachelor of Divinity degree from Golden Gate Baptist Theological Seminary, Berkeley, Calif., Friday, December 21.

He was graduated from Maryville College in May, 1949 and is the son of Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Willocks, Maryville.

Queener . . .

a great deal of interest in politics, being prominent in local and state Democratic circles. He is currently chairman of the Kefauver for President Club in Blount County.

He has published seven articles in "The East Tennessee Historical Publications," which comes out annually. Writing on such subjects as "Brownlow As an Editor," and "The Origin of the Republican Party," he published one article about every three years, the last one being published in 1950.

Dr. Queener still likes to play golf and, being a member of the Country Club, he does play golf quite frequently. Looking at the future, he said that he and Mrs. Queener would like to take a trip West sometime soon, just for the pureenjoyment of "wide open spaces."

Choir Presents Concert

Vesper Choir under the direction of Harry H. Harter presented a concert at Maryville High School auditorium Tuesday, January 22. The program consisted of two sections of songs, including both religious and secular music.

The concert is expected to become an annual affair.

Men Pass Constitution

By a 150-45 vote the revised Mens' Student Organization Constitution was passed by the men in balloting Tuesday.

The constitution is now in effect, having been passed by all necessary groups.

Sports Echoes

By Neal Pearson

"Poets and orators love to tell
How the Roman Empire rose and fell,
And many a bard has smitten his lyre
To bewail the ruins of Troy and Tyre.
It is therefore wholly fitting and proper
To mourn a while on Monday's flopper.
The cagers exploits and capers
Always bulk full large in the Echo and other papers
With columnists eagerly asking their views;
Whenever Shields sneezed—Headline it! (that's news!)
But our faith for a while has been smitten,
Yes, the Bulldogs our Scots have bitten.
—The Barber of Sevierville with apologies to H. Mewhinney

FOR THE FIRST TIME IN several years, our hopes for a successful basketball season had taken on a new air as the Scots "breezed" by LMU, Carbon-Carbide, and Milligan but then came Tennessee Wesleyan and the props were knocked from out under. Last year, the Scot cagers started out in fine fettle winning three in a row at first and then came nine straight defeats before they buckled down and bounced back to finish up the season with an 8-13 record. This year the Scots dropped three early and thin-margin games to Reliable Motors, Tusculum, and Hiwassee but came back to win that same number over LMU, Carbon-Carbide, and Milligan in a couple of the finest exhibitions of the court game since Doc Naismith tacked up his first peach basket on the wall of a YMCA building. Against these three teams, the Scots offense really showed itself up well, save in spots with a field goal percentage that was around the fifty percent mark. (The average that most teams need to win being estimated at 37%) so statistices show the wins were no flopperoos. However, in the Wesleyan game, the Scots defense collopsed woe- and wholefully, and the old win streak was snapped. Having said before expectantly, as usual, that the LMU game ought to give a pretty good indication of things to come, that statement might be revised to read that the Hiwassee game should be the judge of future prospects for this year—this being written before game time.

Anyway, this all boils down to the fact that the Scots Do have a good offense, Can come from behind to win ball games, and Can really put their own home court to good advantage—the dopesters having figured out that playing on one's own boards is worth 15 counters more to any team than when playing on someone else's court. In that case, look for reversals of the Tusculum and Wesleyan scores in the future.

DELAYED BUT PERHAPS WORTHWHILE AND THEY FILL UP SPACE—Comments on events happening over vacation time or as called by someone else Saturday Sports Hash . . . It is possibly true that the old proverb or saying that an All American is the product of a long run and a good publicity man could be true in the case of Tennessee's Hank Lauricella? Perhaps so. There is no doubt that he is of All America calibre but we wonder whether or no, as is evidenced in the Maryland and Senior Bowl games, that worthy lumniary belongs on the first team. He is a great punter and field general but couldn't most backfield men make his 7 yards plus average if they had a bus to run behind?

. . . . Looking back—Knoxville, Tenn., Jan. 15, 1951, . . . Feb. 25, 1951 . . ., June 6, 1951 . . . The UT Vols, number one team in the nation by virtue of their wins over Texas and Kentucky will do such and such this week . . . One year later: January 15, 1952, Knoxville, Tenn. . . . UT's Vols who were voted number one team in the nation by the Three big Press services will do such and such this week . . . All we ask our readers is to notice the one similar thing in both sentences amidst the two different phrasings . . . one using one method of a seemingly "logical" deduction and the other assuming that bowl games should not have any influence on a team's national standing . . . hmmm . . .

Jan. 10, 1951, Lexington, Kentucky . . . Coach Bear Bryant announces that from then hence ever more, Kentucky will give scholarships to only five boys from out of state and will depend on home-grown boys for all future material . . . Comment . . . Unmentioned is the fact that this has nothing to do with the Ruppmen who first made Kentucky athletically famous. Of course stories have come out saying that the genial Baron has always depended on local home breds to build up the ranks of his teams—the percentages running about three to one in favor of them and that outsiders weren't really necessary to his fine quintets' standing and play and that possibly the same system will be extended to the hoopsters on a similar proportion basis. However, we must wonder from where came the guys or perhaps, should we say "goons," that really made his teams great . . . two fellwos in particular . . . and both touched with a now-famous eleven foot pole . . . Messrs. Groza and Spivey . . . If we just might say something, we think that these gentlemen from Martins Ferry, Ohio, and the United States of Gawguh, respectively, had just a little bit to do with Rupp's measures of success and ability to become a renowned cattleman . . . The NCAA vs. the President's Committee . . . The former and many sports writers feel that the NCAA should handle the job of cleaning up sports and that if the Presidents attempt and do the job, that the NCAA's job and purpose in running American sports will be wiped out. The fact remains that we doubt that any college or university president doesn't know what the score is athletically on his campus and how athletic policies are run . . . Secondly, the NCAA and coaching groups have been hollering for years that they were going to and see that sports would be cleaned up in their section of the country—"de-emphasis" is nothing new, it has been in the air for the last thirty years only the word has been termed by something else with the result that the SEC and the sports writers in its area consider themselves "pure" and that the Ivy League is of such a nature that the teams and men who participate in such are tainted and athletic schedules "creampuffs," e.g. Knoxvillian ideas concerning Princeton's grid schedule . . . conversely Eastern papers say the Ivy league has been cleaned up of all dirt and that "It is interesting to note that the Dixie homespun quality of such names as Parilli, Rechichar, Polofsky, etc." and that "Tennessee's schedule is really a rugged one what with Chattanooga, TPI, and Wofford," so on and so forth.

This kind of talk goes on over all the country with gist of it being that everyone else's linen is dirty and cruddy while their sheets are still as pure as the driven snow. The fact of the business is that they are like many newspapers in cities the nation over whose writers knowing that their town and government is full of corruption and graft but who need the business of local advertiser and thus don't print all the facts. College and coaches and sports writers know that all is not 99 44/100% pure on the American sporting scene and that the lure of the graduate's dollar has been in many cases very strong. "We've really got to promote this town as a fine place to live in and that this is a fine place for someone to go to." (To the uninformed—the Chamber of Commerce attitude).

Nevertheless, unless the coaches and NCAA get on the proverbial "stick," there will be a lot more heads rolling as the prexies do apply prohibitions and restrictions. As is the case with a long-suffering public which finally decided to band together to clean up a mess in its political situation and forces the high and lofty phrases of politicians to become a reality rather than just a means of getting votes one year after another, those alumni of many institutions of higher learning who have been putting funds back into the old Alma Mater for many years but who have not applied pressure, so to speak, on the athletic department as have other more vocal alumni who have given money to the school or helped out athletes on condition that the school put out a winning team and have three or four All-Americans running around campus, are now seeing the need for a clean-up.

Chattanooga Matmen Take MC As Moc Heavies Get Pins

Scot Wrestlers Out Of Shape

The Chrismas holidays which Maryville College students enjoyed because of its length took its toll in the field of athletics as Maryville's wrestlers took on Chattanoga on the Moccasin mats and dropped a 21-11 decision. The short practice session which the Scots had before the first match of the second semester wasn't enough to get the matmen in shape especially in the case of Jimmy Calaway who had to lay off all of last semester because of studies and was getting in his first competition of the season.

Eleven For Us; Then—

The Highlanders who have no worries about men in the lightweight divisions jumped out to a quick eleven point lead but then the score went steadily the other way. Bill Morse picked up a 3-0 decision over Coach Ken Carpenter's 123 pounder Grandy. Morse rode Grundy for most of the match but could never get the fatal pin. Jack Maxwell then picked up a win in the 130 pound class as the Chattanooga man failed to make weight. Dave Ritzman then picked up another three points by riding out the nine minutes of grappling with Moc-man Anderson.

Callaway then took on Bill Hodges whom he defeated by 10-5 and 12-5 scores last year but could not stand the gaff and the Moccasin man came away with a decision in a 147-bout.

Don Benton then went in a 155 pound class squabble against Jim Haskins, the Moc's wrestling captain last year and he too succumbed. Paul Merwin's grapple with the Moc's Pheifer not only saw the whole night's works tied up, 11-11, but also the first of three pins into which MC wrestlers were to fall. Merwin did well for a time just like Jim Squires, MC's successor in a 177-lbs setto, but neither could do anything once the heavier and more experienced Chattanooga men got the referee's position on the MC at the beginning of the second periods. Squires opponent was footballer Andy Myers, a heavyweight last year, while Bob Buchanan's rival in the heavyweight bout was Tom Drake, Myers' teammate at the other guard post on the Moc football team. Buchanan, like Squires, held his own with Drake in the first period with neither man having a takedown but once the second period commenced the big and experienced Moc men applied the power and picked up a couple of pins and the team victory.

Drake, who has been wrestling for the Moc's for four years besides being a top-flight footballer, plus on making his mat talents available to the philanthropists who put on professional wrestling bouts over the country. Around the Big Bend country of Chattanooga, he's known as the "Blond Bomber."

Coach John A. Davis figures that the return bout with the Mocs later on in the season on the Alumni Gym pads will be much closer. Once Callaway gets into shape and Maryville's heavyweights gain a knowledge of how to stay out of pinholds, the outcomes should be much closer.

After two days of rest from their lacing at the hands of Chattanooga, Maryville's wrestlers took to the mats of Vanderbilt University last night for a match with the Commodores. Tonight, Middle Tennessee State is the MC opponent at Murfreesboro.

Little is known of Middle Tennessee State since they resumed wrestling as an inter-collegiate sport only last year and in meets around here, defeated Knox Y once. They undoubtedly will be strong from the 155 class on up because of the football-emphasis program at the central Tennessee school while MC will, as usual, be counting on its lightweights for enough points to coast in safe.

Can History Repeat?

The Commodores whom the Scots tangled with last night have met Chattanooga twice and split decisions with the Mocs. Over the years Maryville holds a decided edge over the Commodores in the mat sport—the Highlander matsmen taking ten of fifteen matches.

Coach L. S. Honaker's basketballers after a near disaster Thursday night against Hiwassee take on Emory & Henry's Blue Wasps Monday night in what should be another thriller. The Virginians have two three-year lettermen Jim Humphries and Vernon Cline who have averaged around the fifteen point mark all season long.

In the last MC-E&H contest two years ago, Humphries banged the nets for 17 points, third highest in the game; the two higher ones being Sam Dixon's 26 for the Wasps and Bob Boring's 28 for MC. Boring's total was a new record high for one man in MC annals but since then has been eclipsed twice by Meano Shields who now holds the honor with 36.

Bees Battle

In the preliminary game, the MC B's meet Everett High and follow this up with a game with Atlanta Naval Air Station here, Tuesday.

On Jan. 31, the Scots travel to King College of Bristol where they play the Tornadoes in the first of a home-and-home schedule. They follow this up with a journey to Jefferson City next Saturday night for a game with Carson-Newman while the wrestlers are at home.

MC Frosh Cagers Win Trio

After a nip and tuck battle last Saturday, the Scottie B basketball team defeated the 663 Air Force group from the Air Base 42 to 32. The air force quintet got off to a fast start and led, 12 to 3 at the end of the first quarter.

The Scotties, playing good ball, held the air boys scoreless during the early minutes of the second quarter and tied the score at 12-all. The rest of the first half was closely fought with the Scotties leading 20 to 19 at half time.

The second half, cut to ten minutes, was, at first, a continuation of the first half's close battle, but the Scots gradually put on the steam to win the game going away. Scoring honors went ot Bob Green of the Scots who scored nine points. Kent Busher, and Dick Lebold of the Scots and Wing of the Air Force scored seven points each.

Last Thursday, the Scot B' defeated the Question Marks, 40 to 35, in a close contest all the way. Two Question Marks roared to take the lead right at the opening whistle and remained ahead throughout the first half.

The B team began playing ball when the second half opened and soon took the lead. The remainder of the game was exciting with both teams taking the lead only to be overtaken by the other. The B team made a spurt in the last minutes to win the contest 40 to 35.

Scoring leaders were Bob Davis of the Scot B team and Dick Gardner of the Question Marks, each scoring nine points.

INTRAMURAL INFO. . . .

With the first half coming to a close, naturally the second half got under way only to find itself in a wild pennant scramble unlike ist brother first half. Upsets, at least according to the first half form sheet, have been about five cents a dozen.

To start off the parade, the fast improving Alpha Sigma team dropped the unbeaten Question Marks for the first time in Intramural Play in a close and hard fought game, 31-28. John Anderson had ten points for the winners, although Horace Beckwith was close on his heels with nine, and Dick Gardner, one of the newcomers to the team, led the Question Marks with twelve.

It is also of note that the noble editor of this page cashed in with a point, which must surely be his first in competitive basketball (ed. note—Fie, Fie, Fie. He is wrong).

Pussycat, Pussycat

The first half's second ranked team has been running into more than a little trouble in the new era. Having beaten the Hamburg Squad 47-23 as newcomer George Roberts set a new scoring record for a single game this year by racking up 26 points, the same two teams met in a second half battle that was a real duel.

The Hamburg's led most of the way and finally began to have some fun, but Pussycats put on a desperate rally and managed to close the gap and go on to win 31-28. Dave Gates scored 13 for the winners, but Harry Newberry was high for the game with 14 points.

The 'cats finally dropped a game though, when they encountered the Anons. In another close game, which were the specialty of the week, the Anons came out on top of a 22-21 score.

The Anons also dropped the Hamburg Squad in another tight game by the Score of 47-8 as Tim Bowman led the way with fifteen, closely followed by Bob Mizelle with twelve and Allen Caldwell with ten. Paul Merwin was leading point producer for the Hamburg Squad with three.

A Bad Limp

Jim Demer, who probably couldn't make one of the New York teams, played one of his best defensive games seen this year in Intramural play. (ed. note—This is for his benefit). Clubfeet had more trouble with Pre-Min, although they finally won, 23-21.

Contenders

Alpha Sigma continued in their drive for second half honors by dropping Hamburg Squad, 28-23. John Anderson had fourteen for Pre-Min's which have lost a half-dozen games by one or two points was led by Bill Addy, who had eight, as Bell led both teams with ten. Pre-Min led most of the way, but finally lost in the closing minutes.

High Man

At this point, and after a very quick check of individual scoring for the entire year, high man seems to be Alpha Sigma's John Anderson with 125 points in ten games, followed by Anon's Tim Bowman with 111 points in ten games and Sonny Short of the Question Marks, with 108 points in nine games. A closer check will be made at the end of the season.

HIGHLANDERS WIN THREE STRAIGHT BEFORE DROPPING TO WESLEYAN

LMU, Milligan, Carbide Fall To Scots Slants

The Maryville College quintet sailed happily into the harbor of the good ship Tennessee Wesleyan and come away with a fate almost as bad as that of Captain Carleson's Enterprise. The lads from down state scuttled the Scotties to the tune of 82 to 47, leaving MC with a record of four wins and four losses for the season thus far.

Creech Cracks Hoop

Led by their big center, Creech, who managed to dunk in the nights high total of 21 points before fouling out in the fourth quarter, the local lads raced off to an early lead and were never threatened by the Scots.

Creech garnered 14 points in this early spree, but was ably assisted by Mehaffy who contributed 11 points to the cause. Meano Shields and A. C. McWilliams provided what scoring punch the Scotties had in this nightmarish first half, which saw them leave the floor on the tail end of a 36-17 score.

Things Get Worse

The Wesleyan lads were not to be denied and continued on their merry way, leaving a hapless Scottie team in its wake. Kirk and Patrick sparked the collection of sharp shooters in the second stanza while Charlie Allen and Shields tried vainly to make a ball game of it, getting just under half of the Scottie's total points for the second half.

Shields' 13 points was the best Scottie effort for the night. The Maryville hoopsters have a big job of atoning to do when the Wesleyan crew visits here late in February in the next to the last game of the season.

Box Score:

Maryville	Pos.	T.W.C.
Shields (13)	F	Patrick (17)
Abbot (6)	F	J. Owenbt (5)
Hopkins (4)	C	Creech (21)
Allen (9)	G	Mehaffey (12)
McMahon (1)	G	Beecroft (6)

Subs: Maryville—Campbell (1), Johnson (1), McWilliams (9), Kinser (3). Tenn. Wesleyan—Watkins (2), Daugherty (3), Weatherford (5), Kirk (10), Jack Owenbt (1).

Buffs Buffaloed

The rough-riding Buffalos of Milligan College gave MC's Scotties the scare of their lives last Saturday night as they almost turned a sure defeat into a rousing victory only to lose out in the closing seconds, 67-62. The Buffaloes were at the short end of a 38-20 score at half-time, but by the closing minutes of the game were leading 62-61 before the Scots moved out in front to stay.

Mad Man Makes It!

Burt McMahon, who is usually more of a defensive player than an offensive one, came through in the clutch to dump in four points in the closing minutes. The last basket proved to be the winning point.

The Scots started off like a ball-of-fire in the first quarter while racking up a 22-10 margin. They slowed down in the second quarter, which was marked by some sloppy ball handling and passing on the part of the MC'ers, and went off at half-time with a 38-20 lead.

Dick Abbot, Joe Hopkins and Meano Shields led the basket parade with 11, 10 and 9 points respectively at half-time. Captain Sam Greer was the big gun in the first half for the Buffalos with eight markers.

MC Buffaloed

In the third quarter the Buffs completely outplayed the locals and pulled up to within five points at the end of the third, 49-44. Mack Wolfe, bald-headed World War II veteran, hit for eight points while leading the Buff floor play.

Bucky Harris, Buffalo guard, was almost the difference in the fourth canto—hitting five set shots from different parts of the court. They were all quick shots in a desperate attempt to put his team ahead.

Tied Tangle

With a little over two minutes left the score was tied at 59-59. Both McMahon and Fred Whitaker connected to keep the score tied. Hopkins fouled out and Whitaker made the foul shot which put the Buffs ahead, 62-61 with only a minute and a half left.

At this point McMahon came to the Scots resuce with a beauty of a set shot which made it 63-62, Scots favor. Abbot then made a foul shot and Meano ended the scoring by dumping in three more foul shots.

"Dirty Player"

The last few minutes saw three of Milligan's first team foul out: forward Doug Morehead, center and captain Greer who drew a nice hand of applause, and guard Wolfe. The Farmer brothers, referee and umpire, received continuous riding from Coach Walker and the Buffalo bench in the explosive last quarter. But after the final whistle blew, hot tempers soon simmered down and all was peaceful again.

Scots Atomize K-25

Meano Shields and Dick Abbot led the Scotties to a sound 87-47 triumph over Carbon Carbide of Oak Ridge. Carbon Carbide is also known as K-25. It was the second victory of the season for the Scots over the boys from Oak Ridge and evened off the locals record at three wins and three losses.

Speed vs. Height

Shields scored nine field goals, five in the last quarter, to take scoring honors with 18 points. Abbot was one behind Shields in the scoring column. High point honors for the evening, however, went to Buzz Muckenthaner, six foot five center for K-25. Muckenthaner dropped in eight field fouls and twelve foul shots for a nifty 28 points, or more than half of his teams total.

Echo Interviews Meeting's Leader George Sweazy

Clergyman Tells Of Background

By Emily Smith

Dr. George Edgar Sweazy is a very modest and humble man. He doesn't like to talk about himself very much. If you want to talk about his family or his work he is most willing, though.

Dr. Sweazy was born in Salt Lake City, Utah, where his father was dean of Westminster College, and it was there that he had his first contacts with Maryville College. Not only were President Ralph Lloyd and his brother, Glenn, then on the faculty there, but, also, Katherine Davies' father was pastor of a Salt Lake church and Miss Davies became a friend of Dr. Sweazey's sister.

Sweazey's father went from Salt Lake City to Westminster College in Fulton, Missouri, and it there that Dr. Sweazey received his B.A. degree.

From Westminster College, Sweazey went to Princeton, where he earned both his M.A. and his B. Th. degree in the same year. He attended the University of Berlin where he took his Ph.D. degree.

For a year and a half after his return from Berlin, Dr. Sweazy, in his own words, was "assistant to the assistant to the assistant minister" in Newark, N. J.

His first church "all by himself" was at Danville, Kentucky, and it was there that he met the young lady who was later to become his wife. When Dr. Sweazy met Mary Hendy Ensminger she was a freshman at Centre College in Danville.

Dr. Sweazy tells of the first time Miss Ensminger really registered with him. One Sunday morning following a sermon on the theme "Gossip," one of the members of the congregation commented to him "You certainly choose your hymns well." A moment of reflection pointed out the amazing fact. The closing hymn that morning was "I Love to Tell the Story."

Miss Ensminger's home was at Harrodburg, Ky., which was only nine miles from Dr. Sweazy's church so through her four years at Centre he was able to keep an eye on her without too much difficulty, and two weeks after her graduation they were married.

Dr. Sweazy served the church at Centre for the seven years from 1932-39. His next ministry was at Tyler Place Presbyterian Church in South St. Louis, Mo., where he stayed until July of 1945, when he was appointed director of the Board of National Missions Department of Evangelism.

Dr. Sweazey explains that the Department of Evangelism does not function as the usual conception of evangelism would give us to understand.

The department strives to "bring first the idea of the church to the people, to see the church as a mission station" seeking to bring in new members and to renew the spirit of others.

To this end, the members of the department, working under the guidance of Dr. Sweazey, confer with ministers, church leaders, and young peoples' groups. Books and pamphlets are published for the help of those who need them. The effort is through the members of the churches themselves rather than through a hired evangelist.

Dr. Sweazey adds that the Christian's chief concern should be more with what he does have than with what he and others don't have.

The Sweazey's have three children. The eldest is Anne Fulton who is 13. Following Anne comes George Edgar Jr., who is 11, and then the "baby", Mary Helen, who is ten. Dr. Sweazey relates with pride that Anne is now in the "early dating" stage, George, Jr. in the "anti-social-toward women" stage, and Hendy simply a little girl growing up.

Dr. Sweazey is staying with Dr Lnicoln Barker, who is his brother-in-law, while he is here in Maryville. His manner when he speeks

Staff Throws Party

Members of the Highland Echo staff held an informal dance last Tuesday evening in the Y Rooms. Gail Brown was in charge of arrangements.

Attending were Neale Pearson, Dotty Greenhagen, Rolfe Duggar, Emily Smith, Art Van Alstyne, Abby Crosby, Carson Seeley, Betty Ham, Al Homan, Roberta Hadley, David Foskey, Pat Ingles, Bill Crothers, Sue Carter, Van Holland, Gail Brown and Dick Newman.

Mrs. Kathryn Kolter and Paul Kolter were chaperones.

DarrochAnnounces Penzance Dates

Jim Darrach, production manager of the combined Glee Clubs' presentation of the Gilbert and Sullivan's "Pirates of Penzance," announced that the dates of the production are April 18 and 19.

In charge of committees with choir members working under them are Dean Allison, lighting; Branin Boyd, staging; Clifford Church, costumes; Richard Dart, property; Joanne Edwards, make up; Jean Ellis, business manager; Homer Rickabaugh and Joe Stater, house managers; Virginia Smith, publicity; and Art Van Alstyne, stage manager.

The production of "Pirates of Penzance" is being given in place of the Springtime Serenade. Cast will be announced next week.

Germans Elect Weber

Officers for this semester were elected by German Club at their first meeting, January 28 in Thaw 206. They are Fannie Weber, president; James Jackson, vice-president and program chairman; Bill Sitler, secretary; James Harrison, treasurer, and Carson Seeley, publicity chairman.

Following elections, the club made recordings. The meetings on February 11 will not be held because of February Meetings.

Disc Club Plans Meet

Disc Club will have its next meeting Thursday, February 14, in the FAC. The program will be announced later.

No Town Night

According to Student Council, there will be no Town Night next Tuesday, February 12. It is traditional that Town Night be suspended during the week of February Meetings.

The next Town Night is February 19.

AAUW Conducts Painting Sale

The American Association of University Women is sponsoring a sale of color reproductions of famous paintings from the National Gallery of Art in Washington, D. C.

They are on display in the Fine Arts Center and may be ordered there or from any member of the AAUW. The prints are eight by 10 inches and sell for 50 cents. The sale will continue through the month of February.

Reproductions of the following paintings are available: "Girl With Watering Can," Renoir; "Adoration of the Magi," Botticelli; "Dutch Courtyard," Pieter de Hooch;

"Adoration of the Shepherds," Giorgione; "Girl With Red Hat," Vermeer; "Wavinhoe Park," Constable; "Lady Caroline Howard," Reynolds; "Rest on the Flight into Egypt," David;

"Young Governess," Chardin; "Breezing Up," Homer; "Washing for the Family," Savage; "Madonna of Humility," Fra Angelico;

"The Lackawanna Valley, Inness; "Mme. Rene de Gas," Degas; "Meeting of SS. Anthony and Paul," Sanetta.

Sophs Elect Maxwell, Smith

In elections held last week Jack Maxwell was elected vice-president of the sophomore class and Ginny Smith was elected as student council representative.

Maxwell is a sociology major from Clinton, S. C., and replaces Bob Sangster in the position.

Smith is a music major from Baltimore, Md., and replaces Ruth Anne Roach.

Vols To Meet

Student Vols will not have a regular meeting this week. Sunday night following the February Meeting they will sponsor a question and answer forum to be led by Dr. George E. Sweazey.

This forum, to which everyone is invited, will be preceded by a short program of singing.

Craven Rehearses 'Macbeth', Recasts Some Minor Roles

Rehearsals for the Maryville College Playhouse production of "Macbeth" are underway, it was announced this week by Director Kathleen Craven. The play, considered by some to be Shakespeare's best, will be presented at 8 p.m. on March 14 and 15 in Alumni Gymnasium.

Since the tentative roles for the play were announced, Miss Craven has re-cast several of the minor roles.

The cast of more than 60 includes David Reed as Macbeth, Sue White, Lady Macbeth; Earl Shelkopf, Macduff; George Caldwell, Duncan; Jerry Williams, Malcolm; Art Van Alstyne, Banquo; Wesley Miles, the porter; David Gates, Ross;

Walter Elwood, Lennox; Jim Hunt, Mantith; Lee Cook, Angus; Robert Read, Carthiness; Jack Waka, Fliance; Claude Cowan, Seward; Ken Tuck, Sexton; Bruce Heuser, Doctor; and Bob Lorenz, the Sergeant.

Dave Ramsey will play Donaldbain; Jerry Wheat, Young Siward; Dick Dart, First Murderer; Charles Yeats, Second Murderer; Will Stradtman, Third Murderer; Curt Willbanks, Messenger to Lady Macduff; and Jack Waka, Messenger to Lady Macbeth.

Carol Moore, Karole Kapp, and Bill Espenshade have the roles of the Three Witches. Grace Myers will play the part of Lady Macduff, and Louise Packard will play the part of the Gentle woman. The speaking sergeant is Jerry Knecht.

Playhouse audiences remember Dave Reed for his performance as Lieutenant McPherson in "Laura" and the Sheriff in "Much Ado About Nothing". Sue White will be remembered as Miss Crystal Hower, the sweet little lady in "Two Blind Mice."

The supporting cast includes many who have made names on the playhouse stage in past productions of "Our Town," "Mr. Pim Passes By," and "Joan of Arc."

Sweazy To Preach

Vespers this week will be held as part of the February Meetings. Dr. George E. Sweazy will give his regular evening message Sunday night at New Providence Presbyterian Church. Services begin at 7:10 p.m.

The Rev. Dr. Randel C. Rankin, president of Tusculum College, Greenville, was the guest speaker at last Sunday's Vespers.

Local Radio Show Stars Freshman Carol Moore

Carol Moore, freshman drama major from Waukesha, Wis. has her own news-record show on WGAP at 5 o'clock each Friday afternoon.

The show, "Capers with Carol," is primarily a high school and college news show, alternated with requests for favorite records. News, song requests, and any other items of possible interest to Miss Moore should be addressed to "Capers with Carol," WGAP.

Miss Moore has past experience in radio broadcasting, having MC'ed a teen-time show in Waukesha.

Miss Moore is a member of Vesper Choir, College Playhouse, the Highland Echo staff, and Theta Epsilon.

Art Film To Be Shown

"L'Art Retrouve," a film about French modern art, will be shown on February 15 at 6:45 in the chemistry lecture room of Fayerweather Hall.

This is the last art movie of the year. All interested students are invited to attend.

Plan Club

All students interested in religious education as a vocation are invited to meet in the Y Rooms at 6:45 p.m. on Thursday, February 14.

A new club is to be formed designed to meet the needs of future religious education directors. The Rev. David L. Englehart, assistant professor of Bible and religious education, will be the adviser.

Singer William Warfield Reveals Story Of Life

By Van Holland

"I think that the Maryville College campus is beautiful, especially the college woods. And your President's home, why it's just fabulous!" exclaimed William Caesar Warfield, the great new American baritone who recently appeared in the MC Artist Series.

Warfield, now a star of concert, stage, and screen, was born in Arkansas in 1920 but grew up in Rochester, N. Y. He is the oldest of five boys in his family, and his father is a minister.

"Dad is the one who named me Caesar," he said. "I suppose he got the name from the Bible, and I was a litle ashamed of it until studying Latin in high school. Then I became right proud of the name!"

Asked when he decided upon singing as a career, Warfield smilingly replied, "I was 16 years old when I started intensive voice lessons. Before then I had been concentrating on piano, but I had a tiff with my piano teacher, which resulted in my not taking another lesson until I was 18."

After high school, Warfield continued his education in Rochester at the Eastman School of Music, where he received his B. Mus. and Mus. M. degrees. While working for his Mus. M. at Eastman, he became a good friend of Dorothy Horne, associate professor of music at MC. It was largely through Miss Horne's efforts that Warfield was secured for the Artist Series.

Warfield's music career was interrupted during the war when he served four years in the Army. He was so fluent in three languages that he spent his Army years in Military Intelligence.

Since then Warfield has skyrocketed to fame in the music world. His debut at New York's Town Hall in March, 1950, was lauded as "sensational" and "great" by all the leading critics. The judgement of the New York critics was upheld during all his extensive tours in the United States and Australia.

As as actor, Warfield appeared on Broadway in "Set My People Free," "Call Me Mister," and "Regina." And his handling of the immortal "Ol' Man River" role in the Hollywood production of "Showboat" thrilled audiences from coast to coast. His next cinema performance will be as "Jim" in MGM's forthcoming musical production of "Huckleberry Finn."

Mr. Warfield's favorite outside interests are sports and cooking. "Of course," he said, "I have little time for sports now, except an occasional dip in the pool. But I love to cook, which I do for my own amazement! In fact, not long ago I tried out some new recipes on Allison and Harry Neal (Nelson and Neal) when I had them for dinner!"

When we asked Warfield what sort of advice he would give to young musicians aspiring to great heights in the music world, he replied, "My advice would be, as in all work, to know the fundamentals of your craft completely and

Sweazy Continues February Meetings

Newman Named East Tennessee Kefauver Chief

Dick Newman, editor of the Highland Echo, has been appointed co-chairman of the East Tennessee Division, College Kefauver For President Clubs, it was announced this week by Bill Peeler of Cumberland University, state college chairman.

Serving with Newman is Jim Freeman of the University of Tennessee. Schools involved in the East Tennessee area are Hiwassee, Tusculum, Carson-Newman, Lincoln Memorial University, Tennessee Wesleyan, East Tennessee State, King, Milligan, Maryville, and U-T.

Newman attended a state-wide conference of college level Kefauver leaders at the Andrew Jackson Hotel in Nashville Sunday. Plans were made fro a statewide student rally.

"We believe Estes Kefauver has caught the political imagination of the American people," Newman stated," and that he can beat any Democrat for the nomination and any Republican for the presidency on a platform of world peace, collective security, and clean government."

Newman further explained that campaign materials and memberships in the state organization could be obtained through him.

Packard, Hicks Join TAP

Louise Packard and Mary Ann Hicks were taken into Theta Alpha Phi, national honorary dramatic society, last Saturday night at a formal dinner held at the home of Louise Masters.

Miss Packard is a French major from Hamonton, N. J., and Miss Hicks is a Bible and Religion education major from Willard, Ohio. The dinner was the culmination of the society's initiation.

Bainonians To Meet

Bainonian will meet tonight at 6:15 in Bainonian Hall. A skit and singing will be presented by Tau chapter, which is under the leadership of Dot Wells.

Echo Schedule

David Miller, business manager of The Highland Echo, has released the following publication schedule for the paper for this semester:

February 16
March 1
March 15
March 29
April 12
April 26
May 10
May 17

Student Council

JANUARY 30

After much discussion, the item of nominating procedure was referred to the election committee.

The problem was brought up that the societies can not afford the expenses of the social functions and a special meeting was called for the next evening.

No Town-Nite violations were reported.

JANUARY 31

Discussion was held on whether or not the four societies could have a night when they could raise money. Council was of the opinion that the possibility of doing so should be brought before the faculty.

It was decided that there would be no Town Night on February 12 because of the usual custom of omitting them February Meetings.

FEBRUARY 6

Elections committee chairman Tom Jones read the revised section of election procedure. Council passed on to Senate for approval the following changes.

There will be a class meeting one week before the meeting to nominate officers. At this first meeting the class should decide by vote whether a nominating committee should bring up a slate of nominations of officers, or if the nominations should be only from the floor. No motion to close nominations would be in order at the second meeting.

Council members were reminded of their responsibility in enforcing the rule concerning smoking on the smoking platform.

'I'm Thrilled At The Opportunity To Come,' States Song Leader Magill

By Kathy Chase

A ready smile, a cheerful greeting, a song on his lips and in his heart. Who? The Rev. John Magill, song leader of our February Meetings.

"I'm thrilled for the opportunity to come. The student body is a fine-looking and young group as usual. The chapel is one thing I do miss, though," answered Magill in response to the query of how Maryville has changed since his graduation in 1939.

Born in Worcester, Mass., he attended the public schools there. Upon his graduation from high school, he worked for five years, during which time he won a voice scholarship, given by the Worcester Women's Club, so two of those five years were spent in the pursuance of his musical career.

Also during those five years before coming to MC, he was a member of the male All Saints Episcopal Choir of Worcester, which is a professional choir consisting only of men studying music.

Reminiscing over his years spent at Maryville, Magill revealed many interesting facts of MC and of his life here.

He met his wife, the former Louise Wells of Maryville, who graduated from here in 1941, and the couple were married in New Providence Presbyterian Church in 1942. They now have two children, Carol, eight, and David, four, whose birthday, by the way, fell on the day these current February Meetings opened, Thursday, February 6.

While here at MC, Magill was the student director of the New Providence senior choir and director of their junior choir, of which George Howell, now a Maryville senior, was a member.

He also mentioned the fact that in 1939 there were no town nights, and that on one Saturday night a month, a community sing was held in the chapel, accompanied by students, each at a baby grand piano. These sings were quite popular in those days.

After graduating from Maryville, he attended McCormick Theological Seminary in Chicago, and since then, he has served three churches, one in Chicago, one in Monmouth, Ill., and is presently at Abington Presbyterian Church, Abington, Pa.

For five summers he has been the director of summer conferences, two years at Lake Bloomington and the other three at Monmouth. He is now on the advisory board for the Ogontz Center of Penn State College, an extension unit of that school. He was chairman of the committee on Christian Education for the Synod of Illinois for three years.

While at Monmouth, he taught one semester of Bible at Monmouth College, affiliated with the United Presbyterian Church. All these positions have kept him in constant touch with young people.

He is now president of the Philadelphia chapter of Maryville Alumni.

His church at Abington is a historical church in the Philadelphia area, since it was founded in 1714. It now has a membership of 1,400

Service Tomorrow At Local Church

The Rev. Dr. George E. Sweazey, leader of the 1952 February Meetings, will continue the series tomorrow morning at New Providence Presbyterian Church at 10:45. His sermon topic is to be "Saving Faith". At the Vesper service in the evening he will preach on prayer.

On Monday Dr. Sweazy will speak on "Who Is Jesus Christ?" at chapel and "Vocation" in the evening at New Providence Church on Monday. His topics for last week included "Who Am I?",

SCHEDULE

A 8:00- 8:45
B 8:50- 9:35
Chapel 9:45-10:40
C 10:45-11:30
D 11:35-12:20
Lunch

"Who Is God?", and another on "Who Is Jesus Christ?" Subjects at the night meetings were "Job—The Problem of Suffering," and "The Necessity for God."

Last Sunday Dr. Ralph W. Lloyd preached at New Providence as an introduction to February Meetings. He traced the history of the meetings and discussed their purpose, as part of the college program.

Dr. Sweazy is available all during this week for interviews with students, either in groups or as individuals. Those interested can sign up in Anderson by the Student Help Office.

At the first meeting on Wednesday, President Lloyd announced the death of His Majesty, King George VI of Great Britain. Prayer was offered for the English people and the new Queen, and the student body rose for a minute of silence.

Theatre Plans Three Plays

Experimental Theatre will present three plays February 16 in Bartlett Auditorium with two performances of each, one set beginning at 7 and the other at 8:45.

Being presented are "Overtones" by Alice Gerstenberg, "Two Slatterns and a King" by Edna St. Vincent Millay and "When Shakespeare's Ladjes Meet' by Charles George. These plays are more correctly called play meetings since they use neither scenery nor costumes.

Cast for the roles in "Overtones" is Sue Carter, Rosalie Munson, Gay Parrish and Ann Buckley. In "Two Slatterns and a King" are Joe Stater, Cliff Church, Mary Ann Hicks and Emily Smith. Katherine Blackburn, Dorothy Crawford, Ruth Orr, Joanne Edwards, Marsha McKinney and Sally Butts comprise the cast of "When Shakespeare's Ladies Meet."

Art Center Gallery Plans Folk Exhibit

There will be an exhibit of American folk art at the art gallery of the Fine Arts Center for three weeks, beginning February 7.

A series of 50 water color reproductions that come to Maryville from the Index of American Design in Washington, D. C. will be on exhibit. The pictures include early American furniture, toys, household wears and cigar store indians.

The pictures were assembled as a federal art project to preserve the basic American culture of the 17th, 18th, and 19th centuries.

There will be a gallery program on these paintings to be announced at a later date. Arrangements may be made with Charlotte Johnson, assistant professor of art, to purchase some of the pictures.

Orr Leads Theta

Ruth Orr is in charge of the surprise program which the town students are giving tonight at Theta Epsilon.

February Meetings . . . .

By Dick Newman

We are now in the midst of Maryville College's annual week of spiritual emphasis, February Meetings. In a sense every week here involves a distinct spiritual emphasis, but it is fitting and proper—as well as traditional—that, as a college family, we take from a crowded schedule a definite time to reconsider basic beliefs.

The policy of this paper is, regardless of any pressure from any source, to support and advocate those things we feel make for the greatest good for the greatest number of Maryville students. We believe that this Meetings series offers an unequalled opportunity for the strenghtening of the spiritual life for us as individuals and as a student body.

We are especially pleased with the selection of exceptional leadership, and we are happy that the Meetings procedure has, from the first, assumed a level satisfactory to intelligent religion and intelligent religious expression.

The wave of cheap sensationalism which rises periodically in American Protestantism hinders rather than helps, it seems to us, thinking people searching for real religious experience. Bible-banging preachers, and musicians who might rather be involved in a musical comedy than a service of worship have little meaningful place in any thoughtful spiritual situation. The other extreme of cold, unfeeling super-respectability is equally unfortunate.

It is our conviction that involved in our February Meetings is a tremendous opportunity for spiritual revitalization. Let us make approaches with sincerity and humility. Let us continue to have sermons directed to the mind and heart. Let us have hymns without theatrics. Let us have spirit and good feeling with dignity. Let us recognize the worth and value and significance inherent in these Meetings. Let us take from them what is possible if they are approached with the proper attitudes: a spiritual experience not only for now but for tomorrow.

The Rev. Dr. George E. Sweazey, leader of the 1952 February Meetings, will continue the series tomorrow morning at New Providence Presbyterian Church at 10:45. His sermon topic is to be "Saving Faith". At the Vesper service in the evening he will preach on prayer.

Scots & Soda

Any vacancies?

I'm told that there's now a girls' wing in Carnegie since one of the fellows discovered a room with some nylon hose hung in it!

Skunks is skunks is . . . .

Rumor has it that Joanne Edwards has a live skunk in her room. (What a way to talk about your roommate, Ja!) But upon close examination one finds it to be merely a skunk wrapped around a spring. Well, Jo—it's still a nice gag for some poor unsuspecting freshman that never reads the Echo.

Betty Belle Fauber
Do you have . . . . ?

Even your best friend won't tell you! Anyhow, that seems to be the story with the chewing gum George Caldwell got in the mail the other day. Can halitosis be transmitted through the mails?

Won't you be my Valentine

With February 14 just before us, numerous valentines can be seen here and there on the campus. Then in Dot Greenhagen's room there's the kind you cut out and make yourself. (Don't forget, girls—LEAP YEAR!!!)

Woman's Intuition?

Some of the kids in Miss Blair's freshman English class wondered what the hidden meaning was to her statement, "I wish you'd tell me if you're going to be sick—and know about it the day before."

Utter nonesense—

There was once an old man from St. Bees
Who got stung in the arm by a wasp.
When asked, "Does it hurt?"
He replied, "No, it doesn't,
But I'm glad that it wasn't a hornet."

Problems? No!

What makes everyone think that new problems will be presented by the Air Force Base that's going to establish itself a mere two miles from the campus? It seems to this innocent onlooker that it's going to solve a lot of problems.

What's this?

We hear from Herr Reber's German class that, after reading a story that leaves few, if any, details to the imagination, they went into gales of laughter when Bob Weaver innocently asked, "What's she trying to do to him—hypnotize him?"

Experiment or Experience?

Does Miss Craven really type-cast her plays? Ask Emily Smith.

The Student's Prayer

Now I lay me down to sleep in this dull class, my mind to keep,
For if I try to stay awake, a lunatic of me he'll make.
And so I'll write this little verse; to pay attention would be worse
Than even trying for an A which I can't get anyway.
In looking 'round about this class I see each yawning lad and lass.
Could be they are sleepy, too—now, tell me—what was my first clue?
The drooping eyelids? Nodding heads? The longing for their nice soft beds?
All these sights give me the hunch that maybe we're a sleepy bunch.
What can be done about this case? What are some plans that we can chase?
Oh, let's give up! Don't try anymore! Go on to sleep—he's such a bore!
Sweet dreams! Sleep tight, my little friends, and do not stir 'til this class ends.
If the bell should ring before I wake, please, someone, give me a gentle shake.
And send me on my homeward way, for there I'll go to sleep to stay.
Please God, do not be too mad, I know I'm really awfully bad,
But next semester I'll stay awake, 'cause this is a course I'll sure not take.

Think before you say it . . . .

Have you heard about the Kitty Club in Baldwin? They collect a penny for every catty remark. Doing all right,I guess—collected ninety cents in less than a week.

Still a mystery . . . . .

Who's "Margaret?"

Voices, Masks, and Shadows

"Lone Star" at the Capitol Tuesday shows how Clark Gable and Ava Gardner helped persuade the Republic of Texas to become one of the United States. Gable plays a soldier of fortune dispatched by ex-President Andrew Jackson (Lionel Barrymore) to Texas Patriarch Sam Houston with a message urging Texas statehood.

Ava is an Austin editor who sides with Broderick Crawford, would-be dictator of an independent Texas empire, until Gable closes her eyes in kisses and opens them to what is best for Texas.

Gable's mission also calls for hard riding, fast shooting, smooth talking and some of the patented old swagger that endears him to fans. If you like a real "western" picture, be sure to see "Lone Star."

Showing at the Capitol on Thursday and Friday will be "Crosswinds" starring John Payne.

At the Park on Monday is "Rookies on Parade" while "The Son of Dr. Jekyll" is showing on Tuesday and Wednesday.

New Books: Fiction

Sholem Asch, author of "The Nazarene" has written an outstanding new biblical novel entitled, "Moses" which is the story of Moses when he was a young prince in Pharaoh's court, rebelling under palace discipline, aware of the legends concerning his birth, and deeply concerned about the Hebrew people who suffer the bitter yoke of slavery.

In his portrait of Moses, Asch shows us human grandeur against a great tapestry of superbly conceived oriental color and movement.

Non-fiction

"Masterpieces of Music Before 1750," written by Carl Parrish and John F. Ohl, is an anthology of musical examples from Georgian Chant to J. S. Bach.

The editors have selected 50 compositions of great historical interest which are, at the same time, worth performing for sheer enjoyment alone. Preceding each composition is a brief commentary on the character and significance of the work.

Experimental Theater

Experimental Theater will present three plays on Friday, Feb. 16, in Bartlett Auditorium. There will be two performances of each play, one set at 7 and the other at 8:45. "Overtones" by Alice Gerstenberg, "Two Slatterns and a King" by Edna St. Vincent Millay and "When Shakespeare's Ladies Meet" by Charles George, are being presented.

These plays are being given in an unusual style, using oral interpretation to bring out the rhythm of the poetry rather than to emphasize the plot. For all those who like to see drama portrayed, Feb. 16 promises to offer a night of good entertainment.

Students Plan Recital

At the student recital being held in the FAC at 4:30 p.m. on February 19, the new organ will be used for the first time by students.

Charles Farris will play "Prelude and Fugiue in G Major" by Bach. Rosalie Munson, accompanied by Doris Holt, will sing "The Nightingale" by Alabieff. Chopin's "Waltz in B Minor" will be played by Herbert Hoover. Joyce Lingenfelter will accompany Bill Robinson as he sings "Nom Piu Andrai" from "The Marriage of Figaro" by Motzart. Glenn Gentry will end the recital by playing "Fugue in C Minor" by Bach on the organ.

No Spanish Meeting

Spanish Club did not meet this week. The program of their next meeting will be announced later.

IRC Sees Slides

International Relations Club met in Thaw 214 last Monday to see colored slides of Guatemala and Yucatan, taken by Nancy Hunter. Also, Armando Davis gave a talk on the background of Guatemala.

A committee of Jay Spencer and Charles LaRue discussed the possibilities of spending the IRC's funds in the treasury toward helping many organizations for the purpose of promoting International Relations.

Seniors Elect Lange

Walter Lange was elected last week by the senior class to suceed graduate Bob Lynn as treasurer.

Lange is a biology major from

Bender To Lead Sigs

Alpha Sigma will have an important business meeting and a program led by Joe Bender this evening at 6:15 in the Y-Rooms. All students are reminded of the Alpha Sigma Sweetheart Show on February 15.

Last week at the regular meeting time, Alpha Sigma defeated Athenian in the annual Stinking Shoe Classic basketball game.

Prexy's Travels

Dr. Ralph W. Lloyd flew to Nashville Monday, January 28, on various church and college business.

Tuesday, January 29, he drove to Tusculum College to meet with the presidents of the other East Tennessee colleges to discuss cooperative financial plans.

February 9 he leaves for Columbus, O. to speak at the annual banquet of the National Association of Directors of Christian Education of Presbyterian Colleges of the United States of America.

Radio Plans Forum

Y Radio will present a panel discussion by Dr. George Sweazey, the Rev. John Magill, Doris Somerville and George Caldwell on the subject of Brotherhood over WGAP Wednesday, February 13 at 9 p.m.

ECHO FORUM

Dear Students and Faculty,

On behalf of the House Committee of the Y Rooms may we take this opportunity to thank you all for your contributions for the betterment of the Y Rooms.

It was good to see that some of you took an interest in an Open House and we do appreciate it.

Remember—the Y Rooms are for your use!

Sincerely Yours

No YW Meeting

Because of February Meetings, there will be no meeting of YW this Sunday.

On Sunday, February 3, a worship program with the theme "Let God Bless You" was presented.

The program consisted of the invocation which was a violin duet played by Kathy Snedeker and Anne Kirkpatrick, readings given by Carolyn Symmes and Betty Stiles, a prayer offered by Trudy Furman, singing led by Helen Seay and accompanied at hte piano by Lynn Keifer and the benediction pronounced by Carolyn Lime.

Scots Sock Mocs 20-13 On Home Mat

Forfeits Aid Maryville

With two matches and a week's practice under their belt, the wrestling Highlanders finally got back on the victory trail as they dropped the Moccassins of Chattanooga, 20-13. Previously, Coach Jack Barker's team applied the skids to the MC aggregation, 19-11, on the Chattanooga mats.

Good Old Forfeits

MC won two bouts via the forfeit route in the 123 and 167 classes with the result that when Jimmy Callaway had won his 147 pound match, the evening's majestic efforts had assured MC of its second win of the season as against three setbacks.

Maxwell's 1st Match O.K.

Chattanooga had no man for the 123 class and so Jack Maxwell and Rodney Grandy tangled for the evening's first bout with the result being a 1-1 draw—each man having an escape.

Faster'n We Saw It

Dave Ritzman then went against Jeck Baer in a 137 contest and after a rather slow first period got a nelson-crotch pin hold on his Moc adversary soon after the second frame had started to give MC five points.

Jimmy Callaway and Bill Hodges were the opponents in the next match of the night—a 147 pound settee and Callaway won, 7-5 by virtue of extra riding time.

Callaway's win over Hodges was a reversal of form from the initial encounter which the Chattanooga man won—also on points.

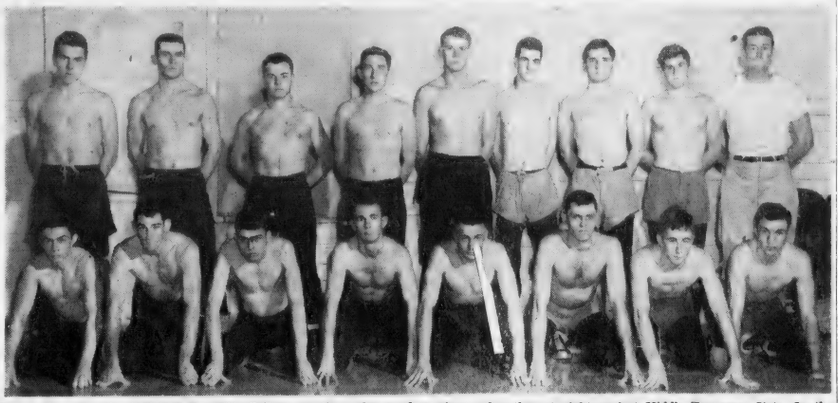
Temper, Temper, Boys

Melvin Haskins then began reversing the evening's usual procedures by taking a decision over MC's Don Benton. The match was characterized for the first two periods with a little more than usual face-slapping rough stuff — Haskins being penalized by Referree Julius Nicely for once pulling Benton's arm back further than is legally allowed. Point scores here were four for Haskins on a reverse and riding time to two points for Benton on Haskins' foul.

The Mat Was Too Small

Jimmy Squires' looked the part of the proverbial Lilliputian against a big Gulliver when he took on Mickey Myers, Chattanooga's 177-pound representative who thought he had things sewed up from the first. However, Squires took care of this overconfidence and slapped a near fatal hold on him midway in the first period and might have had a pin had not Myers found himself on the edge of the mats from whence he could squirm away. After this, the match was mainly Myers', though Squires did pile up a little riding time, and the big football guard contented himself with picking up riding time also.

No Perfume, Though



In the evening's finale, MC fans were given a little television stuff as Tom Drake, the other half of Chattanooga's top-notch football guards, assumed the role of one who receives pay for his prancings in the ring in his match with Bob Buchanan. It was but a question of time from the match's outset as the "Blonde Bomber" worked around on the mats for about a minute before seizing MC's pseudo-"heavyweight" in a headlock of sorts and got referree Nicely's slap on the mat in 1:29 seconds of the first period.

Don Benton's match showed much promise of turning into something as the MC man was greatly exasperated by his opponents tactics as was the crowd of 500 students and adults. After the match was over Bentonasked that henceforth he was to be known as "Smith."

Squires' one fling with Myers was a repetition of past bouts in which he, being underweight to his opponents, managed to get one good hold on said opponents before succumbing to superior manpower as said opponents were somewhat overconfident.

Summary of Matches.

123—Mores (M) won by forfeit
130—Maxwell (M) draw with Grandy (C), 1-1
137—Ritzman (M) pinned Baer (C) in 3:15
147—Callaway (M) decision over Hodges (C), 8-7
157—Haskins (C) decision over Benton (M), 4-2
167—Merwin (M) won by forfeit
177—Myers (C) decision over Squires (M), 6-0
H'v'wt—Drake (C) pinned Buchanan (M) in 1:29

Scots Dump Ga. Cadets After Dropping 3 Closies

By Rolfe Duggar

The North Georgia Cadets invaded the Alumni gym Monday night in high spirits but left the court on a shrot end of an 88-82 count. It was the first athletic meeting for the Scotties with the Cadets.

They Stood In Bed

The Cadets came with a slight handicap, being forced to leave their first-string center and guard at home in hte infirmary. However, considering their play in the first quarter no one would have known.

Joe Hopkins scored first for Maryville on a foul shot and Meano Shields hit the first field goal. However, Jimmy Moore tossed in three quickies to put the Georgia boys out front, 6-3. In no time at all Coach Jack Russell's Cadets had a cool eleven point lead and held it until the end of the quarter. The score then was 26-15. Shields connected for ten of the Scotties fifteen points.

About Time

The second quarter saw the fast break begin working for the Scots. Before the Cadets woke up the Scots had scored six points and within a few minutes had rolled up fifteen points to three for Georgia.

The Scots rolled up a clean thirty points in the eye-opening second quarter to twelve for the Cadets. The third quarter was also wild and wooly with the Scots hitting for twenty-nine and the Cadets managing to muster up nineteen.

Moore Should Get Less

Moore, star forward for the Cadets, fouled out late in the fourth after leading them to within seven points of the Scots lead. Moore showed the fans that he could hit from any place as he racked up twenty-eight markers, thirteen on field goals.

The name of one of the Georgia players, Phelen (pronounced feelin') Lowe, probably best expressed their sentiments as the Cadets left the court after the game. It was their ninth defeat in fifteen games.

Eagles Dump Scots With Late Rally

CN Wins 56-49RoadGame

Carson-Newman's Eagles were almost defeathered on their own home court last Saturday night as the Maryville College Scotties jumpde out to a first quarter lead which they maintained for nearly the remainder of the game but which they were to finally lose along with the ball game, 56-49.

Meano Shields and Joe Hopkins set the pace for the Orange and Garnet basketeers during the first canto with six points apiece while Crawford had eight for the hometowners of Jefferson City. Things eased off somewhat in the second quarter with MC having a 29-26 lead but soon after that in the third canto, Joe Hopkins went out via the foul route and MC lost some of her rebounding power.

During the last quarter, the Orange and Blue five, evidently irked by the attention they were being given by a contingent of fans not youal to the C-N banner but to MC's, began hitting the hoop with a little better regularity and sparked by Bill Wade's four quick buckets, made over the space of a short time, won the ball game.

King College held the lead practically all the way in a nip-and-tuck, hard fought game last Thursday night to edge past the Scots 48-47. The game was played in Bristol, home of King College.

Most of the excitement was packed into the last three minutes when the game was tied up 43-43. Dan Moore broke the deadlock with a field goal which gave the Tornado's a lead they were just barely able to hold on to.

With five seconds left Bert McMahon was fouled, and the Scots held a chance to tie up the game. To the Scost dismay McMahon missed and the clock ran out with no change in the score.

WRESTLERS GO ON TWO DAY TRIP LOSE TO VANDY, MTS RAIDERS

Morse, Callaway, Erickson Take Wins

Following a two-day trip to Middle Tennessee two weeks ago, Coach John Davis' wrestlers approached the measure of good conditioning though dropping meets to Vanderbilt and Middle Tennessee State, 10-19, and 12-17, respectively.

Morse Makes Points

Bill Morse took pins in both matches snapping up his Vandy opponent Paul Smotherman in2:15 seconds of the last period while applying a half nelson and crotch holt to MTS 123 pounder Bill Porterfield much earlier in 2:47 seconds of the first stanza.

Al McCulloch dropped two matches in 130 bouts — a 9-0 decision to Vanderbilt captain Bill Frierson and a 6-0 nod to State's G. P. Long who got riding time also.

Didn't Lose Here

Coach Davis split his talent in the137 pound class bouts to win with Dick Erickson winning an 8-7 decision over Vandy's Hardcastle while MTS's Lem Vaughn ground out a 4-0 win over MC's Dave Ritzman. It was about this point that the opposition started getting stronger for MC since both teams' wrestlers from this class on up were experienced men both in high school and college.

Callaway Turns Tide

Jimmy Calaway went down the long, lonesome trail once more before he turned the tables against MTS's Wayne Newby and applied a crotch nelson hold during the last part of the third period to get the referee's slap on the mat in 5:56. Calaway dropped a 7-6 decicion to Comodore Bill Eleazer when the Vandy man eluded Callaways try for a takedown and instead got one himself. In 167 pound pairings, the Highlanders were devoid of points as Vandy's Bill Gibson and Middle Tennessee's Bobby Osteen took 4-2 and 6-2 triumphs.

Paul Merwin returned to the mat wars as a 167 pounder and found his efforts rewarded with a draw and a pin—the latter unfortunately being another man's. Against Coach Buford "Baby" Ray's Ed Fischer, Merwin tried a "wing" but, like Callaway in his match with Eleazer, failed and was victimized. In his match with Coach Joe Blackhays' 67-er, Dillard, Merwin had an escape as did the State man with neither having the extra riding time needed to win.

Jimmy Squires gained a 4-4 draw for his first night efforts with Norris, Vandy's man, but dropped a 3-2 decision to State's J. A. Hayes when he stubbed his toe on the MTS mats in going for a tackle-take-down. Each man had an escape and Squires had one point for extra riding time.

In the heavyweight bouts of the trip, Bob Buchanan went under twice, dropping a 6-0 match to Vanderbilt's Keise, and a 4-1 setto to MTS's Layton.

In a previous match, Vanderbilt had topped the Blue Raiders, 22-8.

Most of the boys on the Vandy and MTS teams have had prep school experience in wrestling by virtue of their attendance at such schools as Baylor and McCallie around Chattanooga. The Blue Raiders have come out with a strong team, also, considering the fact that this is only the second year that they have had the mat sport.

Vandy's coach, Buford "Baby" Ray, is an ex-professional grappler. He doesn't do too much of the work with the Vandy team—leaving most of the practice details to Captain Bill Frierson, a three-year letter man. The big aid towards this arrangement is mentioned in the paragraph above—six or seven of the Vandy boys having wrestled in prep school 'fore they even saw Vanderbilt—a great aid.

Results of the two matches:

Vanderbilt, Jan. 25

Cagers, Wrestlers Set For Twin Bill Tonight

King College, Middle Tennessee Raiders Furnish Maryville Opposition

Action will commence in ye old Alumni Gym this evening and will be in the form of the first varsity basketball and wrestling double header of the year. King College, already holding a 48-47 win over the Scotties this season in an engagement on their home court, will furnish the basketball squad its exercise for the evening. The grapplers from Middle Tennessee State, who out-grunted the Scotties on their home mat 17-12, will provide the entertainment in the second half of the twin feature.

Bucketeers Ready

The Maryville quintet, owning a 7 and 6 record for the season thus far, will have four days of well deserved rest (depending on what you call rest) behind them when they take the court tonight. Coach Honaker's crew still feels the sting of that one point defeat on the undersized court of tonights guests. Meano Shields' 16 points was the best individual total for that evening, 15 of them coming in the first half.

Probable Lineup:

MC	Pos.	King
Shields	F	Hull
Abbott	F	Harr
Hopkins	C	Brady
Allen	G	Thomas
McMahon	G	Moore

Grunters Take Over

Coach John Davis will send an inexperienced but improving squad against the "Raiders" of Middle Tenn. State and they will not only be attempting to reverse the earlier decision, but will be trying to even up their season's record at three and three. Bill Morse and Jim Calloway both gained pins and Paul Merwin held his opponent to a draw to account for the Scottie's twelve points, the Raiders gaining decisions in the rest of the matches for a total of seventeen points. Capatin Lem Vaughn, 137 pounder, and John Hayes, heavyweight and younger brother of coach Jay Hayes, are two visiting performers to watch.

All in all, it should provide a good nights entertainment with the Scots standing more than a better chance to reverse these earlier decisions.

Probable Lineup:

Bill Morse vs. Bill Port'field—123
Al McCulloch vs. G. P. Long—133
Dave R'zman vs. Lem Vaughn—137
Jim C'way vs. Wayne Newby—147
Don Benton vs. Bobby Osteen—157
Paul Merwin vs. op. unknown—167
Jim Squires vs. John Hayes—177
Bob B'h'nan vs. Don Loften—H.W.

Bainonians Regain Tin Cup Trophy From Theta Girls

Kemp, Moyer Lead Way

Theta Epsilon's lassies which had won the first annual Tin Cup Classic game between Theta Epsilon and Bainonian societies saw their efforts to regain the coveted piece of tin merchandise go all for naught as Bainonian's Slick Six won, 54-42.

Can't Beat That Height

Jean Davis and Gracie Scruggs who scored 42 of Theta's points in their 50-49 triumph last year had the clamps applied to them in this year's contest and could only mesh the nets for 14 and 22 respectively. Grace Osborne's team in the meanwhile found some more offense to aid that built around Trig (Spivey) Moyer in the personage of Mary Alice Kemp who swished the air lanes for 22 markers, one more than the tall Miss Moyer who bucketed 24 last year and the combined total of which outtallied Theta's Blue by one point.

The first quarter was see-saw all the way with Bainonian having a 13-12 lead which was lost in the second quarter, Theta going ahead one point at intermission time, 22-21.

Sigs Recover Title To Stinking Shoes

The odiferous shoes in possession of Athenian society were handed back to their brother society, Alpha Sigma, as the latter topped the former 45-33 last Saturday in the third annual Stinking Shoe Classic.

You!

Sigs, sparked by Howard Gress pulled out to a 15-13 first quarter lead and stretched it to a four point margin at halftime. During the second half, though, the Blue and White's attack seemed to have gotten its gears fouled up while the Athenian's finalty began to click to take a 32-29 lead at the end of thirty minutes of play.

Tired And Fouling

Whether or no Horace Beckwith's five would win or not was much dependent on the foul situation affecting their players as Bob Navatril, diminutive Sig guard fouled out at the end of that period with only two reserve players and the Sig team more than tired since they had already played 32 minutes of ball during afternoon Intramural play.

Everyone Satisfied

The game continued nip-and-tuck for most of the final period until with some four minutes to play, the Sigs began to click with some fast break plays to pull ahead while also containing Herb White, the Garnet and White's big man under the boards. White and Gass were the evening's standout offensive players while White and Ken Hammond topped defensive play for both sides.

Wasps Sting MC With One-Pt. Win

Phil Long, tall Emory-Henry forward, reached up and literally put the blal into the basket to break a 67-67 tie and give the Wasps their winning margin. A few seconds later Meano Shields made the last of his twenty-eight points on a free throw to terminate the scoring for the night and leave the Scots on the short end of a 69-68 score.

The game was close and exciting from the opening whistle. Joe Hopkins was the first to draw blood as he hit from the middle. The two teams started out like a house afire in the first quarter and ended up scoring 43 points; the Wasps holding a one point advantage.

The second quarter hit the other extreme as the Wasps were held to only ten points and the Scots left at half-time holding a 38-33 lead. Shields hit the basket for sixteen markers, eight in each quarter.

The third quarter found the Wasps hitting from all over the court as they racked up twenty points. Chick Davis, star quarterback on the terrific Emory-Henry football squad the past couple of years, took the lead from his guard position to dump in all eight of his points. However, it was Jim Humphrey and Vernon Cline whose field goals gave the Wasps their 53-50 lead at the end of the third quarter.

The Scots rtied gallantly in the fourth to take a lead and hold it. Several times the Scots took the lead but always the Wasps came right back using their height to good advantage to take rebounds and practically place the ball into the basket. The turbulant last few minutes had the fans on their feet constantly.

INTRAMURALS . . . .

Some Close Ones

As the race came to the last few days it looked as if the Alpha Sig team was going to win, but late last week they ran into the rugged Pussycats who promptly dropped the hitherto unbeaten Sigs into a three way tie with the Anons and the Question Marks. Alpha Sig led most of the first half—led by John Anderson, but the Pussycats put on a third quarter spurt to take a sizeable lead. The last fourth was a wild and wooly one as both teams began to shoot. As the game entered the last minute, the Pussycats held a ten point lead, but Howard Gress and Horace Beckwith dropped in some desperation long shots to cut the final score to 34-30, Pussycats. George Roberts led the winners with nine, but Beckwith, just about the most improved player in the league dropped in twelve to lead both teams.

Another One

The men of Alpha Sigma dropped another close one in the last regular game of the season against the Anons. This time the Anons led all the way, but again the late long ball shooting of the Sigmamen nearly pulled the game out of the fire. Bob Mizelle led the Anons for the first time this year as he scored eleven points to continue on his improving road, while Gress was high man for the losers with eight.

Here We Go Again

Following the playoff game the 1952 tournament got under way on Wednesday with Alpha Sig topping Athenian and the Anons dropped YMCA. Wes Miles was high man for the day with twenty points under his belt.

The Day of Reckoning

At the end of the regular season, and not counting the playoff game in any way, the Highland Echo sports statistical staff has compiled a list of all those noble and illustrious figures who managed to score a hundred points or more during the season. There were several players who came near this total but the line had to be drawn somewhere. It is hoped that records may be kept from year to year in Intramurals just as in the varsity sports, so everyone connected with the scoring is urged to keep it as accurately as possible.

Drop Anons In Playoff For Second Half Honors

The Question Marks, who had already taken the first half of Intramural play without a defeat, played a revitalized Anon squad Tuesday afternoon in a playoff game to decide the winner of the second half. Let by Dick Patton and Dick Gardner, both of whom scored in the teens, Question Marks carved out three point margins at the first quarter and the half, but began to pull away steadily through the second half to win, 57-42.

Students are urged to sign up for the Badminton tournament which is to begin in the near future.

Vol Frosh Sizzle Century Mark With Win Over B's

Hitting the twines for the highest score made on the Maryville court this year, the U-T baby Vols crushed the B Scots 102-36 on Monday night.

They Had Everything

Showing a fast breaking offensive and a tight defense, the Vols showed their superiority over the game-but-outclassed Scotties from the opening whistle. The Vols opened the contest with a spurt that netted them fourteen points before Maryville scored for the first time. Continually pouring it on,—mixing set shots with layups, and getting the majority of the rebounds, the Vols led 54 to 17 at halftime.

It Didn't Tell Tale

Although they scored first in the second half, the Scotties couldn't get a real offensive drive going and remained under the spell of the Vols. Coach Ken Johnson's Scots kept fighting to the game's end but as it wore on the only excitement the game produced was the possibility that the Vols might score over the century mark, which they did with about a minute to go.

Back In The Saddle!

Previous to Monday night's contest, the Flashes had gotten back on the victory trail with a 51-50 win over the 663rd AF team in a game played at the Armory, Saturday night. Kent Buser's crip as the bell sounded won the game for MC.

Dr. White is a former Dean of the Presbyterian Seminary of the University of Dubuque. He has served with MC President Ralph Lloyd on the Council of Theological Education. Visits to MC have been made several times.

When he was asked abont MC, he stated that he "...feels certain that MC will continue to provide the outstanding leadership for the Presbyterian Church..."

Dance Classes Held

Each Tuesday evening from 6:30 to 7:15, free dancing classes are held in the Intramural Gym. Social Board sponsored, the lessons are taught by Bill Stein, Izzy Lietch, and Nancy Ferguson.

The class is currently learning ballroom dancing, but will continue the semester with lessons in the Charleston, jitterbug, rhumba, and tango.

His conversation is interspersed with mild humor, but, more often than not, you will find yourself doing a great deal of the talking, prompted by some feeling of confidence in his presence.

We will not soon forget this tall, young-looking man with gray hair, a handsome cleft in his chin, and a ready, friendly smile. He is here with us now, bringing us messages of encouragement and meaning for our time, but when he leaves a part of his spirit will remain.

"Also, you need to have contacts, possess a good business sense, and be prepared to blow your own trumpet at times. In music it is wise to be steeped in culture, especially in the related fields of art and literature. Above all, don't be musically narrow-minded."

The great baritone found it difficult to tell us the most unforgetable experience of his career. "Probably the most recent experience which I won't forget for a long time," he said, "happened in Hollywood at the sneak review of 'Showboat'.

"Irving Berlin, Oscar Hammerstein, and many other famous musicians were present, and I was very nervous and tense, since I didn't know how my part would go over. Well, when the 'Ol' Man River' role reached its climax on the screen, they all jumped up and burst into applause. At that moment I just broke down and cried, like a baby."

Wondering if he had a favorite song, Warfield laughed and said, "No—my feeling toward my music is expressed in that song, 'When I Am Away from the Girl I Love, I Love the One Nearest Me.' In other words, whichever piece I happen to be singing is my favorite."

Everyone who attended Warfield's concert felt sure that he sang each song as if it were his favorite. After he ended his very successful concert at MC, William Warfield left for engagements in the Mid-West and Canada, expecting to return to the East March 25.

Chillies, Howies Schedule Game

The Chillies and the Howies will engage in the first game of their five-game basketball tournament Tuesday, Feb. 11 at 4 p.m. in Intramural gym.

The Chillies, captained by Jean Davis with Jackie Kendell as manager, and the Howies, captained by Carolyn Sloan with Liz Murphey, are about evenly rated and the games should be close all the way, the winner of the tournament having to win three out of the five games.

Everyone is invited to come out and cheer for their favorite team in this annual basketball duel between the two teams of Women's Varsity.

Everett Bulldogs Drop MC B's, 60-32

MC Loss Is First Of Year

After soundly defeating Walland High School, 60-32, in a game which saw the B Scots in the lead throughout, the Scots lost their next game to Everett High School, 32 to 46. The Everett squad, one of the top Blount County teams, led the Scots from the beginning and were in front 14-8 at the quarter and 26-23 at the half.

Scots Fall Apart

During the second half the Scots lost their range and only scored 8 points that stanza. Sinking 9 out of 13 free throws in the third quarter, the Everett team overpowered the fading B team to lead 39-26 at the end of the third quarter. The fourth quarter was poorly played by both squads with the Scots vainly trying to move. Final score was 46 to 32, favor of Everett.

Athenians to Hear Organ

Athenian will meet tonight at 6:15 in Bartlett Hall. President George Day has announced that the program will include selections on the organ by Glen Gentry and Charlie Farris.

Bainonians Win . . .

Yea, Team!

The Thetas of Peggy Kettles held onto this slim till third period was over but could not for the rest of the game. Bainonian, utilizing a very effective out-of-bounds play pulled ahead with some five minutes to go with Miss Kemp scoring on the break and Miss Moyer casually finding the range and dropping them in. Misses Scruggs and Davis tried to find the range but couldn't and being off on their free throws more so that the Bainonian lassies, couldn't close the gap.

High for the evening were Scruggs and Kemp with 22 apiece, followed by Moyer with 21, and Davis with 14. After that, scoring dropped sharply as Pat Lovette counted six, Haxel Robinson four, Annie Laurie Curleton, three, and Betty Hammers, and Liz Murphy, two points each.

They Got To Play (We Think)

Others participating in the contest were Shirley Axley, Carolyn Sloane, Tish Buvhanan, Nancy Ferguson, Jean Maxwell, Ann Yokum, Virginia Sanderson, Virginia Davenport, Grace Benham and Emily McClain all of Theta. For Bainonian, other girls getting into the contest were Ann Kirkpatrick, Evelyn Fields, Jane Spencer, Grace Osborne, Nanette Enloe, Shirley Roussie, Edith Keenen, Dixie Conner, Jerry Moore, Carolyn Moore, Sandy Smith, Elaine Barker, and Mary Ann Thompson.

Two Blind Mice

Referees for the contest were Tom Jones and Harry Newberry.

Sig Sweatheart Presentation Set For Tonight

Royal Identity Kept Unknown

By Al Homan

Alpha Sigma will present its annual sweetheart show tonight at 6:30 in Intramural gym. The show, under the direction of Curtis Wilbanks, is a musical program centered around the presentation of the court, and climaxed by the presentation of the Alpha Sigma sweetheart for 1952.

The first sweetheart, elected in 1948, was Jane McMillan, who was a member of last year's graduating class. In 1949, Alice Davenport was chosen.

The pin which was presented to Edith McMillan, the 1951 sweetheart, will be presented to this year's sweetheart tonight, and will be passed on each year to the succeeding sweethearts.

The theme of the show is "Inside USA with Alpha Sigma." It tells of several Alpha Sigs who tour the country in search of a sweetheart. Five of six states will be represented in song and dance routines.

Featured in the show will be the Alpha Sigma quartet, composed of Arnold Munn, Harry McCall, Jake Peppers, and Ed Scott.

In the chorus are Ken Wilkinson, George Carpenter, Bob Mizelle, Bill Davis, John Glanville, Bob Osborne, Virginia Sanderson, Ann Hanson, Helen Seay, Carol Barnett, Jean Maxwell, and Betty Ham.

Master of Ceremonies for the evening will be Joe Stater, co-director with Wilbanks. The dances are arranged and directed by Bill Stein, and the musical score arranged and played by [illegible] Crawford as Othello, Ruth Orr as Desdemona, Joanne Edwards as Katherine, Sally Butts as Portia, and Marcia McKinney as Juliet.

The second of the plays was "Overtones," a study of the two sides of personality, the greedy self and the cultivated self, by Alice Gerstenberg. The cast was composed of Joy Hickman as Harriet, Rosalie Munson as Hettie; Anne Buckley as Margaret; and Gay Parrish as Maggie.

The last play was a poetic drama of Edna St. Vincent Milay, "Two Slatterns and a King." This play shows that no matter what people do, chance is still one of the most powerful influences. The cast of this play included Clifford Church as Chance, himself; Joe Stater as the King; Mary Ann Hicks as the Tidy Slattern; and Emily Smith as the True Slattern.

Report Reveals Distributions In Major Fields

By Laura Kinsinger

If while turning in your major card you had the feeling you were entering a field all by yourself, you have another think coming. That is, unless you are the one Latin major, or perhaps a German major, in which case there are two of you.

A glance at last semester's major list borrowed from Dean of Curriculum Edwin R. Hunter reveals that the ever popular English department with 53 majors is second only to the 64 majors in elementary education. This latter field has held first place for two years.

Sociology, third this year, and biology, fourth, have maintained steady popularity for several years. Biology had an extraordinarily high enrolment of 82 in 1942.

Claiming 40 majors, business administration and economics ranks fifth, while physical education is sixth with 33, and music is seventh with 27.

Eighth with 22 is Bible nad religion, with the 20 pre-meds next. History and home economics tie for tenth place with 19 majors each.

These fields, along with political science and psychology, have been the favorites for the past ten years, according to the records.

If you are disappointed to find yourself in a crowded field, you can still join the seven art majors or three each in either Greek, French, or drama.

Divas To Speak

Amando Divas will speak on his evangelistic work in Guatemala at Student Vols Sunday night. Helen Seay is in charge of special music.

Vols will meet in Bartlett auditorium after Vespers.

Proffitt, Choir Present Program On CBS Hook-up

David W. Proffitt, Maryville businessman and former president of the Presbyterian Laymen's Association, will be the speaker on CBS "Church of the Air" at 10 a.m., EST, on February 24.

The Maryville College Vesper Choir will sing two hymns, the theme, and two anthems, "Oh, Praise the Lord," by Tchiakowsky, and "Create in Me, Oh God," by Greig.

Proffitt recently returned from a trip around the world visiting various mission stations. He and the choir made the recording for the broadcast on Sunday, February 10, in the music hall of the FAC.

Station WNOX in Knoxville will send the tape recording to New York for the national hook-up broadcast which will have a listening audience of about twenty thousand.

Theatre Presents Three Plays

Last night in the Music Hall of the Fine Arts Center, Experimental Theater presented three plays. Charles George's "When Shakespeare's Ladies Meet," a farce depicting five of Shakespeare's ladies who tell Juliet how to conduct her romance with Romeo, included Katherine Blackburn as Cleopatra, [illegible] Crawford as Othello, Ruth Orr as Desdemona, Joanne Edwards as Katherine, Sally Butts as Portia, and Marcia McKinney as Juliet.

The second of the plays was "Overtones," a study of the two sides of personality, the greedy self and the cultivated self, by Alice Gerstenberg. The cast was composed of Joy Hickman as Harriet, Rosalie Munson as Hettie; Anne Buckley as Margaret; and Gay Parrish as Maggie.

The last play was a poetic drama of Edna St. Vincent Milay, "Two Slatterns and a King." This play shows that no matter what people do, chance is still one of the most powerful influences. The cast of this play included Clifford Church as Chance, himself; Joe Stater as the King; Mary Ann Hicks as the Tidy Slattern; and Emily Smith as the True Slattern.

Yearbooks Available

Tasker Robinette, business manager of the 1952 Chilhowean, has announced that extra yearbooks will be available around April 30 for students who failed to order a Chilhowean in the fall.

Anyone desiring extras is asked to contact any member of the Business Staff: Jean Ellis, Barbara Rogers, Curt Wilbanks, or Tasker Robinette.

Sales will be conducted on a full-payment, first come first served basis. The exact number of extras is not now known, so money will be taken only at time of delivery.

No French Meeting

Hank Van Hassel, co-program chairman of French Club, announced that there will be no meeting this week.

At the January 17 program of games with French emphasis, the club planned future activities.

Sweazy Leads Discussion

Wednesday evening Y Radio presented a panel discussion on brotherhood. Participants were Dr. George Sweazey, leader of the February Meetings, the Rev. John Magill, Doris Somerville and George Caldwell. The announcer was Herbert White.

Segregation In Education

By Dick Newman

One of the great tragedies of modern life as we know it is the denial of certain basic democratic opportunities by a political system which declares itself to be the culmination of centuries of democratic striving. Our country has assumed world leadership, not only in economic and military fields, but in the ideological realm of democratic political theory. It is, at the very least, contradiction when our society, with that democratic background and that democratic responsibility, allows the existence of inequalities in basic institutions.

Segregation in education is a denial, not only of that democratic tradition, but of the concepts of social religion, the principles of human cooperation, and the experience of education itself. If education is so unenlightened as to class the characteristics of race and color and creed and national origin above the qualities of human personality and human ability, how is the remainder of society to move toward greater social understanding? Even recognizing the gap between the ideal and the practical situation, reinforced by folkway and custom, it is difficult to comprehend why education has lagged in the extension of full democracy.

Barriers are being broken, progress is being made, graduate schools are beginning to open on a democratic basis. But this is only a beginning. Rather than a time for relaxation of effort, the time now calls for greater concentration, greater action, greater accomplishment. It is only with that spirit that segregation and all its manifestations can be destroyed. It is only with that spirit that education can take its rightful place of human leadership. It is only with that spirit that full citizenship and full equality of educational opportunity can come to all our people.

Editor Announces Journalism Prize

A prize for the best piece of writing done by a Highland Echo staff member this year will be awarded in May, according to Echo Editor Dick Newman.

A committe of judges will select the best work from each of a number of fields including news reporting, news-features, editorials, sports reporting, and the special columns, Voices, Masks and Shadows, and Scots and Soda.

Each of these will be given an honorable mention, and the committee will select from these winners, one to be awarded a special prize.

The work of all members of The Highland Echo staff will be eligible, excluding senior staff members, and members who have left the staff during the year.

Qualities taken into consideration will be good journalism, general writing imagination and ability, and originality of thought and expression.

MSO Elects Officers

Jim Darroch, sophomore history major from Philadelphia, Pa., and Eugene Parks, senior pre-med major of Fuera Bush, N. Y., have been elected secretary-treasurer and vice-chairman of MSO.

At the second meeting of the semester a violation was reported and penalty recommended and a discussion on fire drills was held.

The third meeting was called to discuss an infraction of the rules. No penalty was applied.

The MSO board will meet again February 21 at Bartlett Hall.

No Athenian Meeting

Athenian will not hold its regular meeting tonight in order to cooperate with the Alpha Sigma Sweetheart Show.

The program last week was presented by Glenn Gentry, Charlie Farris, and Jim Kesler. Gentry played an electrically operated organ he had built out of scrap material.

Next week's program will be provided by Bainonian.

Enrollment Reaches 663

The total enrollment for this semester is 663, the women outnumbering the men by 63, according to Personnel Office records. This difference is due to the 2 to 1 ratio of women to men in the freshmen class.

Of this total 148 are seniors, 153 are juniors, 171 are sophomores, 187 are freshmen, and 4 are special or part-time students. Entering second semester were 18 new students.

Mins To Hear Sellick

The next meeting of Pre-ministerial Association will be held on Thursday, February 28, when Edrie Sellick, instructor in music, will talk on the relationship of music to the church.

The meeting will be held in the Y Rooms at 6:45 p.m.

Debators Participate In State Tournament

Maryville College's senior debate team left Wednesday, February 13 to participate in the annual Tennessee State Debate Tournament held in Nashville at the Ward-Belmont School.

Nearly every college in Tennessee was represented. The group, which consisted of Evelyn Fields, Naomi Burgos, Jerry Knecht, Newell Witherspoon, Bob Navatril, and Charles LaRue, accompanied by Fred Short, instructor in speech, will return home today.

Workshop Plans 'Jumping Frog'

"The Jumping Frog of Calaveras County," by Lukas Foss will be presented by Opera Workshop on March 22, at 8 p.m.

The opera is based on a story by Mark Twain and is concerned with Daniel Webster, the champion jumping frog of Calaveras County, California, in the gold rush days. All was going well until a stranger came to town and sought to win the prettiest girl in the county and also a portion of its wealth by crooked gambling.

Seen in the cast will be Wally Schroeder, Ken Shaffer, Bill Cuningham, Bill Robinson, Betty Hammers, Don Brakebill, Conrad Eaddy and a chorus of other applied voice students.

Assistant professor Harry Harter will direct the production. Staging will be supervised by Katherine Craven, instructor in drama, and the set design and construction will be done by art students under the direction of Charlotte Johnson, instructor in art.

YM To Hear Fisher

Commodore Bascom Fisher, associate professor of history, will speak at YMCA tomorrow afternoon in Bartlett on the topic, "Open Doors in Asia." Fisher will discuss the many opportunities there are for service for the layman to the people of Asia, as in agriculture, sanitation, medical service, teaching and other fields.

The meeting will be at 1:30 in Bartlett.

TKC Initiates Four

Maryville College's branch of Tau Kappa Chi, national music society, held its informal initiation last night following the experimental plays, in the lounge of the Fine Arts Center.

For the first time, boys were taken into this society. Those initiated were Bill Robinson, Bill Deihl, Glenn Gentry, and Herb Hoover.

Club Sees Films

Spanish Club met on February 14 to see film strips about Mexico.

Initiation of new members has been postponed until further notice.

Pelton Averages 9.0 To Top Dean's List

MC, UT Students Schedule Parade For Kefauver

Maryville College students have been invited to participate in a Kefauver For President parade to be held in Knoxville next Friday at noon. The demonstration is sponsored by the University of Tennessee Kefauver Club.

Dick Newman, editor of The Highland Echo and East Tennessee College Division Kefauver chairman, attended a conference with UT Kefauver leaders in Knoxville Tuesday.

"Considering the enthusiasm for Estes Kefauver on the Maryville campus," Newman stated, "there should be a great number of students anxious to participate. This is a real opportunity to support actively the Kefauver campaign."

The parade will leave from the UT campus at noon on Friday, February 22. The main line of march will be Gay Street. Taking part will be several Kefauver For President officers and Knoxville Mayor George Demster. Also involved will be mules, coon dogs, coonskin caps, and other symbols of the Kefauver movement.

RCA To Record Choir Album

The RCA Victor Company will record an album of selections by the Maryville College Vesper Choir this May. Available in September of 1952, the album will be composed of six selections including the Alma Mater.

The albums will sell for five dollars at the college bookstore. There is a charge of forty cents for packing and mailing.

Five hundred albums will be made. Orders are now being taken at the bookstore. If more than this number of orders are turned in by the recording date they will be ordered.

Two hundred fifty orders will be required after that date for a re-order, it has been announced.

Headquarters Advises Early Application For Selective Service Test

All eligible students who intend to take the Selective Service College Qualification Test in 1952 should file applications at once for the April 24 administration, Selective Service National Headquarters advised today.

An application and a bulletin of information may be obtained at any Selective Service local board. Following instructions in the bulletin, the student should fill out his application immediately and mail it in the special envelope provided. Applications must be postmarked no later than midnight, March 10, 1952. Early filing will be greatly to the student's advantage.

Results will be reported to the student's Selective Service local board of jurisdiction for use in considering his deferment as a student, according to Educational Testing Service, which prepares and administers the College Qualification Test.

YW Plans Quiz

YW will present a program with four Memorial Hall girls versus four Baldwin Hall girls in a Bible quiz, "Who Am I?," this Sunday afternoon in the FAC.

Fern Thompson, Marcia McKinney, Patty Arterburn and Peggy Fisher will be in charge of the workshop, with Sally Butts as song leader.

The following Sunday, February 24, YW will present in the FAC a "Sacred Concert" consisting of both the Girl's Glee Club and the Men's Glee Club.

Brown Will Speak At Vespers Tomorrow

Rev. George E. Brown, pastor of Spring Place Presbyterian Church, will speak at Vespers tomorrow evening at 7 in the Music Hall of the Fine Arts Center.

He is a graduate of Maryville and McCormick Seminary.

Craven Releases 'Macbeth' Crews

Kathleen Craven, Director of the Playhouse production of "Macbeth," released the production crew list this week.

Barbara Blum is student director; Dean Allison, stage manager; Dorothy Crawford, prompter and checker; Joe Stater, property master and Darothy Greenhagen, house manager.

In charge of tickets are Katherine Blackburn, chairman; Dorothy Crawford, Anne Buckley, Marsha McKinney and Sally Butts. Ushers are Joy Hickman, Emily Smith, Marsha McKinney, and Mary Ann Hicks.

Austin Van Pelt is in charge of publicity. Serving under him are Dorothy Crawford, Sylvia Peresyni, Darothy Greenhagen, Claude Cowan and Jim Shields.

Make-up committee is composed of Tish Buchanan, chairman, Dorothy Crawford, Joanne Edwards, Bruce Heuser, Barbara Newman, Evelyn Fields, Nancy Kress and Allan Caldwell.

Clifford Church is chairman of the costumes committee with Ruth Orr, Mary Ann Hicks, Gay Parrish, Nancy Dunn, Katherine Blackburn, Ann Leeder, Dorothy Crawford and Nancy Kress as committee members.

Working on scenery are Sue Carter, Anne Buckley, Gay Parrish, Dave Ramsay, Betty Jean James, Dorothy Crawford and Nancy Kress.

Fencing Squad Makes Plans For Busy Season

By Al Homan

One of the unpublicized athletic activities on campus is the fencing team. This small organization has as its members Bill Espenshade, senior biology major from Bryn Mawr, Penn., Al Homan, math major from Greenport, N. Y., Ric Rogers, senior psychology major from Fla., and Earl Shelkopf, senior German major from Baltimore, Md.

Rogers and Espenshade have each had three year's experience at fencing, and Homan has had two. Shelkopf, who is acting as coach of the team, has been at it for seven years. He started in high school and has earned considerable acclaim in the sport, including several year's experience as a coach.

The team is to fence the Knoxville YMCA and the Atlanta YMCA on a home to home basis throughout the month of March. No dates have been officially set, but they will be announced when they are arranged.

Fencing was introduced to Maryville campus as an intramural activity in 1949. The team, which is an independent outfit, was organized early last semester and is going into full scale workouts this week.

Coach Shelkopf reveals confidence that his team can defeat both scheduled opponents.

Everyone is cordially invited to attend the matches. The members of the team promise—win or lose—that they will put on a good show!

Students Break MC Smoking Rule, Dormitory Demolished By Flames

By Carol Moore

_____ dormitory burned to the ground last night when a fire, believed to have been started by a smoldering cigarette, got out of control.

Local firemen were called to the MC campus following a student's discovery of the fire in two rooms in the south wing of the building.

According to the occupants of the rooms, they had been talking together when one of them suggested they smoke before retiring to bed. Two of the students remember putting their cigarettes in the wastebasket when they were finished. It is believed that the fire started in the wastebasket and spread to the desk before it consumed the rest of the room's furnishings.

The fifty-year-old building was quickly kindled to a roaring blaze despite efforts of the fire department and students to control it . . .

Yes, it could happen here. It could happen here just as it's occurred at other colleges and universities. Remember the newsreels, the radio announcers, the newspapers, everyone telling the story of the big fire? You listened to and read in amazement about the students who narrowly escaped injury and their attempts to save what ever they could.

And you couldn't help wondering why anyone would be thoughtless enough to smoke in a place where the slightest degree of neglect could mean the destruction of property, and possibly, life.

This lack of consideration for others is prevalent on our campus today. Apparently those students who smoke in their rooms have little fear of the three demerits, but they might at least think of the safety of the person next door or across the hall. It isn't going to hurt anyone to walk down to the steps to smoke, and most important, it will prevent any chance for the carelessness that might cause a disaster at Maryville College.

You see, it could happen here!

On Security

By Darothy Greenhagan

Security should involve a great deal more than being kept safe, protected, and under the paternal custody of our guiding elders. It should be freedom from fear and worry from outside forces. We are secure here at college, in as much as we have all our worldly cares taken care of for us. Our meals are furnished three times a day. We are provided with sleeping quarters and classrooms. We are protected by rules and regulations. Our whole life is run efficiently for us.

But is this a true security? When we leave college and find ourselves living in an adult community, is it possible that we may not be able to adjust ourselves? Will the shock of independency, financial worry, competition, and "the fever called 'living' " be too overpowering?

Instead of pretending that life will be completely blissful, we should prepare for the worst of it, then be secure in the easiness of the struggle. An excellent example is made by E. A. Robinson in his poem, "Cliff Kingenhagen," in which he makes the illustration of a man who serves his guest wine and himself bitter wormwood. His friend sums it up, ". . . I have spent long time a-wondering when I shall be as happy as Cliff Klingenhagen is."

The same principle can be applied to security. A slap in the face now and then is good preparation for the punches which may come later. If we break away from the pretense of sanctified existence and practice the actual reality of living, later adjustment would not be half so difficult. By seeing life and living naturally in it, we can appreciate the blessing of security when we finally obtain it.

On Participation

By Joan Frei

Every so often the complaint is heard that there isn't enough going on at MC; there's nothing to do (except studying, and that could go on forever). Many people feel vaguely that they would like to be doing something, but don't know just what. Most of us, when we think that way, are not taking advantage of all the possibilities that are available.

When you came to Maryville, you probably joined one of the four societies—Bainonian, Theta Alpha Sig, or Athenian. You paid your dues and then lapsed into a state of semi-active membership attending meetings occasionally and half-heartedly watching the progress someone else prepared.

Or take the matter of sports. Too many people take a spectator attitude toward them, watching the big games, but not participating in the things that are open to them.

Or think of the weekly dancing classes. Some people go, but others seem to prefer sitting at home on a dateless Tuesday night to going where they can have fun learning to dance.

Any number of other activities might be mentioned—Y, debate, music and art—all the various clubs; even for budding journalists, there is The Highland Echo. All these appeal to various interests and provide almost unlimited opportunities for the person who wants to take a little time and trouble.

These organizations, clubs, and activities need the support of all their members, of everyone who is interested in their objectives. Someone needs to keep them going, to do the work and provide the leadership—and membership—that keeps them from failing. And most important, you'll have fun and find that the more you put into them, the more you will get out of them.

Scots & Soda

By Van Holland

Really Arch.

According to Archie Massalone, there are some advantages in having an appendix removed. It seems that while Archie was still under the influence of ether, he began describing to Mrs. Kolter the rather beautiful and shapely aspects of his nurse (who then was standing next to him). Oh—my kingdom for a bursted appendix!

Cold, Bob?

Reliable sources have reported that in the past ten days Bob Moser has been hit with a case of the "jerks" and "shivers." Ah—yes, one more in the fold!

For shame!

Everyone was excited on Valentine's Day when it was whispered that Betty Jean James was walking around with her heart exposed! That is to say, she was wearing a cute lil' jumper in the shape of a red heart.

I hate my parents!

Latest inside info from the Psycho-Department is that Dr. Briggs and his pupils have prepared an interesting program for one of the local PTA groups. Each student is to cite a personal experience of having hated his parents. Poor Mom and Dad, they sure do get a rough time!!

Take notice, Miss Ware!

The Office of Price Stabilization has fearlessly taken controls off such items as canned rattelsnake meat, non-edible foods, and sphygmo-oscillameters. Such broadening of the vistas of free enterprise deserves our hearty commendation.

Go to sleep, go—to—

The University of Wisconsin has proudly offered a new course for its women phys ed grads—"Relaxation." Af far as MC students are concerned, this is nothing new at all.

Get out!

Speaking of relaxation, it seems that Miss Blair disapproved of the spring weather this past Thursday. After futilely attempting to interest her dozing students in Ben Jonson, she said, "Let's call it quits!" and dismissed the class early.

Bored, George?

If you have noticed the downcast expression on George Carpenter's face, it is not because he is sick. For you see, he cannot find hide nor tail of his picture of Carolyn. Have you seen it, Don?

Who's crazy?

My roommate discovered in his hat
That which purrs like a cat,
But like a rabbit it also hops,
And does not care where it stops.
But we its head do pat,
And call it Purr-Hops.
Purr-Hops it is a cat,
And Purr-Tops it is not.

College is one big headache!

The other day Miss Rodeman was explaining to her education class the bad effects of allowing the sun to shine into the faces of your pupils. "For instance," she said, "I had one teacher who always stood by the window whenever she lectured, and everytime I looked at her, I got a headache."

Good going, Will!

During a heated discussion in economics class, Will Dartnell raised his hand and said, "While all of you have been talking, I have been thinking."

Famous quotations of the week,

"It's the set of the soul that ——"
"Dr. Sweazy, do you approve of all these rules?"
"Could you explain pre-destination to me?"
"Do you think I'm old enough to get married?"
"I still think that smoking is a sin!!!"
"Crud!"
"Who's Margaret with tonight?"
"Shall we dance again?"
"Hymn books, please."

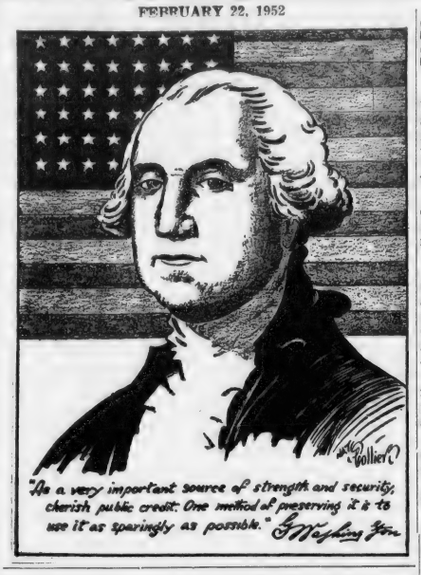
P. S.

Margaret was last seen roaming the thrid floor

Margaret was last seen roaming the third floor of Carnegie in the wee, wee hours of the morning.

Wake up, kids!

Since when is there a phys ed class held in Anderson during F period? As I understand it, Mr. Cooper had his little "Frenchies" do 32 deep-knee bends because they acted so sleepy.



No more late hours?

Has Steve Bell, ably managed by Dick Gardner, begun training yet? He's planning a demonstration on breath-holding for us as soon as he's ready. (Two and a half minutes under water—gads!!!!)

A word of fare-well . . . .

Razors pain you; rivers are damp;
Acids stain you; and drugs cause cramp.
Guns aren't lawful; nooses give;
Gas smells awful—you might is well live!

Voices, Masks, and Shadows

By Betty Ham

FLICKERS

At the Capitol Monday and Tuesday, 'Bright Victory' thrashes out the problems of an American soldier blinded in combat. The G. I. Arthur Kennedy, is jilted by his southern belle sweetheart when she feels that she cannot cope wiht his blindness—it's his condition; so he wends his way northward and wins a more worldly girl, Peggy Dow.

One of the outstanding features of the picture is the convincing documentary scenery shot in the army hospital at Valley Forge, Pa.

The Wednesday-Thursday-Friday feature is "My Favorite Spy," starring Bob Hope and Hedy Lamarr. Hope plays the dual role of a cowardly burlesque comedian and a debonair international spy. U. S. security agents persuade Hope as the comedian to impersonate the spy, baiting him with a treacherous lady spy, Hedy Lamarr.

At the Park, Tuesday's attraction is a Technicolor Red Skelton-Esther Williams comedy. They play a carnival sideshow team mistaken for a pair of multimillionaires at a Texas resort hotel. A straight romance between Esther Williams and Howard Keel balances the comic romance of Skelton and Ann Miller, a dancer.

Keenan Wynn does a good performance of a loyal Texas oil and cattle baron who has a great capacity for hard liquor.

BOOKS: FICTION

Par Lagerkvist, Sweden's great intellectual writer, has written a brillian novel about the man whom Christ replaced on Golgotha. Barabbas is convinced that he is desperately guilty, and he makes life for himself and his wife miserable. The book is brilliantly written in a simple, down-to-earth manner.

NON-FICTION

For those who want to keep posted on happenings in the theater, Daniel Blum's seventh volume of "Theatre World" has been added to the library collection. The book contains 500 dramatic photographs of scenes and personalities of all the 1950-1951 stage productions, synopses of the plays, complete cast lists, and biographies and photos of all leading actors and actresses.

In case there are any biologists in the audience, there is a new book written to acquaint you with the latest scoop on plant evolution, "Variation and Evolution in Plant Life," by G. Ledyard Stebbins, Jr.

EXPERIMENTAL THEATRE

Shakespeare's ladies met last night at a hen party in the FAC. Their advice to the lovelorn was very entertaining.

Gerstenberg's "Overtones" and Millay's "Two Slatterns and a King" were also well received. The oral interpretive style of acting was appealing to the audience.

Chillies Tromp Howies Twice, 54-34; 55-37

Chillies tromped Howies to the tune of 54-34 in the first game of the Women's Varsity Basketball Tournament. Chillies were ahead from the opening whistle and stayed that way throughout the game.

The closest the Howies came to tying them up was at the start of the fourth quarter when the score stood 39-30, favor of the Chillies. Wilson and Jean Davis did most of the scoring for the Chillies while Mary Alice Kemp led the way for the Howies. Wilson was high point for the game with 26.

Chillies increased their lead in the tournament to two games as they won 55-37 in the second game of the Varsity Tournament. The Howies were ahead at the start of the second quarter 9-7, but lost that lead to go behind and stay there the rest of the game.

Wilson with 25 and Davis with 24 led the way for the Chillies while Kemp with 14 and Liz Murphy with 16 paced the Howies. The third game of the tournament will be played on Tuesday, Feb. 18 at 4 p.m. in the Intramural gym.

ECHO FORUM

To The Editor of The Echo:

Recently a regulation has been imposed in one of the campus dormitories which should be brought to the attention of the student body and faculty. This regulation sets forth that every time anyone smells smoke in the dormitory, a fire drill be held.

From the standpoint of common usage this is very practical, because where there is smoke there is usually fire, but in this incidence the fire drill is being used as punishment for those who smoke cigarettes in the dormitory.

The rule against smoking in the dorms is a very practical one. The buildings are old and represent a great fire hazard. Smoking in the dorms risks not only demerits for those who do it, but loss of valuable property and possibly even lives if a fire were to be started.

Fire drills were never meant to be used as a mode of punishment. They seem to be a necessary safety precaution. And, after all, the person or persons who smoke aren't bothered too much by a fire drill. If they were smoking they certainly weren't in bed—and even if they were, they could hardly be asleep.

There are methods by which the guilty persons can be found out and given demerits. After all, that is the purpose of the demerit system and if they want to risk that much they should suffer properly for it.

Another phase of the unfairness of the regulation is in the fact that the house committee of the dorm imposed the regulation, announcing it at a house meeting without having any sort of vote or discussion from the residents of the house. We elect our house officers to govern us but we still feel that in something which affects everyone as that does we should be allowed at least to discuss it.

Someone wrote a story once about a shepherd boy who shouted "Wolf, Wolf after the sheep," and when the villagers got to him to help they discovered that he had tricked them. The next time there really was a wolf and nobody came to help and the sheep were lost.

We are expected to answer to the clanging of the fire bell, too, but if the use of it is abused as it has been recently we may well be in the same predicament that the shepherd boy was.

By Bob Coles

●Who says that the old Maryville spirit is dead? In case you think it is look at the example of the thirty odd men who journeyed down to dear old Carson-Newman two weeks ago to take in the basketball game between that school and the Scotties. One of the boys said that they wanted to give the team some moral support on the hardest away court of the year. Our hats are off to such spirit and we hope to see more of it for every sport.

●On the subject of spirit. While all spirit is emotional in its nature there is a proper type and that which is not so good. This is a topic not of the nicest variety, but this is about the only place where these views will ever get much airing so let me sieze the opportunity. In the last several home games there has been a tendency to boo opponents and officials. This is very certainly not in the Maryville spirit nor even sportsmanlike. No one denies that officials make mistakes, but they are doing their best, and while it may not seem as if they are being fair, they are calling them the way they see them and they should not be booed or profaned, and this goes double for those who have the nerve to ref Intramural games who don't even get paid for it. The players come under this as well. Varsity performers who have done the best they can and maybe gotten a little heated should be at least given a courteous attention and not booed.

●When the brother societies played the result saw Alpha Sig finally regaining the "Stinking Shoes." They really exist, these "Stinking Shoes," I've seen them. There has been a lot of discussion goin about as to just who is eligible to play. The decision has been made by the societies, and they are the best qualified to judge, that only those may play who have actually played for the society team during the regular Intramural Season. They argue that it is only this way that the regular men who have played under the banners of Athenian and Alpha Sig throughout the year get to play in the game.

In many ways this does not seem to be a true contest between the two groups, because only a few of the many players are allowed to play, and if the classic is to decide which group has the better basketball team as a group then the last game didn't prove much either way, but the societies have a point that only those loyal enough all year round should play. After all, if you want to play for one of the groups, then sign up to play with them all year, and if not, then don't expect to get in the special games, and this is the way it stands now.

●All those who have a poor heart, high blood pressure, or a nervous condition of any kind are advised to stay away from the Maryville College basketball team's home games. My memory and the records fail to show a time when so many consecutive home games were decided by so few points and so late in the game. You go away from a game thinking that that was the best you ever saw only to be even more thrilled by the next. None has come along yet to equal the game played recently between two pro teams of the American Basketball League which wen four, that's right, four overtime periods before one team finally won, but don't be surprised if that happens pretty soon. I often wonder what the players feel like after such a series; they must be even more worn out than the spectators. Here's hoping that they can win going away some time soon.

●We hereby claim the first mention of the spring sports at Maryville. It may be just a little early to start but it is fun to be eager. These sports are track, baseball, and tennis. Of the three the track team gets the least mention. It usually runs only a meet or two a year.

It would be good to see this field of endeavor to come up again here at the Hill for it has a long and honored history and some distinguished names to place in its rostors. During the last several years it has been slowly dying a natural death. Very few men go out for it at all with the natural result that those who do turn out have to take part in events they don't have any experience in. The team was very hard hit this year both by graduation and by the army so that there are only a few left from last year's team. If the sport is to be saved at Maryville College it will very likely depend on this year and next.

If enough new men come out, and there are some meets to run it will be saved, and the other way around as well. This is not official, of course, or even the feelings of anyone in authority as far is I know, but if there is no one to run there certainly won't be a track team. And if there aren't meets there isn't incentive. So everyone who ran in high school and anyone who thinks he can lift 'em up and put 'em down in competition is urged to put in an appearance when the call goes out for track men.

Baseball is far from being in the same position. It is one of the strongest and best sports at the Hill. The team has always been good and unafraid to play any and all comers. There are always a good many men out for the sport, but don't decide not to try out when the time comes because Mr. Honaker is just about the best coach for a good many square miles around. One hears stories from time to time that he has received lucrative offers from the powers that be in baseball circles. But he is still at Maryville helping turn out some fine baseball teams.

The team plays tight baseball, using a lot of squuze plays and hit and run attempts. This is because for the last few years the team has had small men, ace fielders for the most part, but not long ball hitters. This year many vets return, especially on the mound where every man comes back, but as on every team there is plenty of room for another good hurler or two. The outfield has felt the pinch of graduation the worst, and flychasers are scarce, and a third baseman is needed. So again all those who feel that they have some talent will be welcomed to show their wares.

●This column wishes to thank all those who helped out in the intramural basketball season, both at the job of refereeing and also helping to keep score. Without them there would have been no league.

●The volleyball season is fast approaching with the Athenian team already having signed up many of last year's finest stars. Get ready for the season.

Finally after waiting till the season was nearly over the Echo throws out for home consumption statistics on the basketball games for the year as gathered by ye noble editor of this page, Dick Hughes, Ed Breitbach, Ken Wilkinson, Jim Demer, Bob Navratil, Rolfe Duggar, and yours truly. The compilations, if wrong, can be traced down to ye said editor who seems to have made facts and figures the top thing in his life.

Herewith follows statistics with the following deciphering code: HFGA—home field goals attempted; HFG—home field goals made; SFG—season's field goals; FTA—season free throw attempts; FTM—free throws made; PF—personal fouls; and A—assists and R—rebounds gotten in home games.

Highlanders Vie With Chattanooga Mocs Tonight

Cagers Drop Tusculum To Even Up Season 8-8

Shields Scores 21 Points To Lead Scot Victory

Let by Forward Meano Shields, the Scotties dropped the Tusculum Pioneers Thursday night after leading throughout the entire game. The Highlanders led at the end of the first quarter 13-9, and increased that to 27-26 at the midway point. The game started off slowly and continued in that fashion for the rest of the way as both sides missed many easy shots.

Part The First

Through the first quarter the Scotties the game was marked by a lack of offensive rebounding by the Scotties, although they got more than their share under the Pioneers' basket. Joe Hopkins carried the burden of the Scotties scoring in addition to claiming a good many rebounds and playing a good game in general. For the Pioneers the first half showed Bob Mathias (no relation to the Olympic Champ) trying again and again to make a long one handed push shot from the side.

Normally he is a dead shot on his specialty but on Thursday night he simply didn't make his share of them. His partner on the long outside shots was Bob Statzer. Bob too was off, although he made 29 points against Carson-Newman earlier in the week.

Second Half

In the second half Howard Webb took over for Tusculum as he began to fake under the basket to start to pour in his points. Poor Charlie Allen ran into some of the hardest luck on the Alumni floor this year as three consecutive set shots rimmed the basket only to come back out. Charlie also tried his driving underhand layup shot a few times and none of those made good. To top off all his hard evening he fouled out. Charlie played a good court game and was a big help on the second half rebounds until he left the game.

Bert McMahon also continued to show improvement, especially on rebounds where he is making himself more and more felt. He missed several shots, but he wasn't alone in this department, and he did make some nice tipins.

Last Minute Stand

In the last quarter Bob Mathias fouled out to take away the scoring punch of the Pioneers, but along came Bob Statzer to more than take up the slack. The desperate Pioneers began to waive their foul shots to take the ball out of bounds for a field goal attempt, and Statzer began to drop in a slow hook from the pivot that gave him ten points in the last quarter.

Railsplitters Beat Scots At LMU

Highlanders Drop Eighth

Sparked by hte timely hitting of Tom Roberts the Lincoln Memorial University quintet completely out-played the Maryville Scotties to a tune of a 97-62 defeat. The game, played at Harrogate, was never even close after the opening minutes as the Railsplitters hit from every angle.

The defeat was sweet revenge for the LMU boys who went down to a 92-80 shellacking at the hands of the Scots late last semester. The Scots now hold a seven-eight record.

King's Men Fall To MC Hoopsters

Belated Rally Falls Short

King College's quintet fell two shy in its belated rally to tie the Scots in a game here last Saturday night and took it on the chin for a 57-55 defeat.

Brady Plays MC

Doug Brady, star center for the Tornadoes, was a team all to himself the first few minutes of play. He kept the game even by dropping in the first seven counters for the boys from Bristol.

Sparked by Meano Shields and Dick Abbott the Scots racked up twenty-five markers, almost half of their total points, in the second period.

Shotgun McMahon

The real thrill of the evening came with just fifteen seconds left of the first half. Burt 'Dimples" McMahon, hearing the yells of the crowd to shoot, obliged all by literally pitching the ball from beyond half court, a rifle shot that just cleared the rim of the basket to hit the backboard directly over the basket and plop into the waiting net. The crowd was no more amazed than was McMahon, and the roar was probably heard on Broadway.

The third and fourth quarters saw the Scot's lead slowly dwindle and at one point the score was 48-47. Both teams tried hard, too hard in fact, with the result that much of the floor play looked sloppy and the passes just didn't go where they were supposed to.

With a little over one minute left the Scots put on an effective freeze that wound up with the Tornadoes getting the cold shoulder.

Scots Even Record; Drop Middle Tennessee 15-14

Merwin's Pin Plus Draw Gives MC Win

The Scottie wrestling team continued its return trip Saturday night taking the measure of Middle Tennessee State, 15-14. Previously, the Scotties had dropped a 10-19 decision to the Blue Raiders. The victory evened the season's record at three and three for the Men of Maryville.

New faces were on the mats. George Kipp came out during the week to give some weight and depth to the heavyweight division, Dick Erickson and Paul Merwin made their home debuts, although both of them have wrestled on the road.

Mr. Morse Again

Bill Morse started the evening off in his usual fashion by pinning his man in 2:26 of the first round with his old favorite, the crotch and half nelson. Bill continues to show improvement since at M.T.S. it took him until 2:47 of the first stanza to pin his man.

Things Looked Bad

After Morse the Scotties ran into trouble. In the 130 pound class Jack Maxwell took on G. P. Long, one of the Blue Tornadoes' better men. Jack put up a good battle, but lacked experience and weight to drop a 5-0 verdict. The drought continued when Dave Ritzman met Lem Vaughn in the 137 pound brigade. Captain Vaughn gained two points on a reverse plus riding time to add three more points to the Tennessee score and put them ahead 6-5.

The Tide Changes

Jim Callaway then took over and ground out a 4-0 decision over Wayne Newby whom he pinned in their last meeting. Jim had his man in some bad spots more than once, but Newby always managed to squirm out. Dick Erickson the tried his luck in the 157-pound group, two levels above his accustomed weight. Considering the great weight advantage of his opponent, Bob Osteen, Erickson put up a tough battle, but Osteen had a reverse, a takedown, and two points for riding time to take a 6-0 decision to put his team back into the lead.

What's This

The Scotties, instead of showing the weakness in the heavier weights that has cost them several matches, then proceeded to take over. Paul Merwin, who from his tactics seems to have learned how to wrestle by watching television, pinned his rival, Frank Dillard, in 1:09 of the second period. There was nothing fancy about the pin, it was a good old fashioned one, but Merwin added some color to the match with his tackle attempts trying for aa takedown, which he finally succeeded in getting.

Moving on, Jimmy Squires wrestled his man to a 2-2 draw. John Hays had previously taken a decision from Jim. but Squires, playing it cool and slow all the way, came out with a draw to leave the score 15-11 in the Scotties' favor.

Mr. George Kipp

George Kipp, who had been out for only four days came out for his first match against Ellis Hamletts, a man who also had little experience. George had a tough time of it in the first period when one of Hamletts' tries for a pin knocked all of Kipp's breath out and left him out cold for a few seconds. But Kipp got back on his feet and continued the match. He showed a lack of knowledge, but also a lot of courage, strength and weight,

Cagers Play At Home While Wrestlers Go On Road Against Emory And Auburn

Chattanooga University's basketeers will attempt to do what their schoolmates on the wrestling mats could not do when they meet Maryvilles cagers on the Alumni hardwood tonight in the feature game of a twin bill.

Townsend High will furnish opposition for the B team in the preliminary game starting at around seven o'clock.

It's Evident They're Good

The Moccassins, who have always been much stronger in major than minor sports, will bring a high-scoring quintet to MC with an attack built around Bill Hauser, forward and Al Heil, center, who wore the hoops out with 34 points in MC's two encounters with the Lower Bend city team—Chattanooga winning both, 69-36, there, and 60-44, here last year.

On Lucky Thirteen

In previous years' play over the past fifty years, the Mocs have won twelve games and lost only one with MC—that being in 1948-49 when the Scots turned the trick in an upset, 67-49. However, that is not likely to be repeated.

Get Out Your Clubs!

Next week sees the Scots on the road with Emory & Henry and Milligan on Monday and Tuesday while on Thursday and Saturday, MC fans will be treated to two rip-snorters when Tennessee Wesleyan and Carson-Newman play in return matches. Both teams beat the Scots in previous games this year.

The preliminary to the Wesleyan game will see Porter High's Panthers against the Frosh at 6:45.

Clubfeet Take Title

Wednesday afternoon the Clubfeet came from behind to down the hard fighting Hamburg Squad 32-30. It was a battle of the underdogs, for neither team was expected to come anywhere near the finals, but both teams played some fine basketball to enter the finals. In Wednesday's game the Hamburg Squad took an early lead, led by Bobby Berrong and Harry Newberry, only to have the Clubfeet come from behind to tie the score at halftime. Again the Hamburg Squad pulled ahead, but midway through the last quarter the Clubfeet put on a spurt to close the gap and Hank Van Hassel tossed in the winning basket with three minutes to go, and the Clubfeet froze the ball for the rest of the game. Van Hassel and Allan Grippo, the big rebound men for the winners played thruoghout the last quarter with four fouls and the Clubfeet set up a neat zone defense to keep their big men away from Berrong and Jerry King who were driving in.

How They Got There

Neither team had an easy time getting into the final. The Hamburg Squad roared by Pre Mins easily enough, but were expected to drop their next one to the second seeded Pussycats. But such was not to be. The Hamburg Squad set up a solid possession type game, fastbreaking when they had a chance, and combined that with a solid defense that claimed most of the rebounds. Newberry led both teams with nineteen points, followed by Berrong with eight, in turn followed by George Roberts and Frank Garren each with seven. The next day they ran up against the Anons, and plyaed the same type of ball took a 31-25 victory. Again it was Newberry with fourteen for his team followed by Berrong. Bob Mizelle was high man for the Anons and played a good floor game as well.

The Clubfeet opened their part of the tournament against the Question Marks in almost complete privacy when hardly anyone came

Scots Face Knox Y On Road Next Week; And Vandy Here

After coming back from three setbacks to drop Chattanooga on the home mats last weekend, Coach John Davis' wrestlers began a two-day trip yesterday down south to meet the matmen of Emory University in Atlanta and Alabama Poly in Auburn.

Not Much To Go By

In the first match ever between the two schools held last year on the Maryville mats, MC took a 17-8 decision with MC's returnees from that match being Bill Morse and Don Benton.

Morse ground out a pin over Leon McGahee in the SEAAU tourney and took a decision in regular season grunting while Benton dropped a decision in an exhibition match here to Bill Lammers in a 157 bout and to Emory 147 pounder Don Stewart in the tourney.

Jimmy Callaway was out of the regular season match and didn't meet an Emory man in the tourney. Back for sure for Emory was 210 pounder Pete Sotus, junior, who lost to MC's Bob Proffitt in a thriller here last year but wasn't expected to have as much trouble with MC's heavyweight, Bob Buchanan.

But with Kipp's debut into the ranks of wrestling, a couple of shifts will be made next Tuesday when MC meets Knox Y which may strengthen MC's representations in the heavier weights. With Paul Merwin having the 167 pound class rank pinned down, and Kipp's presence in the heavyweight division, Bob Buchanan, a normal 172-pounder, will do chores in a 177 pound bout with Jimmy Squires, the ex-occupant possibly being shifted down to the 155 spot.

Split "T"

In this week ends matches Coach Davis took two '37 pounders along, Dave Ritzman and Dick Ericson who will divide duties in that class with much interest lying in Erickson's showing in this bout.

Auburn's Aweful

Auburn which has always had a powerhouse team for southern circles will have a veteran team back led by James Johns, a 147 pounder who took a decision over MC's Don MacDonald in an exhibition bout but lost in the SEAAU tourney; Dan McNair, SEAAU heavyweight champion who pinned MC's Dick Patton in 1:45 here last year; and Eddie Cresapps, 123 pounder. The Tigers of Swede Umbach also picked up a couple of wrestlers from Prep School—among them Baylor's Downey, whom J. A. Cameron toppled in a consolation match for third place in a 130 pound bout in the SEAAU tourney.

Games To Come

Next bout after the Knox Y match which will take place in Knoxville at the YMCA is that with Vanderbilt next Saturday. The Commodores won the season's initial encounter, 19-10, but next weeks' bout which is the last before tournament time may show the score much different since MC is now nl much better shape.

Scots Drop MTS . . .

something that has been lacking in Maryville heavyweights for a long time. Hamlett took a 3-0 victory, but the match went to the Scotties, 15-14.

Summary of bouts

123 class—Morse (M) pinned Porterfield (MTS), 2:26 of the first period.

130 class—Long (MTS) decisioned Maxwell (M), 5-0.

IT'S GETTING TO BE A HABIT

A PROUD MOTHER, Mrs. June Campbell, 30, is shown in her Detroit home with the latest additions to the Campbell menage, her third set of twins. Married at 16, Mrs. Campbell is the mother of nine children, eight of them living. The newest arrivals are a girl weighing six pounds, four ounces, and a boy weighing five pounds, eleven ounces. The father is a $60-a-week factory worker. (International Soundphoto)

Bees Take Measure Of Greenback High, 53-30

Winning their ninth out of thirteen games, the B Scots easily took the measure of Greenback High School, 53-30, on Thursday. The Scotties led by Saxton and Jimmy Campbell, who scored 31 points between them, had little trouble in beating their outclassed opponents.

Playing fairly good ball, the Scots took a commanding lead at the onset of the contest and gradually increased their lead until they led, 13-4, at the end of the first quarter. Slowing up a little, the Scots scored only eight points in the second quarter, but their lead was never threatened and they led at halftime, 21-14. The Scots played their best ball of the contest in the third quarter and led 41-21 at the end of the period. During the shortened fourth quarter the Scots continued hitting the bucket and won the game 53-30 to see the game. The Clubfeet undoubtedly played their best game of the season, splitting the scoring just about evenly between five or six men? The Question Marks, on the other hand, were pretty much off in their shooting, but put on a final spurt that fell one point short, 44-43.

Just Like The Salt Of That Name

Winner of the Intramural Foul Shooting tournament this year was John Morton who made 21 out of 25 attempts. Bobby Berrong led the pack with 20 and seemed a sure winner until Morton assumed the free throw line.

The odd thing about this contest and the 30 second shooting contest which Bill Davis won is that both individuals have played very little during the past season in cage play. Davis sunk 17 buckets in his allotted time while Jim Kessler sunk 16.

Last year's winners were Horace Beckwith in the free throw race and Galen Johnson in the 30 second contest. Johnson who went into retirement for the fall semester made a comeback and threw in many a point for the Question Marks but declined entering in the 30-second race this spring.

Bee's Squeeze Out Snowbirds

Two Minute FreezeWorks

Staving off a second half rally, the B Scots squeezed out a 75-72 win over the Snowbirds last Saturday. The B squad opened the game with a flourish of baskets and continued ot shoot with accuracy for the remainder of the first half to lead the slow starting Snowbirds 47 to 29 at the contest's midpoint.

Snowbirds Warm Up

Finding the range in the third quarter, Snowbirds gradually narrowed the gap but were still at the short end of a 68-51 score at the final quarter began. Taking advantage of the B team's poor shooting the Snowbirds, led by John Anderson, who scored most of his 22 points during this period, came within three points of tying the B's 75-75 with two minutes to go. Then the B squad put on a two minute freeze to win the game.

LEITCH ANNOUNCES DAISY CHAIN GIRLS

Sellick Releases 'Penzance' Casts

Glee Clubs Plan 'Pirates' Show

By Joan Frei

The cast has been announced for the performance of the Gilbert and Sullivan operetta, "The Pirates of Penzance," by the All Girl Choir and the Men's Glee Club. The operetta, under the direction of Edria Sellick, will be presented on April 18 and 19, by two complete casts. The casts will be entirely different, from the principal characters to the choruses.

Accompanists for the programs are Ann Hoover and Charles Ferris. Heads of committees are Production, Jim Darroch; Business Manager, Jean Ellis; Publicity, Ginny Smith; Staging, Branin Boyd; Costumes, Clifford Church; Lighting, Dean Allison; Props, Dick Dart; Make-up, Joanne Edwards; House Managers, Joe Stater and Homer Rickabaugh; and Stage manager, Art Van Alstyne.

Sigs Elect Sweetheart

On Saturday, February 16, at 7 p.m., Alpha Sigma presented its annual Sweetheart show in which the Alpha Sigma Sweetheart and the four cupids were announced.

The 1952 Sweetheart is Peggy Points of Dry Ridge, Kentucky and the four cupids are Ruth Orr of Maryville, Tennessee, Gracie Scruggs of Clinton, Tennessee, Margaret Anne Warren of Selma, Alabama and Jean Davis of Seymour, Tennessee.

The program consisted of a group of scenes which included singing and dancing attractions. The script for the program was written by Joe Stater, Boo Lorenz and Curt Wilbanks and its theme was the search for an Alpha Sigma Sweetheart around the United States.

Kefauver Club To Meet

Maryville College students have been invited to attend a rally of the Bolunt County Kefauver For President Club at the Court House this afternoon. Kyle King of Greeneville, President of the Young Democrat Clubs of Tennessee, will be the main speaker.

Frank Wlison of Oak Ridge will also speak. Chairman of the local club is Dr. Verton M. Queener, chairman of the college's Division of Social Sciences.

Nominations Thursday

Bob Cuthill, Student Body President, has announced that nominations for May Queen will be held following Chapel on Thursday, March 6.

There will be a Student Body meeting at which the Queen will be nominated and immediately following there will be class meetings for the nomination of members of the court. Each class will nominate one girl and one boy.

Dorms Prepare For Yearly Open House Set For March 8-9

By Pat Lovette

The fourth annual Open House, when Memorial, Baldwin, Pearsons, Carnegie and Bartlett throw out the "welcoming mat," will be held on March 8 and 9 this year.

Memorial will hold Open Housee Saturday, March 8 at 7 p.m.; Baldwin at 8 p.m. and Pearsons at 9 p.m. Pearsons will serve refreshments for all the women's dormitories. Carnegie and Bartlett will hold Open House on Sunday, March 9 from 2 p.m. until 4 p.m. Refreshments will be served in Carnegie for the two men's dorms.

Al Springfield, Bill Davis, and Harold Black are the committee in charge of arranging the plans for Open House.

The tradition of Open House started in March of 1948 when a group of students thought up the idea of having a special day set aside for all the students to see how the "ther half" lived by visiting their rooms. When Dean Francis Massey and Dean Frank McClelland were approached by these students about setting aside a Saturday night for this purpose, they saw nothing against it but Dean McClelland kept saying dubiously that he wasn't sure that just going to see other student's rooms would be enough entertainment to fill a Saturday All-Campus Date on the College Calendar for the MC student body. But he said that if the students wanted to try it out, he and Dean Massey would be willing.

When the plans for the first Open House were announced, it can be imagined that it was with some misgivings and doubts that it would be worth while and there must have been many hopes cherished in some students' hearts that this new "brain-storm" would prove to be a success. And their hopes were fulfilled; for the first Open House on the MC Campus went over, as is often said, "with a bang." The whole affair was a big success.

Carnegie and Bartlett, however, did not open their dorms for inspection but the plan was so well received and liked by the students that it was decided to make Open House an annual event and both the Men's dorms were opened to those "oh so eager" women students the following year. This was probably the first entrance into Carnegie and Bartlett for most of the women students of Maryville College.

If Open House has one certain thing that characterizes it, then it is housecleaning. For several days before the big event, many rooms undergo their first (and last) real cleaning of the college year. Things that have been lying around on the desk the entire semester are at last put away in their proper places and rugs, spreads, and draperies are given a good washing. All the rooms of course, look unusually neat and as one girl was heard to remark last year that she, "didn't even recognize my own room, it just didn't

February 20

Election committee chairman Tom Jones presented the revised sections of the constitution which were accepted by the Council.

President Cuthill read two letters, one from Maryville Student Council to Carson Newman Cooperative Council, the second from Carson-Newman in return, concerning the incident at the Carson-Newman basketball game there. The Council decided to let the incident rest. Dr. Lloyd and the president of Carson-Newman are in correspondence.

A report from Student-Faculty Senate was made, stating that up to $.50 admission may be charged for Skit Night, to be divided among the four societies.

Charlie Allen was appointed to discuss May-Day plans and program with Mrs. Verton Queener.

The Publications Committee was appointed to investigate the Chilhowean constitution and editing set-up.

There were no Town Night violations.

February 27

Council called a student body meeting for next Thursday to ratify the proposed constitutional changes and to nominate candidates for May Queen and court.

One Town Night violation was reported.

Durant Announces Sale Of 'Chips'

"'Chips' will go on sale Monday, March 10, at $.50 per copy," announced Jack Durant, Editor of the publication, this week.

"We believe that the make-up and the content of 'Chips' are of especially high quality," he continued, "and we feel certain that the students will be more than satisfied with the magazine."

"Chips" is published annually by the members of Writers Workshop. This year it consists of the nine best literary pieces, in regard to both artistic skill and style, selected from the writings of 1950-51.

Included in this year's 'Chips' are six short stories, two poems, and one play. The short stories are "The Things Men Die For," by Dick Newman; "Mama Scores Again," by Etta C. Kennedy.

"Okay, Fellow," by Ruby Jean Harris; "Hold the Line, Please!" by Dave Reed; "And Quincy Ate the Candle," by Arthur S. Bushing; and "Second Childhood," by Jim Dance.

The two poems are "Four Nails," by John Shew, and "When I Died Last," by Bill Holt. Delbert Earisman is author of the play, "The Net Which They Hid." Students will remember that Earisman's play was presented last year by Experimental Theater.

Edward G. Scott designed the cover and frontispiece of the magazine.

Fourteen Juniors Named By Veep For Ceremony

By Joan Frei

Isabel Leitch, vice-president of the junior class, has announced the 14 members of the 1952 Daisy Chain, which will be presented at Commencement in May. The girls are selected on the basis of being a cross-section of the junior class. The class vice-president is automatically in the Chain.

The girls chosen for the Daisy Chain are Edith MacMillan, Sally Brown, Jay Spencer, Karole Kapp, Beverly Edwards, Grace Myers, Evelyn Fields, Sally Drum, Maree Richards, Ruth Burgos, Shirley Atwell, Phyllis West, Virginia Sanderson, and Isabel Leitch.

Miss MacMillan, a sociology major from Marietta, Georgia, is Nu Gamma chairman, and has served as a Nu Gamma leader. A member of Theta Epsilon, she was chosen Sweetheart of Alpha Sig last year. She has also been a program chairman for Theta.

Miss Brown is a history major from Laurel, Maryland. She has been on the editorial staff of the Highland Echo, and is the editor of the 1952 Chilhowean. She was a Nu Gamma leader, and is a member of Bainonian and Writers' Workshop.

Miss Spencer, also a Nu Gamma leader, comes from Chattanooga, Tenn. A sociology major, she is a member of the Y Cabinet and Women's Varsity. She was treasurer of Bainonian last semester.

An English major from Pennsylvania, Miss Kapp is a member of the Chilhowean staff, Writers' Workshop, Bainonian, and Spanish Club.

Miss Edwards is an art major from Knoxville. She is on the Student Council and a member of Bainonian. Last year she was secretary of the sophomore class.

A Bible and religious education major, Miss Myers is from Girard, Pennsylvania. She is a member of Theta Alpha Phi and Y Cabinet.

Miss Fields is a history major from North Carolina. A member of Bainonian, she was chosen an ABC calendar girl.

Miss Drum is an elementary education major from Latrobe, Pennsylvania. She was a Nu Gamma leader, and is a member of Writers' Workshop and Bainonian.

A biology major from Manasquam, New Jersey, Miss Richards holds the position of Social Board chairman. She has also been a program chairman for Bainonian.

Miss Burgos is a sociology major from New York City. She was a Nu Gamma leader and is on the Y cabinet. She is a member of Theta.

An elementary education major, Miss Atwell comes from Syracuse, New York. She is a member of the B. G. club and has been a program chairman for Bainonian.

Miss West, from Winston-Salem, North Carolina, is a home economics major. She is a majorette with the band, and belongs to Theta Epsilon.

Miss Sanderson is a member of Women's Varsity and Theta. She is a physical education major from Bogota, New Jersey. Miss Leitch, an elementary education major from Brooklyn, New York, was a Nu Gamma leader. She is vice-president of the junior class, and a member of Women's Varsity and Writer's Workshop. She has also been a Rush Week chairman for Bainonian.

Orchestra Elects Deihl Manager

At the Orchestra's Thursday rehearsal this week Bill Deihl, senior music major from Raleigh, N. C., was elected general manager of the organization.

Other officers elected are assistant manager, Randall LeQuire, senior music major from Maryville; publicity manager, David Gates, sophomore science major from Fulton, Mo.; and social manager, Sue White, junior sociology major from Middletown, Ohio.

The orchestra is now working on Rogers and Hammerstein numbers and popular classics for a special concert. Planned for May 10 are Bill Deihl's "Highlanday" and Saint Saens' Concerto No. 2 in G minor with June Hood, senior music major from Knoxville, as piano soloist.

There is still need for several string players and one trombone player.

YM To Hear Fisher

Commodore Bascom Fisher, associate professor of history, will speak at YMCA tomorrow in Bartlett Hall on the topic, "Open Doors in Asia."

Fisher will discuss the many opportunities there are for service for the layman to the people of Asia, as in agriculture, sanitation, medical service, teaching, and other fields.

The meeting will be at 1:30 in Bartlett.

Ferguson To Speak

Douglas Ferguson, owner of Pigeon Forge pottery near Gatlinburg, will be guest speaker at a program sponsored by the art department March 7, at 7:30 p.m. in the FAC.

Ferguson will bring dishes and other objects as examples of his work, demonstrate the use of the potter's wheel, and explain the glazes, design, and general technique. He is a member of the Southern Highlands Handicraft Guild and The American Ceramic Society.

Caldwell Will Speak At Vespers Tomorrow

Dr. Frank H. Caldwell, president of Louisville Theological Seminary, Louisville Kentucky, will be the guest speaker at Vespers this Sunday evening at 7 at the FAC. President Lloyd will preside.

The Vesper Choir will sing "Sing We Merrily Unto God Our Strength", a double choir anthem by Martin Shaw, and "Beautiful Savior" by Christiansen.

The following Sunday, March 9, the Vesper Choir will sing at Knoxville College. The All Girl Choir will sing at Vespers.

Gene Mitchell Grey Describes Life As First University Of Tennessee Negro

By Gail Brown

Talking competently, with little prompting, Gene Mitchell Grey had no need of an interviewer. He handled the situation alone.

A man with a wit, one who can talk, and, without telling a trite funny-story, receive a genuine laugh, one who can find an audience in any circumstance or setting —that's what the University of Tennessee has in its first Negro student.

At your first meeting of the twenty-two year old Knoxville resident you find him almost wary, stepping into the introduction with caution. But there is no lack of friendliness. Grey is more than willing to leave the factitious behind, and get to know you, and allow you to know him.

The basic details of his life take Grey little time to tell. Seventeen years ago he was touring the grammar schools. "It was in the depression aftermath. Everytime the rent fell due, we moved. So I went to nearly every city school in Knoxville.

Surviving the years prior to college, Grey entered Swift Memorial Junior College at Rogersville. In 1950 he completed his degree at Knoxville College, receiving a B. S. in chemistry, with a math minor. In graphic prose Grey runs you through those college years, with his troubles with his English professor, with his jokes, his laughs.

Then came a job at the Knoxville Iron Works as a chemist, computing percentage and elements of carbon steels. Listed as office personnel (he had a typewriter), Grey was unable to join the Union. Perhaps the title was to commpensate for the earned, but unpaid money. Union scale for this job is $1.67 per hour. Grey's hourly wage was $.75, thus averaging $25 a week.

The morning the papers first printed Grey's name in connection with his application to UT was the last day he went to work. Supposedly he had made remarks to someone in the office. But Grey's working hours were 8 p.m. to 4 a.m., alone in the plant, and the office closed at 5.

For the next year and three months Grey had a crippled service shift in the hundred-room Arnold Hotel, Knoxville's third largest. Unfortunately this bell hop job came into conflict with his school schedule this January. He was to work Sunday night from three to eleven, and seven to three. With no other shift offered him, he had to leave the job to start school Monday.

When his classes are over for the day he returns to 88 Court De Austin Homes, to his wife, and Gene, 3, and Larry, 1, "who are hoodlums, just a chip of the old block-their mother."

After he obtains his M. S. in biochemistry, June, 1953, what then? "A job, any kind of work I can hold on to."

"UT is a fine school. Of course, I'd be expected to say that, but I really mean it. I've had no troubles, only a few things vaugly resembling incidents. A fellow stared at me in the cafeteria. Yes, probably he was only concentrating on a problem in calculus.

"According to the rumors, though, I was even asked to go out for football and I've received several letters from young ladies on campus. Seriously, I'm perfectly free to go anywhere, do anything, and I am taking part in many things. After all, everyone knows I'm just an average, struggling, young science major. And I'll have no Phi Beta Key unless I carve one for myself."

Concerning the details of Grey's ordeal prior to admittance into the University, last spring U. S. District Judge Robert L. Taylor ordered Tennessee to admit four Negro applicants to the law and graduate schools. The grounds were that the state did not provide equal facilities for the students at any other university.

The case was taken to the Supreme Court where the applicants pleaded for a test of Tennessee's constitutional ban against unsegregated schools. The appeal was handled by attorneys for the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People.

And while the appeal of the four Negroes was being heard in Washington in January, John Hooker, attorney for the State University, told the justices that he was authorized to say that the University was willing to admit those Negroes.

Grey was immediately enrolled, and as Grey himself stated, "Possibly more will enter. There are two in the process of applying, one for this spring, one for Sep-

Sunday Afternoon Dating

By Dick Newman

It was reported to Student Council this week that the higher echelons had rejected the proposal to permit Sunday afternoon dating which, after much debate and deliberation, Council had unanimously passed last semester. That particular suggestion was one of several Council passed. Before that time, however, a special Council committee, and the Council itself, had carefully discussed Maryville's dating situation, and even more carefully voted on a number of recommendations.

That action was taken by Council in a sincere attempt to improve the social life on the campus. It was not an unplanned or un-thought-out thing. It was designed to be fair, reasonable, and in keeping with what a representative student group believed to be for the general best interests of the College. That is why its rejection is especially difficult not only to accept with good feeling, but to accept at all.

There is no shadow of question in our minds but that the administration acted for what it was convinced is the best possible for us as a college community. It was, of course, not rejected for the mere sake of rejection, but because it was felt that Sunday afternoon dating would harm the particular program that is Maryville College's. We cannot completely agree with that. We feel that the opportunity for social dating on Sunday afternoon would harm neither the college and its reputation and background or the spirit of the Lord's Day.

We feel it would give students an opportunity to use more adequately Sunday for a day of relaxation and refreshment as we have always assumed it was intended. Merely opening the parlors of the women's dormitories or allowing walking in town, it seems to us, adds to rather than detracts from the good things in Maryville's social program. We just cannot see how that might be detrimental to the college program or tradition. It seems to us like a logical improvement. And our objection to the failure to approve the change is made in the same sincerity and honesty which, we are sure, accompanied the rejection.

Although we do not ask the administration to reconsider, it is our hope that the remaining proposals will be passed and approved, and that when some future Council again suggests Sunday dating it be met with a more affirmative response on the part of those who have the authority of real decision.

Chips From Workshop

By Arthur Van Alstyne

In this day of television, atomic bombs, and faster-than-sound air travel, something as old as writing seems antiquated. Visual aids to education are gradually pushing text books into the background. If it were not for Dick Tracy, it seems, the newspapers would long ago have disappeared. On cold winter evenings when the wind is blowing, people no longer curl up with a good book; they just take the family car and go to the movies.

People don't read books anymore; they wait until they are made into movies. But this lack of interest in reading has not dampened the spirit of writers. They still continue to turn out their product by the ream. These strange creatures are a rather shy and retiring group, not to be found among the hustle and bustle of the world. They prefer, rather, the quiet and solitude of the ivy-covered walls of a college.

Here at school can be found a group of these interesting people, who have pledged themselves to keep alive this vanishing art. They have banded together under the name of "Writer's Workshop," each member being required to produce one piece of original work a semester; the best of these are then preserved in their annual publication entitled "Chips."

Since it has long been our policy to keep alive all the old and established customs, we think it only fitting that we do our best to keep alive this last vestige of an age past and give our support to "Chips" and those writers who have worked so hard to create it.

LITERARY LINES

The new book table has yielded up two books of particular fascination this week. Richard Harter Fogle has written a book on "The Imagery of Keats and Shelley." Mr. Fogle has made an appreciative academic comparison rather reminiscent of a special studies or freshman research theme. If you are not interested in the poetic qualities of these two Englishmen, you might just check through for pointers on form in this type of writing.

AT THE LOUVRE . . . One of the most beautiful books we have seen recently is the new "Art Treasurers of the Louvre," which includes photographs of many of the priceless objects preserved in the old French palace, and color reproductions of paintings hung there. The book was translated by Rene Huyghe, who is curator-in-chief of painting and drawing at the Louvre and who should, incidentally, know what he is talking about.

IN THE STACKS . . . Education majors might be interested in seeing R. C. Woellner's "Requirements for Certification of Teachers and Administrators of Elementary Schools, Secondary Schools, and Junior Colleges."

Another book that has an intriguing title, at least, is "Backache, Birth and Figure Relief by Self-revolving Hipbones" by W. H. Schoenau. We didn't investigate this book, but enjoyed the title immensley. It would probably prove to be a very learned medical dissertation.

BEING PATRIOTIC . . .Honoring, on doubt, George Washington and Abraham Lincoln, the bulletin board in the library this last week has as its theme "Our American Heritage." We were quite interested in the vast store of native literature featured there. The dust cover from Carl Sanburg's "Treasury of American Folklore" is pinned up. "The Autobiography of Will Rogers" should display more of the wit and wisdom of the much loved philosopher.

John and Alan Lomax have compiled an anthology of American folk songs with commentary and historical notes on all the songs included. One of our old favorites (being of Blue Ridge Mountain origin) was discovered on page 176. It is "Sweet Betsy from Pike" which is, incidentally, one of the numbers in the forthcoming Opera Workshop production of "The Jumping Frog of Calaveras County."

MUSICAL NOTES

"The Jumping Frog" is the opera that we've been reading about in The Echo! Opera Workshop seems to be doing a fine job on this definitely modern(and difficult) music. Some of the best voices on campus are in the cast and the staging and scenery are being done by those-who-know (in our circles at least).

A PLUG FOR OPERA . . . Opera Workshop last year didn't get the publicity it merited, we think. Lots of us have never seen a real live opera and profess to non-interest in it. This MC performance is highly recommended, not only for the music itself, but also for the satisfaction of any small curiosities that may have arisen about opera.

"The Jumping Frog" is short (the score sets production time at 45 minues); the story is hilarious; the cost is non-existant (for admission, that is). For a first opera or for one of many you have seen, why not try this one on March 22 and see just how well our own home-grown talent can handle the big-time stuff.

DIGRESSING . . .

When he stand, he sit almost.
When he sit, he lie almost.
He ain't got no neck hardly.
He ain't got no tail hardly, neither.
When he sit, he sit on what he ain't got hardly.

"THE PLAY'S THE THING"

(With apologies to the cast of Macbeth for quoting a line from Hamlet). We sneaked in on a rehearsal of "Macbeth" the other night, hoping to see the second act, or somehting like that, but were rewarded by finding only the two stars of the show there, working on lines like mad. If the kind of work that Dave and Sue are doing is any indication of what the finished performance is going to be like, we would advise going to any ends to get tickets early.

Sports Echoes

By Neal Pearson

"Be it ever so humble,
There's no place like home."

● "IF ONLY WE PLAYED ALL OUR GAMES at home, who knows, but we might have had a really winning season." This might have been the unconscious opinion of the Scot basketballers as the season was finished against Chattanooga on the road Tuesday night. The Scots were all-victorious at home save for the Reliable Motors opener and the high-scoring one-ponit decision E&H game. On the other hand, the Scots were anything but victorious when they hit the road for games. It was the big paradox of an interesting season to say the least.

● ENDING OUT THEIR CAREERS as basketballers for MC were Charlie Allen, Burt McMahon, and the inimitable Meano Shields. Shields, too, has been a real paradox in collegiate basketball circles around here.

"Pasquale," as he is also called by some of his friends failed to play the cage sport as a varsity man while in high school, sticking solely to B team play and never giving any indications of future ability while at Maryville High.

Came Maryville College and he devoted most of his basketball playing time to participation in a Knoxville league.

Then as a sophomore, he went out and made the B teame from which he advanced to the big time varsity the latter part of the season, scoring some 18 points in four games of play. Last year Shields came into his own and writeups showed that the "pesky little forward" dumped the hoops for 241 points—tops for the team last year.

This year Shields began hitting early and in games with Hiwassee dumped in 34 and 36 points, events which saw him with a 24-point average for his first six games and an event which most people didn't think would last—the highest game average bein that of Bob Boring in 1949-1950 with 15.1 per game. But Shields kept it up and thuogh scoring only seven points in a game with LMU, the hoops were really burned two weeks ago against Chattanooga as Shields faked and swirled some 46 points in for the greatest individual performance on an MC court in many a year. Had he sunk more of the 23 free throws he got—missing 8—his total would have been tops for the nation—LSU's Bob Pettit having that honor with 51 in a game earlier in the year.

As it stands, Shields has a whale of a percentage for per game play and also a new record for total season scoring.

Boring scored 333 points in the season of 1949-50 for said average of 15.1 per game and on the eve of the Chattanooga game, Shields had scored likewise, so it seems quite fitting that the first basket he scored against Chattanooga was a new pace setter and was also the first two points of an MC individual high. Shields also busted the highest Field Goal per game mark which Boring formerly held in an 82-83 loss to E&H, The Friendsville, Tennessee boy hitting for 12, mostly on long sets.

We dunno anything about it here, but despite the handicap of height—Shields not having any—Shields may be doing some graduate work in higher basketball—that which pays one's room and board. It would be nice if he made it—he's certainly been worth his weight and it's been a pleasure to watch him.

● TENNIS MEN began stroking their racquets the past week as practice for net play began for Ken Johnson's crew of returning lettermen, vets, and frosh. The racqueteers have one of the most enviable records in the school, percentage wise and should continue to be so this year. However, there do come times when players do graduate and replacements are needed. This year, Clyde McCampbell and Wes Miles who have been fighting it out for the numbers one and two spots for three years, will be playing their last serves and somebody will be needed to replace them next year.

So, if you think you can swing the racquet, go on out to the courts behind Memorial and indulge in a little tennis playing. You might learn how to swing your racquet more efficiently, there'll be girls to watch you, and you may play in some "B" team matches which should be scheduled. And if this doesn't happen, you'll at least get a good tan.

● HOW MANY WOULD ADMIT IT? . . . . Just this past week, Coach John Davis issued forth what was to be the biggest track schedule ever since 1941 and the war for MC runners with four possible meets, yes, FOUR, in the offing. A home and home arrangement with ETS which may turn out to be the start of a new precedent, a match with William Jennings Bryan, and the Milligan relays, if they are to be held. This last "if" is a big one for it illustrates further another point we made last year about this time concerning the making of football the number one sport on campus. At the time, we mentioned its adverse affects on the status of wrestling at many schools and now comes across the dope about its effect on track.

When MC's track mentor contacted Emory and Henry about the possibilities of a meet on a year-to-year home-and-home basis, he was told by Wasp officials that no such thing was possible because it would cost too much money—most of the college's athletic budget going toward football and leaving very little besides for other sports.

As matters stand now, relatively few small schools in the South, and we might venture to say in the nation also, have track lest it be on as high a plane as other major sports and is supported like the other major sports. The little schools have been forcde to cut out track as an inter-collegiate sport because of a lack of opponents or one's own class—a fact threatening MC—and also because of a lack of that material which is also a result. Might it be said of this trend that college officials are robbing Peter to pay Paul?

● SAW THAT VIOLIN or WHAT BRAND OF SOAP DO YOU USE? . . . or a facsimile of a weekday afternoon radio program. There was also no little hard feelings lost between Vandy Coach Buford (Baby) Ray and various personages with whom he met at Maryville. Frierson and his coach came expecting Morse to wrestle in the 13 pound class. However, when Frierson found out that it was his uick to be Morse's opponent, his demeanor was very visibly shaken.

Jim Demer was to have gone in the 123 pound class when it was found out that Vandy had no man, but having eaten rather vociferously at noon time, he was somewhat above weight since he didn't expect to wrestle. Merwin then went out and hound-dogged Rogers up who was only two pounds above the 123 limit. The Baby Ray seemed very perturbed about this even though Demer who knocked off two of the four pounds he was over could have jogged a couple of more miles through the woods to make limit.

Ray was also somewhat miffed over the refereeing of Julius Nicely and the timekeeping—though the latter might be understandable. The fact that the ex-professional wrestler expected Vandy to win over MC of course had no bearing on his temperament, and decision to suspend mat relations with MC in the future.

● WHETHER THEY MEAN ANYTHING OR NOT, here are some statistics on the basketball season which just finished. The last issue of the Echo can be checked upon to decipher the alphabetizing —HFGA being the sole hard one and it meaning home field goals tried—including all home games save that with Chattanooga.

Holding the highest shooting percentage was Phil Young with one for one but among the regulars at home it was Shields. Hopkins erased Gene Reynolds' old mark of 62 personal fouls made in 1949-50 as did also Abbott with 64. Shields of course set up new marks in total scoring with 486; in most field goals with 185 and erasing Boring's of 130; and in the matter of free throws, topping Boring's 71 scored in '49-'50. The best free throw percentage of .745 held by Hap Brahams and set in '49-'50 remained inviolable as did the marks for free throws per game and field goal percentage per game.

Scot Wrestlers On Road For NCAA Tourney

Eight Teams See Action On Mats

Coach John Davis and a squad of seven wrestlers left yesterday morning for Atlanta, Georgia, and the Southeastern NCAA College Invitational Wrestling tournament. Until this year, the Scots have been engaging in the SEAAU tourney but this year, the NCAA has set up a college invitational tourney and MC will go to it and decline entrance in the SEAAU match to be held next week.

Participating schools are Auburn, Chattanooga, Vanderbilt, Middle Tennessee State, Georgia, Georgia Tech, Emory, and Maryville. In recent years, Auburn has been winning the SEAAU tourneys and will be the likely choice for the NCAA go. Second place is a tossup between the remaining teams with MC having a chance.

Speculation Plus

Interest will be keyed as to the final winners of the various classifications and MC has good chances in two of them, the 123 and 147 pound ranks in which Bill Morse and Jimmy Callaway will make the go. In the 130 division, Auburn's Ray Downey will be a favorite with Vanderbilt's Bill Frierson, who may circumnavigate the 123 division and try for the 115 lb. title.

The 137 class with Dave Ritzman for MC sees Auburn's Jerry Johns and Mid Tennessee's Lem Vaughn as good contenders while the 157 group is a tossup—no man really being outstanding at this point. Don Benton will go for MC here. The 167 pound class is much the same way with Auburn's Frew Shaw, Emory's Tom Bradley being logical candidates for ribbons though Paul Merwin may come through in his driving manner to take a pin or two and perhaps everything. Bob Buchanan will meet with boys more of his own size in the 177 division while the heavyweight ranks, practically conceded to Chattanooga's Tom Drake and Auburn's McNair will have no Scotties representation.

Baseball, Tennis Practices Start

Practice will begin Monday afternoon at 3:30 in the Alumni gym for aspirants to the 1952 baseball squad. Players may report somewhat before this but practice will begin then and continue inside the Gym for some two weeks before workohts are taken outside. All potential pitchers, catchers, infielders, outfielders, and ballchasers are asked to report.

Tennis And Track

As soon as the courts can be fixed up practice sessions will be begun officially for this year's tennis team though sessions may be held informally in Bartlett beginning next week. All potential racquetmen are urged to keep their eyes and ears open for announcements.

Track season will start next week also but the time is not yet definite.

Cagers Stop Chattanooga Mocs To End Winning 12-10 Season

MC Win Is First On Road This Year

Abbott, Shields Lead Win With 49 Points

Miracle of Miracles—it done happened! Maryville's basketballers went to Chattanooga Monday night and won a road game by an 81-78 score. The game, first won on the road this year also assured the Scots of a winning season for the first time in three years as they finished up with a 12-10 record.

With Dick Abbott probably showing up at his best this year, the Highlanders managed to stay ahead from the first on the work of Abbott (9), Shields (6), and Charlie Allen with seven to have a 22-21 first period lead. This was stretched to 13 points by halftime as Shields pumped in eleven more while Burt McMahon and A. C. McWilliams cashiered in six.

But after intermission, play slowed down somewhat especially on Maryville's part and they went into the fourth period leading only 60-55. The Mocassins lost two players, Durham and Brown, via the foul route however, and the Orange and Garnet hoopsters managed to be outstored only by 2 points and thus preserve a margin of victory. Big Al Heil was once again the mainstay of Bill O'Brien's attack but his 23-point efforts were more than matched by Shields' 25 and Abbott's 24-point contributions.

Finally Hitting Good!

The Scots also benefitted greatly by hitting 19 free throws of 31 attempts while Chattanooga hit on 14 of 24—not much difference but had the 'Noogans fouled less, they would have won, since they out field-goaled MC 32 buckets to 31.

Getting in his two-bits worth again was Jimmy Campbell who fired in two field goals in the fourth quarter which aided the cause greatly. Also noticeable was the fact that all of Chattanooga's subs scored while only two of MC's did—thus keynoting the fact that those who take over next year for Allen, Shields, and McMahon, will have to work on the Offense in Depth somewhat more than usual.

The two wins over Chattanooga were also surprising in that the Scots have never beaten the Moccasins on their own court and had only won two contests on MC's courts—these being in 1949 and the one last week end—what with MC lagging only behind in the total number of games won 3-12, perhaps this year's freshmen class will see things evened up.

Shields Hits Mark As MC Beats Mocs

Scot Forward Drops In 46

Records fell and fell hard as Meano Shields and company rolled up a record-breaking 97-83 win over the Chattanooga Moccasins. It was the Scots first win over the Mocs since late in the 1948-49 season when they scored a 69-49 victory. It was definitely an upset as the Mocs are generally conceded to be of a higher company than the Scotties.

Shields was the whole show as he hit the cords for cords for nine markers in the first quarter, thirteen in the second, six in the third and eighteen in the last, a grand total of forty-six points. To say that that broke records is to put it mildly.

All in all, five records were set and possibly two others, five of these by Meano. The ninety-seven points by the team was a new school high against collegiate opposition, as was the total number of points by both teams in the game, 180.

He Was Off

Shields set such records as individual scoring honors, 46; most field goals in a game, 17; and most points in a quarter, 18.

The game was fast with plenty of action and thrills. An average of four and a half points were made per minute which is a mighty fast clip.

The Scots held a 23-20 lead at the end of the first quarter and left the floor at half-time with a 47-41 lead. Third quarter was the Mocs and Scots practically trade shot for shot, but in the last quarter the Scotties moved out to a comfortable fourteen point lead.

It Got Rough

Things got a little rough in the second half. Joe Hopkins fouled out with a half minute left of the third quarter to start things off. Then in the fourth stanza amidst a barrage of fouls three starters for the Moccossins fouled out; Brown, Durham and Heil. This left the Mocs with a one-man bench.

Highlanders Harry CN For 11th Win

MC Wins Return Game, 86-63

Maryville fans were assured of at least a .500 mark for season play when the Scots turned in an 86-63 victory over Carson-Newman on the Alumni court last Saturday. What with a 11-10 record and only the Chattanooga game left to play, such a final season's record would top that of last year's 7-14 finale and 1949-50's 10-12 mark.

The win over CN was indeed sweet for the Eagles had previously taken a 56-49 win on their own home court three week's previous and also saw Charlie Allen and Jimmy Campbell taking the load off of Meano Shield's shoulders once again.

All Allen At First

The ball game started off with Allen racking up seven of MC's first ten points as the Scots jumped out to a quick lead before the Eagles could regain their sense. By quarter time, the score was 21-12, after which point the Scots slackened up a bit too much and let the Orange and Blue of CN led by blonde, Ed Dorsy, come within a point of assuming the lead themselves. Howver, led by Joe Hopkins and Allen, the MC hoopsters once again regained composure and a large lead increased to 46-29 and were never headed again.

Too Far Ahead

With the score having the possibilities of their being an approach to the century mark, the Scots took the Alumni boards but didn't attempt to reach said goal and led 63-45 at three-quarter tie.

Campbell played a large part of the last half along with the other subs and was to have hooped in 13 markers when the final whistle

Scots Dump Vanderbilt For Fourth Mat Victory

Win Follows Road Losses to Emory, Auburn, Knox Y

The Maryville Scotties wound up the wrestling season last Saturday night as they grunted out a hard fought decision over the Vanderbilt Commodores. The Scotties were never behind but the match was in doubt until Paul Merwin and his opponent, Eddie Fisher battled to an eight all tie. When the visable score stood 8-7 in Fisher's favor, but that ever adding riding time came to the rescue as Merwin had 2:42 to 1.42 for his opponent, for one point that gave him a draw and clinched the match for the Scotties.

A Good Start

The Scotties got off to a fine start, rolling up sixteen points to nothing for the Commodores. In the 123 pound class, Vandy failed to place a man in that weight division and had to give up five points. Rick Rodgers was dressed for this for the Scotties and ready to go, but had to sat it out, of course. The first real match of the evening was between the two captains, Bill Morse and Bill Frierson. Morse was wrestling a little below weight for that division, but the issue was never in doubt. Soon after the match began, Frierson was in hot water, but he managed to avoid the worst until the second period, when Morse got a leg hold on him and twisted him into a favorable position from whence he could pin the Vandy captain in 1:57.

More Good News

Dave Ritzman carried on the victory parade for the Maryville team in the 137 pound class, as he gained a reverse and two points for diring time over Art Dickerson. Dave had his opponent very sorely tired by the end of the match as he tried hard to get a pin hold, and nearly succeeded more than once. Not to be outdone in any waywas Jimmie Callaway, performing for the last time as a Scottie wrestler. Jim tried hard for a pin, but, like Ritzman, he couldn't quite make it. Jim gained two points on a reverse, two more on a takedown, and the maximum two allowed on riding time for a 6-0 victory.

The Tide Turns

At this point the match began to go more in Vandy's favor. Don Benton took on Bill Gibson in the 157 pound class, and ran into a hard time. Gibson piled up twelve points over Benton with two reverses, a takédown, riding time, and two near pins which Benton escaped by sheer force and guts. And while Don may not be the best wrestler around, he has plenty of plain old guts, and showed it Saturday night.

Wild Men

Then came the clincher between Merwin and Fisher as both men racked up points all over the place, Merwin gettin most of his on escapes managed by sheer brute force. The deciding factor was the one minute and one second extra riding time Merwin managed to hold on to Fisher.

In the 177 pound brigade Herb Catlin made his debut as a wrestler, and showed some promise that needs only some more experience to become a good wrestler. Herb got pinned by the old faithful, a crotch and half nelson applied by Eliazar Williams. Bob Buchanen then took on Lamar Keese in the heavyweight class and gave another fine exhibition of guts and grit as he stayed in there against Keese who far outweighed Buchanan and

Proffitt's Pin Gives Y 16-14 Decision Over MC

Knoxville's YMCA as the scene of a return match with the Y Tuesday a week ago and the Knoxvillian's picked up their first win in twenty years of wrestling with MC. Bob Proffitt's pin of George Kipp in a heavyweight match provided the margin of victory after MC's Bob Buchanan made a third go of it in the 177 division to pin Bobby Leigh of the Y and put MC ahead.

The Conquering Hero!

Jim Demer started the night's play by taking on aging Bill Nichols in a 123 pound bout and though it was his first bout of the year and of his career, he came through very well to take a 10-2 decision. Bill Morse then followed up with a 14-5 win over the Y's Bill Arnold in a 130 bout. Arnold had a takedown and three escapes while Morse countereed the latter with takedowns soon afterwards, riding time, and a near fall not to mention escapes of his own doing.

Dave Helwig took his chances in a 137 set-to for the first time and lost to the Y's Jim West 4-0, by virtue of a reverse and riding from Dick Erickson then met Don Jones of the Y but was to lose a close decision when Jones contented himself with leg riding time.

But meanwhile Tennessee has raised the state-supported Negro school, A&I College, to university status, with an announced policy to make the school the equal of U-T. A complete graduate-study program will be set up in two years.

By hastening to construct equal but separate school facilities for Negroes, Tennessee may get around the court case. But is not separation in itself inequality?

Unless immediate action is taken by anti-segregationists against Tennessee's racial segregation laws, the story of Gene Grey and his companions may prove just a test case, and may cause no break in Tennessee's cement wall of segregation.

Buffs Turn Tables In Taking Win

MC Shellaced On Road

The Maryville Scotties continued their inexplainable losing ways on the road when they fell to a 83-56 licking at the hands of the Milligan Buffalos in Johnson City.

Phil Roush and Mack "Baldy" Wolfe led the Buffs butchering as they hit for twenty-four and twenty-one markers respectively. As in the previous game, which the Scots took 67-62, Wolfe was the floor leader.

Meano Shields, as per-usual, was the sparkplug for the Scots as he chalked up nineteen points. Joe Hopkins looked better than usual as he dropped in fourteen counters.

Lose Lead, Lose Game

The Scots, surprisingly enough, led at the end of the first quarter 15-11, but during the second quarter the Buffs found themselves and took a 35-29 half-time lead. The Milligan lads moved even further ahead in the third and then added insult to injury by reaking up thirty counters in the last stanza.

Bee's Win Last Three Games In Ending Season

After easily defeating Townsend High School 69-23, the B Scots trounced Porter High School on February 21. Both teams got off to a slow start, but the Scots, hitting with a greater degree of accuracy than Porter, slowly pulled ahead to lead 27-15 at half time.

As the third quarter opened the Scots ran the high school players into the floor and continued extending their lead. Although Porter never stopped trying, they couldn't score with much regularity and the game soon became a picnic for the B Scotties who led 56-20 as the third quarter closed.

Although they slowed up their pace considerably in the last canto, the frosh Scots held Porter to score only three points while they scored 15. The Scots won the game 69-23. Lynn Sexton, who scored 15, and sub Bill Benthysen, who scored 19 were high men for the Scots, while Glen Owenby led Porter with 11 points.

In their last game of the season last Saturday the B Scots avenged an earlier loss to a team representing Farr's Esso 56-44. As has been typical of most B games this year, the teams scored very little in the opening period and the Scots led 9-6.

Out-scoring their opponents 22 to 12 in the second stanza, the Scots led 33-18 at halftime 33-18. The Scots maintained a ten point lead or better throughout the contest except for a spurt by the gas men which brought them within four points of tying the Scots.

Anderson of Farr's Esso took scoring honors with 15 points while Bill Benthysen led the Scots with 13 points.

ble wand Hopkins and Allen, 16 apiece. Max Bivens kept the contest out of the realm of a runaway by contributing 11 points in a last quarter flurry but it wasn't enough to dent the MC armor.

Another factor which kept the scoring down somewhat was the what might be considered low point production of Shields who hit for 17 points. Shields, however, picked up 11 of these on free throw and could mesh the nets for field goals only on three out of 26 attempts. Had his average been normal, there is no telling what the score might have been.

The game was also marked by a high production of fouls on each side—MC being warded 27 and the Eagles of T. J. Stafford, 31. The game, otherwise, was a clean one with little roudiness and emotion being expressed.

Five Gets MC Three

Jimmy Callaway subbed for Don Benton in a 157 bout and managed to use a takedown, reverse and escape to his best advantage for a 7-0 win over Jim Embree. Wayne York, ex '51 of Appalachian State then put Paul Merwin in the coolers after 5 minutes and 40 seconds of action — the fatal pin coming, thus, late in the second period on a crotch-nelson hold.

Buchanan then won his match with a reverse-nelson-crotch and set the stage for Proffitt's win and MC's demise.

Paradoxical was the fact that Proffitt learned his trade at MC and applied it unerringly on MC's novicial Kipp who could not halt the driving Proffitt.

Intramurals....

A.A.S.'s On Top

Going into the final week of the Intramural Volleyball play Athenian, represented by a lanky A.A.S. team, (the meaning of whose initials is suspected but not known) remained undefeated, adding the Question Marks and the Alpha Sigma Scotties to their list of victims. In hot pursuit is another rangy crew, the Frosh 7, which dumped Athenian's Owls, Alpha Sig's Scotties, (two overtimes required to accomplish the task), the Faculty, and the Choir, to put them in a strong position to challenge the favored A.A.S. Another challenger the Pussycats, losing only to A.A.S., downed the Scotties and the Choir to keep pace with the leaders. With the rest of the league still knocking each other off, anything could happen.

Wrestling Tourney Begins Next Week

The Intramural Office also plans to start the annual wrestling tournament, under the supervision of the wrestling squad, Monday, March 3, and the swimming meet a week later, March 10. All students wishing to participate are urged to sign up on the sheets provided on the Intramural Office Bulletin Board.

Hunter Reveals Honor Students

By Van Holland

Sixteen seniors were elected to Alpha Gamma Sigma, MC Scholarship Honor Society, it was announced this week by Dr. Edwin R. Hunter, secretary of the society.

Those elected are James Allison, Cora Anthony, Katherine Blackburn, Barbara Blum, Peggy Kettles, Robert Lynn, Lena Belle McGaha, Carolyn Marshall, Jean Pelton, William Robinson, Doris Somerville, Alvin Springfield, Richard Waka, Sue Watson, Gerald Williams, and Newell Witherspoon.

Recognition ceremonies for the new members will be held at chapel services on Thursday morning, March 20. President Robert L. Kincaid of Lincoln Memorial University, will be the speaker.

Only a limited number, 10% of the senior class, can be elected to the honor society. Eligibility requirements include a 6.5 average, high character, and an active contribution to the college campus.

Officers of Alpha Gamma Sigma this year are Evelyn Guss, president; Etta C. Kennedy, vice-president, and Dr. Edwin Hunter, secretary-treasurer. The number of active members now totals 211.

James Allison is a political science major from Salineville, Ohio. He has been active in both Athenian and Men's Glee Club.

Cora Anthony, mathematics major from Ripley, is treasurer of the YWA and a member of Bainonian and the Women's "M" Club.

A biology major from Knoxville, Katherine Blackburn is a member of the YWCA cabinet, College Playhouse, and Bainonian.

Barbara Blum is an English major from Fountain City. She is a member of the Women's "M" Club, Writer's Workshop, YWCA cabinet, College Playhouse, and Bainonian. Miss Blum also served on the Chilhowean staff.

Peggy Kettles, English major from Pittsburg, Pa., is a member of the MC Band and Writer's Workshop. This semester she is president of Theta Epsilon.

A business administration major from Elmhurst, Ill., Robert Lynn graduated last December. He was a member of Spanish Club, Business Club, and was business manager of the '51 Chilhowean.

Lena Belle McGaha is a biology major from Newport. She is a Bainonian and a member of Spanish Club and Tau Kappa Chi.

A music major from Etowah, Carolyn Marshall is a member of Theta Epsilon and president of Tau Kappa Chi, the music society.

Jean Pelton, Spanish major from Monticello, N.Y., was a member of the Girl's Glee Club, FTA, and she was president of the Spanish Club. Like Lynn, she also graduated last December.

Doris Somerville, English major from Erie, Pa., has been active in Bainonian, the college orchestra, and Student Volunteers. She is president of Student Volunteers this year.

Alvin Springfield is a biology major from Ardmore, Pa. He is treasurer of YMCA, and a member of Pre-Med Club and Student Council.

Richard Waka is a Greek major from New York City. He is an Athenian and a member of the YMCA cabinet.

An English major from Knoxville, Sue Watson has been active in Theta Epsilon and the Women's "M" Club. She also served on the Chilhowean staff and in Writer's Workshop.

A mathematics major from Alcoa, Gerald Williams transferred from Vanderbilt University to MC in his junior year. He has been active in College Playhouse and the Vesper Choir.

Newell Witherspoon is an economics major from Chattanooga. He has been a member of debate for four years and is this year's president of Pi Kappa Delta, the debate society. Witherspoon also served on the Chilhowean staff. He is now a member of Student Council, Business Club, and president of Inter-Club Council.

William Robinson is a music major from Maryville. He has been very active in Opera Workshop and Vesper Choir. Robinson is also a member of Madrigals.

Students See Movie

Last Saturday night the Social Board presented a movie entitled "Stairway to Heaven" starring David Niven and Kim Hunter.

Roach Elected 1952 May Queen

Voting Selects Ohio Senior

By Lora Kinsinger

Betty Roach, senior English major from Columbus, Ohio, was chosen May Queen in elections held Friday of last week. Ann Leeder, home economics major from Lansdowne, Pa., will be her senior attendant, escorted by Eugene Parks, senior pre-med major from Feura Bush, N.Y.

Elected junior attendant was Barbara Miller, elementary education major from Kennett Square, Pa., whose escort will be Walter Rowley, junior political science major from Binghamton, N.Y.

Barbara June Gregory, physical education major from Maryville, will be the sophomore attendant with Dave Gates, sophomore science major from Fulton, Mo. as her escort.

Freshman attendant will be Mary Alice Kemp, from Acworth, Ga., escorted by A. C. McWilliams, from Northbrook, Ill.

Douglas Gamble, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joe Gamble of Maryville, has been chosen crown bearer. Gamble is a director of the college.

Flower attendants are Alida McArthur, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. David McArthur, and Stuart Bushing, son of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Bushing.

The May Day celebration is planned and produced by the physical education department, majors in this field hading the committees. The theme for this year's program is a May fete honoring the queen and her court.

Marshall, Munson Present Recital

Carolyn Marsall, senior piano major from Etowah, and Rosalie Anne Munson, senior voice major from Rochester, N. Y., will present a recital in the Music Hall of the Fine Arts Center on Friday evening, March 28, at 8 p.m. Doris Holt will be the accompanist.

Miss Marshall will play "Sonata in E flat, Opus 81a" by Beethoven, "Six Bagatelles, Opus 5" by Tcherepnine, "Intermezzo, Op. 76, no. 7" and "Intermezzo, Op. 119, No. 3" both by Brahm's. The last number played by Miss Marshall will be "Scherzo in B falt Minor" by Chopin.

Miss Munson will first sing four Canzonets by Haydn. They are, "The Mermaids Song," "Pleasing Pain," "The Wanderer," and "Sympathy." Next she will sing "Tarias" from "The Daughter of the Regiment," by Donizetti, "Chacun le sait" and "Il faut partir."

Next Miss Munson will sing a group of German songs by Mahler, "Phantasie Um schlimme Kinder artig qu machen," "Ich ging mit Lust durch einengrunen Wald," and "Starke Einbildungskraft."

The last group sung will be 4 contemporary songs, "The Sleep that Flits on Baby's Eyes" (from Gitanjali) by John Alden Carpenter, "The Daisies" by Samuel Barber, "The Windows of Sainte Chapelle" by Dora Flick Flood, and "Jack and Jill" by J. Michael Diack (written in the style of Handel).

Musicians Visit Festival

Music education majors with advisor Katherine Crews attended the East Tennessee Instrumental Music Festival at UT yesterday. The festival, held yesterday and today, features various bands, orchestras, ensembles, and soloists from schools in East Tennessee.

Students attending were Larry Thompson, Barbara Sandos, Randal LeQuire, Lucy Junkin, Martha Freeny, and Ruth Sexton.

Special Program Planned For Vespers Tomorrow

YM, YW, Pre-Min, and Student Vols will present a special program at Vespers tomorrow night.

Last Sunday evening the preacher was Commodore Fisher who spok on "What Are The Answers?"

Dr. Lloyd Attends Church Meetings

President Ralph Lloyd traveled to Cincinnati on Wednesday, Thursday and Friday of this week to attend the semi-annual meeting of the Permanent Commission on Inter-Church Relations of the Presbyterian Church of the United States of America. While in Cincinnati, he also attended joint meetings of similar committees of the US and United Presbyterian Churches.

March 17 and 18 he travels to Buck Hill Falls, Pa., to attend a conference of the Presbyterian USA members of the World Council of Churches.

On March 19 he will go to New York where he will spend a few days on other business.

March 27 and 29, Dr. Lloyd goes to Atlanta to attend the Southern Area Council Meeting of the YMCA.

On March 14 Mrs. Lloyd traveled to Nashville to attend the Tennessee State Meeting of the DAR. From there she goes to Benton, Ark., to spend a few days with her daughter, Mrs. Frank Kramer.

Allison Receives Chicago Law Award

The University of Chicago Law School has made Maryville College one of a limited list of liberal arts colleges for which it is providing tuition scholarships. This year the award has been made to James Allison, of Salineville, Ohio, whose work in college has been in the field of political science.

By this plan the college nominates a senior for the award, and he is given the scholarship if his credentials meet the requirements for admission to the Law School.

This recognition of Maryville by a law school of the strength and distinction of the University of Chicago is an indication of confidence in the college and in the value of liberal arts training as a ground work for professional training in general.

Holt, Brakebill To Give Recital

A junior recital will be given by Doris Holt and Don Brakebill on March 18 at 4:30 p.m. in the Music Hall of the Fine Arts Center. Miss Holt is a piano major from Upper Darby, Pa., and Brakebill is a voice major from Rockford.

Miss Holt will play Beethoven's "Sonata, Op. 2, No. 3"; Chopin's Mazurka, Op. 17, No. 4" and "Ballade, Op. 23"; and the first movement of Grieg's "Concerto in A minor, Op. 16."

Brakebill will sing a group from the song cycle "Die Sshone Mullerin" by Schubert, and two selections from Handel's "Judas Maccabaeus."

Crawford To Speak

Business Club will meet Thursday, March 20, at 7 p.m. in the Y Rooms with Hugh Crawford Jr., of Crawford and Caldwell Hardware Co., Maryville, as guest speaker.

Van Pelt Directs Opera Workshop's 'The Jumping Frog'

Austin Van Pelt, senior sociology major from Denver, Colo., is student director of "The Jumping Frog of Calaveras County," by Lukas Foss, the March 22 Opera Workshop presentation.

Jim Hunt, house manager; Joe Stater, stage manager; Art Van Alstyne, lights; James Shields, publicity; Emily Smith, tickets; Allan Caldwell, make up were also announced by the opera director, Harry Harter, associate professor of music.

The opera, to which the public is invited, with no admission charge, is under production by the cooperating music, drama and art departments, with the cast composed of students of applied voice.

Staging will be handled by the drama department, with Katherine Craven, assistant professor of drama in charge. The set will be designed and constructed by advance art students under the supervision of Charlotte Johnson, assistant professor of art.

Seniors Eva May Maltese and Margaret S. McClure will design, and freshmen art majors Ronald Lynn, Albert Rule, Altha Jane Turner, and Mary Leichty will paint.

The premier performance of "The Jumping Frog," was at Indiana University, Bloomington, in 1950. The next three important presentations were in New York, by the New York City "After Dinner Opera Company"; New England, at the Berkshire Music Festival, Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass.; the Pacific Coast, at Stanford University, Calif.

Among other performances of "The Frog" were by the College of Music of Cincinnati, Boston University, the Brooklyn College Light Opera Guild, and the Plymouth Rock Music Center, North Plymouth, Mass.

The televising of this opera in Bloomington, Indiana was one of the first video performances of an opera in the middle west.

Freshman Show Set For Tonight

The Freshman Talent Show, after weeks of postponement will be presented tonight at 7:30 in the Alumni Gym.

The scene of the show is set in a railroad station, where the Freshman Talent Special pulls in.

Aboard the train will be such famous personages as The Mariners, Frankie Sinatra, Jo Stafford, Governor Browning of Tennessee, Minnie Pearl, and that famous romance team, Romeo and Juliet.

The freshman class will be well represented in the production. There are approximately 100 students participating.

The show is written and directed by Liz Murphy and Harry McCall.

Education Club Names Kirkpatrick

Ann Kirkpatrick has been elected president of the newly-formed Christian Education Club. Other officers are Annie Laurie Cureton, secretary-treasurer; and Ethel Shockley and David Thomas, program chairmen.

The club meets on the second and fourth Tuesdays of each month, and membership is open to all students interested in Christian education. The next meeting will be in charge of Louise Packard who will give a demonstration of chalk talks.

The club's programs are based on the practical application of Christian education. Doris Cook, DRE at New Providence Presbyterian Church, Maryville, led a discussion on the work of a director of religious education last week.

Advising the club is the Rev. D. LeRoy Englehart, assistant professor of Bible and religious edu-

College Debaters Vie In Tourney At Lenoir Rhyne

Maryville College affirmative debaters won a majority of their debates in the twentieth annual South Atlantic Forensic tournament at Hickory, N.C., last week, but losses by the negative team canceled their aims for first place.

Results of the three-day seven round clash have been announced by Dr. Albert Keiser, director of the tournament and professor of English and public speaking at Lenoir Rhyne College.

The tournament, which also included 20 individual contests in various phases of student public speaking, was held at Lenoir Rhyne College. Sixteen Southern colleges and universities participated.

The Maryville affirmative scored four wins against six losses, but their colleagues were pounded out of five debates leaving only two favorable decisions. The 6-8 record landed Maryville in twelth place behind the winning debaters from the University of Florida.

Affirmatives victories were scored over Milligan College, East Tennessee State College, Carson-Newman College and East Carolina College. Losses were sustained at the hands of Wake Forest, Georgetown University and East Tennessee State.

Negative wins were made on Duke University and Mars Hill University, while losses went to Carson-Newman College, East Tennessee State, Appalachian State Teachers College, Wake Forest and Lenoir Rhyne.

Representing Maryville in the classic were Naomi Burgos of New York City, a sophomore, first affirmative; Evelyn Fields of Walstonburg, N. C., a junior, second affirmative; Robert Navratil of Miami, Fla., a sophomore, first negative; and Charles LaRue of Dallas, Tex., a junior, second negative.

Alternates accompanying the group were Newell Witherspoon of Chattanooga, a senior; and Robert W. Kees of Philadelphia, Pa., a senior.

MC Vesper Choir To Record Album

A group of the favorite choral works and responses, including the Alma Mater, is to be recorded by the Maryville College Vesper Choir on May 6, in the Music Hall of the Fine Arts Center.

These selections will be combined in an album which has been specially designed by the Art Department under the supervision of instructor Malcolm Dashiel, in cooperation with the art staff of Recorded Publications Company of Camden, N.J.

The inside liners will have traditional pictures of the College and the choir. The selections have not been completely decided upon but will be announced at a later date.

A sample album will be on display in the bookstore in the near future and orders will be taken through the bookstore.

Choir director Harry Harter urges all who have expressed an interest in the album to place a deposit with the bookstore by May 6, as the minimum order which the school must sell is 500 albums. The cost of the album is $5 including all taxes. A gift package may be ordered for $.40 more, which will cover handling and mailing costs.

Student Treasurers

Dr. L. L. Williams has announced that mid-semester financial statements should be submitted this week by the treasurers of all student organizations.

They may be handed in to the faculty advisers or to Dr. Williams in Fayerweather Hall.

Council Changes Nominating Plan For Annual Editor

Sally Brown, representing the Publications Committee, reported to Student Council this week the committee's proposed changes affecting the election of The Chilhowean editor; changes in nominating procedure were passed by Council.

The new method involves the presentation of nominations in writing to the president of the sophomore class. They may be made by any sophomore for himself or for any member of his class, with his permission. No nominations may be made from the floor at the nominating meeting, where those who have submitted written nominations will be narrowed to two.

Vice-president Tom Jones announced the schedule for spring elections: Y, March 27; Student Body petitions, April 1, campaign, April 2, chapel meeting and election April 3, run-off, April 4;

Class meetings to decide if to use nominating committee, April 3, nominating, April 17, election, April 18;

WSGA, MSO, ABC nominations, May 7, election, May 8.

Ralph Thiesse reported from the card table committee, and recommended the purchase of an all-metal table costing $7.09, with tax. Council unanimously passed a motion to buy, and it was then moved that the color be powder blue. After much deliberation, the motion was passed, 11-7. It was also moved and unanimously passed that the second color choice be chartreuse.

College Announces Catechism Awards

The Westminster College Scholarship Program has announced that two $100 scholarships will be available for Maryville students for 1952.

The only students who are eligible to apply for the scholarships, however, are college freshmen or upper classmen who are enrolled for the first time at a Presbyterian USA college. To obtain the scholarship, the student must know and recite the answers to the 107 questions of the Presbyterian Catechism, perfectly.

The names of the students who do qualify for these scholarships must be submitted before the end of the semester, or by next fall for the incoming Freshman class.

These scholarships have been made available through the Board of Christian Education of the Presbyterian Church in the USA, by an anonymous donor. The amount of the scholarship varies from year to year, and is based on the calendar year and not the academic year.

Juanita Whitee, a transfer sophomore, received such a scholarship last semester after answering the questions of the Catechism perfectly.

The Catchism booklets may be obtained in the Dean of Women's Office for ten cents.

Two Weeks Trip Covers 4 States

By Emily Smith

The Maryville College Vesper Choir will leave Maryville on April 24 to begin its 1952 tour extending through May 4 and covering a distance of more than 1,800 miles in the states of Tennessee, Illinois, Indiana, and Kentucky.

Nearly 40 members of the choir will go on tour with Harry H. Harter, director of the choir, Dr. F. A. Griffitts, and one woman faculty member as chaperones. The choir will give 11 full concerts, including two at air force bases, and will participate in regular church services twice.

Concerts will be given at First Presbyterian Church in Oak Ridge and at Graystone Presbyterian Church in Knoxville on Palm Sunday and at Porter High School in Blount County on April 18.

The tour itinerary includes concerts at Hillsboro Presbyterian Church, Nashville; High School Auditorium, Eldorado, Illinois; a theater near Chanute Air Force Base, Rantoul, Illinois;

Park Presbyterian Church, Streator, Illinois; Reid Memorial Chapel, Lake Forest College, Illinois; First Presbyterian Church, Oak Park, Illinois; Westminster Presbyterian Church, Rockford, Illinois; Second Presbyterian Church, Bloomington, Illinois;

First Presbyterian Church, Centralia, Illinois; Scott Air Force Base, Illinois; First Presbyterian Church, Pana, Illinois; First Presbyterian Church, Evansville, Indiana; and the United Church (Presbyterian US and USA), Bowling Green, Kentucky.

The concert program will include both religious and secular numbers. The first group includes "Oh Magnify the Lord" edited by George Lynn; "Crimond," a Scottish setting of the 23rd Psalm as arranged by Harry Harter; "Say Ye to the Righteous" and "Ye Shall Have a Song" from "The Peaceable Kingdom" by Randall Thompson.

The second group, telling of the prophecy, birth, passion, and resurrection of Christ, includes "Rise Up Shepherd, and Foller," a Negro spiritual arranged by Fred Waring; "Hodie, Christus Natus Est" by Healey Willan; "An Apostrophe to the Heavenly Host," a double chorus number by Healey Willan; the Passion Trilogy, three eighteenth century Ukranian spiritual songs arranged by Alexander Koshetz; and "Ascendit Deus" by Jacob Gallus.

The third group consists of light secular numbers including "Just As the Tide Was Flowing" by R. Vaughn Williams; "Chanson," a French song by George LeJeune; "Lark" by Aaron Copland; "The Australian Up-Country Song" by Percy Aldridge Granger; and the "Swiss Skiing Song," a German folk song arranged by Max Krone.

The concluding group includes "Sing We Merrily Unto God Our Strength," a double chorus number by Martin Shaw; "The Cherubim Song" by M. Glinka; "God's Son Hath Set Me Free" by Edvard Greig; "In Heaven Above" by F. Melius Christiansen, and the "Advent Motet," the Entrance Scene, by Gustav Schreck.

MC Grads Commissioned

Among 520 enlisted men commissioned ensigns in the Naval Reserve at Newport, R. I. this week at the Navy's only Officer Candidate School, was Louis E. Hofferbert of Knoxville, who received his BA from Maryville in 1950, and James Thurston of Chattanooga, who received his BS from Maryville in 1951.

Goals of Higher Education

By Van Holland

Amid the routine of college life, it is very easy for students to forget the real purpose of higher education. Certainly, everyone is familiar with the three R's of elementary education: Readin', 'Ritin', and 'Rithmatic. But it is questionable whether everyone is familiar with the three R's of higher education: Reason, Resourcefulness, and Responsibility. And for students, these three R's of higher education, these three fundamentals have to be truly mastered before the purpose of a college education is realized.

Reason, the first and most important of the higher R's, is usually defined as that ability that distinguishes man from animal. But reason means more than that; it means the ability to think rationally, to make decisions, and to pass judgment. With the tremendous economic, political, and moral problems facing all peoples it is imperative that they have command of this fundamental ability. A good test as to whether or not we are employing our reason is to examine our everyday thoughts in relation to the epigram, "Great minds discuss ideas, average minds discuss events, and little minds discuss people." Reason is not a simple process; it is developed only by arduous self-discipline. But it is a most noble accomplishment because it offers the solution to most of our problems.

Reason is really dependent upon the second R of higher education, resoucefulness. In order to be resourceful, a person needs to know where and how he can find the information to meet various situations, and then he must possess the ability and will to solve those stiuations. At any college will be found the available resource of the library, classroom, and textbook. However, there are, particularly here at Maryville, available the resources of religion, outside interests, and unselfish devotion to worthwhile causes. After all, the highest type of resourcefulness is that which inspires us to perform the good and true.

Responsibility is the third of the three R's of higher education, and it is one trait that is in heavy demand today. Naturally, a person should first of all be responsible to himself. Personal responsibility is that trait which makes one dependable, honest, and reliable. And it is that trait which makes us willing to solve our own problems and willing to accept the consequences. However, those who possess the advantages of a college education must also be responsible to and for their fellowmen and for society. Duties, obligations, positions of leadership, whatever they might be, should be accepted for the benefit of our fellowmen. This is the highest type of responsibility.

It is not necessary, of course, to attend college in order to develop these traits of reason, resourcefulness, and responsibility. But if our college education is not giving us these three R's, we have failed somewhere along the line. As college students, it is our duty to learn to reason with resourcefulness and act with responsibility. For these three R's are the true goals of higher education.

Heave that proverbial sigh of relief, put the pictures back on the walls and empty out the closet. . . open house is over. Not being overly able, this scribe didn't visit too many of the rooms, but judging from comments about campus I'll award big blue ribbons to third floor of Baldwin for their heavenly and hellish antics, to Jerry Wheat and Will Stradtman for their original interior decoration, to Joe Stater and Bill Van Benthuysen for their portrait of college life and their cleanliness (for once!), to Shirley Atwell for her reinforced springs, to Tom Allen for his companionable atmosphere, to Ed Scott, Dave Nolen, and Gene Parks for their "natural" look, to Bev Edwards for her forestry exhibit, to Helen Kinser and Emily Smith for their oriental masquerade, and to Dick Gardener for his descriptive words of welcome.

The one and only booby prize I'll award to Tom Kelly and Ken Hammond for their glass menagerie which was unveiled by Miss M. A. Kemp with the aid of the second floor crew.

The Right Retort

The N.E.A. Journal has come up with suggestions for "what to say" on a number of academic occasions. Here's the agenda.

When you are given an objective test: "It does not let you express yourself."

When you are given an essay test: "It's so vague. You don't know what's expected."

When you are given many minor tests: "Why not have a few big ones? This keeps you on edge all the time."

When you are given no tests: "It's not fair. How can he possibly judge what we know?"

Wheen every part of the subject is token up in class: "Oh, he just follows the book."

When you are asked to study a part of the subject by yourself: "Why, he never even discussed it!"

When the course is in lecture form: "We never get a chance to say anything."

When the course consists of informal lectures and discussions: "He just sits there. Who wants to hear the students? They don't know how to teach the course."

When detailed material is presented: "What's the use? You forget it all after the exam anyway."

When general principles are presented: "What did we learn? We knew all that before we took the course."

Voices, Masks, and Shadows

Townnight Entertainment

MC moviegoers will view one of Hollywood's newest movies, which uses one of its oldest plots, on Tuesday night, March 18, at the Capitol. "Ten Tall Men," a technicolor film, presents Burt Lancaster as the stalwart Mike Kincaid who shoots, fights, and soft-talks his way in and out of trouble.

The picture is set in the African desert, and includes the adventures of a French garrison saved from a Riff attack, as well as a love situation between Mr. Lancaster and a Riff enchantress (Jody Lawrence). It has been acclaimed as a highly agreeable comedy melodrama, and it contains all the unsavory characters, fights, and time-tested jokes that one might expect.

For the more privileged moviegoers who may want to go later in the week, a showing of "The Light Touch" may be seen at the Capitol on Thursday and Friday, March 20 and 21. This MGM film offsets a deft lesson in the act of stealing an old master's painting from a crowded Italian museum.

Stewart Grainger appears as the Raffles of art, and poses as a clever, nonchalant rascal. The tension, however, becomes a dawdling intrigue of dishonor among thieves, and is complete with double-cross and redouble-cross. It is a self-contained thriller, from the planning to the getaway, and seems extremely well-plotted and timed.

At the Park on Tuesday and Wednesday night of next week, a return performance of the film "Strictly Dishonorable" is featured. It is a rather slow-moving musical starring Ezio Pinza, who fails to live up to past performances, and Janet Leigh who merely adds some female charm. The music is good, however, and there is enough humor sprinkled throughout to keep the audience interested.

On Thursday and Friday, the Park is featuring "The Purple Heart Diary."

Between The Bookends

One of the finest books which has just been put on the Library Shelf is the new bestseller "A Man Called Peter". Here we find the personal story of a man whose whole life was dedicated to God and his fellowmen, as seen through the eyes of his wife, Catherine Marshall. It is the true story of a modern minister and gives the record of his love and faith—which has few equals.

It not only tells of his dynamic approach to life, but also includes many of his sermons and prayers which have directly touched the hearts and lives of many Americans. More than that, it is the story of one of the nations top Protestant ministers, who even served as the Chaplain of the U. S. Senate before his untimely death.

The book is acclaimed as being as youthful and stimulating as the young Peter Marshall was himself—truly one to be marked among the all-time greats.

For a penetrating study of what has happened to the American citizen in the last 50 years, one might turn ot the fascinating observations made by Gerald W. Johnson in the "Incredible Tale". With the passing of three giants of history—Wilson, Roosevelt, and Lenin in the last half century, Joseph Stalin yet remains to be reckoned with. Johnson has carefully examined and answered such questions as, how has the average man reacted to these awesome phenomena and what has been done to shape the men and events of his era? A more timely and up to date book would be hard to find.

For simply invigorating reading, one discovers "The Great Escape" by Paul Brickhill, which tells the fabulously true story of the planned escape of 600 American and British soldiers from the Germans during the last war. It is a story of perseverance, ingenuity, and suspense, that even has touches of humor, and which when tied together "puts fiction to shame!"

Writer's Corner

Congratulating . . . Our own Dr. Edwin Ray Hunter read last month in Writer's Workshop for the fiftieth time. His offering was "Of Classes and Classrooms," a personal essay on his years of teaching at Maryville. To Dr. Hunter we say "Long may he read!"

A plug for Writer's Workshop . . . The annual Workshop publication "Chips", is now on sale. The facts and figures about it may be found elsewhere in The Echo, but we'd like to give it a boost here, too. The people who wrote this year's selections and those who pubilshed it, under the editing hand of Jack Durant, are most deserving of our support; and we who read "Chips" are in for time well spent. Here is the best, and Maryville's best is pretty good!

Butts Receives Award

Mary Butts, former Maryville College student, now a junior at Vanderbilt School of Nursing, received earlier this month the school's annual alumni scholarship.

The award was made by Mrs. Joseph Ward, School of Nursing alumni president, at the group's annual dinner at the Belle Meade Country Club, Nashville.

Miss Butts won on the basis of aptitude, promise of leadership, and scholastic ability.

Sigs Meet Tonight

Alpha Sigma will meet tonight at 6:15 in the Y Rooms. Bob Lorenz will play selections on the piano including "Claire de Lune," "Slaughter on Tenth Avenue," and several other popular numbers.

A business meeting will also be held to discuss plans for the spring dance, the annual banquet and skit night.

Volleyball Flashnote!

In one of the most stirring comebacks in Intramural Volleyball play, YMCA's Fighting Six overcame a favored Frosh Seven Thursday afternoon to earn for themselves the right or perhaps set for themselves their execution by the A.A.S. yesterday afternoon.

Bob Johnson, a newcomer to the Y ranks for Varsity basketball was the big difference in Y's play along with that of Wes Miles from earlier season performances.

Buckley Assigned

Pvt. Jack L. Buckley, 23, son of Mr. and Mrs. Leroy Buckley, 567 East Market St., Mercer, Pa., has completed processing at the 2053d Reception Center here and is assigned to the 5th Infantry Division, Indiantown Gap Military Reservation, Pa., for army basic training.

He was graduated from Maryville College, receiving a Bachelor of Arts degree in biology.

ECHO FORUM

To The Editor of The Echo:

Our Trip to Knoxville College was very enjoyable last Sunday evening. To the faculty and students who graciously gave of their time and cars we wish to express our sincere thanks.

Sincerely yours,
The Choir

To The Editor of The Echo:

With an increasing interest in the presidential election, a great many students in the college have shown interest in supporting Senator Robert A. Taft of Ohio for the Republican nomination.

Any person wishing campaign pins or literature is asked to see either Ken Wilkinson or Bob Reed. These two have become active in the University of Tennessee club of Taft supporters. The club extends a cordial invitation to all interested students to attend their meetings.

It is the plan to start a Republican club to support the Republican candidate here in the fall.

●RECAPITULATIONS—Play in the Intramural Volleyball league came to a close yesterday with the A.A.S. being the favored winners the championship game. Since this story goes to press as the game was about to be played, it doesn't say who won, but if the A.A.S. didn't win—they should really hang up the nets for good. The aggregation is one of the best around—intramurally—and perhaps collegiately. As the final weeks play came to a close, it saw the Alpha Sig Highlanders winning three out of their last four games as did their cohorts, the Scotties. Had another half been played, their 4-6 records would have indubitably been better.

The Frosh Seven also came along quickly and if they stick together should really have a fine group and perhaps league winners two years from now and in the same position as the A.A.S.

The A.A.S. has somewhat of a history, too. The big guns of the game have been Al Springfield, Al Caldwell, Brannin Boyd, and Ralph Thiessie, and they have played as we recollect it with each o thefror some four years and have won the championship all four years. In their Freshman year they were the Mars; then the Olympics; last year the Athenian Greeks; and this year, the A.A.S.—perhaps meaning Athenian's Agile Sportsmen or something else—I have another guess but we don't know if its printable.

To the Towering Four (Who Made Many a Face Sore)

Oh, when its Intramural time in the fall
You can bet that Y will probably tops in touch football,
With some opposition from the Bluejays or Pre-Min;
But then when its the game of volley for serve—
Against the Towering Four, you need lots of nerve.

In soccer Alpha Sigma and the YM and the UN tangle it out
While in Basketball, its been the Hig Nips, or Wizzers, or Ex-Scrubs so stout,
But in Volleyball when its time to play
Against the Towering Four, you just go on your way.

In softball and track galore,
Most any team has a chance to score.
But when its the A.A.S. or what have you,
All you do is boo, hoo, hoo.

Yes, they've played great ball in their day,
And probably will do so when they go out on life's way.
So here's a great big cheer once again for the Towering Four;
Springfield, Thiessie, Boyd, and Caldwell, to whom the game of ball and volley has been no chore.

We might also put in a good word about the League's only year in-and-year-out standby—the Faculty team. Every year, the Intramural Big-domes are always assured of at least one team, and that's the Faculty Dr. Coaches D. L. Engelhardt, Howard Schwam, and Ralph Case, were kind of on the shallow side this year as talent goes but they stuck with it through thick and mostly thin with assistance now and then from novices Messrs. Dashiell and Fisher. Hence a short ode to them, too.

To The Ever Faithful Faculty

Though often in the classroom you are panned,
Yet more than some of your pupils on the volleyball court
you stand,
This year without you race spiker, Arthur S. Bushing,
In many a game you found yourselves the wrong score pushing.
But never fear, things will be better,
And perhaps next year you'll have a setter.
Such a team as yours has been faithful
Though not so often, as graceful.
And we think most of the fellows no longer consider you peasants,
Because on the courts you did remarkably well in your presence.

Thanx also go to officials, Branin Boyd, Max Sockwell, Al Springfield, Herb White, Gerry Walker, Horace Beckwith, and the others who helped out.

●AFTER A ONE WEEK'S DELAY Spring Football practice will begin next Monday for all those interested. The workouts, the subject of which have come up for much discussion nationally, have been delayed because of the high school wrestling tournament being held this past week at Maryville High and some of the participants of which are slated to go through drills with the '52 version of MC's Highlanders—perhaps with better fates than some of those who have played the last two years and are graduating.

●MARYVILLE'S SMALL TIME SMALL TOWN NATIONAL SPORT goes into action next weeek as softball play begins with some five or six teams entered. Hurting somewhat the first weeks of play will be the presence of some of the diamond-ballers on the football field. Pre-season favorites will be the team on which C. Allen, in particular is playing. The Punks for whom Allen twirled last year won the playoffs mainly on the whipsawing of a versatile right arm. Jerry King's team which last year carrieed th appelation of Hoboes also has a strong team entered with their pitching hopes to be centered on Jon Hale.

●MENTIONED ABOVE ARE TWO WORDS ALSO—Football field—as of yet, little or nothing has been done about its status since it furnished itself as an admirable place last semester for the making and testing of mud pies. The field was pretty banged up along with MC's players and unless something is done, the condition will continue to exist and not in a very good state, either. Coach J.D. Davis has been heard to say that he might let the Orange-and-Garnet squads hold their Spring football finale game two weeks from today and thus perhaps get the field plowed up and graded somewhat more than it is now—as matters stand, in spots it bears a resemblance to the Mountain across the street with its acknowledged dips and humps which were such a terrific menace to opposing foes in yesteryears when MC had better material gridiron wise—of course such things as better material are never the cause of defeats of teams supposed to win games from MC—it was the playing area that did it. However, if MC does ever manage to get into Football's Valhalla by winning a game, it will be interesting to see what answers are given as to the reasons for such a defeat—perhaps some opposing coach or sports writer will blame it on the new field's proximity to the woods and the birds eand wildlife therein that entice the mind of their athletes away from the bitter engagement that is going on on the field—therefore, the non-concentration of their minds(?) being the logical reason for the loss.

Alongside the same line is WHAT IS GOING TO BE DONE ABOUT THE "TRACK" surrounding said football field. For a while at least a year ago, it took on the semblance of looking like such, but as of now, with the well-known floods and sawdust laid out in the fall for fans who did not come to tread on it, the track is in a pretty bad looking shape. Perhaps the Men's M Club and the College can get together with a professional "contractor" and grader instead of a group of amateurs doing the job (and a good one, at least for a temporary time) and make some permanent installations such as a curb, wooden or otherwise to keep the cinders(?) in and the dirt and grass out.

MC Wrestlers Finish Fourth In Tournament

MC Team Is Fourth As Auburn Wins

After finishing out the season with a four and six record, Coach John A. Davis' wrestlers engaged in the Southeastern N.C.A.A. matches in Atlanta two weeks ago and finished fourth behind Auburn, Emory, and Chattanooga. All of MC's men save for Bill Morse lost in first round matches, though in some cases, MC men got Byes for first round matches and their losses were in semi-final bouts.

Morse Makes It

Maryville had no one in the 115 pound class bouts and so Morse was the first MC man to go into action—his bout resulting in a pin over Emory's Bennett. Morse then came back Saturday night to win a referee's decision over Auburn's David for being more aggressive to take the final championship in that class.

Al McCulloch got a bye along with Vanderbilt's Bill Frierson in the lower bracket of 130 pound competition and in the semi-final bout, the Vandy captain ground out an 8-1 win. McCulloch then wrestled Middle Tennessee's G. P. Long in a consolation bout and lost, also.

Dave Ritzman likewise got a bye in the 137 pound class but Emory's Bill Fulcher eliminated him from the running with a pin in a semi-final bout and Middle Tennessee's Lem Vaughn eliminated Ritzman in a consolation round bout for third place, MC getting a fourth here.

Once A Year

Jimmy Callaway then met a worked-up Bill Lammers and the Emory man took a 6-2 decision over Callaway. Lammers unfortunately lost his gifted prowess the newest night and lost to Auburn's Jerry Banes for the 147 pound laurels. Callaway had two bouts Saturday night in consolation play, defeating Vanderbilt's Cooper and then going against Chattanooga's Hodges who took third place in the tourney as a result of his win over MC's man.

Don Benton then met Vanderbilt's Bill Gibson and the Commodore man took anotheer of his two-point decisions over M's man, this time by a 6-4 score. Paul Merwin had the luck then to meet the future winner of the 167 division, Emory's Braly and the Atlanta-school's man took a 9-2 decision over Oom-Paul before defeating Auburn's Fred Shaw.

Bob Buchanan then faced Auburn's Cooley and the Auburn man took a decision before meeting Emory's Randy Kaarh. In the other bracket, Chattanooga's Mickey Myers had lost to Kaarh and thus was slated to go in a consolation bout against M's man. Myers won and took third place, thus, in the 177 division.

MC had no men in either the 191 or heavyweight bouts and the situation held true for four of the other seven schools attending the tourney as only three men were entered in each.

Winner's of the Tourney's Titles:

115 Class—Rutledge (Auburn) won over Albert (Emory), 5-0
123 Class—Morse (M) won over David (Auburn), ref. decision
130 Class—Downey (Auburn) won over Frierson (Vandy), 9-7
137 Class—Johns (Auburn) defeated Fulcher (Emory), 5-0
147 Class—Banes (Auburn) defeated Lammers (Emory), 5-0
157 Class—Rice (Georgia Tech) defeated Traylor (Emory), 5-0.
167 Class—Brady (Emory) won over Shaw (Auburn), 8-2.
177 Class—Kaarh (Emory) won over Cooley (Auburn), 8-2.
191 Class—Drake (Chattanooga) won over Glynn (Auburn), 5-0.
Heavyweight—McNair (Auburn) won over Sotus (Emory).

Losing Season For Matmen Is The First Since '35-'36

Callaway, Benton End Careers For MC With Morse Tops In Rebuilding Program

By Bob Coles

At the end of the 1951-52 wrestling season we pause to look back over the season and make a general summation for the benefit of those who are interested. In the words of the Brooklyn Dodgers the cry out on the Maryville mats was, for the most part, "Wait 'til next year". The season was a building one with Coach J.D. Davis giving many men experience, even though by using different ones might have given the team a little better change of winning. The entire squad, including those who never got to do any more than help carry the mat from Bartlett to the gym and back gave a great deal of time and effort to the building of a good team both for this year and next.

Through the Year

The Scotties started out with a match against the Knoxville Y way back in the first semester, and took their first match, 16-13, the fans seeing for the only time during the season Bob Sangster and Curt Wilbanks, both of whom dropped decisions. Bill Morse started the season off with a pin, and Al McCulloch put in his first appearance, wrestling to a draw, followed by Dave Ritzman's first showing in a victory. Benton was pinned, but Jim Squires and Bob Buchanan both took decisions.

Trouble

On the road the Scotties met with worries, dropping three straight matches to Chattanooga, Vandy, and Middle Tennessee State. On the trip Morse gained some more pins and Jim Callaway won his first match of the year against MTS, as did Dick Erickson at Vanderbilt. Coming home the matmen began to recoup and reversed their previous loss to Chattanooga by taking a 20-13 decision. Morse gained a forfeit. Jack Maxwell, another first appearance man, took a draw, Ritzman pinned his man, Callaway

Spring Football Workouts Begin

Practice On Monday

Some forty veterans and potential gridders will take to the old football field behind the Student Center Monday afternoon for initial workouts for 1951 Spring Football Practice. Coach John A. Davis will be in charge of the some 40 men expected to participate in two weeks of drill which will culminate in the annula Orange-Garnet game on March 22 on the new football field.

Intramurals....

After finishing a quick three weeks of action, play in the 1951 Volleyball League came to a close Saturday with the A.A.S. team on top by virtue of a ten-nothing record. To all intents and purposes, the standings were determined the day before when the A's met and defeated a cracker-jack Frosh Seven team out to upset the apple cart. The applecart was shaken somewhat but continued on down the road to victory as the Frosh Seven try was met and crushed.

In tournament play Monday and Tuesday, Alpha Sigma's teams took forfeits with the Scotties losing to the A.A.S.'s in a quarterfinal game Tuesday after which the Faculty team dropped 15-9 and 11-0 decisions to last year's champs.

Miles Is Champ

Badmintoning was also featured with some forfeits as Wes Miles took the netting championship from Clyde McCampbell.

Intramural Wrestling

The Intramural wrestling tournament saw new title-holders in all the weight classes as last year's holders had left school or had gone to higher competition or different weights.

Veni, Vedi, Veci

Jim Demeer, th "Battling Bantam from the Bronx" won the 130 pound title over Clyde McCampbell, a tennis star in other moments. With reduced time limits on the periods, McCampbell seemed ahead till the fading portions of the second portion when Demer reversed him and McCampbell gave out—Demer's being in better shape telling the difference as he got a pin in the last period.

Hoop—Wah, Rah, Rah

Dave Helwig, who lost the title in the 137 class last year to Al McCulloch in semi-final bouting won it this year with a second period pin over Jake Peppers—superior experience again being the difference.

Wilbanks And McCall

Curt Wilbanks who failed in 137 pounding last annum took to the Bartlett mats this spring in the class ten pounds higher up and won it with a decision over Davis Smith. The 157 class saw some

Baseballers Begin Workouts With Netsters While Trackmen Wait For News of Meets

Coach Lombe Honaker is attempting to form this year's edition of the Scottie baseball team from a group of twenty-four candidates. Eight of these are from last year's team.

This year's tentative schedule, printed below, will probably be revised much in the next week. Morristown, a class D team in the Mountain States League, will play the Scots on a home and home basis; the second game to be determined later. Hiwassee will also be scheduled for a few contests, one probably around April 1.

Eight Vets Here

Track Situation Muddled

MC's athletes of the winged toe and the bulging muscles were somewhat delayed in their opening of organized practice this past week as Coach John Davis waited for news as to whether or not East Tennessee State was going to field a track team this year.

The Bucaneers were to have furnished two-thirds of the MC opposition for the coming year with a home-and-home schedule arranged to add to that already definite with William Jennings Bryan. But with the lack of news, Coach Davis has gone ahead with Spring Football practice, and if nothing arrives from ETS about their track situation, the situation may be the same at MC since the Milligan relays also run off at Johnson ity are in an indefinite stage also.

Tracksters are otherwise urged to report to Coach Davis for uniforms and unofficial workouts will be held next week.

Netmen Strum Around For Opener With Vols

The 1952 version of the Scottie tennis team began practicing last week, but due to the rainy weather MC has been having lately, have done most of their practicing indoors. With the help of the weatherman the Scots will be on the courts this week end and we'll hear such familiar words as "deuce," "love-forty," "my add" etc. On Saturday, March 27 the Scots will play Tennessee on the Memorial court and the curtain will rise on another Scos season.

Since the last two contests of the 1948 season the Scot netmen have compiled an excellent record of twenty-three wins and only two losses. Last year the Scots finished with a 7-1 record, losing only to Tennessee. Also the Scotties placed second in the State Intercollegiate Meet which was held at Sewannee.

Four Lettermen Back

Although letterman, Wes Miles, has used up his eligibility, the Johnsonmen with a nucleus of four lettermen: Clyde McCampbell, Kent Buser, and John Anderson should have another bangup season.

Other veterans of last years' squad that are also returning this year are: Marshall England, and Bill Faulkner. Early this week Coach Johnson announced the first rankings in the 1952 tennis ladder. Clyde McCampbell tops the list and is followed by Kent Buser, Ed Breitbach, Marshall England, John Anderson, Dick Lebold, Bill Faulkner, Ed Scott, and Jerry Knecht.

Cagers Winning Season Is First In Three Years

Shields, McMahon, And Allen End Cage Careers

By Bob Navratil

Scottie basketball fans, treated to their first winning season in three years, witnessed a high scoring, race horse type of basketball that had them roaring in most of the team's home court appearances. The Maryville hoopsters were strictly a home team, winning ten out of twelve at home and dropping eight out of ten on the road.

Opening at home against Reliable Motors, a team studded with ex-U.T. performers, the hustling Scots moved out in front early, and remained there until midway in the final quarter when—after losing Bob Johnson and Dick Abbott via the foul route—they were overhauled by the visitors. Shields headed the parade of scorers with 26 points, but this was little solace to the Maryville faithful, who watched their lads wind up on the short end of a 77-72 score.

Traveling over to Oak Ridge, Coach Honaker's lads won one of their scarce road victories, 58 to 42 over Carbide and Carbon. Shields again led the scorers, this time with 22, and a healthy 19 was also chipped in by Dick Abbott.

Traveling to Hiwassee for their third game of the season, the results brought back anguished memories of the football encounter. After trailing 47 to 42 at the half, the Scots came roaring back to battle nose and nose with the growling Tigers from up state only to be thwarted in the last minute by Don Brown's free throw. Shields, who had one of his best nights of the season with a total of 34 points, was not quite enough to do the job.

Moving on to Tusculum two nights later, the Orange and Garnet clad basketeers continued on their high scoring way, but just couldn't match baskets with the rangy home team, finally succumbing 82 to 78 after enjoying an eight point lead at half time.

With a record of one and three, the Scotties returned home to face what was supposed to be one of their toughest tests of the season but—to the joy of faithful followers—they walloped Lincoln Memorial 92 to 80 and the visitors were never really in the game. Shields, with 21, Abbott, with 20 and Jim Wiley, with 18—dominated the scoring.

Carbon and Carbide furnished the opposition in the Scots final appearance before Christmas

PRESIDENTIAL PRIMARY

In the presidential primary in New Hampshire this week, General Dwight Eisenhower emerged as the Republican choice, and Senator Estes Kefauver of Tennessee won the Democratic victory over President Truman. Eisenhower won all 14 of the state's delegates to the Republican national convention defeating Senator Robert A. Taft, and Kefauver got all 12 of the Democratic delegates.

CUBAN REVOLUTION

Fulgencio Batista seized the Cuban government this week in an almost bloodless coup, ousting President Carlos Prio Socarro. Batista, a veteran revolutionary, ruled Cuba from 1934 to 1944.

CHINESE CHARGES

Last week the Chinese foreign minister made a formal charge over the Peiping radio that the United States was waging germ warfare. He demanded punishment for the American fliers who allegedly dropped diseased vermin.

FRENCH GOVERNMENT

French Premier Pinay recently formed the first moderately conservative government since World War II.

COLLEGES

A survey taken in a number of American colleges indicated that the trend among students is toward science and technical training and away from the fields of liberal arts and humanities, enrollment in which has been dropping. This has been labelled "tragic" and "a misfortune" by a number of prominent college and university officials.

holidays and, with the second five seeing action most of the last quarter, Coach Honaker could not keep the game close, the final tally being 87 to 47.

The Maryville five continued winning by handing Milligan a 69 to 62 defeat before the home crowd, Dick Abbott and "Meano" Shields both hooping 22 points, but they traveled up state and ran smack into an 82 to 47 drubbing at the hands of Tennessee Wesleyan.

Finally Scalped

A packed gym of yelling fans then saw the Scotties avenge their early one point defeat at the hands of Hiwassee, both teams putting on a nip and tuck battle and leaving the floro at half time with Maryville enjoying a three point lead. Both teams continued to pop the cords as Hiwassee forged out in front a few times—but the Scotties weer not to be denied and, with Shields having his best night of the season thus far (36 points for "Pasqual"), MC tucked away a nice 70 to 67 victory.

Too Close

Emory and Henry from Virginia way paid the Scotties a visit on the night of January 28 and went happily home with a one point victory. The speedy Scots were neck and neck with the clever Wasp ball handlers through out, and Shields again banged home the night's high total of points, 28 this time, but to little avail—the final count being 69 to 68.

The Road Again

M.C. then ventured away from home and dropped another one point decision to King College, 48 to 47, and then, moving to arson-Newman two nights later, fell before the hard driving Eagls, 56 to 49.

Now boasting a three game losing streak Honaker and Co. returned home and also to winning ways vs. the expense of the North Georgia Cadets, 88 to 82, Abbott's 19 points being the best individual scoring effort for the Scots.

King College trotted into the Alumni Gym a few nights later and almost left with a ball game, the Scotties, playing their worst game before a home crowd, but finally emerging with a 57 to 55 victory.

King Klunked

L.M.U. attoned for the early season drubbing handed to them by the Scots on our court by drubbing them 97 to 62 at Harrogate, the Scots returning home two nights later to reverse an early season loss to Tusculum by a 7 point, 65 to 58 margin.

Sheilds, turning in the best performance of his college career and one of the best individual scoring jobs in Maryville court history, netted 46 points to lead the Scots to a 97 to 83 win over the University of Chattanooga's Moccasins. With the season fast drawing to a close, Maryville's hoopsters departed on a three-day trip, dropping games to Emory and Henry, 95 to 86 and to Milligan, 83 to 56, Charlie Allen's 26 point performance in the Emory game being the bright spot of the trip.

Slow Action

Shields again treated Maryville fans to a fine 29 point scoring effort as the Scotties scored at will against Tennessee Wesleyan, who had to freeze the ball the whole last quarter (only three points for the Scotties in the last ten minutes) to keep them from running up a hundred points or more and breaking the school's single game scoring record: the final: 92-58.

Joy was twofold as the Orange and Garnet out raced Carson-Newman before a packed gym of shouting students and not only reversed an earlier loss, but garnered the first Scot athletic victory of the season over its vaunted rivals. Charlie Allen, playing his final college game in a very successful college athletic career on the hill, contributed 16 points and a fine floor game to close out his career. Joe Hopkins tied with Allen for the night's best Scottie point total, also getting 16 in the 86 to 63 triumph. Shields and Abbott, dumping in 25 and 24 points, respectively, led the way as the Scots closed out the season with a 81 to 78 victory on University of Chattanooga court, giving the team a season's record of twelve wins and ten losses.

The season saw two Maryville basketball reecords go by the boards; the team, averaging 72 points per game to the opponents 70.3, set a new scoring record for twenty-two games with a grand total of 1,584 points; "Mino" Shields, departing ace forward, broke Bobby Boring's modern record of 333 points for one season by pouring a total of 478 points through an average of 21.3 points per game.

Wrestling Review

took a decision, Benton dropped a decision, Merwin won by forfeit. Squires dropped a decision, and Buchanan was pinned.

Another Win

The Scots continued their winning ways at home by dropping MTS, for another reversal of the reecord in a clos one 15-14. Again the "big" man for the Scots, Bill Morse opened with a pin, but things looked bad when Maxwell and Ritzman dropped decisions. Then Callaway took a decision, but Erickson lost one. Merwin then pinned his man and Squires took a draw, and George Kipp lost a decision.

The Roof

Then the roof fell in, as the team lost three in a row. On the road they encountered first Emory University. Morse pinned his man, but McCulloch lost and Ritzman was pinned before Callaway took a decision. But the worst was yet to come as Benton, Merwin, and Buchanan lost decisions and Dick Patton was pinned in a 22-8 defeat. Auburn did better however, as Maryville gained only five points through a Morse pin, before Jack Maxwell was pinned. Ritzman and Callaway, then Benton lost decisions. Merwin was pinned and Buchanan dropped a decision, and the Scotties gave up a forfeit in the Heavyweight division, for a 29-8 loss.

More and More

Then the Knoxville Y dropped the wrestlers. Jim Demeer won a decision, and Morse pinned his man, but Dave Helwig and Erickson lost decisions. Callaway won, but Wayne Yorke pinned Merwin. Bob Buchanan regained the lead with a pin, but ex-Maryville wrestler Bob Proffitt pinned Kipp to tie up a 16-14 win for the Y.

At Last

The Scotties returned home for a season ending triumph over Vanderbilt University.

The Scotties started out with ten quick points on a forfeit and Bill Morse's pin the 130 pound class. Ritzman then took a decision as did Jim Callaway. Then Don Benton lost but Paul Merwin took a much disputed draw with his opponent. Herb Catlin was pinned, and Bob Buchanan lost a decision, but the match went to the Scotties.

. . .and Still Champ

Standing out again for the Scotties was Bill Morse, team captain and sparkplug. Bill did not lose a regular season match, and went on into the tournament to repeat as the champion of the 123 pound class. Jim Callaway also did an outstanding job for the team after a slow start. Jim put in his last year on the mats for the Highlanders, as did Don Benton, who never failed to give all the energy and strength that was in him in every match, to earn for himself the name of a man with a lot of guts and nerve.

B Basketball . . . .

By Hersh Mosier

Before we close the record books until next season, let us see how the B Scots fared in 1951-52. The Scotties compiled a fine record of twelve wins and four defeats for a percentage of .750.

Sour Note Turns Sweet

The season started on a sour note with the Scots losing to Farr's Esso 19-39, but the Scots improved as the season went along and were able to defeat the oilmen 56-44 in the return game. In their next contest the Scots emerged victorious over the 663'rd. Air Force Detachment 48-36 in the first of a three game series. The Scots took the second encounter with the airmen easily 42-32 but they barely won the third 52-51. In the latter game the airmen led by 2 points with only seconds to go but Scot Kent Buser sank a crip shot and the Scots took the lead and the ball game. Shooting accurately, the Scots then trounced the National Business College of Knoxville 71-38 in their next game.

Following that game came a 51-42 win over Maryville High. Going out of their class the Scots lost to Tennessee's B's 63-46. In a return game the Vols rolled up the score over the Scots 103-57. Although the Scots never stopped trying the Vols with its starting five all hitting over 14 points crushed the Scots. After the first Vol game the Scots eked out a 40-35 win over the Question Marks, one of the leading MC Intramural teams of the season. Then came the second Air Force game which was mentioned earlier. Next the Scots defeated Walland High 60-32, but lost their next game to Everett, now in the state tournament, 46 to 32.

The following two games (Air Forcee and Tnn. B.) hav already been covered.

After the Second Vol game the Scots barely defeated the independent Snowbirds 75-72. Then came Porter (69-23) and Greenback (53-30), Townsend (43-23). Then the Scots closed their season with their victory over Farr's Esso.

During the season several of the Scots went over double figures, but none scored twenty points or better. Phil Young, Bill Van Benthysen, and Bob Davis were the scoring leaders for the Scots. Glen Sexton came on very well near the end of the season to turn in several good performances. In this writer's humble opinion the most improved player on the squad at the season's close was Doc Jennings. After hardly scoring a point season long, although he rated an A for effort Doc had his night against Porter and scored eight points. Van Benthysen's 19 points also in the Scot-Porter game was the highest individual performance. For the opponents John Anderson of the Snowbirds and Bill Lovelace each racked up 22 points.

'An American In Paris' Will Be Dance Theme

Spring Formal Set For April 22

By Pat Lovette

"An American In Paris," will be the theme of the annual Spring Dance set for 8 p.m., Tuesday night, April 22 in Alumni Gym.

This year Theta Epsilon and Alpha Sigma are in charge of the dance. The two brother and sister societies alternate each year with Bainonian and Athenian which presented "Penthouse Serenade" at the Spring Formal last year.

Music for the dance this year will be furnished by a 15-piece orchestra, under the direction of Randall LeQuire, made up of college students. John Monteith will furnish vocal numbers.

Admission charge is $1.20 per couple with no stag tickets being sold. The dance is formal, with corsages for the girls not to exceed $3, according to Social Board regulations.

Bill Davis will serve as Master of Ceremonies. Peggy Kettles is president of Theta and Tasker Robinette is president of Alpha Sig. Nancy Fuguson, Ruth Burgos, Rolf Duggar, and Bill Davis are on the committee in charge of the whole function of the dance.

Other committees are decorations: Tish Buchanan and Jack Mowatt; refreshments: Barbara Murphey and Harry McCall; tickets: Ran Pierce and T. K. Robinette; and publicity: Trudy Farman and Curt Wilbanks.

Pirates

"Pirates of Penzance" by Gilbert and Sullivan is scheduled to be performed by the Men's Glee Club and the All-Girl Choir on Friday and Saturday, April 18 and 19.

The operetta will be held in Alumni Gym at 8 p.m.

Student Recital Set For April 1

A student recital will be presented by the Division of Fine Arts in the Music Hall of the FAC on April 1 at 4:30 p.m.

Renditions are Monteverde's "Lasciatemi morire" by Martha Freeny with Ruth Sexton accompanying, Arne's "Where the Bee Sucks" and Rosa's "Selve voi che speranza" by Shirley Smith and Shiela Sutton as accompanist.

Ruth Blackburn will present Bach's "Vom Himmel hoch, da komm' Ich her" and Janice Clemens will present the Allegro, Andante and Presto movements of Mozart's "Sonata in G Major."

Jeannette Whitaker will sing Schubert's "Wohin?" accompanied by Caroline Lime. "Fur Musik" by Franz will be sung by Jean Downey with Dorothy Wells accompanying.

George Carpenter will render "Concert Etude in D Flat Major" by Liszt, and Ann Dishner will sing Edwards' "Into the Night" with Ann Buckley as accompanist.

Debussy's "Golliwog's Cakewalk" will be presented by Beverly Kingston. Jean Morgan will play Debussy's "Danseuses de Delphes" and "Minstrels."

Faculty Plan Saturday Recital

Edrie Sellick, soprano, and Katherine Crews, violinist, will be featured in a Faculty Recital in the Music Hall of the Fine Arts Center on Saturday, April 5, at 8 p.m. They will be accompanied by Dorothy Vawter and Katherine Davies.

Miss Sellick will open the program with "Invocazione di Orfero," by Jacopo Peri and "Nebbie," by Ottorina Respighi. Miss Crews will then render the Sonata No. 1 in A Major, "Andante," "Adagio," "Allegro," by G. F. Handel.

The two artists combine their talents on two numbers "I Follow Thee Also—St. John Passion," by J. S. Bach and L'Amero, saro constante—Ll Re Pastore," by W. A. Mozart.

Miss Sellick continues with seven more numbers, concluding her program with Biblische Lieder Vol. 11 by A. Dvorack. Miss Crews presents the final group "Hexapoda", "Gut-Bucket Gus", "Betty and Harold Close Their Eyes" and "Jim Jives," by R. R. Bennett.

16 Seniors Join MC Honor Society

At chapel services held last week, 16 seniors were recognized as membrs of Alpha Gamma Sigma, Maryville College's scholarship honor society. Membership is limited to 10% of the senior class, and the requirements include a 6.5 average, high character, and an active contribution to the college campus.

Elected to the honor society were James Allison, Cora Anthony, Katherine Blackburn, Barbara Blum, Peggy Kettles, Robert Lynn, Lena Belle McGaha, Carolyn Marshall, Jean Pelton, William Robinson, Doris Somerville, Alvin Springfield, Richard Waka, Sue Watson, Gerald Williams, and Newell Witherspoon.

Participating in the program honoring the new members were Dr. E. R. Hunter and Evelyn Guss. The speaker was President Robert L. Kincaid of Lincoln Memorial University.

Leaders Report On Church Union

Presbyterians Say Unity Near

By Kathy Chase

Two weeks ago today, President Ralph W. Lloyd returned to campus from Cincinnati where he had participated for three days in an important church union conference of more than 50 representatives from the Presbyterian Church in the USA, the Presbyterian Church in the US, and the United Presbyterian Church.

It was in preparation for this conference that on Saturday, March 1, a meeting was held on Maryville campus, with representatives from each of the fore-mentioned churches.

Those taking part in the meetnig held at Morningside were President Lloyd, Chairman of the Permanent Commission on Inter-Church Relations of the Presbyterian Church in the USA; Dr. T. M. Taylor, professor of the New Testament at Pittsburg Xenia Theological Seminary, Pittsburgh, Pa., Chairman of the United Presbyterian Committee on Church Relations; Dr. Frank H. Caldwell, president of the Louisville Presbyterian Theological Seminary, Louisville, Kentucky, and secretary of the Permanent Committee on Co-operation and Union of the Presbyterian Church in the US;

And Dr. Henry Barraclough of Philadelphia, manager of the Department of Administration of the Office of the General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church in the USA and clerk of the Joint Committee on union.

This conference was held to edit revisions of a plan of union which was considered March 12-14 in Cincinnati by the full committee on church co-operation and union of the three denominations. Each committee was composed of nearly 20 persons elected from the denomination as a whole.

The story behind the MC meeting is this.

In 1938, the Presbyterian Church in the USA and the Presbyterian Church in the US began conversations concerning a union to heal its division over Civil War issues in 1861. The first tentative proposed plan of union was printed in 1943. In 1946 it was revised and printed again. Then in 1949, there were further revisions and another printing of the plan. This plan consists of about two-hundred fifty pages and includes a Confession of Union and a constitution for the reunited church.

In 1950, these two churches invited other Presbyterian and Reformed Churches in the US to join in the union and the United Presbyterian Church accepted. In October 1951 and January 1952, small negotiating sub-committees, of which President Lloyd is a member, from each of the three churches, held meetings and worked over the plan developed in the past 10 years. At the January meeting of these sub-committees, composed of six persons from each denomination, it was decided that the editing meeting for the plan of union should be held on our campus March 1, 1952.

Similiar small conferences of the same individuals were held at Morningside in both June and September, 1951, preparing meetings that have been held in the past.

At the time of the March 1 meeting at MC, the following statements were made for The Highland Echo as to the future program. If the joint conference in Cincinnati accepts the recommendations of the smaller committees, reports will be made to the three General Assemblies that progress has been made toward agreement on a plan of union for the three churches. Whether any plan will

Societies Ready Skit Programs For Tonight At 8

Athenian, Bainonian, Alpha Sigma, and Theta Epsilon will present the annual skit night program tonight at 8 in Alumni Gym.

The winner of the contest will receive the trophy given by Ralph Reed, Maryville attorney, to keep until the next contest. Each of the societies will choose one judge, and one neutral judge will be selected.

The first contest was won by Bainonian in 1949. Athenian took the trophy in 1948, followed by two successive victories for Theta. Last year Athenian again won the contest.

Bainonian will present the story of two criminals who try to capture a famous frog to get his autograph. This skit is written and directed by Nina Ruth Gillette.

Theta's skit is concerned with the history of an umbrella which spends four years in college, and is written by Barbara Rosensteel and Betty Lester.

Alpha Sigma will go out west with a group of its members, who will have some very interesting experiences. The Sigs' skit is of a new type written by Neale Pearson assisted by Joe Stater. Pearson is directing the skit which will feature Ronald Jenning, Harry McCall and the Alpha Sigma quartet.

Athenian's skit, written and directed by Bruce Heuser, is a take-off on a classic piece of literature. The scenery will be suggestive of the ultra-modern mode of decorations.

Lighting will be handled by Jack Mowatt and Dwight Moody.

Pieper Receives Master's Degree

Mrs. Mary Gladys Pieper, instructor in sociology, received her Master of Arts degree in sociology from the University of Tennessee at this month's commencement ceremonies.

Since 1947, Mrs. Pieper has been working on her degree, completing the course work in the summer of 1951. The topic of her thesis is "Church Organization in Bradley County, Tennessee, in 1950," taking all churches in Bradley County and discussing them in their social frame of reference.

Mrs. Pieper graduated with 18 other students taking an MA or doctorate from UT. She obtained her BA from Maryville College.

Student Council

MARCH 19, 1952

The procedure for nomination of the Chilhowean editor as outlined in last week's Highland Echo is applicable also to the yearbook business manager, it was explained in Student Council.

There was one Town Night violation, failure to sign in, and the penalty was applied.

Ralph Thiesse, chairman of the card table committee, presented to Council a turquoise table, in accordance with Council's action of a week ago. It was accepted by unanimous vote.

No Athenian Meeting

Athenian will not have a regularly scheduled meeting this evening because of Skit Night.

The program last week featured a volleyball game between the Athenian Stars and the Athenian Crescents. The Stars were the victors.

Knox Choir To Sing At Vespers Tomorrow

The Knoxville College choir, under the direction of Newell Coleridge Fitzpatrick, will sing at Vespers tomorrow evening, and the preacher will be Dr. James A. Colston, Knoxville College president.

The service will be held at 7 p.m. in the Music Hall of the Fine Arts Center.

College To Offer Arts Scholarship

Scholarship awards based upon competitions in music and art will be made at the close of competitions on April 5, 1952. These awards are open to high school seniors or high school graduates who have not attended a college or an art school of college level whether or not they plan to attend Maryville College or some other approved institution.

There is a $200 award in piano, $200 in voice and $100 in art. If the winner choses Maryville College $100 will be added by the college.

A candidate for competition in art must submit six selected examples of his work to be judged as well as a recommendation from his art teacher and a record of his grades and standing in the graduating class.

Candidates for competition in piano and voice must perform in competition, have a transcript sent as well as recommendations from his high school principal and an applied music teacher.

There are special requirements as to the music to be used in the competition. Those interested may get additional information from Professor Katharine Davies, Chairman, Division of Fine Arts not later than March 29, 1952.

Newman Urges Kefauver Support

Students supporting Sen. Estes Kefauver (D., Tenn.) for president were urged this week to contact friends in states soon to conduct presidential primaries. The request was made by Dick Newman, East Tennessee College Division Co-chairman of the state Kefauver For President Club.

Primaries in which Kefauver's name has been entered are Wisconsin, April 1; Nebraska, April 1; Illinois, April 8; New Jersey, April 15; Maryland, May 5; Ohio, May 6; and Oregon, May 16.

"Contacting friends in these states and urging them to vote for Senator Kefauver in the presidential primary will greatly improve his chances," Newman stated. "The New Hampshire victory can be repeated."

"Every college student of voting age, regardless of his political preference," Newman continued, "should register in his home county and apply for an absentee ballot in order to take part in next November's election."

Manager Announces Annual Delivery

Tasker Robinette, business manager of the 1952 Chilhowean, has announced that yearbooks will be ready for delivery either by this week-end or early next week.

However, delivery cannot be made until $1000 in bills have been paid, Robinette said. Time of delivery will depend upon promptness of settlement by organizations and individuals.

Vols Plan Sunday Movie

Student Vols will see a movie entitled, "Again, Pioneers" tomorrow night following Vespers in Bartlett Hall. The movie concerns migrant workers in the West and their need for church organization.

All members are reminded not to forget the April Fool's Day picnic on April 1.

Students Choose New Officers

By Van Holland

Ruth Burgos, junior sociology major from New York City, and Robert Johnston, sophomore from Lansdowne, Pa., were elected to head next year's YWCA and YMCA, it was released yesterday by Tom Jones, Chairman of the Student Council Elections Committee.

Other newly elected officers of YWCA include Mary Edith McMillan, vice-president; Carol Demler, secretary; Trudy Singleton, treasurer, and Janice Eakin, Nu Gamma Chairman.

Incoming YMCA officers with Johnston are Harold Black, vice-president; Jack Maxwell, secretary; Kent Buser, treasurer, and Doug Stubblefield, Freshman Advisory Board Member.

Burgos, a member of the YWCA Devotions Committee, was last year's president of Spanish Club. She has been an active member of Theta Epsilon and served on the deputation teams.

Johnston is a member of Student Council and the basketball team He also has been an active member in YMCA and Athenian.

A sociology major from Marietta, Georgia, and next year's YWCA vice-president, Mary Edith McMillan is this year's Nu Gamma Chairman. She is a member of Theta Epsilon and was the Alpha Sigma Sweetheart of 1950-'51.

Incoming secretary Carol Demler is a sophomore Bible major from Pittsburgh, Pa. She is a Nu Gamma leader in YWCA.

The newly elected treasurer, Trudy Singleton, is a junior who comes from Senecaville, Ohio. Singleton is on the Worship Committee of the YWCA cabinet and is a past member of The Echo staff.

Janice Eakin, next year's Nu Gamma Chairman, is a sophomore who comes from Prospect Pa. She is a Nu Gamma Leader.

Next year's YMCA vice-president, Harold Black is a sophomore from Ridgway, Pa. A member of last year's cross country team, Black is now a member of Student Council and a representative to the MSO.

Incoming Y secretary, Jack Maxwell is a sophomore from Clinton, S.C. He is treasurer of Athenian and the Spanish Club.

Kent Buser, newly elected treasurer, is a sophomore philosophy major from Cornersville, Ohio. He is a member of the tennis team and College Playhouse.

Doug Stubblefield, incoming Freshman Advisory Board Member, comes from Springfield. He is a member of Alpha Sigma and was Assistant Manager of the basketball team this year.

Nearly 200 active members of YWCA voted; 102 of the 120 active members of YMCA voted. During next week, the newly elected Y presidents will form their cabinets.

Dr. Turner Speaks At Chapel Service

Dr. Herman L. Turner, pastor of Covenant Presbyterian Church, Atlanta, Ga., was the speaker at Thursday morning chapel services. He is in Knoxville to take part in Lenten Services at the New Prospect Presbyterian Church.

Dr. Turner, a member of the Board of Trustees of Maryville College, is chairman of the committee of building funds in the Synod of the Mid-South.

According to Dr. Turner, Maryville is the best denominational college he knows. He says that this is no just his own opinion, but that he has judged it to be best because of the facts about the leaders it has produced.

It is his opinion, he said, that Maryville is doing more than any other college to provide the United States with the type of spiritual leadership of which he spoke Thursday morning.

For A United Church

By Dick Newman

The Highland Echo is pleased to be able to include in this issue a news-feature on the Presbyterian Church union movement and the significant part Maryville's president Ralph Lloyd is playing in it. This college's relationship to the general trend towards Protestant Church union is a unique one, not only because of President Lloyd's position with various ecumenical bodies, but because of the great number of students here who expect to enter vocations connected with the Church.

Nothing will be more significant in our time of relationship with the Church and its thought and activity than the growing spirit of Protestant oneness and the growing manifestation of that spirit in closer cooperation and actual organic union. The first meeting of the World Council of Churches in Geneva in 1948 has been called the most important event in Protestant history since the Reformation. The newly-reorganized National Council of Churches of Christ presents in this country a united Protestant front and an opportunity for the best in cooperation on a national scale.

As people from this college move into the church both as clergy and laity, probably no single issue will present itself that will carry with it the historical significance as this great contemporary drive for greater cooperation and union on every church level. The USA Presbyterian Church with which this college is related has long been a leader in this movement. Presbyterian leadership enthusiasm and money have gone into the World Council, the old Federal Council of Churches, the National Council, and union movements among the different branches of the Presbyterian family itself.

It is of course, this last with which we here have felt most close and with which we have been most familiar. Progress has been made, is being made and leaders are confident that we shall all soon see a great union of the Presbyterian churches. The role of President Lloyd in the leadership and planning which has brought the union spirit and idea to this point has been one of the utmost in significance and importance. To him goes a great deal of the credit for the present good relations among the Presbyterian churches and the fact that the largest bodies of the denomination are now actually in the process of formulating the last details of real union. His service to this cause is already beyond estimation and the place he will take in a united church will be one of the greatest in devotion and dedication and should be one of the highest in actual leadership.

It is our special privilege then, to be so close to this great program, and as we catch the ecumenical spirit and all that it means, as members of the Church, we shall go on to bring that Church closer to those high purposes for which it was intended.

To Rise Above

By Gail Brown

Trivial, the trite perhaps, a simple thing like taking the steps two at a time: does it have value? Can the small affairs, the rain at Saturday's game, even the dull classroom be appreciated? Do the free hour for coffee, the $5 surprise check from home, the cube steak for dinner make a difference in our happiness?

We are the optimistic. We can find some good in everything that occurs. We can believe that a well-adjusted life can develop in any situation, on any campus, with any limitations or restrictions.

But to rise above the barriers of rules, or the conventions of staid opinion, and to enjoy living for itself, each action, thought must be considered important. A walk through the "residential area" should be as welcomed as a theater date. An evening spent on hard study should be valued as enjoyable as a Student Vols picnic. The hours of practice on the Easter Play should be appreciated as much as the night of production.

It is appreciation that is necessary. And we have learned this—that for a stable, but no less exciting, personality, every day must be enjoyed.

We have to live with the hard and easy, with the Bittersweet and the Orchids. Perhaps ten sleeping pills would answer the difficult problems. But we believe that if we, regardless of our own immaturities, regardless of constraining opinion, never quite lose faith in our own lives, we can appreciate the small, the sad, each situation.

And must we understand immediately to appreciate? Must we understand? Must an infinitely beautiful sunset be analyzed into component parts of the spectrum in order to be enjoyed? Must a concerto be played slowly, note by note, before an impression of quality is received?

In the same manner, must the misfortunes of our lives be explained in order to be met?

We are the perpetually optimistic. We believe that regardless of extenuating circumstances, regardless of fallacious opinions of some who believe that life is bad, that 10:15 p.m. is too early to go in, that required chapel is adequate reason to hate a school and not return, life is to be loved.

We have determined that it is a learned attitude towards life that sets the pattern of enjoyment. Perhaps we have been slow in this realization and this editorial is obviously unnecessary. And yet, assuredly there are those who are unhappy, unsatisfied, and to them we want to convey our deepest feeling—that optimism and appreciation of each morning is the fundamental soul of us, the very point of our existence which we will never relinquish.

Sports Echoes

By Neal Pearson

●This Past Week Witnessed the valiant attempts, and that is what they are of restoring track as an intercollegiate sport to Maryville's athletic curriculum as a group of boys began work in hope that there would be some meets for them to run. There was also some wishful hoping on the part of a couple of the coaches that some other schools would wish to run meets also so that MC could have some meets.

It seems that with the turnover in athletic regimes up at East Tennessee State that the old track coach may be out or else no one else to pick up where he left off. As for Emory in Atlanta they have the complications of not having an open date this year until May 17 because of Intramural track and some other sports taking the time up until May 1—however they are making provisions for next year—but if MC drops off having track, this, too will be of little value. A meet with Sewanee might be possible but because of the animosities engendered between the head athletic directors of that school and ours over the situation of football, that line of direction is also feebly squashed. This squabble being one in which Sewanee prefers to play in the daytime and MC at night and when MC last went down to Sewanee the game was played under the sunlight. However when it came to playing here under the lights the Tigers (athletic director-wise) were against it. Therefore very few athletic relationships between Sewanee and MC save cross country and tennis. As for TPI, they have athletic committments to the prentions—becoming Ohio Valley conference and thus have no open dates lest they were lat in May. Thus is situation is a pretty nigh on frustrating one.

Also in conjunction with the activities of these minor schools before a conclusion is jumped at is that some folk have been advocating the establishment of a purely-amateur conference between such schools as Sewanee, Maryville, Emory, and those others who stand for amateur practices to the fullest. There used to be one to which MC belonged—the Smoky Mountain conference but it has been pretty-much riddled of such "purity" as it once had with athletic scholarships (not to say that these are bad but they do have their effect on the money spent elsewhere in a college's athletic program) and emphasis on the big sports rather than on equal emphasis on all.

(Herein also creeps the discussion over what size letters should be awarded to the various athletes earning such in various sports and also whether or no sweaters should be awarded, too. However this will be a topic for discussion in due time, also).

Granted that schools like MC and Sewanee are striving at least on the administrative policy level, for retention and maintenance of amateurical status, why is it that there has to be such petty out-and-out discord over such matters as whether or no football games should be played in the afternoon or night—both have their advantages and disadvantages and there is no need to speak of such now. But for the sake of things that are worthwhile, we can't see why the hatchet can't be buried over such small differences as do exist. There are the pleas and arguments that track entails the expenditures of great amounts of money especially for trips and such —but so do all athletic trips save those of the other minor sports— X-etry, wrestling and tennis—and also—what about the equipment used in track as compared to that of the other sports and their relative costs.

There also is the talk that there aren't enough men out so as to justify it in many schools but have these schools given or attempted to lay any foundations for boys wanting to have a desire to come out because of their being meets for them to run. The whole matter is a reciprocal one and it will be an age old question of which is more important—the interest of the boys to run and causing meets to be scheduled or whether it is the number of meets scheduled to draw the boys out to run that is more important.

Granted that there aren't as many boys around school as there might be to turn out a real decent track team but there also is the fact that there are men on the Spring Football team who do have athletic ability and who could swell the ranks of those out running now. And there is also a little phrase which we remember from somewhere of a "FULL PROGRAM OF INTERCOLLEGIATE ATHLETICS" and also of an athletic program with the aim of building "STRONG BODIES TO HOUSE GOOD MINDS." Good it also be that the fact of there not being any income derived from track does have its influence along with the fact that it is harder to win victories in such a sport as it is than in baseball, basketball, tennis, wrestling, and even football.

We hope that some of the above considerations are taken into mind by both student and faculty alike and that along with more boys coming out for the "unglorious" sport of track that something will be done towards the "rewarding" if one wants to call it such or those efforts. Otherwise, MC might as well have a Spring practice for cross country and a race at the end of such to reward the efforts of such. Sports Echoes would willingly donate several cakes to the victor and runner-up of such if such a thing does happen.

●TENNIS—THE GOLDEN SPORT OF KINGS which got its start back under the Louis' gets its start today from the high-and-mighty —UT Vols who grace Memorial's courts with their presence today. Last year's UT team, coached as they are again this year by ex-MC grad Dr. J. W. Buchanan, took the Maryville netsters by a 7-2 margin and are favored to do likewise again today. The match should be an interesting one to watch.

●BASEBALL WAS OPENED to the melodious sounds of an Umpire's harsh voice as Hiwassee's Tiger's invaded the Maryville lair Thursday but went home with their tails between their legs. The game was a slow one especially for newcomers Phil Young, Lynn Sexton, Bill Crothers and Harry Robinson.

They all showed signs of nervousness out on the diamond but should have it whipped in a couple of games or so. Young filled in for the ailing Jimmy Campbell who is bothered with a cyst on his stomach while Sexton and Crothers cavorted in the outfield. Robinson couldn't find the corners in his chore of duty as much as he might have willed but when he did, he set down five of the six players making outs by the k.o. route—he looked very smooth after a rough start. Sonny Short and Gene Parks looked very effective in their brief stints on the mound especially the game being the first one of the young season. Jim Kren who patrolled the left field gardens will probably get his call for hill duty Monday against the Red and Yellow in a game played at Madisonville while probably all four hurlers will see action in the Miami series next Friday and Saturday.

If past games are an indication of tihngs to come, one or both two-game series 10-4 on a rather warm day but on the following day games will be cold ones. Two years ago, MC won the first game of a both temperature and barometer dropped and MC was clubbed 14-3. The year before was also a cold one.

Last year's game with the Redskins were called off since they could not get together with UT's Vols. MC's nine can also be expected to use most of the tricks in the book in the games with Miami as it is one of the "Big Ones" of the year—the bunt will also no doubt make its annual comeback also as guile goes against guile.

Howies Win At Softball

The Howies won the first game of the Women's Varsity softball tournament, from the Chillies, beating them 22-19. The game was close all the way and was limited to five innings instead of the usual seven.

Jay Spencer is captain of the Chillies with Emily McLain as manager and Hazel Robinson is captain of the Howies with Nancy Ferguson as manager.

Scottie Tennis Team Meets Tennessee

Highanders Beat Tiger Nine In Season Opener

Kinser Leads Assault; Short Displays Old Form

A chilled collection of fans cheered in the 1952 season as they sat through a three-hour slugfest and watched the Scotties take their first win of the season at the expense of the hapless Hiwassee Tigers, 11-6.

With Sonny Short, big right-hander, checking the Tiger attack, the Scotties jumped off to a quick lead in the second inning when Don Alford doubled with one out, Newberry walked and both came riding home a few minutes later on Short's two base blooper into right field; Tom Jones' sharp single scoring him for the third and final run of the inning.

The Scotties added to their margin in the fifth with Wes Kinser blasting a long triple to right center with bases loaded to account for three of the five runs in their big inning. With two down and nobobdy on, the lads from up state managed to push across their first run of the game when Marshall singled, swiped second, and scored on Youel's sinking liner to right.

Gene Parks, twirling since the fifth, was the veitim of this brief outburst which marred an otherwise nice three inning stint.

Harry Robinson, making his first appearance on the mound for Maryville College, was handled roughly by the Tigers in the eighth as they dented the plate five times before the fire was out. An error and two walks sandwiched between two singles accounted for most of the damage, but the freshmen lefthander acquitted himself well in the ninth as he set down the visitors with little trouble.

The Scotties wound up their scoring in the bottom half of the seventh as Wes Kinser blasted a long homer with nobody on and Jim Wiley, after singling, raced to third when the Tiger catcher threw into center field on an attempted steal, and stole home a few minutes later.

Bill Crothers wound up the Scottie scoring for the day when he walked and traveled the rest of the way when Hatmaker, Hiwassee third-baseman couldn't handle Park's hard smash down the line.

INTRAMURAL INFO. . . .

Softball Starts This Week With Six Games

Softball Season Opens

Hoboes Down YMCA

The 1952 version of Intramural Softball got under way on Tuesday afternoon when the Hoboes, paced by John Hale, eked out a decision over the YMCA team by the slender margin of about 15 or 20 runs.

For the Hoboes, who look like real contenders for the title, the biggest man was Hale, who pitched a good game for the winners, and in addition went four for four at the plate, including a short home run for his fourth hit. Max Sockwell also hit well for the victors, but then, who didn't, except maybe John Anderson, who still doesn't think he was out in the first inning.

Rocks Take Opener

On the Golf Course diamond, the Rocks took a loosely played victory from the Happy Warriors. The game was replete with errors by both sides, but there was also a fair share of good plays, and the Rocks showed surprising strength, but come up against a bigger test on Wednesday when they meet the Ringnoses.

The Old Story

Let us issue a cry right now at the beginning for good sportsmanship and honesty in this year's games. Remember that none of the Umps are professionals, that they are doing their best, and that they appreciate your help. One example of real good sportsmanship occurred in the Hoboe—Y game Tuesday, when a Y player admitted that he had been tagged on a play in which neither umprire had been in position to see. It is this spirit that makes for a good league.

Wednesday afternoon play saw the Alpha Sigma Scotties triumph in a slow game over the erstwhile Happy Warriors and the Ring-Noses in a game of higher-gear over the Rocks. Ralph Thiessie skied one into right for a home-run to lead the Sig attack which was bottled up for the most part by Clyde "Manners" McCampbell until the sixth inning. Score here was eleven to one.

Dick Patton with a pair of triples led Charlie Allen's Ring Noses to a football-score win over a Jim Demer-coached team which just couldn't get going.

For those who don't read the sheet on the Intramural Office or Carnegie Bulletin Boards here are some of the rules governing Intramural Softball as found in the Official Rulebook.

Softball Rules

1. The Pitcher—Ball must be held one second with both hands before pitching. Both feet must be in contact with the pitcher's plate. (added note—this also is a point aimed at the "fast pitching" done by some—that is, the immediate delivery by the pitcher of the ball once he catches the throw-back from the catcher.)

2. A legal delivery shall be a ball which is delivered to the batter underhand and with a follow through of the hand and wrist past the straight line of the body before the ball is released. The hand shall be below the hip and the wrist not farther from the body than the elbow.

3. No more than one "windmill" wind-up is allowed.

The Batsman

1. The strike zone is that space

In Spring A Young Man's Fancy . . .

Echo Reporter Investigates Spring Disease

By Bob Coles

Some have fevers, some have aches, but I know I have running through my veins some sort of bug that's bite is queer. It may affect some only slightly, but to others it brings a lifetime disease that is invariably expensive and without fail lowers the victim's efficiency. It usually makes a sufferer irritable from early spring to late fall and may attack at any moment in the winter. Men, women, and children are all equally susceptible. No one is safe. It is contagious and thrives anywhere. It is native to the United States, but it is now spreading over other countries. I speak of the baseball Bug.

Oh, laugh if you want, you who are immune; think it funny if you want when we poor sufferers pass up a good movie or a refreshing drive to sit with ears glued to a static-filled radio through which faintly comes a voice bringing a beer slogan, but never seems to rise during actual play. Laugh if you want, or get mad if we won't carry on a civil conversation during a game; be puzzled at what a sane man sees interesting at a dollar a seat when the Podunk Newshawks invade the Aldershot J. Brightwater Municipal Stadium (seating capacity 2,500) for a vital series with the home team. It's all very well to laugh, you who are immune, but be careful, the Bug may bite you, for it is no respector of persons, young, old, rich, poor, male or female, the Bug may bite at any moment.

The winter had been long and hard. Down from the mountains swept the howling gales, bringing the driven snow, lashing at the closed, weather-stripped windows, pounding on unhospitably closed doors where there was no welcome, and maliciously collecting on walks and driveways where youngest sons and middle-aged businessmen could shovel it away, setting diabolical traps in icy spots where portly ladies could hurt more than their dignity. But time's winged footsteps hurry on and the cold winds yielded place to warmer ones as the first breath of spring wafted into the valley.

Deep in a six-blanket sleep, Gus Q. Fan stirred uneasily, and slowly, one by one, peeled off the blankets, to rise wearily and sniff the air. Gus was slower that morning to shave and dress, dallied a little over his toast, and hestitated a second before he resignedly slipped on his rubbers and overcoat. It had been a long, hard winter, and Gus, at the turn of year, had made a resolution (he made one every year) that this year, no baseball. This year he was goin to make Mary Fan

Open Season On Memorial Courts

Blow those trumpets. Sound the gong. Opening their 1952 season the Scot netmen engage the Vols (Tennessee, that is) on the Memorial Court this afternoon. With four veterans from last year's Southeastern Conference Champions on hand the Vols are considered to be the team to beat in their conference again this year. Although the Scotties have little chance of winning the match, it will give them much needed experience and they may even win a few individual matches this afternoon.

Up and Down

For the last two weeks the Scots have been playing each other for positions on the tennis ladder. Since only the top six players on the ladder form the team, the boy's have been really hustling to either retain their positions on top bracket or to join the elite. Because this issue went to press before the inter-squad matches of Thursday took place, which decided the placings for today's match, the following line-up is only tentative. Clyde McCampbell the Scot top man will play the Vol's Bill Davis, Southeastern Conference singles champ of last season. Other matches are:

Maryville		Tennessee
Buser	vs.	Cullum
England	vs.	Gentry
Anderson	vs.	Bartlett
Breitback	vs.	Warden
Lebold	vs. Edis or Robinson

Doubles:

McCampbell and Buser vs. Davis and Cullum

England and Anderson vs. Gentry and Bartlett

Breitback and Lebond vs. Warden and either Edis or Robinson

Cinderman Begin Work While Waiting oFr Meets

With the prospect of several meets still in a state of flux, workouts were begun this past week by some five aspirants for an aspiring track men with more scheduled to take to the cinder-paths Monday and also Friday as Spring Football is ended.

Possible men from last year's squad available to form a nucleus for a team this year are Tom Kelly, Dick Kerr, and Dave Helwig, mile and two mile; Ric Rogers, middle distances. Jack Maxwell and Burt McMahon in the sprints; Joe Hopkins hurdles; and field events; Paul Merwin and George Kipp. Several freshman and sophomores are also working out with any and all welcome to track out by the football field.

Orange Garnet Game Ends Spring Football

After three weeks of workouts, Coach John Davis will send some 30 men into action Thursday afternoon on the new football field for the annual Orange-Garnet Spring Football Game.

Last year the Garnet's won 7-6 on a Harold Glad extra point plunge while the year before both squads finished in a 6-6 tie.

Diamond Outlook For 1952 Is Good With 8 Vets Back

Miami Redskins Here Friday For Two Games

Rabid baseball fans will be in their glory this coming week as Coach Honaker's 1052 baseball talent will parade itself before the home jury. After a month of hard work both indoors and out; the Scots opened the season with a home-and-home series against Hiwassee and meeting them again Tuesday there. Miami University of Oxford, Ohio, engaging UT and Vanderbilt in the Tennessee area will stop off and furnish the opposition next Friday and Saturday.

Eight Lettermen Back

With eight lettermen returning and a good crop of frosh to bolster them, Maryville hopefuls may well be treated to another good season. All of last year's big guns will be firing away from the mound once again—Jim Kren, Sonny Short and Gene Parks all returning. Harry Robinson and Bill Crothers, left-handers, Jimmy Harrison and Fred Ingram, righthanders, are all underclassmen with bright futures.

Behind The Bat

Don Alford and Bill Van Benthysen will be back to handle the catching job very adequately for the Scots. Around the infield it will be Wes Kinser back at first, Jim Wiley and Harry Newberry back at second, Jim Campbell again sparking the team from short and Tom Jones, Lynn Sexton and Bob Shelton battling it out at the far corner—all of which adds up to a very nice inner defense.

Open Spaces Heve

The outfield will be the big headache but there is no lack of pleasant asprins to relieve the pain. Hal Glad to Bob Madry may provide part of the answer and also available for picket duty will be Kren and Jones, both of whom saw some service there last year. Newberry and one or two of the younger pitchers may also provide relief if the need arises.

All in all, it looks like a good season for the Scots. Last year's team, mostly a freshman outfit, will have a year of experience under their belt and this year's frosh turnout, while not as numerous as most coaches like, turned up some good material and should be a big help to Coach Honaker if Uncle Sam doesn't take over.

Baseball Bug Wakes Up

happy. On those fine summer Sunday afternoons he would take her for a ride in the country, he would go for a little walk on a cool evening, or sit on the porch swing to talk about this and that with the neighbors. Yes sir, no Baseball.

On the way to the office, Gus bought his morning newspaper, and folding it as only habitual subway men know how, scanned the pages rapidly on his way to work. At last he came to the Sports Page.

Purple Sox Open Training Today
18 Batterymen to Report

(Deep back in Gus Q. Fan's system, the Bug stirred) Gus turned the page and read "The Adventures of Nosraep Laen" in the syndicated comic strip, a tale of adventure and mystery. (The Bug stirred again) Gus fought a desire to see who the new rookies were, and stepped from the subway, and into a day of work at the office.

Gus Q. Fan had turned over a new leaf. No longer would be he a slave, an addict. At last the Purple Sox broke camp and headed north, but still Gus was firm. Mary Fan was worried. She was sure some thing was wrong, but Gus stayed firm.

It was the eighteenth of April, a warm Saturday afternoon, when Gus went down to the corner for a loaf of bread. It was one of those fine, warm, sunny spring days of a young man's fancy. Gus walked slowly, enjoying the savor of the atmosphere when all at once, off in the distance, he heard a crack, followed by the shouting of boy's voices. Gus rounded the corner and stopped. There before him, on the small grassy plot, were six boys, ages varying from about twelve to fifteen, happily playing. . . shh. . . baseball. Well, after all, it's only the neighborhood gang. Gus stopped to watch. A small thin boy in dungarees and a T-shirt leaned into a creeping fast ball and lined it out into the street, but was held to a long double when the lone outfielder retrieved it quickly.

(The Bug, now wide awake and nearly starved to death, danced a little jig in time to the beating of Gus' heart. Food was coming, and just a little, just one tiny nibble was all that the Bug needed. From the moment that he stopped, Gus was lost, his resolution so much wasted will power. The Bug knew it and was happy).

The spring passed to summer, to early autumn. It is Friday evening, the time is 4:58 p.m., the place, the office. Let's take another look at Gus Q. Fan now. Gus is ready to go posied like a sprinter, set to leap at the five o'clock bell. At last it blows, and Gus is gone. Down the steps he races, across the street, down to the subway, but what is this? Gus' home is north, but Gus is taking the eastbound subway. At the 64th street station. Gus dismounts and a few minutes later stands idly talking with a few other men, leaning with casual nonchalance against a concrete wall. Gus looks like an average citizen, but the sign above his head gives him away. Up on the wall it says:

Purple Stadium
The House that Gninrob Built
Home of the Gotham Purple Sox

Gus is standing in line three hours early for a baseball game. But it isn't just any game, it's the big one of the season so far. Manager Rikanoh has welded a fine team out of a few veteran infielders, some tried and true moundsmen, come up with a good rookie southpaw, and built up a strong outfield to be a close pennant contender. True, third base is not up to major league standards, and the hitting isn't too good, but if his pitching holds up, the Purple Sox could go all the way.

Yes Gus Fan has succumbed, he spends his fine summer Sunday afternoons glued to the radio, from which comes such sounds as

Sherlock Holmes is a clever chap
To find a crook he needs no map
You'll need no map to help you out
To ask the man for Schnitzel krau*

He paces up and down at crucial moments in the game, giving Mary dirty looks if she dares to talk. He spends the cool summer evenings at the Stadium, munching hot dogs, cheering wildly. Gus is a real slave to the Bug.

Laugh if you want, you who are immune; tihnk Gus is exaggerated if you want, but the Bug is real, and when he gets a grip on you, you are powerless. So be careful, the Bug may bite you, for it is no respector of persons, young, old, rich poor, male or female. The Bug may strike at any moment, and he never lets go.

between the batter's arm pits and the top of his knees.

2. Is entitled to a base if hit by a pitched ball, or interferered with by the cacther. In being hit by the ball, the batter must make an attempt to get out of the way.

3. The batter is out if he bunts foul after second strike.

The Baserunner

1. If 1st base is not occupied, regardless of the number of outs, the batsman becomes a baserunner on 3 strikes and the 3rd strike must be caught or he must be thrown out.

2. Infield fly before two are out—if bases are occupied, the batter is out.

3. It is sufficient if the runner be touched with the hand or glove in which the ball is held.

4. The baserunner is out if he leaves, or fails to keep contact with the base to which he is entitled when the pitcher has both feet in contact with the pitcher's rubber and the ball is in his possession, and until a legally pitched ball has left the hand of the pitcher.

The Ball

1. A foul hit ball which rises higher than the batsman's head shall not be a foul tip.

2. A batted ball which first touches foul ground then rolls or bounds into fair territory before having touched any object is a fair ball if such events have happened between first or third bases.

3. The ball is dead and not in play in case a wild pitch goes through, under, or over, the backstop. The runner is able to advance one bases without the liability of being put out.

If the ball delivered by the pitcher passes the catcher and touches any, fence, building or backstop, the runner may advance one base without liability of being put out.

4th. If pitched ball is touched by catcher runners are entitled to all the bases they can get provided the case doesn't interfere with those judgments laid down in parts two and three above. For instance if catcher catches ball and fumbles it around in front of him or in immediate area around batter's box; or if ball bounds off fielder's gove into our territory provided it doesn't interfere with points two and three above. But in all cases, the decision rendered by the umpire must be compatible with the situation since all the possible situations creeping up in the game cannot be covered here. The best overall judgment to be rendered is that on base is allowed on overthrows of first and home (at runner's risk) or of wild pitches which elude catcher as stated in point three above.

The Game

1. A regulation game is seven innings or one terminated after at least five innings of play or four and a half if leading team is ahead at the end of four and one half innings and the time is 5:30 p.m. Otherwise five innings, at least are to be played unless both teams agree otherwise.

2. Protests based solely on a decision which involved accuracy of judgment on the part of an umpire shall not be received or considered.

3. No baseball spikes are allowed. Rubber cleated shoes may be worn.

4. A player must be signed up before playing, otherwise a protest is valid.

5. Through the interpretation of the rules, a player can steal home on a throw-back from catcher.

Church Union . . .

actually be presented to the General Assemblies depends upon the decision of the Cincinnati meeting.

The four leaders, who met here were of the opinion that it would not be possible to have a plan of union in print by the time the General Assemblies meet in 1952. They also thought that there will still be further revisions that will have to be studied before the plan is considered ready for printing and wide distribution.

However, each expressed the hope that by another year there will be a plan which can be put into the hands of all ministers and church leaders of the three churches for study and criticism.

The Cincinnati meeting, for which plans were being made here, was held as scheduled, March 12-14. At the close of the meeting, the three chairmen, Dr. Lloyd, Dr. Young, and Dr. Taylor, issued a statement to the press which included the following: "We have been very much gratified by the spirit and progress which has manifested itself in our joint sessions through these three days. . . . Satisfactory progress is being made and we look forward confidently to the conclusion of our efforts."

The joint conference agreed on all of the major features of the plan of union although considerable work has yet to be done by committees. The conference adopted a resolution expressing the intention of the group to have a plan in print by the time of the General Assemblies of 1953. Whether it will be submitted for study or vote at that time will depend upon decisions yet to be made.

Actions also were taken concerning a nationwide joint evangelistic effort and a nationwide pulpit exchange program to be inaugurated within the next few months.

These negotiations represent the most important church negotiations in progress anywhere at this time.

At the present time, the Presbyterian Church in the USA is the largest Presbyterian body with a membership of two and one half million. The Presbyterian Church in the US has a membership of three-quarter million, and the United Presbyterian Church has one-quarter million members. If these three are united, they will constitute the Presbyterian Church of the United States, with a three and one-half million members, making it the largest Presbyterian body in the world.

As Dr. Caldwell quoted from Thomas Carlyle, "Presbyterians are as prone to division as sparks are to fly up," yet the sentiment in favor of union is very strong in all the churches, and progress towards it is very encouraging.

Sigs Meet Tonight

Alpha Sigma will meet at 6:30 tonight in the Y Rooms to rehearse for their Skit Night presentation. They will also hold a rehearsal at 1 this afternoon.

Last Saturday evening, Alpha Sigma held a short business meeting in the Y Rooms.

Opera Workshop Presents Foss' 'The Jumping Frog'

"The Jumping Frog of Calaveras County" was presented by Opera Workshop to a full house Saturday, March 22, in Alumni Gym. "Frog" was written by Lukas Foss with the libretto by Jean Karsavina. It was written after a story by Mark Twain.

The cast included Don Brakebill as Uncle Henry; Betty Hammers as Lulu, his niece; Wally Schroeder as Smiley, the owner of Daniel Webster, the frog; Bill Robinson as the Stranger, who tried to cheat them out of their bets by feeding gun powder to Daniel; Conrad Eaddy as the guitar player; and Ken Shaffer and Bill Cunningham as the crap shooters.

The chorus of townspeople included Rosalie Munson, Ruth Orr, Helen Seay, Shirley Smith, Sheila Sutton, Carolyn Beatty Nina Ruth Gillette, Louise Packard, Mary Alva White, Herbert Hoover, David Thomas, George Caldwell, and Randal LeQuire.

Lloyd Attends Confabs

President Ralph W. Lloyd traveled to Atlanta on Thursday, Friday, and Saturday of this week to attend the Southern Area Council Meeting of the YMCA.

On April 1, he will travel to Chicago, Ill., to attend a meeting of the Presbyterian College Union. While in Chicago, he will also attend a Maryville College Alumni Meeting to be held that evening.

April 3, Dr. Lloyd will attend a meeting of the Tennessee College Association in Nashville.

No Bainonian Meeting

Bainonian will not meet tonight due to the Skit Night program. A regular meeting will be held next week.

Pre-Meds To Meet

Pre-Med Club will meet Thursday, April 3, at 6:45 in the chemistry lecture room of Fayerweather Hall.

Mary Jo Pribble is in charge of the program.

Sophomores Nominate

Evelyn Boughton, sociology major from Elizabeth, Pa., and Walt Elwood, history major from Paterson, N.J., were nominated for the position of editor of the 1953 "Chilhowean" at a meeting of the sophomore class Thursday.

Nominated for business manager were Bob Buchanan, business administration major from Maryville, and Bill Dartnell, business administration major from Dover, N.J. Elections were held yesterday.

Athenians Plan Banquet

Charles La Rue, Athenian banquet chairman, has announced that plans are nearly complete.

The annual affair will be held Friday evening, April 4, at Chilhowee Inn. Featured on the program will be Dr. Verton Queener, professor of history, Charlie Farris, and others.

Any Athenians who have not yet made reservations are asked either to sign the sheet posted on Carnegie bulletin board or to see Charles LaRue by Monday evening.

Dr. H.S. Leiper To Speak At Commencement

Easter Sunrise Service Set For 6:06 Tomorrow Morn

Lloyd To Guide Morning Worship

By Lora Kinsinger

Dr. Ralph W. Lloyd will deliver the message at the fifteenth annual Easter Sunrise Service tomorrow morning at 6:06 in the amphitheater.

Music will be provided before the service by a brass ensemble stationed on the path. Harry H. Harter will direct the Vesper Choir in the singing of "Christ is Arisen" by Hirsch; "The Easter Call to Worship;" "Resurrection," a Ukranian Canticle; "O Magnify the Lord With Me," arranged by George Lynn; "God's Son Hath Set Me Free" by Grieg; and "Lord Hosanna" by Schreck.

Easter Pageant

Tonight at 8 "The Risen Christ," a pageant involving a series of seven dramatic monologues written and directed by Barbara Blum, will be presented in the music hall of the Fine Arts Center.

"The Risen Christ" gives a picture of what would happen in the lives of our contemporaries if Jesus had lived and died and risen in our own time.

In the play, Dave Reed will give the prologue and epilogue; Shirley Postlethwaite is Mary, Christ's Mother; H. Robert Lorenz, the Carpenter; Jack Durant, the Rich Man; Joanne Edwards, the Street Woman; Kent Buser, the Negro, and Herb White, the Courtmartial Officer.

Margaret Ann Warren is in charge of music; Jack Mowett and Dean Allison, lights; and Allan Caldwell, make-up. A free-will offering for the benefit of the World Student Service Fund will be taken up at the door following the performance.

Holy Week services held in Bartlett this week were a project of the Pre-Ministerial Association. Leaders were Charles Reid, Don Stilwell, Neale Pearson, Dave Reed, and Russ Owens.

Composer's Forum Presents Program

The program of Composer's Forum, held in the Fine Arts Center April 11, included these works by faculty and students: Dorothy Vawter's "Etude for Two Pianos and Four Performers," played by Carolyn Blair, Arda Walker, Mary Gladys Pieper, and Archibald Peiper;

Carolyn Marshall's "Lawd Don' Let Me Skin-a My Soul," sung by William Robinson, with Carolyn Marshall as accompanist; "Two Sketches for Piano," written and played by Herbert Hoover; In Sun Kim's "Wanderer," sung by Don Brakebill, with Lesta Merrick as accompanist;

"Ye Are the Light" (discussion) by Bill Deihl: "Christmas Suite for Organ," by Glen Gentry; and "The City of Petra: Alto Solo and Wind Ensemble," by Randal LeQuire, with Betty Hammers, alto; Marcia McKinney, flute; Watler Hiller, clarinet; Barbara Sandos, clarinet; Lucy Junkin, clarinet; and Larry Thompson, bassoon.

Junior Recital Set For April 15

A junior recital will be presented by the Division of Fine Arts in the Music Hall of the FAC on April 15, at 4:30 p.m.

Selections to be presented are Bach's "Three-part Invention, No. 9, in F Minor," Beethoven's "Sonata, Op. 90," "Scherzo, Op 39 in C Sharp Minor," by Chopin, and "Concerto, Op. 54 in A Minor," by Schumann.

Conrad Eaddy, baritone, will present "Dichteliebe, Op. 48," by Schumann, and "Eri tu che machiavi," by Verdi.

Holland Edits Echo

Van Holland, junior English major from Baltimore, Md., is editor of this week's Highland Echo.

It is customary for Echo staff members interested in becoming editor of the paper to try-out in this capacity. Later in the semester, The Highland Echo staff will elect its editor for next year.

Free Will Offering Ends WSSF Drive

The culminating activity of a week of special emphasis on conditions of students of all nations will be the Easter play and a free-will offering which will go to the World Student Service Fund, an agency through which students and faculty share materially and intellectually with their contemporaries around the world.

The present WSSF grew out of the Far Eastern Student Service Fund which was founded by the National Student YWCA and YMCA in 1937. It is a United States agency sponsored by the National YWCA and YMCA, church student groups, B'nai B'rith Hillel Foundation, the Newman Club Federation, and the U. S. National Student Association.

A plan of mutual assistance, "Point Five," is the special interest of WSSF this year. Point Five recognizes American needs as well as resources—our need to learn from the heritage of older culture; and our ability to contribute technical "know-how" and material aid.

Assistance is given to students through aiding hostels and mensas, which are student cooperatives for living and eating quarters; carrying on health services, such as rest centers, special medical relief, and student help conferences;

Giving tools of education with books and laboratory equipment; giving students ways of meeting and thinking together in conferences and seminars and university affiliation's programs; giving a way to show that Americans care about students and have citizenship in one world.

Seniors Take Comps, Sophs Have Tests

Comprehensive examinations for seniors will be given on Wednesday and Thursday afternoons, April 16 and 17. These examinations, which are required for graduation, cover all material in the students' major fields.

On the same days the sophomores will be given standard tests in English and in current events.

Afternoon classes for freshmen and juniors will not meet on these days.

'Penzance' Set For April 18, 19

The combined glee clubs will present Gilbert and Sullivan's "Pirates of Penzance" on April 18 and 19 at 8 p.m. The operetta, under the direction of Edria Sellick, will be presented by two entirely different casts the two nights of performance.

Mable, Sally Butts, freshman from Waterloo, Iowa; Kate, Anabel Libby, senior English major from Lisbon, Ohio; Edith, Barbara Link, sophomore education major from Cleveland, Tenn.; Samuel, Glenn Watts, senior biology major from Glanville, Tenn.; Edward, Ed Scott, junior philosophy major from Asheville, N.C.; and Isabel, Barbara Sandos, senior music major from Bristol, Tenn.

For the April 19 presentation the cast includes John Monteith as the Major General, Jim Allison, senior from Salineville, Ohio, as the Pirate King; Marilyn Johnston, freshman from Pittsburgh, Pa., as Ruth; Floyd Hickman, freshman from Waynesburg, Pa., as Frederick;

Lynn Kiefer, freshman from Easton, Pa., as Mable; Gerry Moore, freshman from Louisville, Ky., as Kate; Ann Robinson, sophomore from Atlanta, Ga., as Edith; Homer Rickabaugh, sophomore philosophy major from Montoursville, Pa., as Samuel; Wesley Kinser, sophomore from Nashville, as Edward; and Barbara Sandos as Isabel.

Accompanists for the programs are Ann Hoover and Charles Ferris. The production crew includes Jim Darroch, as its head; Jean Ellis, business manager; Ginny Smith, publicity; Branin Boyd, staging; Clifford Church, costumes; Dean Allison, lighting; Dick Dart, properties; Joanne Edwards, make-up; Joe Stater and Homer Rickabaugh, house managers; Art Van Alstyne, stage manager.

The operetta is being presented this year by the glee clubs in place of the usual "Springtime Serenade." Admission is sixty cents.

Maryville Debate Squad Competes With Mississippi; At Tournament

Maryville College varsity debate team attended the Provincial Phi Kappa Delta speech tournament at Columbus, Miss., March 27-29. The college host was Mississippi State College for Women.

Naomi Burgos took first place with rating of superior in after-dinner speaking. In the same contest Charles LaRue ranked third with the rating of good.

Jerry Knecht took third ranking with rating of good in extemporaneous speaking and oratory.

Newel Witheerspoon and Evelyn Rilds rated good in Discussion.

The boys' debate team, Newel Witherspoon and Charles LaRue with alternate Jerry Knecht took fifth place ranking out of the thirteen colleges competing. Six states represented in the contest were North Carolina, South Carolina, Mississippi, Alabama, Kentucky, and Tennessee.

F. E. Short accompanied the group to Mississippi.

An exhibition debate was held April 9, between Mississippi Southern College debate team from Hattiesburg, Miss. and the Maryville College varsity debate team.

The debate was on the national debate question: "Resolved: That a permanent program of wage and price control be established."

The MC affirmative of the first round was Jerry Knecht and Newel Witherspoon. Negative of the first round for Mississippi were Dalton Birch and Don Kruger. On the second round for MC on the negative were Bob Navaratil and Charles LeRue. Affirmative on the second round for Mississippi Southern were Dalton Birch and Howard Ellzy.

The debate was sponsored by Tennessee Alpha Chapter Phi Kappa Delta.

The debaters from Mississippi were accompanied by their coach, Dr. Chase Winfrey.

Senate Clarifies Knoxville Dating; Council Plans Member Revision

April 2, 1952

Student Body President Bob Cuthill, reporting on Student-Faculty Senate to Council, announced a clarification of the rule allowing non-senior women to date in Knoxville.

The following is to be printed in next year's M Book. "Dating in Knoxville for women other than seniors may be arranged occasionally by permission from the Dean of Women. Only bus transportation is approved."

Three proposals designed to reorganize Student Council were also passed and have been sent on to other necessary groups for ratification. The changes were made in an attempt to broaden Council's membership and make it more democratic.

Council voted to eliminate one senior girl representative, reducing the number of seniors from five to four. One more freshman girl is to be added, increasing the number of frosh from two to three.

The number of sophomore representatives was also altered. There are at present two boy and one girl members; the change would make for one boy and two girls, with the provision that one girl be from each of the two underclass women's dorms.

Council also voted to add one member, a town representative to be elected in the fall of the year by the town students.

Senior class president Ralph Theisse announced his abdication as May King. The student body will nominate and elect a new king from the senior men.

President Cuthill also reported from Senate that the Red Cross appeal for blood had received student government backing. Ed Scott was named chairman of a committee to encourage student and faculty participation.

Cuthill announced that the annual high school day, at which Blount County seniors visit campus, had been set for Friday, May 2. Student committees will be appointed for participation.

Harter Announces Tour Personnel

Harry Harter, choir director, has announced the personnel of the 1952 tour through the mid-west. Chaperones will include Dr. F. A. Griffitts and Mrs. Margaret Cummings.

Touring members include first sopranos LaDonna Baylor, Mary Jane Hahn, Rosalie Munson, Helen Seay, Sheila Sutton, Janet Whiting; second sopranos: Joy Hickman, Sue Martin, Barbara Scott, Carolyn Symmes, and Margaret Ann Warren.

First altos: Carolyn Beatty, Nina Ruth Gillette, Mary Ann Hicks, June Hood, Pat Lewis, Dorothy Wells; second altos: Milred Cooper, Betty Hammers, Lora Kinsinger, Louise Packard, and Shirley Postlethwaite.

Tenors include firsts: Conrad Eaddy, Jim Kesler, Kenneth Shaffer, Ralph Thiesse, Hugh Walker, and seconds: Don Brakebill, Glenn Gentry, In Sun Kim, and Charles Schroeder.

Elwood, Dartnell To Head Annual

Walter Elwood was selected by the sophomore class to edit next year's Chilhowean in the elections held three weeks ago, Bill Dartnell was chosen to be the business manager.

Elwood is a history major from Patterson, N.J., and Dartnell is a business major from Dover, N.J.

Student Body Elects Brown, Hunt, Hammers

Voting Selects New Officers

By Pat Ingles

Sally Brown was elected the MC student body president for 1952-1953 in a close run-off election with Arnold Munn on Saturday, April 5.

Miss Brown, a junior history major from Elkridge, Maryland, is the editor of the 1952 Chilhowean, a past Echo staff member, a Nu Gamma Leader, and an active member of the YWCA.

Hunt

Jim Hunt is the new student body vice-president as a result of the run-off election with Ed Breitbach. Hunt is a sophomore from Uniontown, Pa.

He is the president of the sophomore class, an active member of the College Playhouse, the Student Council Elections Committee, French Club, Athenian, and the YMCA.

Hammer's

Incoming social board chairman is Betty Hammers who contested with Pat Halstead and George Caldwell on the preliminary ballot. Miss Hammers is a sociology major from Stewartstown, Pa.

She is on the Student Council, secretary of the YWCA, and an active member of the Vesper Choir, the Madrigal Singers, and Bainonian.

On the preliminary ballot, Sally Brown, Jim Campbell, George Carpenter, Bob Mizelle, Arnold Munn, and Tasker Robinette appeared as candidates for the office of president. On the next day the contest was narrowed down to Jim Campbell, Sally Brown, and Arnold Munn. The final run-off was between Sally Brown and Arnold Munn.

Ed Breitbach, Jim Hunt, Ray Rose, and Lacy Woody vied for the office of vice-president on the preliminary ballot. Rose and Breitbach tied to appear with Hunt on the second ballot. Hunt then won the final contest against Breitbach.

Betty Hammers was elected the social board chairman in the preliminary contest when she received a majority vote of 355.

Each election had a good turn-out; 94.1% of the student body voted.

Phi Kappa Delta Installs

Plans are being made for formal Phi Kappa Delta installation of new pledges. New pledges are Naomi Burgos, Evelyn Fields, Jerry Knecht, and Bob Navaratil.

Queener To Address IRC

Dr. Verton M. Queener will speak on the "Foreign Policy of the Present Administration" at the meeting of IRC on April 21, at 6:30 in Thaw 214.

At the April 7 meeting Benita Biswas and Nannette Enloe spoke on "Students in Asia," emphasizing the contribution of WSSF to them.

Lloyd Goes To NYC To Attend Dinner

Dr. Ralph W. Lloyd will leave Monday for New York to attend a meeting of the Executive Committee of the Western Section of The World Presbyterian Alliance. Dr. Lloyd is the American secretary of the World Presbyterian Alliance and has charge of setting up the meeting.

On Tuesday evening, Dr. Lloyd will be a guest representing Maryville College at a reception and dinner given by the Encyclopedia Britannica in the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel. This dinner is being given for those who have been designated to receive one of the Founder's Edition sets of the Great Books of the Western World. Volumes 1, 2, and 3 will be publically presented at that time.

Scott, Eaddy Present Recital

Barbara Scott, pianist, and Conrad Eaddy, baritone, will present a Junior Recital in the music hall of the Fine Arts Center on Tuesday afternoon, April 15, at 4:30 p.m.

Miss Scott, student of Katherine Davies, will open the program with the "Three Part Invention, No. 9, in F Minor," by Bach, followed by "Sonata, Op. 90", by Beethoven.

Mr. Eaddy, student of Harry Harter, will be accompanied by Alice Eaddy in his selections, the first of which will be Shumann's "Dichterliebe, Op. 48."

Miss Scott will then render "The Maiden and the Nightingale," by Granados, and Chopin's "Scherzo, Op. 39 in C Sharp Minor," followed by Mr. Eaddy with Verdi's "Eri tu che machiavi (Un Ballo in Maschera)".

"Concerto, Op. 54 in A Minor" by Shumann will conclude the recital. It will be rendered by Miss Scott, accompanied by Miss Davies at the second piano.

Faculty Publications Displayed In Library

By Joan Frei

On display in the library lately has been a collection of publications written by members of Maryville's faculty within the last five or six years. The publications range in subject matter from Shakespeare to cold storage, and in length from short articles to complete books. Most of the faculty members wrote on subjects within their own fields.

Professor E. R. Hunter wrote the poem "A Man from Stratford Entertains Ben Jonson," which appeared in the "Shakespeare Quarterly" last year. Dr. Hunter also wrote "Verb+Adverb Equals Noun," which was published in "American Speech."

Associate Professor Commodore B. Fisher is the author of several magazine articles and newspaper stories about Iran, where he was principal of the Community School in Teheran until last year. "An Experiment in Radio Writing," by Assistant Professor Carolyn L. Blair, in the "Alabama School Journal" describes the experiences of a high school English class writing its own radio program.

President Ralph W. Lloyd is represented by a number of articles on church union and Christian colleges. Among the prominent ones are "Our Colleges" and "Can the Presbyterians Get Together Again?", both of which appeared in "Presbyterian Life."

Professor Horace E. Orr has written a book, "The Words of Jesus and Problems of Religious Thinking," and Associate Professor Dorothy D. Horne is the author of "A Manual for First Year Theory."

Miss Ruth Grierson wrote about "The New College Library Standards of the Southern Association" for the "Tennessee Librarian." Professor Verton M. Queener has had two articles in the "East Tennessee Historical Society's Publications," both dealing with aspects of East Tennessee's history.

Assistant Professor Arda S. Walker has written two papers on cold storage that were published by the U.S. Department of Agriculture.

Other faculty publications include work by Assistant Professor Kathleen Craven, Instructor Catherine Crews, Assistant Professor Harry H. Harter, Assistant Professor Thelma Kramer, and Instructor Curtis Hughes.

Church Leader To Give Address

By Joe Gilliland

President Ralph W. Lloyd announced that the speaker at the 1952 Maryville College Commencement on May 21 will be Dr. Henry Smith Leiper, Associate General Secretary of the Conference of USA Member Churches of the World Council.

Dr. Leiper was a student at Maryville College for one year in the old preparatory department. His college work, however, was taken in New England. He is a graduate of Amherst, and has received degrees from Columbia University and Union Theological Seminary in New York.

Following his graduation from college, he was for one year traveling secretary for the Student Volunteer Movement, and for two years acting pastor of Rutgers Presbyterian Church of New York City.

Since Dr. Leiper was with the Army YMCA in Siberia during the first World War, he has had an opportunity to see some of the inside developments which led to the totalitarian conquest of Russia.

Following the first World War, he was a missionary to China for three years. During that period Dr. Leiper was a member of the governing board of the China International Famine Relief Commission and also a member of a Chinese International Friendship Delegation which went to Japan in 1920 in an effort to prevent the tragedy which resulted from the Japanese militaristic policy.

On his return to the United States, Dr. Leiper began his career which has made him an outstanding world leader in the Ecumenical Movement. He has served as editor, secretary of inter-denominational movements, as pastor of the American Church in Paris, and has occupied many other influential places which have made him one of the leaders in plans for the World Council of Churches.

In 1938 when the provisional committee of the World Council was formed, Dr. Leiper became Associate Secretary and was a member of the staff in 1948 which organized the World Council at Amsterdam.

Dr. Lieper has recently returned from his 26th trip to England where he consulted with leaders and addressed large meetings. In 1951, at the invitation of church leaders, he went to New Zealand and Australia to help build interest in the ecumenical work of the churches. On that trip he literally spoke around the world, giving addresses in many countries.

Dr. Leiper is the author or editor of 19 books. He deals with religious and social subjects, such as race prejudice, the rise of totalitarianism, the organization of the World Council of Churches, and the place of religion in the world today. He has also contributed many articles to encyclopedias, yearbooks, and the church and secular press.

German Club to Meet

German Club will meet Monday night, April 14, at 6:45 p.m. in Herr Reber's classroom, Thaw 206.

Bent Olsen will speak on the relationship of Denmark with Germany.

On Student Elections

By Van Holland

In the recent student body elections, campaign speeches, assorted posters, run-offs, and vigorous political discussions enlivened the campus. In connection with the campaigning, we feel that it is deplorable that so much unjust and undeserved criticism was directed against one of the presidential candidates. Certainly, such infamous slander was neither Christian nor democratic. But, except for this one case, character assailment was kept at a minimum.

What was especially gratifying was the large number of students that voted. More than 94% of the student body voted during the three election days, an act which is highly commendable. It is a sad commentary on American democracy that little more than 50% of the public vote in the national elections. It is hoped that we carry our great interest and participation in student government into our respective local, state, and national governments.

We do wish to congratulate those newly-elected student body officers. They are conscientious people. They possess those necessary qualities that leadership demands. And we hope that they will fully represent student opinion and sentiment. However, they can accomplish nothing, unless they have the total confidence and cooperation of all students. It is the responsibility of the returning students to forget their particular candidates and to offer their complete support to their new officers. Only in this fashion will adequate and progressive measures in student government be effected.

Need For Cultural Change

By Gail Brown

A social program offered by any school is assuredly to be questioned and attacked, not only in the surface consideration of entertainment, but in the program's contributions toward growth of personality. Social activities set the pattern of culture in such a closed environment as a college campus.

And the type of social culture present deserves all the interest it receives. We must interest ourselves in this one thing that makes us what we are, and this one thing that sets the limits to what we can become, namely, the particular, immediate culture. Cultural anthropologists, ecologists, and biologists have been pointing out for some time that human creatures are almost wholly the products of their environments.

Two definite attitudes can be taken regarding the situation on this campus. The first, that the medium of cultural development is provided in the college social program, and it is we as students who must first learn to appreciate the outlets of expression and facilities of entertainment that are available.

The Fine Arts Center is esentially dedicated to the advancement of culture and provides such opportunities. But there is a decided lack of interest in the art habits, the student and faculty recitals, the appreciation of the building itself from an architectural point of view. The Artist Series was actively supported, but there should be intense interest designed to bring far more artists on campus.

Dramatic productions are not supported with the enthusiasm they deserve, and how many of us realize that the college library houses a museum? To do much more than we have done, to participate much more than we have participated, is a first point of attack.

But, secondly, we feel the college greatly responsible. Certainly the school which thinks it can serve its purpose by merely creating a school environment will not aid in developing optimal individual growth. Experiences that are offered by a school must be personalized, and yet be contacts of real meaning, from an adult world, not a confined semi-static environment.

A restrictive social program is not satisfactory. Nor is one which is neither benevolent nor antagonistic to us in its effects. Changes are desirable and liberating. New activities are necessary.

Basically we must create an understanding of the real and possible effects of local culture to develop each individual, ourselves, to the fullest possible potentialities.

The Democratic Ideal

Tomorrow marks the birthday of Thomas Jefferson. In the spirit of his mind and his life, and in the spirit of his successor Franklin Roosevelt, who died seven years ago today, The Echo presents the following paragraph from "Main Currents in American Thought" by Vernon L. Parrington.

"To all who profess faith in the democratic ideal Jefferson is a perennial inspiration. A free soul, he loved freedom enough to deny it to none; an idealist, he believed that the welfare of the whole, and not the prosperity of any group, is the single end of government. He was our first great leader to erect a political philosophy native to the economics and experience of America, as he was the first to break consciously with the past. His life was dedicated to the service of freedom, and later generations may well recall his words, 'I have sworn upon the altar of God eternal hostility against every form of tyranny over the mind of man.'"

Scots & Soda

By Ham and Homan

Grill Thrapy!

There seems to be a new trend in education at Maryville College. Wednesday morning Mr. Pieper's Political Philosophy class met in the College Hill Grill. We guess he figured that after struggling through Schopenhaur, etc., a little therapy was in order.

A-ah-ah, Yes!

The other evening Mr. Mac had been sitting quietly in his office with a book in his hand for about two hours, when he suddenly turned to his assistant and thoughtfully said, "You know, everyone's crazy—more or less."

Under A Palm Tree!

We're more or less accustomed to seeing students returning from Church on Palm Sunday carrying pieces of palm. We must admit, however, that we were a bit surprised to see Don Craig with what looked like the whole tree. (No kiddin'—roots and all!)

My Aching Bac!

On March 21 Miss Davies' Music Appreciation students went to class expecting a test on Shubert and were greeted with a surprise birthday party for Johann Sebastian Bach. Bach records were substitutes for the test records and Miss Davies expressed the regret that she didn't test the class on the Bach records.

New Anthem . . .

The expression on Mr. Harter's face at choir rehearsal a week ago Monday was enough to repay every member for the year's work. When he signalled the start of a difficult anthem, the choir broke into a mighty chorus of "April Fool!!!"

Where's Neale?

We want to congratulate the editorial staff of the annual for a job well done. In fact, about the only thing we could find missing was a picture of Neale Pearson in his "eudymonic" shorts.

Colorful Episode

Maryville campus was visited by a group of pseudo-exterior decorators early Sunday morning. They did a pretty good job on Carnegie; the only trouble is, they didn't finish it!

M-m-m, Nice . . .

We are told that Miss Sellick's performance at hte Faculty Recital went over with a big bang. We also understand that she has a very nice voice.

All Aboard!

It is reported that following that "interesting" Alpha Sig skit, the local railroad station was swamped with requests for one-way tickets out west.

TALK OF THE WEEK

Voices, Masks, and Shadows

By Art Van Alstyne

It's an Ill Wind . . .

This weeks offering for the "pop corn" circuit isn't much better than usual. For this Tuesday the Capitol promises "Sirocco," starring Humphrey Bogart and Marta Toren.

At the Park it will be pot-luck, but they feel it will be either "Basketball Fix," featuring John Ireland and Vaneessa Brown, or "Double Crossbones," with Don O'Connor and Helena Casten. "Basketball Fix," however, seems to have the edge at this time.

"Sirocco" is the only one capable of attracting the attention of the critics. Neither "Time" or "The New Yorker" could get very excited over it. According to "Time," "Bogart plays a cynical, self-seeking neutral in an exotic city (Damascus, 1925) where the gallant and shifty engage in the life and death intrigue.

The story, dialogue, and atmosphere have not been fitted together with as much care, and like the star himself (who comes equipped with cigarette and the standard belt trench coat), they are beginning to look a little shop-worn." "The New Yorker" couldn't find anything nice to say either, ". . . he isn't very interesting in his latest excursion."

Double Your Money Back

Those who like to browse among the new books that come into the library probably have noticed the ever increasing number of books tagged "from proceeds of Arsenic and Old Lace."

We became a little curious as to how many new books we have bought for ourselves, after having had the time of our life watching the faculty perform. The faculty gave the library $233, and to date the library has bought eighty books.

The greater number of these books are for Special Studies students, but some of the money has been used to buy some outstanding titles in the popular fiction and non-fiction fields. This is the type of spirit that makes Maryville a great school.

Our Own Faculty!

This week has also turned up some more talent among the members of the faculty. Now that you have finished searching out the eighty new books, turn around and look at that display of published works by 17 faculty members.

You sophomores who have "chosen" to read Melville's "Moby Dick" would do well at least to scan Nathalia Wright's "Melville's Use of the Bible."

All those taking Dr. Hunter's Shakespeare class will find his poem "A Man from Strtaford Entertains Ben Jonson" delightful. In fact, whether any of these articles are in your field or not any time spent in reading them will be time well spent.

For those who like their entertainment served to them, the faculty and student recitals should not be overlooked. All those who were on hand last Saturday evening at the FAC were given another sample of the talents of our faculty by Miss Sellick and Miss Crews.

Holy Week

"The Risen Christ," an original play by Barbara Blum, will bring the Holy Week to a close. It will be presented tonight in the FAC music hall. Miss Blum has had considerable experience in writing during her four years here and has brought this ability to bear on the handling of a very difficult subject.

"The Risen Christ" with its six monologues has brought the full impact of Christ's crucifixion to the modern audience. Miss Blum's choice of that "stream of conscience" technique gives a refreshing lift to an old story.

ECHO FORUM

To The Editor of The Highland Echo:

With the increasing interest in the Presidential Primaries being shown these days, a great many students have shown an interest in the candidacy of General Dwight D. Eisenhower for the Republican nomination.

Some literature and campaign buttons have been received on this campus and may be obtained from those individuals signed below. We feel that this is the man for the Republican nomination and the Presidency.

Seniors Choose Gift

In a recent election held by the senior class, the choice of the class's gift to Maryville College was decided. The results show that the gift will be kitchen equipment for Miss Ware, the choice being left to her.

The election was between the kitchen equipment and fire escapes.

FTA Plans Picnic

FTA will have a picnic in the college woods next Thursday evening, April 17. The picnic is to honor the senior graduates. La Donna Baylor and Barbara Miller are in charge of arrangements.

Last Thursday evening FTA had a party in the Intramural Gym for local high school seniors who are interested in teaching. Mildred Cooper, Mary Virginia Ferguson, and Trudy Singleton were in charge of the program.

Miss Ingleborg Rodeman and Mrs. Thelma H. Kramer chaperoned the group of 41 who attended the party.

At the fifth annual state conference of the FTA held last week, Dr. and Mrs. Lincoln Barker, Emily McLain, Laura Pritchett, Mildred Cooper, and Trudy Singleton represented Maryville College.

Sports Echoes

By Rolfe Duggar

●THIS AFTERNOON THE NETTERS of the University of Florida invade the local courts for the first time in history against the Scot-men. Florida should have a terrific team for they play year round down there in that good old land of sunshine. If they don't it's only because Uncle Sam has some of the better players playing a different kind of ball for him, several of whom we could name since we went to the same schools together. Maybe the local boys can pull a few upsets if they see plenty of people out there to cheer them on. Let's see you all out there.

●THIS WEEK SEES THE OPENING of the 1952 season of major league baseball, and it's a great feeling. This is the time of the year when it's hard to study and not just because of the fairer sex. Fans' ears are already straining at the radios in anticipation of another great season. And like Taft every time he thinks of the National Convention the fans are wondering what is going to happen this year.

Here on the hill the season is already two weeks old and the team has shown a lot of spunk. Who can forget Wednesday's massacre of Hiwassee? That was the highest score ever rolled up by either the Scots or an opponent, unless the Echo records are minus something. Previous high was 25 against Hiwassee in 1950.

Coach Lombe Honaker has fielded potentially a strong team both defensively and offensively. However, it may still be a year away from reaching its peak. The pitching with seniors Jim Kren and Gene Parks is probably at the highest level it will be for several years. Add to that the terrific pitching of Sunny Short and the up and coming Harry Robinson and you have a staff even UT would be proud of. In fact, that's one reason probably for their not want ing to play us. But we can't always count on them for pitchers do have off years at the strangest itmes as Art Houteeman of the Tigers or Bob Lemon of the Indians will testify. Some of the "rookies" this year may change all this warbling when next year's Scots take the field.

The infield looks about as tight as the Brooklyn Dodgers', in their respective leagues of course. It may not be as good of an infield as the Bobby Boring and company of a few years back, that would be asking for an awful lot, but with a little more battle experience under its belt the boys should be able to stand up against any college team.

Then there is the outfield which, like the New York Giants, just ins't last years. Are the St. Louis Browns in any worse shape? If Jim Riveria was twice as good as the press and Roger Hornsby claims I still doubt that he could patrol all three flds. Honaker has about as many possible outfield combinations as Johnson has ice cream. Every man on the team, pitchers, infielders and outfielders, will pro bably take turns in the outr gardens until two others show enough consistency to stick with Harry Newberry.

The catching is good defensively as long as Don Alford doesn't split a thumb. After that, what next? All in all, though, the team looks good, but a year away. The schedule shouldn't really prove too hard and the chances are that for the sixth straight year Maryville will see a winning team. Maybe it's hardly fair though to count the 1946 nine since the boys were just starting back and the few that were here could only play four games. They lost all four. Before that you have to go back to 1934 when half of the freshman class wre just seeing daylight to find a real losing season. That year the Scots hit the skids to the tune of a 7-12 record not including one tie game.

Since we've stuck our fingers in the major league scene we might as well go hogwild; everyone else is doing it these days. Both races look close and exciting this year, mainly because there is no one team which stands out in either league.

In the National it's almost a toss up as to who is stronger, the Dodgers or Giants. Both teams should be weaker than last year's since the Army has been taking delight in calling up valuable men. The Dodger pitching staff minus Don Newcomb and Clem Labine and with Preacher Roe another year older, is a big question mark. So is the Giant outfield. Will Willie Mays get a dependancy deferment and will Dick Wakefield make good in his umpteenth try, and what about those legs of Bob Elliot, will they last another year to enable him to play in the garden? Who is to proivde the spark and hollar now that Eddie "the Brat" Stanky is gone, and with Leo Durocher still under the reigns of Lorraine Day?

Maybe the Phillies will provide a real surprise. If Curt Simmons strengthens the pitching staff as much as he has the team's morale the Phillies will be the real darkhorse. Not since the "I Hate Ted Williams Fan Club" heard the first news of the recall of Ted by the Marines has a body of baseball fans been so happy.

The Boston Braves are a mixture of old men and young rookies with just enough of the middle men to make them a threat. If any of the top three falter the Braves will be ready to jump. The age old St. Louis Cardinals have about as much hope of crashing the first division as "Nature Boy" has of breaking into the top ten best dressed men. Stanky has little behind Stan Musial and Red Schoendienst. And the pitching staff shouldn't happen to the Chicago Cubs.

The last three teams will probably put up the most exciting fight of the century to keep out of the cellar. But Cincinnati looks best because of offense and pitching, especially Ewell Blackwell. Pittsburg still has Ralph Kiner and Murry Dickson, but it seems so many years ago since we witnessed Murry's spring practice no-hitter when he was with the Cardinals that we wonder how long he can go on. Still he reached the twenty victory mark last year which goes to show you, you never know. That leaves Chicago in the cellar, need we say more?

The American League is a little harder. As much as I hate to sya it Cleveland looks about best simply because New York and Boston have lost too much since last fall. The Indians have the best pitching staff in the league and probably the best infield, doubly so if Luke Easter's knee is completely healed. The outfield may cause a little trouble, but who has a better team?

The Yankees might be the answer, but we are hoping not. It say it Cleveland looks about best simply because New York and Bosdrop to second. With Dimaggio and Coleman gone it looks like the pitching and that wolderful "never-say-die" spirit which will keep them just ahead of Detroit and Boston. The Tigers rate next on the strength of the return of Art Houtteman from the Army if only the tragic death of his deather doesn't have mental effects. With the addition of Max Batts the catching is vastly improved. The infield is weak save for the always great George Kell on third, and the outfield is tops if Hoot Evers breaks that mysterious hitting slump.

The Red Sox will take forth if Chicago doesn't get on the ball. Only time can answer such questions as how will Vern Stephens legs and back bold up? Can Walt Dropo again pound that ball as he did a few years ago when he burned up the league? And will Mel Parneell and staff com through? The White Sox ca ntake them if they can shake the wet California weather and start to hustle.

Ned Garver will pitch the St. Louis Brown to sixth while the Athletics and the Senators battle it out for the tail-end spot. The former Mackmen should win out on the strength of their terrific closing days of the 1951 season.

We admit that this has little to do with the school itself, but more than half the student body will be following the daily results. Save your "he-haws" until next October and we will all laugh together.

●OVERHEARD BY THE GRAPEVINE—Why aren't there any lines lain down on the Pearsons-Baldwin Tennis Courts. Maryville's best tennis players frequent these pavilions of clay and it is reported that the non-existent lines that there are now are not sufficient to tell whether or no their "driving shots" are "in" the bounds of the court. A little attention would be appreciated.

Hiwassee Wins Return Ball Game

Tigers Win In 8th, 10-9

Hiwassee's Tigers edged out Coach Lombe Honaker's Scotties by a 10-9 count to hand the Scots their first defeat of the year.

The Scotties opened up with a five run barrage in the top of the first on only two hits and three Tiger errors. Successive doubles by Jimmy Campbell and Wesley Kinser featured the attack.

The Tigers came right back to drive across three runs in the bottom of the first off the offerings of Jim Kren. In the second they tied up the score and took the lead in the third.

The Scotties scored single tallies in the fifth and seventh, and then come back to score two more in he eighth. Tom Jones collected a triple driving in Phil Young; he later scored on Campbell's infield out.

Carl Shelton hit the 'big one" in the seventh for the Tigers; a booming homer driving in Davis before him. Three singles and a double by Youell in the last of the eighth sewed up the Hiwassee victory.

Lack of defense almost cost the Tigers the game. They bungled the ball every few minutes to wind up with eight miscues for the day. The Scot defense was almost flawless; marred only by an error by Jim Wiley which had no relationship to the final outcome.

Tennis Men Dump LMU Railsplitters

Lincoln Memorial's Big Blue went down under for the seventh time in a row since 1947 Tuesday as the Maryville netmen blasted the Railsplitters off Memorial Courts, 7-0. Maryville thus won the ninth match in the series of eleven which have been played since 1941.

INTRAMURAL INFO. . . .

Weaver, Crothers, Peppers, Alpha Sig In Big Swimming Wins

Before a big crowd, the Intramural Swimming Meet was held last Saturday night with many races close to the last splash. Opening event of the night was the 25 yard free style race which was won by Bob (Weismuller) Weaver in the speedy time of 12.8 seconds. The 25 yard breast stroke was the next race with Sam Crothers working his way up the pool in 14.8 seconds for the first of his three triumphs for the night.

Events got longer and took longer also as the 100 yard free style event followed with Jake Peppers defeating George Kipp in a time of one minute and 25.8 seconds. The time was five seconds off that set by Thad Godwin in the 1950 Intramural meet. Crothers then followed up with a win in the 100 yard Breast Stroke race by doing the four laps up and down the pool in one minute 28.1 seconds. The record for this event currently being held by Donald MacDonlad at 1:21 and set in 1950.

Chin Up—Face Out

Competing swimmers then turned around and swam backwards for a while as Walt Hiller defeated Rod McMillan in the 50 yard face-up race with a timee of 41.4 sconds. Hiller's time was one second off that set by Bill Menges in last year's meet—that one being 40.2 seconds for the course.

Weaver then wove his way through the water in 31.2 seconds to take the 50 yard free style event by topping Herb Catlin and George Kipp. Jimmy Callaway holds the record at 29 seconds.

We Want Maier (And Get Ebright And Boyd, Boo)

With most of the competitors tired from their racing a short diving contest was held after much squabbling between the candidates interested and those not interested. Dick Ebright, known to all by the much more endearing term of "Bugs" won the event over Branin (Crowdpleaser) Boyd. Each man did five dives— aquatic or otherwise— with Ebright tallying 64 points to Boyd's 43.

Dasn't Do It Again

Ebright then decided to spread his talents elsewhere among the attractions offred to contestants at the pool but his entry in the 50 yard breast stroke go as a companion to the at-first-sole-entree of Crothers wents for naught as the quick-Crothers carudded his way up and down the pool twice in 39.5 seconds for his final triumph of the evening.

Weaver, not to be outdone, then followed up with his third triumph, this one being in the 25 yard backstroke race in which he pushed into the wall after 16 seconds of navigation and 1.8 seconds ahead of the steaming Rod McMillan.

The marathonic 200 yard free style race followed with Peppers picking up his second triumph of the evening after being given a battle for six laps by the surprising George Kipp. Peppers peppered his way to victory in three minutes and 10 seconds—16 seconds faster than that taking Bill Menges in 1950's competition.

Helwig Not Back Here

Dave Helwig after two tries finally got into the money angle of the night or rather ribbon angle by going backwards four times up and down the pool to win the 100 yard back stroke over the somewhat tired Peppers. The versatile Helwig's time was one minute and 36.4 seconds somewhat slower than that of 1:21 set by MacDonald two years ago.

Meddling Around

Medley-racing then had its day as a team of Helwig-Crothers-and Weaver doing the back-breast-and free-style strokes in succession won over a pick up crew of Hiller-Bank-and Peppers in 54.4 seconds in a 75 yard medley event.

This event was somewhat climatical to the Wallowing Duck Classic held last on the evening's program and being a 100 yard affair instead of 200 yards done last year. The old adage about honesty is the best policy may have have had its justification this year as Alpha Sigma's Black Swans won by a fish-tail in libel over Athenian's White Torpedoes. Last year the Sigs perpetrated some skullduggery in winning the 200 free style relay, but lost the other "Duck" Relay events. Athenian had a better team and thus was assured of wins in "honestly-ran" races but this annnum's event was one of who could last out the longest.

And There They Go—

Bob Weaver and Boyd broke from the tiles at Starter Paul Maier's whistle toot and foamed their way 25 yards up-pool where the Sigs' Herb Catlin and Walt Hiller of Athenian prepared to make the back stretch go. Catlin got a lead of several inches from Weaver and increased it to about a foot as he neared the halfway mark from whence he turned the lead over to the erstwhile swim-meet-director Neale (Steamboat) Pearson while Hiller turned his chores over to the tired Crothers.

Fix-Fix

For some reason or another, the Sigs still had a slight lead by the time Pearson had splashed his way down the waves—perhaps this being because Crothers couldn't see for all the spray and foam being thrown in front of him. As it was, Peppers and Helwig were to fight it out on the anchor lap with Pepper's last stroke touching the tiles one-half second before Helwig did. During their last minute surge down the pool each man seemingly had the lead for a bit but lost it with a few hard strokes of the other and Peppers managed to get one harder stroke in than did the tired Helwig.

Softball . . . . .

The first round of play neared completion this past week in the lively Intramural Softball League and the Hoboes, sparked by John Hal's pitching and good all around defensive play behind him, emerged with four wins in four trys while Charlie Allen's Ring Noses, also owning a spot-

Scots Play Gators At Two On Memorial Courts

Maryville College tennis fans will once again get to see some big-time tennis in action today as the Gators from the University of Florida tangle with the Scots at 2 o'clock on Memorial Courts. The Scots with two wins under their belts minus a loss to UT's SEC champ Vols would like to pull the upset but the Fleshman-men appeared to be to heavily loaded to permit such a thing to happen.

The Gators were runners-up to the Vols last year in SEC play and the year before won SEC honors and third-ranking college honors, so should be expected to produce a strong sun-tanned aggregation this afternoon.

On The Diamond Scene

The baseballers after their game with Hiwassee here Wednesday take a short rest this week-end—at least it appears so at the moment of this writing though we have been crossed up before and will probably be so again). LMU's diamond nine is expected to put in an appearance here Monday and on Friday King College of Bristol will field their Tornadoes on the MC diamond which it is hoped has been moved back from behind Thaw after last Saturday's windstorms. Next Saturday the Scots take on some professional tallent as they go against the Morristown Red Sox of the Class D Mountain States League.

Coach Kenneth Johnson's tennissers remain home next week for two matches—one with TPI on Tuesday and the other with East Tennessee State in the year's big match before getting set for the State Tourney at Sewannee on May 1-2-3.

Eagles Defeat Scot Men 5-4 For Second Net Loss Of Year

Scots Defeat Buffaloes

The Maryville Scotty tennis team traveled to Johnson City last Friday and defeated the Milligan netters, 8-0. It was a complete sweep as none of the locals lost a single set.

Singles:

McCampbell over Harris 6-1, 6-2.
Buser over Roush 6-0, 6-0.
Anderson over Hale 6-0, 6-2.
Breitback over Cooper 6-0, 6-0.
England over Radspinner 6-0, 6-1.
Lebold over Goff 6-0, 6-1.

Doubles:

McCampbell and Buser over Roush and Radspinner 6-0, 6-0.
Andreson and Breitbach over Hale and Goff 6-0, 6-1.

Scots Comeback After UT Defeat

Playing headsup tennis last Wednesday at Athens, Tennessee, the Scot netmen shutout Tennessee Wesleyan Junior College 7-0. Having been soundly defeated by Tennessee 10-0 in their opener on the previous Saturday, March 29, the Johnson-men laid it on the Wesleyanites. Clyde McCampbell began the massacre by trouncing Pete Wilson of TW, 6-0, 6-0. Although Kent Buser lost his first set to Watts of the Bulldogs, Scottie Boser rallied strongly to take the next two sets, 6-3, 6-2, and the match over Bill Watts.

John Anderson, the Scot's number three man and captain had an easy time defeating Gene Mahaffey, 6-3, 6-3.

Ed Breitback followed with a victory over Joe Harris in which he lost the first set, 5-7, but came back strongly to take the next two sets in a breeze, 6-1, 6-1. Marshal England of the Scots easily defeated Beecroft of TW 6-3, 6-3.

In doubles play Buser and McCampbell of the Scots crushed TW's Wilson and Watts, 6-3, 6-3, and England and Dick Lebold completed the shutous by defeating Mehaffey and Harris 7-9, 6-2, and 6-4.

In the matches with Tennessee, which have been mentioned earlier, the Scottie recqueteers were unable to win even a set from the Vols. Clyde McCampbell in his match with Tennessee's Bill Davis, SEC singles champ of last year, and Dick Gardner in his match with Vol Hogan both won the most Scot games, 5. Each took 3 games of one set and 2 in the other.

The score:

Summary—Singles

Davis (UT) defeated McCampbell (MC) 6-2, 6-3.
Bartlett (UT) defeated Buser (MC) 6-3, 6-1.
Gentry (UT) defeated England (MC) 6-2, 6-2.
Edis (UT) defeated Breitback (MC) 6-1, 6-2.
Warden (UT) defeated Lebold (MC) 6-0, 6-1.
Hogan (UT) defeated Gardner (MC) 6-3, 6-2.

Doubles

Davis and Edis (UT) defeated Buser and McCampbell (MC) 6-1, 6-1.
Robinson and Warden (UT) defeated Lebold and Breitback (MC) 6-1, 6-1.

Harris Returns Punt For Lone Score

On Wednesday afternoon on the old football field the Orange team dropped thee Garnets by a 6-0 score, tallied when Maryville High tailback Jimmie Harris returned a Squires punt fifty yards for the T. D. Harris made one of the best runs seen in Maryville football in quite some time, reversing his field several times, pivoting, and just driving through would-be tacklers to go all the way.

Tight Duel

The game for the most part was an evenly matched contest, as Coach J. A. Davis experimented with his men in new positions, among which were Jerry King playing a good game at guard, and Dick Gardner making more than one nice run as offensive wing-

Redskins Take 6-5 Series Opener

Errors Figure In Loss

Veteran righthander Sonny Short, plagued by a sore arm, was further bothered by poor fielding on Friday afternoon, when the Redskins from Miami of Ohio took a 6-5 victory over the Scotties in the opener of a two-game series. The Maryville team was outhit, five to three, but out-errored the Miamians in a very poor game, ten to five, with five of the Miami runs being unearned as were all of the Scottie's.

A Bad Start

The visitors opened the scoring in the first on a walk to Knodel,

Formal Set For April 22

According to Ruth Burgos, chairman of the dance committee, plans are progressing according to schedule for the Spring Formal, to be held in the Alumni Gym on April 22.

The theme of the dance will be "Americans in Paris," and the gym will be converted to a Parisian street.

Sigs Honor McCurry

As the highlight event of their annual banquet held Thursday, April 3, Alpha Sigma honored E. E. McCurry for his 40 years of service to the men of Alpha Sigma and Maryville College.

In recognition, he was presented with a certificate. After the presentation, McCurry spoke on "The College Man in College And In Later Life."

Pre-Mins Hold Banquet

The annual pre-ministerial banquet will be held Monday evening, April 21, at 6:30 at the College Hill Grill. The speaker for the evening will be Dr. Donald A. Spencer of Chattanooga. Dr. Spencer is the father of Mary Jane Spencer.

Any Pre-mins who have not yet made reservations should see Don Stilwell, Don Moffatt, or Phil Zebley immediately.

Looking Good

Jimmie Squires played a hard driving game as the Garnet fullback. and Tom Allen did some good running and excellent short passing to ends Bill Baldwin and Bob Davis. For the Orange, line backer Bill Breen played a fine, all-out game until the last minute when he was knocked out and had to be carried off the field.

Bad Luck

At the close of the game the Garnet finally mounted a sustained drive on short passes and line bucks by Squires to give them a first down and a goal to go, but the drive failed on a fumble, and the game ended 6-0 in favor of the Orange Team.

who scored on Stegeman's single and Sexton's throwing error. The Scotties took the lead, however, when Short tripled to right center, stayed there as Jones got on via Lyon's boot of his roller, and then tallied when Jim Campbell lined to center. The scoring was ceoncluded when Jones scored as Kinseer isngid on the ground to left.

A Bad Time

The defense collapsed in the fourth and fifth during which the Redskins scored five times. In the fourth, Wilkinson got on on Jones' error, then Lyons and Cosby walked, May singled, Tappan walked, with a passed ball thrown in, to score two runs. The fifth looked easy for Short as the first two men went out easily, and the third tapped an easy roller down the third base line, but Short fumbled it, and then a second like it. A few outfield miscues, along with hits by May and Tappan let in three runs to spell defeat.

News Capsules—

By Joanne Frei

By Joe Gilliland

Democratic diners at the annual Jefferson-Jackson Day Dinner were astounded at President Truman's statement that he would not be a candidate for President in 1952. The statement was extemporaneously added to the formal address which opened the 1952 Democratic campaign. In stepping out of the presidential race Truman said, "I shall not be a candidate for re-eleection. I have served my country long and, I think, efficiently and honestly. I shall not accept a renomination. I do not feel that it is my duty to spend another four years in the White House."

Some reporters have claimed that the President is backing Governor Adlai Stevenson of Illinois as his personal choice for the presidency, but Truman has declined comment on this statement.

'Resignations'

On the Sunday afternoon following Truman's Saturday night "step out" speech, the White House announced the resignation of mobilization director, Charles E. Wilson. In his letter of resignation, Wilson claimed that the President had changed the plan the two had previously agreed to in regard to the wages of the steel industry. Present acting mobilization director is John Steelman.

On Thursday of the same week, Attorney-General Howard McGrath fired Newbold Morris, who had been hired by the President to clean up the corruption in government. A few hours later, President Truman announced the resignation of McGrath. Morris stated that one good thing about the whole affair was that "the government is rid of Howard McGrath."

Strikes

Two major strikes threatening the nation have been partially alleviated. President Truman, in an emergency move, seized the steel industry when the CIO and the steel companies failed to agree on wage adjustments. The major companies have gone to court to bring an injunction against the government, but have not yet succeeded in their move.

The other strike by Western Union employees is still in effect. This is hampering the usual Easter floral telegraphic orders.

Threatening but not yet in effect is a strike by telephone employees.

Royal Visitors

Queen Juliana and Prince Bernhard of the Netherlands arrived in Washington last week for an extended visit to the United States. They are the first guests to stay in the renovated White House. Earlier this week they were given welcomes in Philadelphia and New York, and on Thursday they were in Tennessee for a four-hour tour through Norris Dam. They were flown from New York and came in via the Knoxville airport.

Korea

In Korea truce negotiations between the United Nations and the Communists are still at a standstill.

Red photographs of alleged "germ warfare" on the part of the UN were branded as false by photographic experts who said that the pictures were deliberately fixed in order to prove the Communist charges.

less record with three wins and no losses, were in hot persuit.

In third place sits the vastly improved Y.M.C.A. team which, after losing its first four games, came roaring back to take three in a row and move ahead of Alpha Sigma, trailing in fourth place with two wins and three losses. The luckless Rocks and Happy Warriors, with two and four and one and four records respectively, bring up the rear bf the six team league.

With two rounds yet to be played and several teams just beginning to find themselves, this could well prove to be a three or four team race right down to the wire.

Lloyd Names Mary Miles Student Help Secretary

Library Assistant To Direct Program

By Lora Kinsinger

Mary Miles, for the past four years assistant in Lamar Memorial Library, hase been appointed Student-Help Secretary, President Ralph W. Lloyd has just announced.

Miss Miles, MC '18, was a missionary teacher in Japan from 1921 to 1940. During World War II she was forced to remain in this country. Since the war it has seemed wise for her to delay her return to Japan, and her position here has been on a temporary basis.

Her record in Japan was outstanding, according to a statement by President Lloyd, and the decision to accept the offer to be Student-Help Secretary and relinquishing the prospect of returning to the mission field has been a difficult one.

After graduation from Maryville and during furloughs, she did graduate study at the Biblical Seminary in New York City and at George Peabody College for Teachers at Nashville. This new appointment is to fill the vacancy created by Dr. Clemmie J. Henry's retirement for health reasons, from this position two years ago. During these two years this important work has been distributed temporarily among several offices and persons, the latter including particularly Dean Frances Massey, Mrs. Chamberlain, and Miss Hennemuth.

The title of "Student-Help Secretary" is the one carried by Dr. Henry until changed a few years ago to "Director of Student-Help."

The functions of the Student-Help Secretary will include direction of the student-help program on the campus and the cultivation of friends and financial support throughout the country.

Miss Miles will enter the full time duties of the office in the summer. Meanwhile she is spending a few hours each week doing Student-Help work.

RFC Bill Defeated

A bill to abolish the Reconstruction Finance Corporation was beaten by a 39-36 vote in the Senate last week. Instead, it was voted to send it back to the Banking Committee for study and possible changes and presentation again on June 2. The committee is not bound to bring back the same measure.

Prison Riots Expected Ended

Governor G. W. Williams of Michigan has given his assurance to the 172 mutinous prisoners at the Southern Michigan State Prison that their demands would be met, in the hope that the "strike" would cease yesterday. The hostages have begged to be freed, but the prisoners have turned the building into an almost impenetrable fortress.

Last Sunday evening the preacher at Vespers was Ben E. Cook, prominent English Presbyterian layman.

President Attends Church Meetings

President Ralph Waldo Lloyd recently attended the meeting of the Execuitve Committee of the American Section of the World Presbyterian Alliance which was held in New York on April 15. He is the American Secretary of the World Presbyterian Alliance.

The members of this committee come from the United States and Canada and represent nine Presbyterian and Reformed churches that belong to the World Alliance in these two countries. These nine churches have about 5½ million members in the United States and Canada.

One of the matters of business handled at this meeting was the preliminary plans for the next meeting of the World Alliance to be held in the United States in 1954.

On the night of April 15, Dr. Lloyd attended the "Presentation Dinner" held at the Waldorf Astoria where the formal presentation of the Great Books of the Western World took place.

Newspaper Staff To Visit Knoxville

The editorial staff of The Highland Echo will go to Knoxville Tuesday evening for a banquet at the S&W Cafeteria and to visit The Knoxville Journal as it goes to press.

More than 25 Echo staff members and their guests will hear Loye Miller, editor of the Knoxville News-Sentinel, speak at the banquet. Arthur S. Bushing, assistant professor of English and member of the Publications Committee, who is currently on sabbattical leave doing graduate work at UT, will accompany the group.

Highland Echo staff members in charge of arrangements are Darothy Greenhagen and Van Holland.

College Will Offer New Music Courses

Three classes of Music Education 348 in beginning woodwind, brass, and percussion instruments are being offered next semester. The one credit hour class will meet twice a week, once as separate classes and once combined as beginning band.

The course is open to any student interested in learning to play an instrument. The pre-requisite is Music If or the equivalent.

Students not owning instruments may rent them from the college.

YW Will See Slides

The YWCA program on Sunday, April 27, will feature slides to be shown in Bartlett Auditorium at 1:30. The slides will illustrate the part which art has played in the history of the Christian religion, particularly during the period of the Reformation.

The program will be planned and presented by several art majors.

Students Continue Fall Registration

Registration for the Fall Semester is now in process, and is for all students now in attendance. Those who do not return their schedule cards, properly signed by the major adviser, to the Personnel Office on or before Tuesday, May 13, will be required to pay the late registration fee of $2.50 before registering for the Fall Semester.

Students have been instructed to return approved schedule cards to the Personnel Office, where their names will be placed on the proper class rolls for the Fall Semester. Those who fail to renew the advance deposit of $10. by the end of the present semester (noon on May 22) will lose their places on the class rolls.

This applies to both town and dormitory students. Just leaving the old deposit will not be sufficient. It must be transferred by the student in person at the Treasurer's Office.

Registration dates for prospective juniors are April 23 through May 1. Dates for prospective sophomores and freshmen are May 2 through 13.

Maryville Receives Great Books Gift; 3 Volumes Arrive

Maryville College has received a Founders' Edition Set of the Great Books of the Western World, as a gift of Glen A. Lloyd of Chicago, brother of President Ralph W. Lloyd. The first three volumes have been brought by Dr. Lloyd from the presentation dinner in New York.

Great Books of the Western World is a 54 volume set of 443 works by 74 different authors who treat 102 basic Great Ideas. The project was headed by Robert W. Hutchins and Mortimer J. Adler as Editor and Associate Editor respectively, and the Books were published by the Encyclopaedia Britannica. Work on the project was begun in 1943 and finished last year.

The set has Volume 1, "The Great Conversation"; volumes 2 and 3, The Syntopicon; and the remainder consists of the original works.

Volume 1, especially prepared for the Founders' Edition, contains a history of the Great Books; a list of individuals, institutions, and organizations receiving Founders' Editions; and has the title page signed by the author and the number of the set (Maryville has number 175).

Volumes 2 and 3, The Syntopicon, represent the most work and investment of the Great Books project. The Syntopicon serves as an index for the 102 Great Ideas, having a chapter on each. The chapters are alphabetically arranged ("Angel" to "World").

Each chapter contains an article on the idea; an outline of sub-topics; a reference list for the Great Books; and an additional reading list. In addition there is a reference index for 2987 topics not included in the Great Ideas. The Syntopicon may also be used as a book to be read since the chapter articles are essays on their particular subject.

Work on the Syntopicon was headed by Mortimer J. Adler and took eight years and an estimated cost of $5 million. During this time, each work in the Great Books plus the Bible was read through on the average of four times each by the Syntopicon staff.

The remainder of the volumes are the Great Books themselves. In the preface to the Syntopicon the selection of the Books is explained: "The Great Books are pre-eminently those which have given the western tradition its life and light."

Springfield, Roach To Rule May Day

Festival Set For Thursday In College Amphitheater

By Abby Crosby

Al Springfield, senior pre-med major from Ardmore, Penna., was chosen May King in all-campus elections held last Friday. He will escort Queen Betty Roach, and they will be attended by Ann Leeder, Gene Parks, Barbara Miller, Walter Rowley, Barbara June Gregory, David Gates, Mary Alice Kemp, and A. C. McWilliams.

The 1952 May Day Festival will be held in the College Woods Amphitheater Thursday afternoon, May 1, at 2:30. In case of rain, the festival will be held on the next pretty day.

May Day is an annual event at Maryville College. It is under the direction of the women's physical education department, headed by Mrs. Verton M. Queener and Mrs. William O. Largen.

In Medeival and Tudor England, May Day was a great public holiday. All classes of the people were up with the dawn and went "a-maying." Branches of trees and flowers were borne back in triumph to the towns and villages, the center of the procession being occupied by the Maypole, glorious with ribbons and wreaths.

The May Day Festival will open with the crowning of the Queen and will be followed by the Maypole dance. This will be followed by tumbling acts, then several folk dances, Cotton-eyed Joe, Shoo-Fly, Kalvelis, Skating Away, and the Texas Mixer. A skit, "Three Modern Little Pigs," will then be presented by the FTA, which will be followed by two more folk dances, the Patty Cake Polka and the Tennessee Waltz.

The Maypole Dancers will include Virginia Davenport, Evelyn Boughten, Dola Ann Kinard, Jean Morgan, Janice Clemens, Shirley Axley, Abby Crosby, Betty Ham, Ruth King, Millie Mowery, Libby Ann Parrish, Peggy Points, Marian Rice, Kathy Sellers, Marian Tirrill, Connie Howell, Mary Van Fossen, and Nancy Kidd.

The first group of tumblers will be Ric Rogers, Jerry Waters, Earnest Menness, and Jerry Menness.

The tumblers doing the Pyramid will be Ann Dishner, Eloise Gazaway, Lucy Geer, Doris Hancox, Grace Harrison, Pat Ingles, Marion Heron, Joan Herschelman, Barbara Innes, Jo Jones, Dorothy Miller, Gay Parrish, Lillian Rivera, Jimmie Ann Scruggs, Rebecca Sexton, Virginia Smith, Nancy Tedford, Mary Ann Thompson, Pat Wagner, Peggy Williams, Wilma Williams, and Dorothy Yater.

Those in the Rose will be Hazel Alexander, Ruth Bennett, Doris Brooks, Gail Brown, Nancy Tedford, Anne Buckley, Sally Butts, Jimmie Ann Scruggs, Barbara Cox, and Emma Curtis.

The dancers in Kalvelis will be Agnes Bond, Kathy Chase, Joan Frei, Nillah Grinstead, Betty James, Billie Jones, Billie Lester, Joyce Linginfelter, Geneva Davis, Charlotte Maggard, Nancy Naylor, Margaret Quinn, Roberta Ranken, Margaret Reed, Altha Jane Turner, Mary Webb, Ann Hoover, and Elizabeth Birch.

Those doing the other folk dances will be Lynn Miller, Bob Cuthill, Emily McLain, Bert McMahan, Dorothy Johnson, Austin Van Pelt, Jean Davis, Thad Godwin, Gracie Scruggs, Charles Allen, Mary Schockley, and Lee Cook.

The cast of "Three Modern Little Pigs" will include Beverly Jacobi, Mary Kelton, Laura Pritchett, and Mary Virginia Ferguson. The skit will be under the direction of Shirley Shue.

The crown bearer will be Douglas Gamble, and the flower bearers will be Alida McArthur and Stuart Bushing.

The committee members are: costumes, Barbara Rogers and Virginia Sanderson; children, Helen Drinnen; dances, Gracie Scruggs; FTA, Shirley Shue; properties, Jean Davis; publicity, Barbara June Gregory; Queen and Court, Hazel Wood.

Dewey Attends Confab

Don Dewey, junior music major from Captain, Ill., attended the Pi Lambda Epsilon Southeastern area conference in Atlanta last week.

Speaker at the meeting was Dr. Joseph Carmiechal, professor of Greek at Taylor University.

MC Vesper Choir Begins '52 Tour

Maryville College Vesper Choir left Thursday for its 1952 tour, which lasts until May 4 and goes through the states of Tennessee, Illinois, Indiana, and Kentucky, covering more than 1,800 miles.

The choir will give 14 concerts in 11 days, under the auspices of various churches and two air force bases. It will sing at Hillsboro Presbyterian Church, Nashville; High School Auditorium, Eldorado, Illinois; Chanute Air Force Base, Rantoul, Illinois;

Park Presbyterian Church, Streator, Illinois; Reid Memorial Chapel, Lake Forest College Illinois; First Presbyterian Church, Oak Park, Illinois;

Westminster Presbyterian Church, Rockford, Illinois; Second Presbyterian Church, Bloomington, Illinois; First Presbyterian Church, Centralia, Illinois;

Scott Air Force Base, Illinois; First Presbyterian Church, Pana, Illinois; First Presbyterian Church, Evansville, Indiana; and United Church, Bowling Green, Kentucky.

The 40 choir members are accompanied by their director, Harry H. Harter, Mrs. Margaret Cummings, and Dr. F. A. Griffitts.

Home Ecs Show Fashions Tonight

The Home Economics Department, under the direction of Professor Gertrude Meizelwitz, will present its eighth annual fashion show tonight at 8 p.m. in Intramural Gym.

More than 100 garments will be shown representing the work done by all sewing classes during the past school year.

Ann Leeder is chairman of the decorations committee assisted by Margaret McClure. Wilma Borter and Dorothy Johnston are co-chairmen of the publicity committee. Members of the art and music departments are also cooperating.

The fashion show is produced under the sponsorship of the Social Board. There is no admission charge.

Student Vols Plan Amphitheater Confab

This afternoon Student Vols will hold a conference in the amphitheater from 2 to 5 p.m. Don G. MacDougall and Mr. and Mrs. Olson Pemberton will be the speakers.

MacDougall is a Sunday School missionary for the Chilhowee Mountain area.

Sunday evening Mr. and Mrs. Pemberton will speak at the regular meeting of Vols. The Pembertons will tell of their experiences as missionaries to Brazil.

Both Pemberton and his wife are Maryville graduates and he is a former Vols president.

Bainonian Elects Baylor

LaDonna Baylor, junior education major from Sturgis, Mich., was elected Bainonian president for next semester. Jay Spenser is vice-president; Bev Edwards, secretary; Millie Mowery, rush week chairman; Mary Alice Kemp, treasurer; and Betty Stiles and Evelyn Fields, program chairmen.

Co-chairman for rush week will be decided in a run-off election to be held today.

Bainonian will meet tonight at 6:15 in Bainonian Hall. Phi chapter is in charge of the program which will feature a scavanger hunt.

Hoover, Wallace To Present Recital

A recital by Herbert Hoover and Lawrence Wallace, senior music theory majors, will be presented at 4:30 p.m. on April 29 in the Music Hall of the Fine Arts Center.

First on the program will be two Bach selections by Wallace; "Ich ruf' zu Dir, Herr Jesu Christ," and "Prelude in G Major." "Concerto in the Italian Style," by Bach will then be played by Hoover.

Wallace's next selections will be Rameau's "Tambourin," and Bach's "Fugue No. XV in G Major," and "Fugue No. V in D Major." "Waltz in B Minor, Op. 69, No. 2" by Chopin, "Prelude No. 10" by Debussy, and "Two Musical Sketches," by Hoover, will be Hoover's second set of selections.

Wallace will then present Brahms' "Four Waltzes, Op. 39," and Chopin's "Prelude in G Minor, Op. 28, No. 22." Following this Hoover will play "Sonata No. 4" by Thomson.

"Sonata in G Major, Op. 31, No. 1," by Beethoven will be played by Wallace, after which both performers will present Barggiotti's "Variations on Yankee Doodle in the Manner of Beethoven."

Student Council

APRIL 23, 1952

Student Body President Bob Cuthill appointed a committee of Dick Newman, Marie Richards, Jessie Dye, and Bill Morse to investigate the propriety of the Quickway Restaurant at the Student Council meeting on Wednesday, April 23. Council deemed such action necessary because the out-of-bounds Quickway is now under new management.

Cuthill then urged all Student Council members to see that minutes of clubs and classes were turned into the Student Council Student Office. The Student Office is a newly created department. Its primary purpose is to have at all times accurate and orderly filed records of the major student government organizations.

After hearing a report on the National Student Association by Jim Allison, Council concluded that it was not practical to join the organization. Cuthill suggested that next year's Council again look into the matter.

Council discussed the possibility of holding this year's commencement exercises outside, instead of in Alumni Gymnasium. Dave Reed and President Cuthill are to explore further this subject.

Three town night violations were reported; considering the unusual circumstances, penalties were not applied.

IRC Elects Holland, Donates Money To WSSF

Van Holland, junior English major from Baltimore, Md., was elected next year's president of IRC at the Monday, April 21 meeting.

Other newly-elected officers are Jay Spencer, vice-president; Charlie LaRue, treasurer; Evelyn Fields, secretary; and Dr. Verton M. Queener, Professor of History and Social Sciences, as faculty advisor.

Dr. Queener headed the program with a speech, "American Foreign Policy." After the program, IRC elected its new officers and voted to donate $25 to WSSF.

Two films on world government will be shown at the last meeting, Monday, May 5, at 6:30 p.m. in Thaw 214.

Congratulations

By Dick Newman

It is not usually the policy of The Echo to commend individual campus productions. Perhaps whatever encouragement might be involved would make that worthwhile more often. Probably not. But perhaps we too often deal with too serious subjects, and not quite often enough perform one of the duties and responsibilities of a college newspaper: the simple fact of letting individuals and organizations know when they're good and ought to be commended.

The combined Glee Clubs' production of Gilbert and Sullivan's "Pirates of Penzance" last week end was good and more than that. A combination of excellent casting, directing, singing, acting, and producing made it one of the best shows of the semester. Of course, the ever-delightful tunes and lyrics of Gilbert and Sullivan make it impossible to go too far wrong, but the Girls' Choir and Men's Glee Club deserve every congratulation for a terrific job.

And Edrie Sellick as director could have made for herself no better introduction to the majority of Maryville College students. To her and to all those who helped make "Pirates of Penzance" the very great success it was, The Echo is happy to say, "well done"

More Congratulations

By Dick Newman

Your Highland Echo accepts congratulations. Though we are hardly completely responsible, we feel a certain amount of pride and satisfaction, coupled with the sense of duty and responsibility that only an occasion like this can produce. We refer, of course, to the two tiger kittens born last week in The Echo office.

Of otherwise doubtful ancestry, their mother is the grey cat who makes her home in, around, and underneath Lamar Library. Doubtless wishing the best possible environment for her offspring, she forsook th rather dull, colorless book storage rooms under the library for the more exciting atmosphere created by campus journalism. No enemy to scholarship, however, she at least chose an adjacent area to the more literary surroundings where she otherwise makes her home.

Flourishing on Student Center milk and assorted morsels from the dining hall, everyone appears healthy, happy, and in the very best of spirits. The Echo, in cooperation with a very pleased mother cat, is proud to announce two additions to the campus community.

'They Went To College'

By Van Holland

"Time" magazine has recently published a book called "They Went to College," which presents some of the differences and affects that come from a college education. The book is the product of a five-year study of 9,064 representative graduates.

The outstanding fact of the book is that college graduates have done well financially, for they make twice as much money as the average worker without a college education. And as far as grades are concerned, they make little difference in relation to one's earning power. Although 50% of the male A students are in the over-$5,000 bracket, so are 41% of the C and D students. However, Phi Beta Kappas fare much better financially than their C and D counter-parts in the learned professions, but this advantage dwindles to nothing in the business world. Also, the survey shatters the American illusion about the student who works his way through college since he makes less money than those who are parent-supported.

Individuals who believe that our colleges are breeding houses of young radicals find themselves rebuked by this study. It shows that Republicans outnumber Democrats three to two, and the majority of graduates admit that they vote as their fathers did. Seemingly, the chances are less than one to ten that Republican students will switch parties, and the chances are twice as great among Democrats. This means, of course, that more Republicans attend college and that the effect of college is to the benefit of the Republican Party. In connection with politics, the campus politician does not, the study proves, leap ahead. For instance, the male students who participated in four extra-curricular activities are likely to average $1,000 less than those who participated in no activities at all.

Our sincere sympathy is extended to the college women. Where as 85% of the male graduates have married, and 96% have stayed married; 31% of the college women remained unmarried, as compared to just 13% of all US women. It would appear that for many women college is an education for spinsterhood. Also, the career woman finds that it is still a man's world. At the time of the survey her median income was only $2,689, and only a few ended up as doctors, lawyers, and dentists.

A student's success, concluded the survey, can be best predicted by the wealth and prestige of his college. However, the survey was a statistical portrait only. The figures do not say whether higher education pays off in various other ways—such as learning to reason, learning to accept responsibility, developing one's abilities, expanding one's personality and interests, and taking advantage of all those other opportunities that higher education offers.

We hope that financial success is not the only goal of the graduate; otherwise, his education has been far from complete.

Scots & Soda

By Carol Moore

At last At last! I've found just the place to type my smutty column. With the smell of printer's ink and aged papers wafting beneath my nose I seat myself behind the typewriter in the Echo office. At my right our eminent editor, (Wake up, Newman, I'm writing about you!) friend to all students at Maryville College and me. At my left, the janitor, Van Holland, is sweeping the discarded papers that lie under the carpet of dust into the filing cabinet, and Gail Brown is mimeographing the "All Echo assignments are due by noon today" chapel announcements to be read by Dean Mac on Wednesdays. Atmosphere . . . atmosphere. . . Quickway was never like this!

A Word To The Wise. . .

Scrounging through the debris in the third drawer while looking for an eraser, I discovered this appropriate, little verse written by a backward poet.

Spring has sprung,
The grass is riz.
I wonder where
Our HOLIDAY is? ? ?

—lorac eroom

Don't put me down yet Dr. Lloyd. That HOLIDAY can wait another minute if it's waited this long! Did you notice Miss Heron banging her head against the wall in chapel the other day? Miss Blair having an epileptic fit? Dr. Hunter nervously chewing his tie to ribbons? It was all because Samuel, not Ben, Johnson wrote the first dictionary.

* * * * *

Speaking of dictionaries, look what I just found in Webster's!

"holiday 1. any day of exemption from labor or work;
2. a period of recreation or rest;
3. a vacation."

* * * * *

Little Women? ? ? ? ?

Last week in Freshman English class Sheila Sutton and Miss Blair were discussing a book which Sheila had read several years ago and Miss Blair asked her, "Did your mother particularly approve of your reading that book?"

Sheila's reply, "I don't think she particularly knew I was reading it!"

Miss Blair's famous last words, "Well, let's all race for it after class!"

Bugology. . .

I'm told that Jo Anne Edwards had a biology lesson last Town Night. She picked up a moth on the corner (new student?) and when she got home she discovered it had laid eggs all over the sweater. She was carrying it. . . the sweater, that is.

With the distribution of the '52-'53 catalogue I've heard quiet a few comments on the new room rules for MC students listed on the blank pages in back.

1. All students shall have rooms unless they live in town, in which case they shall not have rooms because they already have one at home and who wants two rooms anyway?

2. Students who die will have to pay up for their room bills anyway, and if they don't claim their possessions in three seconds they become the property of the dramatic department.

3. Students whether present or absent, will be held responsible for their rooms. In case of fire, cyclone, bombing or unfriendly neighbors, the college will do nothing.

4. Students may operate cooking appliances and refrigerators only until caught.

5. Keys to rooms are going to be issued by housemothers. For each key isued a cash deposit of fifty cents is required which will be returned when the key is returned. However, students are requested not to return their keys as they cost the college only twenty-five cents.

Voices, Masks, and Shadows

By Emily Smith

Greetings, compatriots and fellow bookworms! Here we are again. Once more the mill has ground around our way. What's grist this time?

BOOKS, BOOKS, BOOKS . . . will there never be an end to the books on the shelf? Seems there's always something new—and isn't it wonderful!

If you're interested in who wrote all these books, you may find out about a few of them in Harry R. Warfel's "American Novelists of Today." Mr. Warfel has included 575 of our contemporary American novelists who have written two or more serious novels in the last ten years and were working on one more in '51.

His object, as asserted in his introduction is "to present factual information for the benefit of readers who wish a guide through this extensive body of imaginative prose writing.

Those concerned with religion and its growth in our country will find an excellent source book in Frank S. Mead's "Handbook of Denominations". He has alphabetized his descriptions of all the many denominations and divisions and presents "factual truth and developments of the religious bodies of the United States."

Away from the factual and into the realm of fantasy, we discover two books which should prove just as fascinating as Thurber's "Thirteen Clocks." C. S. Lewis has written two books which he says are stories for children. Maybe it's only a sign of immaturity, but we think that anyone would enjoy "The Lion, The Witch, and the Wardrobe," and "Prince Caspian: the Return to Narnia."

They seem rather reminiscent of Lewis Carroll's "Alice," especially in the instrument of transferring you from the world to the fantastic. Instead of Carroll's looking-glass, Lewis uses a large wardrobe in a big English manor to take the little girl to the land of Narnia.

CONGRATULATIONS . . . to Mr. Mac, who has recently been elected to "Who's Who in American Education."

And to the chairmen of the dance committee for a wonderful idea Tuesday night. The theme was quite well carried out, we think, and the entire dance completely enjoyable.

And to the casts of "The Pirates of Penzance" for an excellent production on both nights. We were there only on Saturday but heard much about the Friday night cast, too. We feel that Lynn Kiefer is especially deserving of praise for coming through so well with that broken arm. One more illustration of the age-old maxim "the show must go on."

BON VOYAGE . . . A little late, we admit, but we say it anyhow to those wonderfully lucky people who are away on choir tour. Would that we were going, too! We feel sure that the tour will be a complete success and have all best wishes for the choir. A word must be said for those who are staying at home, too (even if your author is one of them!)

Their spirit, we think, has been excellent throughout despite tears on announcement day.) We adopt the philosophy that goes "if I had gotten to go, somebody else would have had to miss it, and besides there's always next year and now I won't have to miss May Day."

DID SOMEONE SAY . . . MAY DAY! Ooops! Congratulations again—this time to Al Springfield (who will be king of the May, tra, la). We're looking forward to seeing another beautiful program on May the fustist!

OH, NO! NOT movies AGAIN! Seems that the Capitol is showing "Singin' in the Rain" on Monday and Tusday. This is sort of a sequel to "American in Paris" (or so it says in the previews) but about the only similarity we find is the director (Arthur Freed) and the dancer (Gene Kelly). It presents a burlesque of the 1920's splashy Hollywood premiere and the ladies' styles and manners.

An occasional poke is given to Hollywood's ribs but for the most part the show is held down by a slow romance between two ex-famous screen lovers and the advent of the talking picture.

Wednesday and Thursday give us "The Wild North" and Stewart Granger out front as a French-Canadian trapper wanted for murder. Wendell Corey is the Mountie sent to bring him in. As it turns out, Granger brings hte mountie in. The high point of suspense is an attack by wild wolves, "as shattering as a bad dream."

Speaking of bad dreams, that's what we have on Friday and Saturday. Not too much info is available but it's the usual Rocky Lane western with something else as the other half of the double feature.

Across the street at the Park we discover on Monday "Corporal Dolan Goes AWOL," re-edited from "Rendezvous with Annie." The cast includes Eddie Albert, Faye Marlowe, C. Aubrey Smith, and Gail Patrick. Draw your own conclusions.

Tuesday and Wednesday we have "Bride of the Gorilla" with Barbara Payton (Franchot Tone's ex) and Lon Chaney followed on Thursday and Friday by Jane Nigh and John Archer in "Rodeo." The last mentioned should turn out pretty well, since the same folks made it that made "Blue Grass of Kentucky" and we liked that!

THIS IS THE END! . . . At long, long last, we on The Echo are going to learn how a paper is really put together. (That's a paper?) We of the staff are making an expedition next Tuesday night to dine and inevstigate at the Knoxville Journal. Wish us luck!

The Trackman's Burial

"So, blow ye railbirds, blow,
And my spirit shall not squint;
I have ran with man a foe
I have weathered many a sprint.
And in this hour of death,
Ere I yield my fleeting breath—
Ere the men now running slow,
Shall come rushing from below,
And this worn and wasted frame
Be devoted to the flame—
I will raise my voice in triumph singing free;
To the great Time-Keeper's home
I am driving 'ere I roam,
I am going to Valhalla, O'er the sea.
So blow, ye stormy winds—
And ye flames, ascend on high;
In easy, college bed
Let the slave and coward die!
But give me the driving legs,
Past clang of crowds and flashing pegs
Or my foot on foreign track
With my foes at my back!
Happy, happy, thus I'd yield,
In the pit or in the field.
My last breath shouting "On to Victory!"
But since this has been denied,
They shall say that I have died
Without flinching like a monarch of the sea."

The Barber of Sevierville with Apologies to Charles Mackay

Thus, we say goodby to track for perhaps a long time as the cinder sport like Old Soldiers, just faded away. And why? for reasons for which could have been handled otherwise.

The issue has been mentioned here before and the reader, as such, can check back for any background he wants.

One, there were no meets to attract fellows out.

Two, Maryville's spring semester is too short.

Three, not a great enough number of boys showed interest in having track. Each side has its pros and cons like the steel strike and the boys could be argued for days on end but both are to blame in part. Certainly there weren't enough boys out at meetings held to discuss the situation but there also has to be some spadework on the other side for in a situation such as Maryville's, very few people are interested in something until they see others working on some project that has a definite end. 'Nuff said here. Likewise, it wouldn't have hurt for a few more boys, especially the underclassmen, to have asked for suits. 'Nuff said here also. For comments, Letters to Th Editor are available as are members of the staff.

Ghost Pebbles On The Field

A coach was managing one dark and cloudy day
He paced about the coaching box, his team began to play,
But when the game was ovr and all the gear laid aside
You should have heard that coach as he sadly cried
Errors and runs, Errors and runs,
We give errors and runs.

●THIS MIGHT BE THE LAMENT uttered by noticing baseball fans around MC as well as Coach Lombe Honaker as Maryville Scots have thrown the earned run column of baseball statistics out the window in games so far this season. Whereas, last year Scot hurlers gave up only 25 earned runs in winning ten and dropping two games and together were tagged for olny 42 runs in sason's play not including an 8-9 peractice gam with the CIO in which MC hurlers gave up six earned runs. This year, Maryville opponents had scored fifty-three runs to 78 for MC in the Highlander's first seven tilts of a sixteen game schedule. Likewise, last year, MC's hitters and runners had combed the basepaths for 51 runs in those seven games and totalled ninety for the season.

In 1950, a powerful MC hitting attack sparked by Boring, Hamil, Reynolds, and Pentz, had pounded out 90 markers to the opposition's 44. Granted that three Hiwassee games back then produced 66 runs for MC, still the team's record was five and two and before Lipscomb was played on Monday, the balance sheets showed a 3-4 contrast. For this year's efforts with MC also scoring 27 of her 78 runs in the third Hiwassee encounter.

In 1949, the runs for and against the Orange and Garnet men were on a 42-37 basis with the team's record for the time being 5-3 and for the season 13-7.

We could go on with other figures which all in all are just good for quantity rather than quality of space but in direct language, these statistics mean that unless MC's fielding tightens up, he Scots' record for the yeaer may, instead of being around the .667 marks, be lounging around the .500 or under average.

We haven't made a compilation on errors but we daresay that in our four years at MC, this year's team has been making an abnormally large amount of errors in comparison to the teams seen in those four years. And it's plain baseball sense, college or professional, that fumbled balls sure don't win ball games nor do they preserve a pitcher's morale.

Biggest example of this recently was the King game which saw both sides between the sixth and ninth innings seemingly wishing to donate the game gratis to the other and which in the long run MC gained by virtue of a rash of wildness on the part of the Railsplitter's pitcher, Somerville, as he pounded four called balls to Wes Kinser with the hassocks filled. One might say that in that game, both teams should have some home and hung up their spikes.

But back to this week's out put of pessimism—we're just hoping that MC's diamonders got that needed shot in the arm on their road trip Monday-Wednesday which will enable them to apply the gloved-mitt to those bounding balls that skip across MC's glass-smooth greensward. There is enough gray hair already growing in the baseball department much less seing Jim Kren, Gene Parks, and Harry Robinson, also sprouting graying locks since Sonny Short's hair is already blond enough that he just has to add a little bit of lamp-black to make his transition.

●A LITTLE RAY OF SUNSHINE NOW—Though the proverbial axe has been lowered above and will no doubt see the proverbial rail brought out of stock along with lamb's wool and bitumen for a re-opening of one way commuting service out of MC, the Scot playing has been at least such that gives at least a few observers reasons enough to se why Maryville might just take the best of last year's SEC baseball champions and finalists in the NCAA tournament at Omaha or somewhere thereabouts. Talk about strategy being a part of baseball along with hustle and pepper, the Vols are certainly lacking.

Could it be the big head plus the facts that "the most underrated player in Tennessee football history" plus the "number one tailback substitute in the nation" do not feel that there's a job to play hard at and to inspire their team-mates to do likewise; plus the fact that in having good players makes it easier for a coach to sit back and not have to worry about getting out on the field and showing his boys some tricks which in itself would entail the getting of one's spats dusty, one's shirt slightly damp from perspiration, and the imbibing of Alka Seltzer at night before going to bed.

All in all, as concerns the NCAA baseball tourney, we'd like to see it opened up to small schools in a regional tourney rather than just assigning tourney entrance to the champions of the SEC, Southern, Big Ten, Ivy League, and other major-power conferences. We are just inclined to feel that the assumption that the champions of these conferences are the best in their areas is a might bit wrong and schools like Maryville or any of a number its size in North Carolina or smaller could take the cake in an NCAA national as well as regional tourney. It might be worth trying once just to see the results.

Scot Athletes Have Bad Week Of Losses

Sewannee Netmen Trip Scots, 7-2

Sewannee's Purple Tigers made a trip to Maryville Wednesday and found it worthwhile as they took a 7-2 victory over the Scots.

Maryville fans thought that MC might make the match a close one as Clyde McCampbell took John Hooker in three sets, 6-2, 4-6, and 6-3. However, the Purple and White came back with three victors in the next four singles sets as Ivy Jackson, Webb White, George Waggoner, and Keith Fort proved themselves the better of their Maryville opponents.

The Tigers had more success in the doubles division, sweeping all three matches though by close scores.

Showing the regard with which they hold tennis as a sport, the Tigers' netmen have eighteen matches scheduled this year and have won eleven of them, dropping only a start against UT by a 9-0 score. Among the teams on their ambitious scale are such out of state teams as Georgia, Furman, Clemson, South Carolina, and other big schools. A no doubt good reason for this is the fact that Dr. John Burton, the Tiger coach is in his twnty-fifth year of coaching on the Mountain as the Tigers' institution is called during said tenure. This in all probability puts hmi close to the top of the heap so far as longetivity among Southern tennis coaches and perhaps he too could be called Dean of Southern Tennis Coaches.

At any rate his perseverance paid off in the long run what with the schedule and players the tigers have.

Mocs Yesterday

Chattanooga was the scene of a match yesterday as the Mocs traveled to the Mocassin Bend City for a match with the University of Chattanooga. MC played the Redskins last in 1950 and took the Mocs in straight sets, 8-1. This year's Moc team was expected to fare a little better than that, though.

MC At State Meet Next Week

Going to the State Intercollegiate Meet next Thursday at Sewannee for MC will be Clyde Mc. Campbell, Ed Breitbach, John Anderson, and Kent Buser, who will play in singles, and Marshall England and Dick Lebold who will make up one of MC's two allowed doubles entries. McCampbell and Breitbach will form the other MC duo. Sewannee is the favorite with her nigh-all junior-senior team with MC given a chance of finishing her runner-up position of last year.

TPI Eagles, ETS Fall To Tennismen

Wins Follow Defeat

Prior to the Tuesday match with Sewanee which has been covered in another article in this week's issue, the Scots engaged in three other matches during the last two weeks and won two of them.

Displaying the precision and skill that characterize a top-flight tennis team, the strong Florida University team from the settlement of Gainesville swept the Scots off their feet by taking all eight matches. Although the Gators squeezed out a 5-4 victory over the Vols, they had little trouble in defeating the fighting Highlanders.

The most exciting match of the day was between Clyde McCampbell of the Scots and Roger Pharr of the Gators. Although Pharr easily won the first set, 6-1, and had won the first three games of the second set, McCampbell rallied strongly to take the next three games and after the lead changed hands several times, the MC man took the set, 9-7. Pharr was able to win the third set, 6-3, however, and took the match.

John Anderson of the Scotties gave Gator Fred Bill quite a tussle before losing, 8-6 and 6-3. Although Scotsmen Dick Lebold creamed Don Philips in their first set, 6-1, the Floridian rallied strongly to take th next two sets 6-4 and 6-1.

In the other matches the Gators had an easy time in topping the Scotsmen.

Eagles Plucked

Back in their own class again, the Highlanders smothered TPI, 7-0. Clyde McCampbell started things rollnig with a neat 6-3, 6-0, win over Poly's Gene O'Hara. Scot Kent Buser swept his opponent Jim Dean to take the first set, 6-1, but then had to stave off a strong rally by Dean to take the second

Softball League Resumes

Aftr a week long layoff due to comps and other trivial matters, the Intramural Softball league swung back into action this week. The Ring Noses, having taken over first place by virtue of a 12-8 victory over the Hoboes two weeks ago, strengthened their grip without moving a muscle, as the YMCA forfeited a game Teusday, following a pattern set by Alpha Sig, who forfeited one Monday afternoon.

Alpha Sig did play their game with the Hoboes, although short a man, and managed to make a close and interesting game of it although the score and all other details are missing along with the score sheet.

Track Meet

Coming up on Monday, May 7 is the Intramural Track Meet which is being run on a little different basis this year, with team competition. A tin cup will be awarded the winning team, with Intramural Ribbons going to all individual winners.

Any men interested in running are given notice hereby that they had better start getting in shape Several groups, including Athenian, Alpha Sigma, and Jerry King's Hoboes, have shown interest in entering teams and other individuals wishing to compete on an individual or team basis are asked to sign their names to the bulletin board in Bartlett or to see Coach Johnson or Intramural Managers Pearson, Sockwell, or Navratil.

Events included in this year's meet will be the 50 yard, 100 yard, 220 yard, and 440 yard dashes, the half mile, mile, and two mile races. There will also be several field events and a mile relaw feature event to close the day's activities.

From Broken Bones To Fancy Courts

Echo Reporter Gets Dope On The Game of Love!

By Hersh Mosier

Tennis has had a rich and glorious history. Records show that wherever the Roman legions went traces were left behind indicating that a form of handball had been played.

In medieval England handball was quite popular and days on which games were held, were marked with much pomp and eventually got tired having their hand stung every time they hit the ball. So they began using a glove in "a palm" as hand ball or hand tennis was called. Then double or lined gloves were used, then cords and tendons were bound around the hand in a net. From so crude beginning came the tennis racquet. Shortly after the cords and tendons the French began using a form of bat to hit their crude forms of spheroids with.

At first the French knocked the ball over an embankment made of earth or wooden blocks, but after suffering many years of epidemics of broken bones from contact with those embankments in playing the ball up close, nets were substituted. In about 1200 a.d. the British adopted the French game and called it tennis. Almost immediately tennis became a favorite pastime of English royalty. Henry VIII when he wasn't hunting pheasants or wives engaged in games of this sort. He even got so cocky about his tennis powers that he made side bets with the spectators as to the possible outcome of the matches. Soon the custom of combining betting with tennis beecame the order of the day and the gamblers of the day bought players to throw matches. History sure repeats itself. Things got so bad that a person desiring to engage in a game of tennis had to have unquestionable proof of his honesty or he was forbidden to paly. And eventually because of such dishonesty public play of tennis was forbidden in both England and France in the 17th century. The rich and well-to-do continued playing the game on secret indoor courts, a practice which Edward III began, and the common peoplee began to look upon tennis as "The Royal Game" which in turn gave way to the name—Court Tennis. Royalty lost interest in Court tennis, though until 1873, when Major Walter Wingfield re-introduced the game at a lawn party. This new game was in reality a combination of racquets, field tennis, and court tennis. By popular demand, Wingfield called his brain storm "lawn tennis". In 1874 he wrote a phamphlet entitled "The Major's Game of Lawn Tennis" and in the summer of that same year he patented a portable court and thus showing Madison Square Garden a thing or two. In the meantime The Maryleborne Cricket Club read the major's pamphlet and persuaded the Major to free the game for popular use. Later a Englishman by the name of Heathcote found a way to add weight to a rubber ball by covering it with flannel thus making the ball go further and faster.

America got tennis in the early part of 1874, a young American girl named Mary Ewing Outerbridge returned from Bermuda to New York with all the necessary equipment for a tennis game which she had acquired from a British Army supply store on that romantic isle of honeymooners and vacationing career girls. She must have been a pretty good saleswoman, because the first tennis match to be played in the United States took place on the courts of the Staten Island Cricket and Baseball club shortly after her return. Almost over night tennis courts sprang up throughout the United States (ed. note—how'd they do that). Some of the earliest courts besides the one already mentioned were in Newport, Massachusetts, Philadelphia, and New Orleans.

For a few years the new game went along in haphazard fashion under varying rules. The nets were set at different heights— up to five feet on the sides and four feet in the middle. Tennis balls were of no standard size or texture. Some courts were marked out in hour glass shape—narrow in the middle and wide at both nds. In 1881 some of the big wheels met in New York City and organized what is now known as the United States Lawn Tennis Association.

In 1801 national championships began for men with championships for women beginning in 1913. By 1885 there were 81

Baseballers Win One, Lose Two

Maryville's baseballers found that road games aren't especially suited for thm as they traveled to Middle Tennessee Monday, Tuesday, and Wednesday, and were victimized in two out of three games though they might have won one of the others.

Kren Cracks Whip

Nashville was the scene of Monday's game with David Lipscomb furnishing the opposition. Jim Kren went all the way in limiting the opposition to three hits in a 4-2 win. Jack Patterson for the victors limited MC to a likewise number of bingles but MC used the usual old-fashioned tactics of bunting, hit and run, stealing, etc. to win.

Middle Tennessee State declined a game for Tuesday and instead the Scots played Seward Air Force base. Gene Parks had the Airmen under control for nine innings as MC led 3-0 but in the bottom half of the ninth, the flyers broke loose with a rash of hits to score four earned runs and take a 4-3 victory. Seward's two pitchers, Nagengast and Knife, cut MC hitting to four hits while their teammates picked up seven.

We Shoulda Stayed Home

Wednesday's game shouldn't have been played at all as the Golden Eagles of TPI really showed their lustre in swamping the Highlanders by a 16-1 score. Red Gaylor limited MC to three hits while his teammates were raping Sonny Short, Wes Kinser, and Jim Harrison 'for as many hits as they got runs. Kinser hurled for two and Harrison for three as the game turned into a rout early.

Three Games On Tap For Next Week As Basballers Face ETS, LMU and E&H

East Tennessee State's Baseball Bucs will attempt to fare better than their tennis cohorts when they invade Maryville Monday for a game with the Scots. The Buc net-men dropped a 7-2 decision while last year's contest saw the Scots eke out a 2-1 win with Sonny Short doing MC's mound chores.

Keep, It That Way

Baseball rivalry with State goes back to 1922 when the Scots initiated play with a 3-0 win. Since then, MC has won 41 of 52 contests and dropped eleven with the last Buc defeat being inflicted in 1949 when the Bucs won the season's first encounter, 8-7, but dropped the return set-to, 7-3.

Harrogate, Tennessee is the scene of play next Wednesday as the Scots attempt to salvage the second game of a series with LMU. The Railsplitter's Ted Williams—no relation to the Boston Bean Boy—handcuffed the Scots but definitely last week as the Big Blue went home with a 7-2 win. However, some consolation might be derived from the fact that King ha dpreviously found Mr. Williams' pitching to their liking and had nipped out a 10-9 game from him—MC, likewise, returned such a favor to King last week, also. Perhaps statistics will aid in this one.

LMU Wins Scarce Lately

The series of diamond scraps with the up-staters has a little longer history than that with ETS since the first encounter took place back in 1914 when MC dropped an initial 2-1 ball game but came back the next day to win, 10-0. Since then, MC has won 52 games and the Big Blue 21. LMU after being shutout three times in a row after her initial win, maintained a balance of wins until 1928 when the series stood at 15-all and MC took 7-2, and 6-2 triumphs to begin a series of wins that shot up to around the 40-game marks before the Railsplitters began a leveling process by winning on the average one out of three games and never two in th same year since 1939 when they swept three games, 8-7, 11-10, and 18-4.

Short Shouts 'Em

Short also took the win last year in MC's 3-2 victory over Emory and Henry's Wasps who furnish the opposition on the home grounds next Friday. The game was one of belated rallies and effective relief work as Kren, Parks, and Short paraded to the mound for MC while Harry Frazier toiled nine innings for the Virginians and gave up the winning run in the ninth when Jimmy Campbell singled to right to drive in Bill Van Benthysen after the Wasps had assumed a one-run lead in the top of the ninth with a two run rally.

Basebally wise, the series with Emory and Henry is a tradition-laden one also as the schools began pounding the horsehide back in 1905 or earlier though records before that date are unavailable. In that year, MC took a 9-0 shut-out a ndsince then has won ten more than the Blue and Yellow—30 wins to 20—with MC gaining the ascendancy in wins during the 1930's and 40's.

Following this game, the Scots close out with Carson-Newman on May 7, here.

King Tornadoes Fall To Scot Rally

The Maryville Scotty nine staged a ninth inning rally here last Friday to edge out the diamondeers from King College, 10-9. It was one of those see-saw games in which all bedlam broke loose.

Jim Kren started on the mound for the Scotties and was very effective for the first six innings, allowing only four hits, striking out seven and walking only one. Then in the seventh thee Tornadoes broke the ice as they pushed across their first run.

While Kren was blazeing the ball past the Tornado batters, the

●IT'S NOT OFTEN THAT A LOSS HELPS A TEAM'S RECORD and morale but we daresay that the tennis-men's loss to Carson-Newman on the Eagle courts was the best thing that could have happened to them all though this still doesn't remove the sorrowing fact that MC did lose. The UT match of course proved nothing and MC not really having faced the prospect of several defeats per annum for the last several years, perhaps MC netsmen were getting a bit lax in their play and the close decision of a match that might have been won with a little more drive might have been just the thing to restoke the fire.

At any rate, the Tennis-men looked 100% better in their match with the Florida Gators and with TPI's Un-Golden Eagles and East Tennessee State's Bucs. In 1950, the Bucs were the only team to defeat MC, the match ending 5-2 ETS' favor, while in 1948, the Johnson City School dumped MC twice by 6-2 and 7-2 scores. Last year's match was rained out with matches tied at 2all and MC leading in sets in a fifth match when the rains came. Thus, the CN loss, in a sense, had its value and the return match on May 7, here, should be whipper-snapper.

clubs in th USLTA. By 1889 women were accepted as members, players were ranked according to performance, and foreign players were permitted to paritcipate in national championships. In 1895 the game was declining in popularity but got a needed shot in the arm with the inauguration of the Davis Cup Matches, emblematic of world tennis championship by Dwight Davis in 1900 which helped to revive public interest in the game. When the Davis Cup matches of 1914 and the national championships of 1915 were played at Forest Hills instead of the fashionable courts of Newport, Rhode Island, tennis became the recreation of the masses instead of a limited few.

set and the match. John Anderson had the Indian sign on Polly Joe McClelland and stomped to a 6-0, 6-0 victory. Marshal England also had an easy time with his opponent and won 6-1, 61.

Scots Dump Bucs, 7-0

On last Saturday, the Highlanders crushed East Tennessee State of Johnson City, 7-0. In singles, Scots McCampbell, Anderson, now number two man, Brietback, and Lebold took the necessary two sets from their opponents and Buser was extended to three sets before he meerged victorious.

In doubles Scots McCampbell and Anderson dropped the first set, 3-6, but easily took the next one, 6-2, and won the third set, 6-4. Scots Buser and England trounced Shell and Allen, 6-3, 6-2.

King Game . . .

Scots racked up single tallies in each of the third, fourth, fifth and sixth innings on only five hits.

The eighth inning was a whopper. The Tornadoes came back with five runs. Four of those came when Briscoe hit a grand-slam homer following two singles and a walk. The fifth run came across following a pair of singles and errors.

The Rally

In the do-or-die bottom of the ninth the Scotmen came through with flying colors. Alfred led off with a single and immediately scored on Parks timely double to knot up the score. Sexton then took a third strike. Tom Jones and Campbell drew walks to load up the bases which brought Kinser to the plate. With the fans holding their breath Wesley calmly took four bad pitches to force in Parks with the winning run.

JUNIOR GIRLS GET SECOND TOWN NIGHT

Kefauver and Ike Sweep Echo Poll

53 GOPs, 35 Demos Pick Candidates

By Pat Ingles

Estes Kefauver and Dwight D. Eisenhower swept to overwhelming victories in a preferential poll by parties conducted by The Highland Echo this week. Totals gave Eisenhower 42% to Kefauver's 36% of all votes cast.

Of 100 representative students polled, 53 classified themselves as Republicans, 35 as Democrats, eight independents, two Dixiecrats, and two indicated no party preference.

Democratic voters showed an almost unanimous preference for Sen. Kefauver (D., Tenn.), giving him 31 of the votes cast. The others were divided among Eisenhower, who received two; W. Averill Harriman, 1; and one was undecided.

Republicans went overwhelmingly for Eisenhower, who received 39 of the 53 Republican ballots. Trailing the general were Sen. Robert A. Taft (R., Ohio) and Governor Earle Warren of California, each of whom received five votes. Estes Kefauver took one GOP vote and three Republicans were undecided.

divided with four for Kefauver, one for Eisenhower, one for Taft, and two undecided.

Significantly, no votes were cast for Harry Truman or Illinois Governor Adlai Stevenson, both of whom have declined the nomination, but, it is considered, might be drafted at the Democratic convention.

Democratic hopfuls Sen. Robert Kerr and Sen. Richard Russell also received no support. The two Dixiecrats questioned showed no preference, though Georgia's Sen. Rusell is the choice of the conservative states' rights group in the Democratic party.

Also, there were no GOP ballots for Harold Stassen or General Douglas MacArthur, the former of whom is an avowed candidate.

Associated Press compilations give Eisenhower and Taft about the same number of promised delegates at the present time. Kefauver has walked away with the primaries in which he has been entered, and at the present time seems to have no serious opposition except Harriman of New York, who already has the New York vote.

Whether or not Harriman is a serious contender has been questioned, and the choice of a Democratic nominee may yet hinge on official word from the White House.

A comparison of MC's current 53% Republican—35% Democrat division may be made with the results of an Echo poll in 1948 and the results of a campus-wide mock election held the same year.

In a survey of five social science classes in October, 1948, the vote was Dewye, 70% Truman, 15%; Thurmond, 5%; Wallace, 2%; Thomas, 1%; and undecided, 7%.

The results of the mock election sponsored by International Relations Club in November, 1948 in which 71% of 435 registered MC voters participated gave Dewey, 58%; Truman, 16%; Thurmond, 16%; and Wallace, 9%.

Mrs. Albert Gore To Speak To Democratic Women's Luncheon

Mrs. Albert Gore will be the speaker at the annual luncheon on Saturday, May 10, at College Hill Grill, for the Democratic Women's Club of Blount County. All democratic women are invited to attend, and tickets may be purchased from Mrs. Robert Jackson or Mrs. Crum Drinnen.

Student Treasurers

Dr. L. L. Williams has announced that semester financial statements should be handed in this week by all student treasurers. The reports should be submitted to faculty advisers or to Dr. Williams in Fayerweather Hall.

NCJW Announces Essay Contest

Class of '53 students have an opportunity to compete next fall for $5,000 in cash prizes in a nation-wide essay contest on academic freedom sponsored by the National Council of Jewish Women.

Any next-year senior is eligible. The essays, of 2,500 words maximum, are to be on the subject "The Meaning of Academic Freedom." First prize will be $2,500.

Heading the committee of judges will be Supreme Court Justice William O. Douglas. Other members will be Ralph Bunche, Thurman Arnold, Mrs. Duglas Horton, and Abram L. Sachar.

The contest will be open for receipt of entries September 15, and will close December 31, 1952. Detailed rules and instructions will be made available at the beginning of the fall semester.

The purpose of the National Council of Jewish Women in conducting the contest, as explained by Mrs. Irving M. Engel, national president, is "to encourage thoughtful exploration and forthright expression on the subject of academic freedom among the students themselves."

". . . we . . . believe . . . that we should do everything we can to safeguard our priceless tradition of free exchange of thought and opinion in education against any threat of repression from the outside world or from fear to 'speak up' within the classroom," Mrs. Engel stated.

Orchestra Plans Spring Concert

The Maryville College Orchestra, under the direction of Katherine Crews, will give its annual spring concert in the Music Hall of the Fine Arts Center next Saturday evening at 8 p.m.

The program will include the "Prometheus Overture" by Beethoven; "Concerto No. 2 in g Minor" by Saint-Sans, with June Hood, senior piano major from Knoxville, as the soloist; and "Highlanday," a musical narrative of the Southern Highlands, composed for orchestra, chorus, and narrator, by William Deihl, senior music theory major from Asheville, N. C.

The chorus for "Highlanday" is chosen from members of the Vesper Choir. Ed Scott is the narrator.

This is the second concert given by the orchestra this semester, the other being an educational concert given for the fifth and sixth grades of West Side and Fort Craig schools.

Athenians Name Dick Kerr Chief

Dick Kerr, junior Spanish major from Fair Lawn, N. J., was chosen president of Athenian for next year in elections held this week.

Blount Seniors Visit MC Campus Friday

A complete full day's program was planned for 453 high school students of Blount County at the annual High School Senior Day held at Maryville College yesterday, May 2. The program sponsored jointly by the Blount County Chamber of Commerce and Maryville College is to acquaint graduating high school seniors in the county with a large number of different vocations.

High School Senior Day started at 9:00 Friday morning with registration of seniors and sponsors at the Fine Arts Center.

A general assembly was held, presided over by Hugh Coulter, superintendent of Blount County Schools. The Rev. Ben St. Clair, pastor of Alcoa First Methodist Church gave the invocation.

R. E. Goddard, vice president of the Chamber of Commerce, Tom West, cahirman of the education committee of the Chamber of Commerce and Dr. Ralph W. Lloyd, president of Maryville College were presented to the seniors at the assembly. Dr. Frank D. McClelleand, dean of students, spoke on the purpose and plan of vocational discussion.

Following the general assembly, the vocational discussion groups met in the Fine Arts Center under the leadership of representatives of the vocations from the community.

Discussion groups were organized for aviation under Ned Lee, station manager for Capitol Air Lines at the airport; home economics, under Gertrude Meiselwitz; agriculture under Gilbert Rhodes, County Agricultural Agent; teaching under Dr. David H. Briggs; medicine under Dr. W. N. Dawson, director of Blount County Health Department; secretarial and office work under Mrs. Joyce Moles, director of nursing at Blount Memorial Hospital; religious and social work under the Rev. James M. Windham, pastor of First Baptist Church, Maryville.

Business discussions were led by Jack Proffitt, manager of Proffitt's Department Store; journalism by Dean Stone, managing editor of the Daily Times; physical education by Dr. Sam A. Venable, instructor at the University of Tennessee; engineering by T. I. Stephenson of the Aluminum Company; radio by Frank Corbett, manager of WGAP.

Army and Air Force careers by Sgt. E. B. Simerly, Sgt. Claude Hall and Sgt. Robert Griffitts; Navy and Marine Corps careers by Lieut. Commander Liddy and Sgt. H. T. Johnson; and interior decorating by Neil Proffitt of Proffitt's Department Store.

A picnic lunch was served on the campus, and at 2:00 p.m. the seniors saw a baseball game between Maryville and Emory and Henry Colleges.

Train Strikes MC Wagon

About 2:00 Friday afternoon, April 25, a Maryville College station wagon returning students from the blood donation center at New Providence Church was struck by a Southern Railroad switching locomotive at Court Street. None of the seven students in the vehicle was injured.

College Offers Nine Scholarships

Nine scholarships are to be offered by Maryville College to the first-honor graduate of each Blount County high school, and Greenback High School in Loudon County, it has been announced.

The schools included in Blount County are Aleoa, Everett, Friendsville, Lanier, Maryville, Porter, Townsend, and Walland.

In case the highest ranking student does not accept the scholarship, it will not be awarded in that school.

The scholarships amount to one half the tuition each year for each of the four years. On the basis of present tuition charges, the scholarship would amount to $120 per year or a total of $480 over the four years of college. The scholarship award will apply only to attendance at Maryville College and will not be transferable to another person.

To qualify for admission to Maryville College under this scholarship award the student must meet these following requirements:

He must hold the highest scholarship average in the graduating class over all work taken throughout the four-year high school course. He must be recommended by the high school faculty as a person possessing such qualifications of character, personality, aptitude, and purpose as would give promise of success in college.

He must meet all college entrance requirements as published in the MC catalog including the completion of prescribed high school subjects and the furnishing of stated references and certificates.

To continue to qualify for this award after the freshman year the student must maintain each semester a satisfactory record of scholarship, attitude, and general progress.

Morehead Offers Writers' Workshop

Maryville College students interested in writing are invited to attend a two-week Writers' Workshop at Morehead, Kentucky, State College July 14-25, it has been announced by James McConkey, Workshop director.

The Workshop, which offers two hours' college credit if desired, is intended for student writers of fiction, poetry, or exposition. Guest faculty members will include Jesse Stuart, author of "Taps for Private Tussie" and other novels; Hollis Summers, professor of creative writing at the University of Kentucky and author of "City Limit" and the just-published "Brighten the Corner;" James Still, author of "On Troublesom Creek" and other novels; and Collister Hutchison, whose recent collection of poetry, "Toward Daybreak," has been acclaimed by such critics as Louis Untermeyer and Jules Romains.

Students attending the Workshop should submit one or more manuscripts on arrival, according to McConkey. Both individual conferences between established writers and students, and group discussions of original manuscripts, are planned. A series of evening lectures on problems of writing and on contemporary writers will also be included.

Tuition for the two weeks' course is $10. Room and meals, both of which will be available at the college, will cost an additional $25. Registration or further information may be obtained by writing James McConkey, Director, Writers' Workshop, Morehead State College, Morehead, Ky.

YM To Hear Choir

The Fairview Methodist Church Choir under the direction of George Day will be presented to YM at its regular Sunday meeting.

This meeting on May 4 will be at 1:30 p.m. in the Fine Arts Center.

Case Will Preach At Vespers Tomorrow

The Rev. Dr. Ralph Thomas Case, professor of sociology, will speak at Vespers at 7 p.m. Sunday, May 4, in the Music Hall of the Fine Arts Center.

The All Girls' Choir will sing.

MC PC Postpones Staff Promotions

The Maryville College Publications Committee promoted rising seniors Van Holland and Bob Coles to next semester's Highland Echo staff this week, but postponed all other appointments and promotions until next semester.

Faced by a constitutional limit of the number of staff members, and with candidates for appointment and promotion exceeding that limit, the Committee thought it wise to postpone action until next year. Some candidates will eliminate themselves, it was felt.

This year's editor is to write recommendations, however, if the extra people do not eliminate themselves or if the limiting clause in the constitution cannot be revised.

The current Highland Echo staff will soon meet to nominate and elect an editor for next year.

Members of the Publications Committee are Dick Newman, Neale Pearson, and Carson Seeley, senior editors of The Highland Echo; Lynn Miller, Sally Brown, Walt Elwood, and Ralph Force, Student Council Publications Committee;

Dr. Ralph T. Case, Elizabeth Jackson, Arthur S. Bushing, and Dr. F. A. Griffitts, Faculty Committee on Publications.

Alpha Sigs Elect Navratil Prexy

Robert Navratil, sophomore premed major from Miami, Fla., was elected next year's president of Alpha Sigma in elections held Tuesday.

Other officers chosen are Robert Mizelle, sophomore from Arlington, N. J., vice-president; Webster Smith, junior biology major from Godfrey, Ill., secretary; Bill Davis, freshman business major from Conshohocken, Penn., program chairman, and Ken Wilkinson, freshman pre-ministerial student from Akron, Ohio, rush week chairman.

Workshop To Meet

At Writers' Workshop on Monday, May 5, in Dr. E. R. Hunter's classroom, Isabel Leitch and Bill Espenshade will read.

Al Springfield, Betty Roach Reign Over Annual May Day Ceremonies

The 1952 May Day Festival was held in the College Woods Amphitheatre Thursday afternoon, May 1, at 2:30.

May Day is an annual event at Maryville College. It is under the direction of the women's physical education department, headed by Mrs. Verton M. Queener and Mrs. William O. Largen.

In Medeival and Tudor England, May Day was a great public holiday. All classes of the people were up with the dawn and went "a-maying." Branches of trees and flowers were borne back in triumph to the towns and villages, the center of the procession being occupied by the Maypole, glorious with ribbons and wreaths.

Al Springfield, a pre-med major from Haverford, Pa., was chosen May King in the all-campus elections held last week. He escorted Queen Betty Roach, and they were attended by Ann Leeder, Gene Parks, Barbara Miller, Walter Rowley, Barbara June Gregory, David Gates, Mary Alice Kemp, and A. C. McWilliams.

The May Day Festival opened with the crowning of the Queen and was followed by the Maypole dance. This was followed by tumbling acts, then several folk dances, Cotton-eyed Joe, Shoo-Fly, Kalvelis, Skating Away, and the Texas Mixere. A skit, "Three Modern Little Pigs," was presented by the FTA, which was followed by two more folk dances, the Patty Cake Polka and the Tennessee Waltz.

The Maypole Dancers were Virginia Davenport, Dola Ann Kinard, Evelyn Boughten, Jean Morgan, Janice Clemens, Shirley Axley, Abby Crosby, Betty Ham, Ruth King, Millie Mowery, Ruth Orr, Libby Ann Parrish, Peggy Points, Marian Rice, Kathy Sellers, Marian Tirrell, Connie Howell, Mary Van Fossen, and Nancy Kidd.

The first group of tumblers were Ric Rogers, Jerry Waters, Earnest Menness, and Jerry Menness. The tumblers doing the pyramid were Ann Dishner, Eloise Gazaway, Lucy Geer, Doris Hancox, Grace Harrison, Pat Ingles, Marion Heron, Joan Herschelman, Barbara Innes, Jo Jones, Dorothy Miller, Gay Parrish, Lillian Rivera, Jimmie Ann Scruggs, Rebecca Sexton, Virginia Smith, Nancy Tedford, Mary Ann Thompson, Pat Wagner, Peggy Williams, Wilma

All Committees Pass New Dating Privilege

By Dick Newman

One extra Town Night privilege a week for junior girls became a reality this week as the provision was passed by all the necessary legislative bodies.

Originally proposed and passed by Student Council last November, the plan became Maryville College law in a whirlwind week of action by the various necessary committees.

The new privilege was given final OK's by the Executive Committee of the Faculty last Thursday; Student-Faculty Senate, Friday; Student Council in emergency session, Monday; and WSGA, Tuesday.

Junior girls now have one optional Town Night in addition to the regular Tuesday Town Night. It is the same plan now incorporated in Senior Privileges and the same regulations apply. WSGA is in charge of administration.

The move is an outgrowth of a Student Council committee appointed last fall to investigate the Maryville dating situation and to make recommendations. Council at that time passed a proposal for the junior privilege.

"We feel this has been the most significent change this year in bringing the Maryville College social program in harmony with the will of the students and the faculty. And that is what our Council, in cooperation with Student-Faculty Senate, has attempted to do this year," Cuthill said.

Frances Massey, Dean of Women, made the following statement to The Echo:

"A few years ago when senior privileges were worked out by a WSGA Committee and granted by the faculty, it was our hope that if they were successful certain extensions of privilege might be made for junior women and later possibly for sophomore women.

"It is my opinion that we have never had nearer 100% cooperation on any student government matter than we have had on senior privileges.

"It is this acceptance of responsibility and spirit of cooperation on the part of senior women that makes it possible to extend to junior women the privilege of an extra Town Night each week."

Students Elect Class Officers

Curtis Wilbanks, psychology major from Rockaway, N.J. was elected next year's senior class president in elections April 18; Ed Breitbach, English major from Irvington, N.J. was named vice-president; Peggy Kessler, biology major from Plainfield, N.J., was elected secretary; and Gertrude Singleton, from Senecaville, Ohio was elected treasurer.

Senior Student Council representatives named were Mary Ann Hicks, Spanish major from Willard, Ohio; Bill Morse, business administration major from Jackson; Bruce Miller, history major from Trenton, N.J.; Jean Anderson from New York City; and Jane Spencer from Paterson, N.J.

Junior officers elected were Henry Van Hassel from Paterson, N.J., president; Jean Maxwell, Clinton, S.C., vice-president; Carol Cornell, elementary education major from Groveland, Fla., secretary; and Ken Tuck, Pre-med major from Moneta, Va., treasurer.

Junior Student Council members elect are David Gates from Fulton, Mo.; Harold Black, from Ridgway, Pa.; Janice Aiken; and Pat Halstead, Newark, N.J.

Heading the '52-53 sophomores will be A. C. McWilliams, psychology major from Northbrook, Ill., president; Elizabeth Murphey, from Springfield, vice-president; Pat Ingles, biology major from Philadelphia, Pa., secretary; and Ralph Force, business administration major from Atlanta, Ga., treasurer.

Representing the sophomores on Student Council will be Harry McCall, from Morristown, N.J.; Jim Kesler, from North Hills, Pa.; and Emma Curtis, Friendsville.

Shrdlu Speaks Here

Dr. Etaoin Shrdlu, author of "Previously Uncollected," spoke at chapel services here Thursday morning.

Dr. Shrdlu, former children's counsellor at Tugarraf Farms, is scheduled to start on his first biographical collection May 11. Describing the work as "a labor of love," Dr. Shrdlu stated that the book will be one involving personal experiences in his field.

Students Donate 169 Pints Of Blood

Maryville College students and a few townspeople donated 169 pints of blood last Friday afternoon during the April visit of the American Red Cross Bloodmobile. A total of 192 persons volunteered and 23 were rejected.

The visit of the bloodmobile this month was planned primarily by the college, and almost all of the procurement work was handled by them.

Dr. Rice, in charge of the new bloodmobile unit which works out of Knoxville, said that results of this campaign were the best he had experienced in two months of service with the Knoxville unit. He complimented Mrs. R. H. Poage, general chairman of the blood drive for her very fine organization, and expressed his appreciation of the groups of volunteers who helped in various capacities.

Citizens of the county will have another opportunity next month to donate blood through the Red Cross for the armed forces. The date has not yet been announced, but those wishing to give blood may clal the Red Cross office in the post office building.

Lloyds Invite Seniors

President and Mrs. Ralph Waldo Lloyd have issued invitations to all seniors for breakfast on May 6 or 7 at 7:30 a.m., at Morningside.

Seniors will be excused from chapel and first period on the morning they attend. Breakfast will be served outdoors or indoors, depending on the weather.

A Unified Proposition

By Gail Brown

Rumors fallaciously exaggerate. Rumors have exaggerated the number of students transferring from Maryville College. The fact is that there is no startlingly serious problem concerning this transfer situation.

Nevertheless, we feel it timely to discuss reasons for any transfer or consideration of such action. We feel that it is a problem of school adjustment—a problem that is much discussed in seclusion, but not enough in open. We feel that if a student-faculty-administration policy were one of more frank and co-operative discussion of problems, progress could more quickly and with better spirit be made.

School adjustment must be considered as something entirely specific to the school situation. It involves response to authority and control. It is the significance of such common factors as social and emotional adjustment and academic aptitude and achievement.

A student may respond favorably to the college and administration, and may approve of instructors and their methods. He may be satisfied with school and still be by no means well-adjusted to it in the sense of being adequately adapted.

But perhaps we cannot measure school adjustment in a broad sense, but rather satisfaction or dissatisfaction with certain more or less specific elements of college life.

The social situation creates the happiness of an individual. Considering our campus, we must realize all the good qualities of this situation. We as students must realize the necessity of limiting rules. We must feel approval of change and progress that have happened and which have been made even this past week.

There is a general lack of appreciation concerning what is offered social-wise, and as long as so many opportunities are not taken advantage of, great progress can not occur. When the spirit of the whole student body is not creative; when there is nothing to do because of student non-cooperation, administration can not be expected to make radical changes.

But it would be unfair, just for the sake of being uncritical, not to discuss student negative opinion of this concern. We understand that most bad feeling on the part of students regarding the dating situation is due to administrative attitude and not to specific regulations. We understand that students many times consider this attitude unexplainably nasty. Students feel oppression and unfairness when normal boy-girl relationships are mistakenly interpreted.

If we are instructed to "see best in everything," why cannot this be a unified proposition? For emotional stability and development, the interrelated attitude of both student and institution must be conducive to healthy feeling brought about only through mutual understanding.

Even more important an element is the academic phase of college life. We as students are enthusiastically satisfied with many faculty members. These teachers are of the best, creating classrooms which are comparable to any university standard.

But the high quality of instructors does not continue throughout the entire faculty. We students would desire replacements. In our discussions we make such remarks as "if the faculty pay were more in line with the living wage, would we not have more qualified teachers?" and "can the question of smoking be a standard of ability, moral character, or any other phase of a professor's personality necessary for consideration?"

There are numerous topics about which students have opinion; there are school policies which students question. But in this editorial we only desire to create the stimulus for the discussion of adjustment on this campus. We only want to provide a meeting-ground for opinions on these important factors, whether they be so inclusive as the social program, or so particular as antagonism against light-cuts.

The Echo will print in full any letters from students, faculty, or administration. We want to indicate that this is opportunity to meet reality thoroughly and completely in a situation of equality and fairness.

Scene of the Week

Clyde McCampbell's car resting in peace (one, thank heavens!) in the chief's hut at the Aztec Ruins. Big chief's comment, "Me like-um motor car-um. . . . but not when parked in parlor-um!" Some big brave hung this sign on the entrance: Lloyd's Used Car Lot.

Girl of the Week

Izzy Leitch who was nominated and elected "Senior Class Body" by Curt Wilbanks, Bruce Miller, and Al Springfield. It all started because Izzy was urging her fellow classmates to attend the class picnic by saying, "Let's all go because it's the last thing we'll do as a body!"

Boy of the Week

The nasty, nasty town student who didn't wear a shirt while playing tennis. . . on May Day, too! ! I wonder what the wood nymphs and rose petals thought? ? ! !

Squelch of the Same

It was said at the "M" club picnic when Malcolm Moore, commenting on the style in which Miss Heron refereed, quipped, "She's the closest thing to a goat I've ever seen!" Replied Miss Heron, "Yes, and you're the goat! !"

I've developed a terrific plot for a movie. It concerns a young college student who works and works and works and works and works and works and works and works and works and works and works and works and works and works, day in and day out, day in and day out, day in and day out, day in and day out, day in and day out, day in and day out until he develops a complex, as well as calloused hands, crossed eyes, a noticeable stutter and St. Vitus dance. Nearing the end of his second semester of college work he begins to babble freely a quote from his first grade reader, "All work and no play makes Jack a dull boy!" But since nothing is done to raise his morale it gets lower,

and lower,

and lower,

and lower,

and lower,

and finally hits
ROCK BOTTOM!

At this point the man in the little white coat is called to take away our demented friend, and while my hero is tying a square knot in his straight jacket he whispers to himself delightedly, "A holiday! A holiday at last!"

Who Done It?

I stand corrected on my correction stated last week that Samuel, not Ben, Johnson wrote the first dictionary. Apparently neither of them did! This news comes via the Jacksonville exchange. No doubt any similarity to what was written on the board and what I heard is purely coincidental!

Student: I'm working like a fool on my special studies.
Advisor: Apparently! !

With exams starting soon the typical scene will again be taking place as the student goes in . . . "I was wondering about this grade. . . ."

answers he will get:

I'm sorry, but there's simply not a thing I can do after the mark has been entered.

—or—

"What do you care about your mark anyway . . . . you came to college to get an education, not a. . ."

—perhaps—

"Dropping my course? Now don't be rash!"

—could be—

"You were lucky to get the mark you did! !"

—maybe—

"I was very disappointed in you! Now your sister. . ."

—never—

"I was wrong. It should have been an "A". Please forgive me."

Capitol Highlights

"I'll See You in My Dreams," featuring gorgeous Doris Day and Danny Thomas, heads the entertainment next Monday and Tuesday at the Capitol. The movie is the Cinecapital's latest biography of a song writer, this time, the late Gus Kahn.

The musical follows the much-used sentimentalized story of a song writer's humble beginnings, success, defeat, and comeback—with Danny Thomas as Gus Kahn, and Doris Day as his encouraging wife.

In spite of the hackneyed plot, the amusing dialogue, Danny Thomas' acting, and those old some of the hit tunes unravelled to make a worth-your-while picture.

"It Had To Be You," "Love Me or Leave Me," "Nobody Sweetheart Now," and "Memories" are some o fthe hit tunes unravelled in this musical.

On Wednesday and Thursday is showing "The Racket" (RKO), starring Robert "Deep Freeze" Mitchum, lucious Lizbeth Scott, and Robert Ryan.

This picture is seemingly a typical Hollywood answer to the Kefauver crime hearings. The setting of the story is a mythical city where mobster Robert Ryan is in alliance with a mysterious mastermind of US crime and corruption.

Police Captain Robert Mitchum is the only honest public official in town. Seen from time to time in the movie are Lizbeth Scott as the lovely nightclub trush, and the lovely nightclub thrush, and in love with her at first sight.

This picture is example of Hollywood's worst. One reviewer considered the unseen, unheard Crime Mastermind of the film the best performer "in the trashiest major production of the year."

Friday and Saturday at the Capitol promises a double feature. Ripping Rip Wilson stars in "Valley of Fire," and Big Bill Williams paces "The Pace that Thrills."

Park Peeking

"The Time of Their Lives," starring those masters of slap-happy comedy, Bud Abbott and Lou Costello, plays at the Park Tuesday Wednesday.

This comedy is an old one, being a re-release, but those who are Abbott and Costello fans will find "mucho" to laugh about. Marjorie Reynolds plays opposite those two zany men.

Thursday and Friday brings back "The Blue Veil," a movie which those who missed it earlier this semester will want to see.

Although we were disturbed by the episodic character of the plot, and thought it a trifle maudlin, the picture is upheld by the acting of Jane Wyman and Charles Laughton.

Certainly, those who enjoy a good movie-crying-jag will mark down this playing date on their calendar.

At the Bookshelf

"Jefferson and the Rights of Man" by Dumas Malone is one of the important new books in the library.

This study is the author's second in a series under the general title of "Jefferson and His Time," and a sequel to "Jefferson the Virginian."

Of this book Malone states, "In this volume. . . I have tried to show the central figure as a living man and growing mind in a changing world, not as a statue in a niche or a portrait on the wall."

Those students interested in the subject of gambling might glance through "Gambling In America," edited by H. L. Marx, Jr.

The purpose of the volume is to lay open the pattern of gambling in the United States and to set forth some contrasting points of view. Interesting enough, under the chapter "The Moral Question," there is a selection concerning the evil of gambling from Geoffrey Chaucer's "The Pardoner's Tale."

Other noteworthy books are Andre Gide" by Albert J. Geuraud. "Christianity and Pagan Culture," by M.L.W. Laistner, and "Requiem For A Nun," by 1950 Noble Prize winner William Faulkner.

Poetic Liscense!

We have heard so very often of the difficulty of T.S. Eliot's poetry that some of us wonder if he has written anything just plain and simple. Well, the following poem "Preludes" is a relief from some of his other eruditic poetry.

The winter evening settles down
With smells of steads in passageways.
Six o'clock.
The burnt-out ends of smoky days.
And now a gusty shower wraps
The grimy scraps
Of withered leaves about his feet
And newspapers from vacant lots;
The showers beat
On broken blinds and chimney pots,
And at the corner of the street
A lonely cab-horse steams and stamps.
And then the lighting of the lamps.

We are not attempting to compete with the noble Barber of Sevierville, but this little poem in retrospect by Gelett Burgess, the writer of "The Purple Cow," was too good to pass by. It is named "Cinq Ans Apres."

Ah, yes, I wrote the "Purple Cow"
I'm sorry, now I wrote it!
But I can't Tell you, Anyhow,
I'll Kill you if you Quote it!

Bill Deihl's "Highlanday"

We wish to remind you that the college orchestra and Madrigal Singers will perform Bill Deihl's "Highlanday" on Saturday, May 10. "Highlanday", is the culmination of Bill's musical production during his college career. The piece is a musical narrative designed for chorus, orchestra, and narration, based on a day in the life of a typical Southern Mountain Highlander.

After the preliminary performance at the college, the premier of "Highlanday" will be given at the Transylvania Music Camp this summer, during which the NBC studio will transcribe the performance from coast-to-coast.

Bill has been composing periodically for the past three years, and he has had quite a few of his songs published. We know that we can expect a fine performance of "Highlanday" next Saturday, since it is the work of a successful musician.

We wish Bill all the luck in the world as he continues his study of music at the University of Texas next year.

Records!

Often times we forget that the college has a Record Library, but the library is still open daily at the FAC. Listening hours are: daily, 3:30 to 4:30; Saturday, 1:30 to 2:30; and in the evenings, 6:30 to 7:30.

Atwell, Drum Head WSGA Ballot

Nominees who will appear on the WSGA ballot Thursday, May 8, are president, Shirley Atwell and Sally Drum; Pearson's house chairman, La Donna Bayner and Ann Kirkpatrick; fire captain, Mayr Jim Bevan and Hazel Timblin;

Baldwin house chairman, Carolyn Lime and Emily Lathrop; Memorial house chairman, Mary Leichty and Geraldine Moore.

Under the WSGA constitutional amendment, by-law number three, each junior woman may have one optional town night a week with the same rules in effect as stated in the Student Council Town Night proposal.

Each girl using this privilege must be responsible for serving as a monitor which means that she will report to the WSGA officials any violation of this privilege by any other Maryville college woman.

IRC Announces Special Magazine Rates

International Relations Club, which has been handling subscriptions to Time and Life magazines on campus through its treasurer, Neale Pearson, announces that special rates are now available for seniors.

Seniors can get a new subscription or a renewal on Time magazine at the rate of $3. a year and also the privilege of renewing their subscriptions at special rates for the next five years. Life is being offered at the rate of $4. for a year's subscription and Fortune for $7.50. Subscriptions may be ordered either through Pearson or Charles LaRue, newly elected treasurer for next year.

Students now getting magazines through IRC are also urged to see Pearson or LaRue for change of address cards if they have not already received them.

Vols To Hear McCutchen

This Sunday evening at 8 o'clock in Bartlett Hall, Student Vols will have as their speaker Mrs. J. McCutchen, former missionary to Brazil. She is at present working with the Board of Foreign Missions of the Presbyterian Church in the United States.

Mrs. McCutchen has just recently returned from a tour of the South American mission stations under the auspices of both US and USA Presbyterian Churches. She will tell the group of her experiences as a missionary to Brazil.

●WITH SUMMER RECESS coming on and graduation only a few weeks away, one cannot help but look back over the past school year and smile or frown-depending on how the year has treated said person. Reflecting for a few minutes on the athletic program I can only recall pleasant memories.

Watching Coach Scott Honaker work the surplus poundage off his football charges (J.D. and "Lombie" always too close at hand to spot loafers); moaning with anguished heart as some so and so Hiwassee halfback races eighty yards down the side line without a hand being laid on him to beat us seen-nothing; sitting in the drizzling rain (made ever more miserable by the score)—yes, even through all this, the memories of the football season remain pleasant because thirty-some men were out there giving all they had and then some.

●WITH THE CHANGE OF THE WEATHER from a drizzling rain to a bleak coldness, everyone moved indoors to watch Coach Lombie Honaker's Cagers and Coach Davis' matmen. Who can help but smile when remembering "Meano" Shields' last minute two points against Hiwassee after stealing the ball to give the Scots a win in an exciting ball game, and his record setting forty-eight points against Chattanooga; or the three set shots from mid-court, two by Bert McMahon and one by Jim Wiley, in the last minute of the first half against King; or Charlie Allen's fine floor game against Carson-Newman.

Anyone who watched, whether or not he knew anything about wrestling, couldn't help but enjoy watching "Bill" Morse make quick work of his hapless opponents, Paul Merwin bull his man all over the mat, and Tom Drake, Chattanooga's "Golden Boy", strut out and finish his job in short order.

●WITH THE RETURN OF MR. SUN, and with him that unknown epidemic spreader called the "baseball bug", M.C.'s faithful marched outdoors to watch the varsity nine perform. Amid the cat calls and howls of grand stand-guessers and managers, one chuckles softly t ohimself as he see's Campbell trying to out-argue an ump, Short firing his fast one past bats left waving fruitlessly in the air, and Kinser's "behind-the-plow" stride as he rounds the bases after belting one.

Down on the tennis courts, one can almost always find some of Coach Johnson's white-bedcked netmen matching forehands and back-hands with each other or some equally perspiring foe.

For those who limited their athletic endeavors to Intramural Competition there will also be some fond memories. For the "Y" football powerhouse, the league basketball tournament—champion, the Clubfeet and the League's biggest winner—the Question Marks—and Charlie Allen's Ring Noses league champions in Intramural Softball competition—for all those who have played against these teams—there exists memories of afternoons filled with real enjoyment.

Needless to say there are other phases of athletic life on the campus that have contributed in no small way to the entertainment of "Joe Fan" and it is only in the interest of space that all are not mentioned here.

I hope there is no doubt in their minds that they are appreciated as much as those mentioned. Also, as the school year draws to a close and with it the careers of some of those who have participated in the school's athletic program, it is certainly fitting that a word of appreciation be extended to men like Charlie Allen, Jim Callaway, Ralph Greaser, Grant Sharp, "Meano" Shields, Bert McMahon, Jim Kren, om Jones, Harry Newberry and Neale Pearson—all of whom have contributed more than a great deal to the school by their athletic an dother endeavors.

●THE KING HAS SPOKEN. The edict came down from above wherever that is to those who frequent the tennis courts as rules and regulations designed to enable all who come the chance to play. Herewith they follow.

1. Players must wear shirts. (What about trousers or Eudymonic shorts?)
2. Only one set allowed if others are waiting.
3. Physical Education classes have priority before 3:30 p.m.

If these words are taken to heart and spirit of such followed out, no doubt a more harmonious feeling will be adjudged on the part of those who would like to play and can not.

Scot Athletes In Final Week Of Play On Road

Scots Use Extra Socks At Meet AfterWin O'er Mocs

Johnson To Sing "Sentimental Journey" If Netmen Win State Tennis Tourney

Five MC tennis players took to the road Wednesday morning for one of the longest tennis tours in many a year as they played Chattanooga's Mocs on that Wednesday afternoon and then left for Sewannee where they are engaging in the finals of the Tennessee Intercollegiate Athletic Conference tennis tournament. The Scots warmed up for the tourney by taking a very successful 6-1 win over the Big Bend team.

Every MC man won save Marshall England who dropped two sets to Bryce Thompson after taking the first one.

Whammy It Thatway!

Getting the hex put on him because of his successful play this year as well as for those previously, Clyde McCampbell of the Scots was given the rather dubious honor of being seeded number one man in the tourney at Sewanee. Coach Ken Johnson was hopnig that the "hex" sign that accompanies such distinctions wouldn't be working since a win in the singles division would do wonders toward keeping MC in the scoring for the meet of which Sewannee's Tigers have been figured to win because of their all junior-senior team.

Results of The Chattanooga Meet

Singles: Clyde McCampbell (M) defeated Bill Bean (C), 6-1,6-4; John Anderson (M) defeated Sam Hurt (C), 6-2, 6-2; Kent Buser (M) defeated Gilbert Turner (C), 6-0, 6-0; Bryce Thompson (C) defeated Marshall England (M), 1-6, 6-2, 6-4; Dick Lebold (M) defeated Bob Hewitt (C), 6-2, 6-2;

Doubles: McCampbell-Anderson (M) defeated Bean-Hurt (C), 6-1, 6-3; Buser-England (M) defeated Epstein-Tankersley (C), 6-2,6-3.

Alexander Prize Try-outs Begin

The preliminary competition tryouts for the T. T. Alexander Bible Prize will be held at 7 p.m. Monday, May 5, in Thaw Hall.

Th following Friday chapel service, the two or three winners from the preliminary contest will compete for the cash prize by giving their oratories.

All students who entered the contest first had to submit a manuscript to the faculty members of the Bible department. These papers were graded and the students were then eligible to take in the preliminary con- The final contest will be judged by three judges selected from outside the college personnel.

The winner or winners will be judged on their ability as an oratorical speaker.

The T. T. Alexander Prize Fund was established by a friend of the college who remained anonymous, having the prize named in honor of one of Maryville's foreign missionaries. The prize is awarded annually to the winners of first and second places of an oratorical contest conducted under the supervision of the Bible and Religious Education faculty.

By the plan of alternation used, the participants are men one year and women hte next year. This year the men are competing for the prize.

Parks Sets Down LMU In Win That Pleases Me 'n You

LMU's Big Blue Railsplitters who took a 7-2 victory on Maryville's home grounds two weeks ago on the fine pitching of Ted Williams found themselves the victims of some also finer hurling with the flinging being done this time by MC'c Gene Parks. Parks hurled four hit ball for eight frames and then Sonny Short took over in the ninth inning keeping the Harrogate team shutout though giving up two bingles.

Parks not only limited the LMU hitters to just four singles but also blasted out a mighty homerun in the fourth inning to aid the cause though his teammates didn't need it. The MC attack was also sparked by Jim Campbell who banged out a triple in three official times at bat and by Wes Kinser who got a double and single in four times up.

Parks' blow, a 400-foot drive over the rightfielder Bishop's head was still rolling as Parks rounded the bases into home. It was the second time that Parks, who last year hit like the proverbial pitcher does, had helped break up a ball game to aid his own cause. Two weeks ago, Parks had lashed a timely double down the left field line to tie up MC's game with King which was won seconds later when Parks strolled across the plate by virtue of Wes Kinsers' being walked.

Bucs Come To Town Leave MC's With Frown

Bucs Pound Ball and Run to Win

East Tennessee State's Buccaneers were in town Tuesday and left nine innings later with a 6-1 victory over the luckless Scots, who poked well hit balls right at the fielders all afternoon. The visitors bunched five runs in the first three innings to provide the margin of victory.

With one down in the top of the first, Rowe, Puckett and Stiner singled consecutively before Kren could set down the last two batters and the Bucs were off flying with a one run lead.

More Run—Moan, Moan

The Buccaneers added another in the second when Davis opened with a walk, moved to second on Garland's sacrafice, and scored on Welches' line double down the left field line.

The up state lads made it five to nothing in their half of the third as Puckett opened with a blast over the left field fence. Stiner doubled and scored on Campbell's bobble of Woy's grounder after the Scottie shortstop had thrown out Sparks. Davis lined a single to left, scoring Woy and driving Kren from the mound, Short coming on to wiff Garland and Welch and end the inning.

The Scots picked up their lone run in the bottom half of the third as Don Alford singled to center, swiped second and third, and scored with one away.

Sonny Short, blazing his fast ball past the Buccaneer hitters, had the visitors in his back pocket, allowing one run and four hits over a 7⅔ inning stint. The clever Buccaneer hurler Welch, however, kept the Scots at bay and over the route and received fine support from his team.

Baseballers Give Team Average As Reason For Wanting 3 Wins Next Week When Ending Season

Three games are listed for play next week as Coach Honaker's Horsehide Nine finishes out the season on the road—hoping that the stay at such places as East Tennessee and Emory & Henry will not be permanent. With a 5-7 record slapping them in the face before they took to the field yesterday in a game with Emory & Henry's Blue Wasps, Coach Honaker's charges had much reason to want to win next week's games and thus assure "welcome back" words from the mouths of their baseball supporters rather than phrases asking them to do otherwise. The Scots seemed to have hit the victory trail once again in their games with LMU and Milligan and had a good chance of continuing in the good luck circle as they went against Conley Snidow's crew yesterday.

Wednesday, they take on Carson-Newman in the Scots' last home game of the season and then they entrek to Johnson City Friday for a return game with ETS and then to Emory, Virginia, for a game with the Wasps whom they played yesterday.

Both the C-N and ETS games should be battler's till the last out as the Bucs victimized MC Tuesday while little need be said about the fracas to be with the Eagles who have been dumped by the Bucs this past week in a 7-3 game. Psychological attitudes in the Emory & Henry game will no doubt depend on what happened yesterday with fans being able to judge which team will be most vengeful simply on the results of both teams' scoring. Hurling in all three games should be top flight too as the MC chunkers have finally gotten into a reasonably well frame of condition and have been finding the plate area also much more regularly as have their fielders behind them noticing that the ball has also been sticking in their gloves as of late simply be their placing of the handed tool in the flight of the airbound spheroid.

Scot Diamonders Back On Victory Trail As Against Milligan Buffs Hits Do Sail

After absorbing a defeat at the hands of East Tennessee State's Buccaneers, the Scots turned the tables on their cross town rivals, the Milligan Buffaloes, and pleased a larger-than-usual May Day Crowd ot an 8-3 victory. Coach Lombe Honaker dug down deep into his reserves as experimentation for next year's pitching corps began and pulled out Sophomore Jim Harrison.

Harrison Harries 'Em

Harrison did well for some seven innings against the Johnson City aggregation but began to tire in the seventh inning. Coach Lombe Honaker then put Jim Kren in and the relief didn't do too well at first but Kren stymied the Bucs belated rally with a pair of K.O.'s and in the last frame, Wes Kinser moved to the mound where he handled chores also admirably—picking up a strikeout also on a dropping curve.

Van In The Van

Bill Van Benthysen proved the power man of the MC attack as he boomed out a double and single in two trips to the plate while Don Alford got the other MC extra bagger—a double. MC hitting sparked up well among the other hitters and led by Lynn Sexton's three single-sackers the Buffaloes' Johnson was rapped for 11 hits.

Box score:

Milligan	0	0	0	0	0	1	2	0	—3	4
Maryville	0	0	1	1	2	2	0	2x	—8	11

Batteries: MC—Harrison, Kren (8), Kinser (9), and Alford, Van Benthysen (6). Milligan—Johnson and Wolfe.

Echo Tennis Story Tells Game's Glory

By Hersh Mosier

During the years that tennis has been in this country, several tennis players have been outstanding. Some of them were Dr. Sears, the first national champ, who remained tops from 1881-1887, Malcolm Whitman from 1898-1900, William Larned 1901-02 and 1907-11.

In 1920 William Tilden, considered by many to be the best tennis player of all time became national singles champ and reigned until 1925 and then again in 1929.

In 1930 Tilden became a professional much to the sorrow of amateur tennis fans. In recent years such outstanding tennis stars shined such as Bobby Riggs, noted for his outstanding defensive play, Frank Parker, Pancho Gonzalos, noted for his devastating serve, the Sullivan Trophy which is given annually to the amateur athlete of the year, and Pancho Segura, famous for his two-handed shot. Riggs, Kramer, Budge, and Segura have been professional champs. Jack Kramer, famous for his all around play, Don Budge, who won victory by Frank Sedgeman, the most outstanding tennis player of the year. In men's singles Sedgeman defeated Victor Seixes for the national title and Sedgeman teamed with countryman Kem McGregor to take the doubles crown. A major upset occurrd in women's singles play as sixteen year old Maureen Connoly defeated former champ, Doris Hart to take that title. Doubles champs in women's play were Doris Hart and Shirley Frey.

In 1951 Australia defeated the United States in the Davis cup. The Aussies were almost carried to

YM, YW Cabinets Schedule Retreat

By Al Homan

The combined YMCA and YWCA cabinets will hold their annual retreat this week-end, May 9 and 10, at Miller's Cove. The retreat is to be attended by both the old and new cabinets, including the Nu Gamma leaders.

Purpose of the outing is for the old and new cabinet members to meet and discuss the program for the coming year.

Susy Martin and Jim Kren, current Y presidents, will open the meeting with speeches on Friday night. Saturday's activities will be divided. In the morning, the committees will meet. In the afternoon, the group will divide into discussion groups, one on the over-all Y program, to be led by Mrs. Margaret Cummings and Dean Frank D. McClelland, and one on membership, to be conducted by Louise Lloyd.

Following these discussions, the time from 3:15 to 6 p.m. will be spent in recreation.

Main speaker of the meeting, who will address the group on Saturday night, is the Rev. Scott McClure. McClure, General Presbyter of Union Presbytery and a 1948 MC graduate, will lead the consecration services.

Following these services will be the dedication of the new presidents Ruth Burgos, junior from New York, N. Y., as president of YWCA, and Bob Johnston, sophomore from Lansdowne, Penn., as president of YMCA.

Cars and busses will leave the campus at 4:30 Friday afternoon, and they will leave Miller's Cove for the return trip at 9:45 Saturday night.

PKD Initiates 4, Elects Officers

Pi Kappa Delta initiated Evelyn Fields, Bob Navratil, Naomi Burgos and Jerry Knecht on May 1 in a formal initiation ceremony held in the lounge of the Fine Arts Center.

The initiation was followed by a business meeting, where Evelyn Fields was elected next year's president; Charles LaRue, junior pre-min student from Dallas, Tex., vice president; Naomi Burgos, secretary-treasurer; and Bob Navratil, reporter.

The descending officers are Newell Witherspoon, senior economics major from Chattanooga, president; Lynn Miller, senior sociology major from Bristol, vice president; Tom Kelly, senior political science major from Morristown, N.J., secretary-treasurer, and Charles LaRue, reporter.

At the business meeting plans were discussed for the picnic, which was held Thursday afternoon and evening at Laurel Falls.

MC Sends $1,800 To Africa, India

A check for $1,800 has just been sent from the Fred Hope Fund, given by the students and faculty of Maryville College, for use in West Africa and India, Mrs. Kenneth P. Johnson, Secretary, and President Ralph W. Lloyd, Chairman of the Fred Hope Fund Board, have announced.

Of this, $1,000 goes to help build and equip the Cameroun Christian College in West Africa. The other $800 is to purchase a shadowless light for a major operating room, for the Frances Newton Hospital, Ferozepur, India, of which Dr. Dorothy Lee Farris, a '28 graduate of MC, is head.

An appeal came through the Presbyterian Board of Missions for hospital equipment. Answering the appeal at once was important because a ruling by the Governments of the United States and India is permitting hospital equipment which is shipped before June 1, 1952, to go to India free and to enter India duty free. This enables delivery in India at about one half the usual cost.

The cornerstone of the Cameroun Christian College in West Africa was laid a few weeks ago during the visit of two representatives of the American Church. One of these was a member of the Board of Directors of Maryville College, Mrs. Paul Moser of New York. The allocation of Maryville's gift will be reported in the fall.

YM To Install Officers

YMCA will hold installation services for next year's officers and cabinet on Sunday, May 12, at 1:30 p.m. in Bartlett Hall.

The presentation of the YMCA Sportsmanship trophy to the Intramural Athlete of the year will als obe made.

All active Y members have been urged to attend.

Noted Musicians Visit MC FAC, Inspect New Organ

By Carson Seeley

John Holtkamp, builder of Holtkamp organs, of Cleveland, Ohio, and Dr. Arthur Poister, noted organist and head of the organ faculty of Syracuse University, New York, visited campus last Wednesday afternoon to inspect the Holtkamp concert organ recently installed in the FAC.

The ywere accompanied by Dr. Robert Baker, organist. Dr. Poister was formerly of the organ faculty at Oberlin Conservatory, Ohio.

Holtkamp, Dr. Poister and Dr. Baker rendered several selections on the organ. They later listened to local organ students perform.

Holtkamp explained why he built the articular tye of organ for which he is noted. It is to reproduce the tonal quality without the necessity of having the organ recessed in a chamber. He also discussed the day he spent with Albert Schweitzer, noted organist and theologian.

Dr. Poister is considered by Holtkamp to be one of the three greatest organists in this country. Very much in demand, Dr. Poister last Tuesday evening had given a dedicatory organ recital o na Holtcamp organ at the University of Kentucky, Lexington.

Dr. Poister and Holtkamp have been interested through the years in the movement which seeks to return to the use of the basic pipe organ as a particular instrument and not for imitating an orchestra.

Holtkamp and Dr. Schweitzer during the past 20 years have been active in this movement.

"MC is one of the few colleges emphasizing the importance of the us of a pipe organ as a pipe organ," Professor Katharine Davies, chairman of the division of fine arts, stated.

Spanish Club Elects Rogers

Orchestra To Give Concert Tonight

Will Feature Deihl Musical

By Emily Smith

The Maryville College Orchestra, under the direction of Instructor Katherine Crews, will present its annual spring concert in the Music Hall of the Fine Arts Center tonight at 8 p.m.

The program will include Beethoven's "Prometheus Overture;" "Concerto No. 2 in g minor" by Saint-Saens with June Hood, senior piano major from Knoxville, as soloist; , and "Highlanday" a musical narrative of the southern highlander, composed for orchestra, chorus, and narrator, by William Deihl, senior music theory major from Asheville, N.C.

Ed Scott, junior pre-med student from Asheville, N. C., will narrate, and the chorus will be composed of sopranos Rosalie Munson, Margaret Anne Warren, Sheila Sutton, Helen Seay; altos Betty Hammers, Carolun Beatty, Nina Ruth Gillette, Mary Alva White; tenors Don Brakebill, Wally Schroeder, Jim Kesler; and basses Bill Robinson, Bill Cunningham, and Jerry Williams.

"Highlanday" is written in seven sections including the "Introduction," "Milkin' Time," "Book Larnin'," "W e d d i n' Twistification," "Doctorin'," "Poke Supper," and the "Finale." The different sections tell the story of a day in the life of a mountaineer.

Deihl, who has been awarded a teaching fellowship at the University of Texas, had planned to write a narrative of this sort entitled "The Stalwart Pioneer" but after he got into the composition this title no longer fit. Deihl says that one of the most difficult parts of the composition was finding a suitable title.

The score of "Highlanday" is to be rewritten before its performance this summer at Transylvania Music Camp where it will be recorded for possible performance on the Mutual Broadcasting System.

When questioned about publication of the piece, Deihl said that it will be published if it is successful this summer and its publisher will be Brodt Company in Charlotte, N. C., which has already published Diehl's anthem "Jesu, Jesu, Most and Least" which has a formal dedication to the Vesper Choir.

Members of the orchestra include violin: concertmistress Sue White, Bill Diehl, Eva Mae Maltese, Ann Yoakum, Alice Eaddy, Catherine S n e d e k e r, Rosemary Avery, and Ann Kirkpatrick; viola: Dorothy Horne; cello: Doris Somerville; double bass: Rod McMillan.

Timpani: J o y c e Linginfelter; percussion, Herbert Hoover; flute: Marcia M c K i n n e y and Nancy Dunn; clarinet: Randay LeQuire, Barbara S a n d o s, Robert Brand; bassoon, Larry Thompson; saxophone: Peggy Meyers; trumpet: Joe Stater, a n d Charles Farris; French horn: Evelyn G u s s and David G a t e s; trombone: Walter Rowley.

MC Participates In Radio Series

By Van Holland

Maryville College is one of 12 Christian colleges participating in the Southern Radio Series called "Banners of Freedom."

This series, organized by the higher division of the World Council of Churches, is produced by the Protestant Radio Center of Atlanta, Ga.

Maryville College's program, "Spiritual Foundations of a Free Civilization," will be broadcast the week of June 8. President Ralph W. Lloyd, Dean Frank D. McClelland, Student Council Secretary Lynn Miller, and freshman Ralph Force have already recorded the program.

Concerning the Christian college in America, the leaders of "Banners of Freedom" state, "Democracy rests upon education and religion. Those who would destroy our freedom attack our schools and our churches.

"The Christian colleges have made a contribution of incalculable value toward maintaining the liberties of our land.

"As a matter of fact the church carried the burden of education in our country for more than two hundred years. The Christian college is still making a needed emphasis for thought and life in these days.

Some of the 12 colleges scheduled on the "Banners of Freedom" radio series are: Hampden-Sydney (the first of the series), "It Did Not Happen by Chance," presented this past April; Southwestern "The Christian Spirit of Adventure," the week of May 18;

Austin, "America's Dual System of Education," the week of May 25; Bennet, "Respect for the Worth of the Individual," the week of June 1; Maryville, "Spiritual Foundations of a Free Civilization," the week of June 8;

Stillman, "Human Values Are Determinative for Lasting Civilization," the week of June 29; and the last of the series, Birmingham-Southern College, "The World Is Not Finished," during the week of July 6.

The Impact Of The Church College

Reprinted from Presbyterian Life

This year twelve Presbyterian colleges participated in a survey of their alumni; 3,992 questionnaires brought 1,290 replies from graduates since 1890.

Professor F. C. Rosecrance of New York University, who analyzed the returns, comments that in this group "divorce was neglible"—a small fraction of one per cent. Ninety-three per cent of the alumni were church members. A very substantial proportion held offices or other responsible positions in their churches. Ten per cent were in full-time religious vocations. Two-thirds were active in one or more phases of community service. In the remaining one-third were many recent graduates.

Statements from some Church college alumni indicate that contacts outside of classes constituted their most important educational experience. It was thus that they were influenced to determine the uses to which their college educations should be put. There are basic questions to be asked about any educational system. It is a good thing for society that people are being educated? Is our educational system deeloping the kind of persons who can be trusted to make some better use of the fantastic powers which education places in their hands than the manufacture of fantastic weapons? Secular institutions traditionally are neutral on these questions. For the Church college, however, the development of clear thinking about the purpose of one's education is a primary objective.

When all formative influences upon students are considered, the small college, even though not so well equipped, is a better educational instrument than the large university. Statistically, the graduate of the small college stands a four-times-better chance of being listed in Who's Who than the graduate of the large university. This is because education is a group experience. If education is to be fully successful, the group has to be small enough so that students and faculty relationships are sufficintly intimate to permit sharing of views and to compel personal adjustments to the varied needs of other people.

The character-building influence of the Church college is shown by such statements on the questionnaires as: "College made church work seem a normal thing," "it stressed the importance of religion in all phases of living," "the general religious program was the core of college life, not a separate activity."

The Church college, poorly supported and handicapped as it is, has over the years fully justified itself as the best place for the undergraduate to prepare for the abundant and fruitful life. With nine-tenths of the nation's leadership coming from the college-trained, American Christians have a tremendous stake in higher education under Christian auspices. It would be no particular financial burden for the Presbyterian Church to stabilize our schools.

The Roman Catholic Church is fully alive to this opportunity, but, if Protestant churches do not soon rise to it, the leadership of the nation will no longer come from Protestantism or reflect the democratic ideals which depend upon the traditions of the Protestant churches for their survival.

Scots & Soda

By Carol Moore

Eleven days . . . just eleven days and we can say good-bye to Echo assignments and themes, and Echo assignments and experiments, and Echo assignments and lab drawings, and Echo assignments and pop quizes, and Echo assignments and Echo assignments and Echo assignments and Ec. . . . . ELEVEN DAYS! ! ! ! If you'll permit me to twist a famous phrase, "It's great to be leaving!"

For all of you who are counting the days as I am. . . here's something to hang on the wall.

May 1952

.1 .2 .3
.4 .5 .6 .7 .8 .9 10
11 12 13 14 15 16 17
18 19 20 21. . . . . .

It's Great to be Back: !

The choir's back . . . and with them came a lot of amusing stories. Take this one for instance. Nina Ruth Gillette and a few other girls originated a song and dance routine which they performed behind curtains all the way from Kentucky to Illinois. You" have to see the girls to learn the routine, but I've got the words here. It's sung to the tune of "Music, Music, Music."

"We go to chapel at Maryville.
We've no chapel on the hill.
You can help us if you will
With money, money, money! ! !

They say that they almost came out in front of the curtains at the airbases. . . . Too bad they didn't. They'd break ground tomorrow!

—o—o—

Hi there, Georginne!

—o—o—

And then there's the one concerning Charlie Schoeder and George Caldwell and their choice of pink or blue towels at one home. Said Charlie, "You take the pink one, George. You were supposed to be a girl anyway!"

—o—o—

You know. . . opposite of male!

Speaking of girls, our little thrushes were surprised to see the poster advertising the concert at Scott Airfield.

"The Movie Scheduled For Tonight
Is Cancelled. . .
Instead There Will Be a Stage show
With girls, Girls, GIRLS! ! ! ! !"

—o—o—

No Business Like Business. . . ! !

First time I've ever heard of the Vesper Choir being referred to as a stage show. But, it could be done. Shorten the skirts and you'd have a can-can chorus. Shorten them more and they could Charleston. Shorten them more and they could tap dance. (Shorten them more and they'd be off the road.)

Really though, this has has possibilities. With George Carpenter as master of ceremonies they could build up a terrific magnolia blossom-honeysuckle-cornpone appeal. Add Mighty Mouse Murphy and her wrestling team; Miss Torch herself, "Come-on-a-My-House" Munson; Ken Schaeffer playing the Warsaw Concerto on his tuning fork by banging it against his left nose; Barb Scott, Maggie Warren, Carolyn Beatty and Betty Hammers as rose petals dancing around Miss Maypole of 1952, Suzie Martin; and Mr. Harter as Mr. Harter. There it is! The MC Review of 1952. Think how nice that would look on a poster! !

—o—o—

And a Bouquet!

But enough joking. It's time to say congratulations and well done to the Vesper Choir for their fine, very fine work. And a word of praise to Mr. Harter for his excellent musicianship and leadership.

—o—o—

Dead End Kids?

Many strange tales have been told regarding experiences on the day of days, but certainly none stranger than this. Dot Miller and Bob Mize, surprised by a sudden shower, sat down under a tree waiting for the blue skies to appear. Unknown to them (by some queer quirk of Mom Nature) they were resting on a barbed wire. The fence to which the wire was attached was struck by lightening. Result. . . . . ouch! !

—o—o—

Losing Him Dot?

Another gem from the choir tour is the story about Glen Gentry boarding the ferry boat to cross the Ohio river. Thinking he was standing next to Dot, he took a hand and said, "Come on, honey! This is where we get on!" Who was more shocked when he discovered he was talking to Charlie Schroeder? ! !

Voices, Masks, and Shadows

By Darothy Greenhagen

The first, foremost, and most important item of the week, and of the month is Macbeth. (Note, non-literary peasants, it's one of Shaxby's little numbers.) Seriously, it's a great drama and has a cast willing to try to make the performance worthy of the playwright.

Dave Reed by far makes up for a considerable number of lesser talented characters. I'm urged by all who have any connection with the play to recommend it highly.

Before we leave the drama, I'd like to mention a few of the suggested productions for '52-'53. This is by no means definite and further suggestions will be welcomed by the Drama Control Board.

For the lovers of the contemporary, the modern, the different—T. S. Eliot's "Murder in the Cathedral," or "The Lady's Not for Burning," by Christopher Fry.

For the lovers of truly great drama, they're considering G. B. Shaw's "Candida," and "Major Barbara."

For the lovers of classic romance, "Cyrano de Bergerac."

Even the greatest American tragedy, "Death of a Salesman," is under consideration.

For Dr. Hunter and his proteges, "As You Like It," "Twelfth Night," and "Julius Caesar" are on the list.

Or for the masses, the lovers of comedy, "The Importance of Being Earnest" or "Juno and the Paycock."

Just possibilities—don't get excited.

Ten little greenhorns have been invited to Writer's Workshop.

I wonder how they'll turn out. Maybe they'll be another group of Byron, Shelly and Keats. Take Kinsinger, for instance. Possibly another Elizabeth Barrett Browing, quite in love with love and a fine sweet writer. Then there's Gates—an easy going, philosophical writer—something like Irving Cobb.

Or compare Elwood to James Joyce, both impulsive, stream-of-consciousness-type of writers. Maybe we could liken Frei to Walt Whitman, both who say things plainly and yet poetically. Also there's Steinbeck, the younger, Van Hassel—ultra-realistic, profound, a writer of common man.

Perhaps most like Amy Lowell is Wells, a matter-of-fact poet of New England. Kotz, I think, may have the genius of Ogden, Nash, who rhymes "Aunt Betsy" with "tsetse." Another Stephen Vincent Benet might flow from the pen of Caldwell. Isn't he the type who could write another fantastic, "Nightmare Number Three"?

The sophisticate of the group is N. Ferguson. Her parallel might be Dorothy Parker. Greenhagen, who isn't much of anything, will probably turn out in the vein of the extremist, Edgar Allen Poe. Only time will tell.

A poet. He's a mighty interesting person. But being a poet does not just consist of writing poetry. It's a way of seeing, a way of knowing, a way of life.

This old world wasn't conceived in beauty. It was made in tragedy and strife. It evolved, and continues to evolve in the throngs of desperate struggle. Pain, ugliness, and terror rule it.

In the midst of that continuous hurricane of destruction and death there are born from time to time men who resolve this disorder.

They create another vision from the fire and dust of disaster. They are poets, and musicians, and artists. That is their answer to the ugliness of the world. They do not ask to be understood. They do not even ask to be liked.

But without them we should find the universe an intolerable habitation. They lessen its terrors, and reduce the eternal torture of its unanswerable questions. They are a gallant company.

They go singing down the highways of the world, and the echoes of their words comfort us when they have passed.

Socially Speaking

By Pat Ingles

Mr. and Mrs. John R. Dye of Dayton, N. J., announce the engagement of their daughter, Jessie, to Branin Boyd, son of Mr. and Mrs. Alex J. Boyd of Philadelphia, Penn.

Jessie graduated from Jamesburg High School, and is now a senior elementary education major. Branin graduated from Northeast High School in Philadelpia, and is now a physics major. They will both graduate in May.

No date has been set for the wedding.

H. Sue Martin, daughter of Rev. and Mrs. Harold R. Martin of Bloomington, Ill., will be married in August to John S. Shew of Baltimore, Md., at the Second Presbyterian Church, Bloomington.

Sue, an elementary education major, will graduate from Maryville in May. John is a graduate of Maryville College '51, and is now attending Princeton Theological Seminary in Princeton, N.J.

Plans for the honeymoon are indefinite, but the couple will reside near Princeton after the wedding. Sue plans to teach in a school near Princeton while John completes his seminary training there.

Former Maryville students who will be among the attendants are Katherine Blackburn, MC '52, Maid-of-Honor, Louise Lloyd, MC '51, and Mary Wills, MC '51.

Dorothy Johnston, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. August L. Johnston, of Montgomery, Ala., will be married to Ed Hill, also of Montgomery, on June 14, in the First Baptist Church of Montgomery.

Dorothy, a senior home economics major, will graduate in May. Ed attended Alabama Polytechnic Institute and is now working with the Associated Engineering Consultants in Montgomery.

The couple will spend their honeymoon at Lake Jordan, Ala. They plan to settle in Montgomery.

The wedding party will include Cora Anthony, MC '52, Sandra Smith, MC '55, and Jackie Horn.

Ethel Caldwell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Roy W. Caldwell of Lawrenceburg, will be married June 14 to Eugene Carden, of Oak Ridge, in a ceremony at First Methodist Church of Lawrenceburg.

Ethel is a senior biology major. Eugene is a graduate of Maryville College in '50, and is now employed in Knoxville.

Plans for their honeymoon are not being revealed, but the couple intend to return to reside in Oak Ridge.

Those in Ethel's wedding party include Mrs. Roy Hardison, Matron-of-Honor, Bob Byrd, MC '49, and Webster Fue, MC '50.

Beverly Jacobi, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry C. Jacobi, of Point Pleasant, N.J., will be married to David R. Kincaid, son of Mr. and Mrs. James C. Kincaid of India, on July 12, in a ceremony at First Presbyterian Church of Point Pleasant.

Bev is an education major, while David, who attended Maryville College for two years, is now an agriculture major at Penn State. They will both graduate this spring.

After a short honeymoon the couple will reside in Ganada, Arizona, whereee David will work at th Navajo Indian Mission.

Those attending Beverly will be Martha Kincaid, MC '50, as Maid-of-Honor, Ann Leeder, MC 52; Ella Swift, MC '52, and Janet Whiting, MC '52.

Janet Whiting, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank L. Whiting of Chatum, N.J., will be married on June 14, to Del Poling, son of Mr. and Mrs. Renus Poling of Baltimore, Md., in Augdon Memorial Presbyterian Church of Chatum.

Janet, an education major, will graduate from Maryville College in May. Del graduated from Maryville in '51, and is now attending Western Theological Seminary in Pittsburgh, Pa.

Plans for the honeymoon are indefinite, but the couple intend to reside near Western while Del completes his studies.

Members of Janet's party who have attended Maryville College are Bev Jacobi, MC '52, and Arline Whiting Ross, MC '49.

Hazel Wood, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Elmer E. Wood, of Abingdon, Va., will be married May 21 to Bob Kees, son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas S. Kees, Sr. of Philadelphia, Penn., in a ceremony at First Methodist Church, Maryville.

Hazel is a senior physical education major and will graduate in May. Bob is a political science major, and will be employed in Oak Ridge upon his graduation in May.

The couple is not revealing the plans for their honeymoon, but they will live in Oak Ridge at their return.

The wedding party will include Beryl Stewart, MC '52, as Maid-of-Honor, Virginia Kees, Philadephia, Penna., as Bridesmaid; Raymond Rose, MC '53, Bob Johston, MC '54, as Ushers, and Thomas Kees, Jr., Best Man.

An invitation has been extended to all Maryivlle students.

Elizabeth Roach, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. H. R. Roach of Columbus, Ohio, will be married June 7 to Pvt. Edwin F. George, son of Mr. and Mrs. M. George of Mt. Pleasant, N. J., at First Presbyterian Church in Columbus.

Betty is a sociology major and will graduate in May. Edwin is a graduate of Ramsey High School, and at present is stationed at the Army base at Arlington Hall, Va.

The couple has not made definite plans for a honeymoon, but they will reside at the army base where Edwin is stationed at that time.

Those attending Betty who have attended Maryville are Ruth Roach, bridesmaid, and Janice Marion, MC '52, who will sing.

●THE ABOVE IS BY WAY OF INTRODUCTION the announcement of voting for the YMCA Intramural Sportsmanship Trophy to be awarded in the next couple of weeks to the Intramural athlete who has shown the best qualities, not only as an athlete, but as a MAN in Intramural athletics. The ida of a trophy which was the brainchild of Chuck Holsinger when he was Director of Athletics for YMCA last year and has been carried on by his successor in the same post, Bob Kees. With the idea of "stimulating a better attitude of sportsmanship in the entire Intramural Program of activities and to increase the spirit of co-operation between the individuals of each team and th officials of the league," the award was set up. And there were a set of conditions on which the award was based so that any man, regardless of his ability, if he had the right attitude was eligible. Herewith are the principles on which the award was founded:

1. He participates in at least two of the major Intramural League Sports.
2. He does not gripe or complain to officials. (ed. note—that is to say, he makes a practice of griping).
3. He is a good loser and extends a friendly hand to an opponent.
4. He doesn't use underhanded tactics to win.
5. He plays the game for the joy of playing it and not to win at any cost through dirty play and under-handed tactics.
6. He plays for the team and not for himself.
7. He gives his all in any contest.
8. He has a general ability to engage in sports but does not have to be a star.
9. He can be a member of any class.

Well, there they are and we think Chuck Holsinger has set up a pretty good code of practices to be followed not only to make one eligible for the trophy but just for the general principle behind them. Last year's winner was the Honorabl Ralph Graf Thiesse, otherwise known as "Eag-beak" to his Intramural cohorts, and it will be a compliment to his successor to be ranked with him. "The Lean One" has done a lot for Intramural athletics, especially in the officiating line and the Intramural Domos appreciate it.

As was the custom last year, a group of men—ten in all—have been picked from the various teams in the various leagues and they will meet in the near future or will have met this past week to nominate five individuals for the prize.

ALL OF YOU INTRAMURAL MEN HAVE VOTES ON A PREFERENTIAL BALLOT FOR THE MAN YOU THINK DESERVES THE AWARD with five points going to your number one choice, four for number two, three for number three, and so forth down the line. The man with the highest number of votes will be the winner and will be presented with the award at a meeting of YMCA this coming Sunday.

●THUS, WE MIGHT SAY THE ABOVE LINES APPLY IN SOME MEASURE to the Intramural Track Meet held this past week which was won by Alpha Sigma's Scotties from a hitherto unknown Fleetfoot Team which really showed its Fleet Flat Feet For many a Fleeting Instant to a Fine crowd of Flatfooted Fans. The joysome part about th whole day's events was the unveiling of one A. C. Williams' otherwise known as A. C. Williams.

The "Ace" entered the mile run for the Flatfeet and then proceedd to take off like the proverbial swain in a cloud of dust to win going away from such Cross Country standouts as Dick Kerr, Rod McMillan, and Al McCulloch. Immediately afterwards, Scout Dave Helwig of the Maryville Bunion Burners approached McWilliams and offered him a scholarship of one T-shirt to compete for MC this fall in the hill-and-dale sport.

'Twas a very nice stroke of luck, and especially since he hadn't even warmed up a bit Kerr who momentarily led him during the third lap of the race even came out with the phrase that MC perhaps might benefit to the extent of having another "Cucumber" like William Jennings Bryan. Anyhow, Coach Ken Johnson who loses four of his old warhorses can smile a bit more also.

Surprisingly nice also at the meet was the debut of one John Shields, also known as Meano at times, in the artistic sport of pole-vaulting. Shilds, surveying th situation as a spectator at the high school baseball game also going on is reported to have walked over and grasped the pole by which one is propelled over a cross bar some varying heights up and then proceded to do as Cornelius Warmerdam and Robrt Richards have done—in his bare feet too.

When this corner's representative was able to see the astounding occuranc, the bar was at the ten foot marker. More power to him. Coach Johnson also found out some other prospactive pole vaulters in his gym classes during the week and the sport of arching oneself up into the air and into a pile of dust may be made a league affair next year. One can envisage ads in the Highland Echo next year to the effect that "Seloc Parachutes Are The Thing For All You Pole-vaulters" or else, "Get That Spring In Your Feet By Eating Seraw's Pancakes—They're Made of Rubber—you know, More Bounce To The Ounce."

Scot Athletes Finish Out Season's Play On Road

C-N Eagles Go Under By 10-6 Score

Harrison Puts Out Fire To Assure 6th Straight

Maryville College's Scotties closed out their home efforts for the season Wednesday afternoon and the Scots closed the gate on the Eagles for a 10-6 win. The Highlanders started out early to get runs off Tommy Northern and at the end of three innings had piled up a seven run lead—mainly on the hitting of Lynn Sexton and Jimmy Campbell mixed in with a generous portion of walks and errors contributed by the Eagles.

Hurling for the Orange and Garnet was Sonny Short for the first five innings and when he weakened in the fifth, Jim Harrison was sent in to put out the fire. The Orange and Blue wearing "natty" white uniforms managed to pick up some more runs off Harrison by combination of some bad bounding balls but were retired before they got too close and the Scots added two in th eighth for insurance.

Score by innings:

CN	001	040	010—	6
MC	205	100	02x—	10

Though everything was successful as far as run-production was concerned, the Scots did have another casualty added to their list as Don Alford lost a finger nail when his hand was hit by a foul tip. However, the loss did not impair his chances for going on the trip this past week-end.

INTRAMURAL INFO

Fleetfeet And Sigs Tie For Tin Cup Honors

After going ahead in Monday afternoon's racing and field events, Alpha Sigma's tiepth-laden track(?) team was tied by a surprising Fleetfeet team which won the 880 relay race held Wednesday afternoon. The Sigs had led at the end of Monday's eventing 74½ to 68½ with the Ring Noses gaining nine and the Hoboes six and Happy Warriors—failing to place.

Give Us Some Men

With the Sigs fielding a makeshift team to lack of spring-men, the Fleetfeet's Bob Toney turned on the gas at the race's start to give him teammates a big lead which they held on to and added to to win in 1:44 seconds—one and four tenths second off of the record set last year by the Fardarter AC composed of Donnie Young, John Geiser, John Olson and Horace Beckwith. Beckwith this year was the Sig's anchor man but he and Dick Ericson couldn't make u pthe deficiencies gained when plowhorses Neale Pearson and John Glanville had to go for the Sigs.

No records at all went by the boards, though Dav eHelwig came close to George Day's 1949 880 marks of 2:15.4 and Dick Ericson was a bit shy of Howard Gress' 56.7 record for the 440 set in 1950. However several of this year's times and distances were better than those of last year's which may be consolation for some.

The day's pointing started out with the Fleetfeet amassing a quick total of 43 points by virtue of places in the 220, mile, 880, 100 yard lo whurdles, and Discuss, but the Sigs which managed to place at least one man in these events countered with some wins of their own and went ahead on Doug Stubblefield's surprise win in the 60 yard low hurdles.

Tit For Tat

As has happened once in awhil before, several events were nearly shy of contestants with each team winning points in one to counter-balance those gained by the other. This came in the two mile where the Sigs entered two men who finished—the flatfeet's lone entry dropping out at the end of one lap while in the broad jump, the Flatfeet entered five men who sewed up three of the four pieces which enabled them to point for Wednesday's tie.

The Events-Longer Distance

In th long distance events, A. C. McWilliams took the mile run with a time of 5:20.6, beating Al McCulloch of Alpha Sig. The Flat Feet registered another victory in the half-mile when Dave Helwig came in ahead of John Hale of the Hoboes, and another Flat Feet man, Rod McMillan.

In the shorter sprints, the Flat Feet had a harder time of it, but one of their men, Charlie Blackburn took the 220 with a time of e29:4, over Beckwith running for Alpha Sig. Beckwith, however, turned the tables on Blackburn in the hundred yard dash as he turned in a 10:9 time for the victory.

In the hundred yard hurdles, Bob Green took the honors, again for the Flat Feet, again over a teammate John Hale and an Alpha Sig man, Doug Stubblefield, in the time of 14:4. Stubblefield won the shorter sixty yard hurdles, for Alpha Sig, followed by Teammate Howard Gress. Alpha Sig also won the two mile race, with only two Alpha Sig men entered, Neale Pearson winning.

Field Events

Dick Erickson, of Alpha Sigma, won the high jump, followed by Charlie Allen, the first Ring Nose to win points. George Kipp flipped the discus 108.6 feet to take the first place in that event for Flat Feet, topping John Glanville and Paul Merwin of the Sigs. Alpha Sig also won the javelin toss with Tom Fairhurst tossing it 123.1 feet.

Dick Patton won the shot put with a toss of 33 feet two inches while A. C. McWilliams won the broad jump for the Flat Feet, sailing 19:10 feet. John Shields pole vaulted 9'6" for the victory in that event—an event more surprising because it was Shields' first trip through the ether waves.

Emory & Henry Falls To Scots

The Maryville College Scotties nosed out the Wasps of Emory and Henry last week in a thriller, 5-4. Sonny Short started on the mound for the Scotties and did a good job until he weakened in the top of the ninth. The Wasps started a do-or-die rally which brought Gene Parks to the mound to put out the fire and pick up credit for the win.

Gift Runs

The Scotties took a substantial lead in the top of the sixth and were never behind again. Lynn Sexton led off with a bunt single followed by Bill Van Benthysen's single to left field. Sexton moved to third on the hit and came on home when Wasp third sacker Harry Saltz made an error. Short's deep flyball scored Van Benthuysen who had moved to third on the miscue. Not wanting to be outdone, McGhee, Wasp shortstop, bungled Phil Young's grounder. Bob Shelton then hit a smash singl to right scoring Young. Wasp catcher Lackey then caught Shelton going to second to end the Scot action.

The Scots added a single run in the eighth on a hard hit single by Kinser, a stolen base, an error by the pitcher and a bunt by Tom Jones which turned out to be a fielders' choice as Harry Newberry was caught going into third.

Tie Game—Suspense

The Wasps tied up the game in the top of the ninth with three singles and an infield out scoring two runs.

The Scotties won the ball game in the bottom of the ninth when Van Benthuysen singled, Parks smashed another single and Young and Shelton both sacrificed, Van Benthuysen racing across the home plate before the Wasps knew where the ball was.

Baseballers and Netmen Close Season In Road Contests With Wasps and Bucs

Sepring Sports came to an end today as the Scots engaged East Tennessee State tennis wise yesterday and their baseball playing cohorts finish against the Wasps of Emory & Henry on the Emory field this afternoon.

All games are return ones with the Scots having to face the fact that they trimuphed in all but one of them. The netmen jumped the Buc tennis-sers unceremoniously previously by a 7-0 count while the diamonders dumped Milligan and Emory & Henry by 8-3 and 10-6 counts, respectively. East Tennessee's team behind the effective pitching of Bob Welch had in the meantime though took a 6-1 triumph on the Maryville greensward—so the Scots will be looking for a win and an even break with the Buc—athletic department. Hurling for the Scots on the trip were Harry Robinson, Gne Parks, Jim Harrison, and Sonny Short in today's contest.

Scots Trim Buffs For Second Time

Win Is Fourth In Row

Maryville's Scots extended their winning streak to four games in a row Monday in a road game at Milligan by defeating the Buffaloes, 13-3. MC pitching was definitely on the ball along with batting eyes as the Scots hurlers, Parks and Robinson issued only one free ticket to first while their free swinging teammates combed Buffaloes pitching for 15 hits.

Quick and Early

The Scots piled up a quick four-run lead in their half of the first as Phil Young, Bob Shelton, and Wes Kinser sandwiched three straight hits around a walk to Jim Campbell for three runs, Kinser scoring on Jim Wiley's grounder to third. The Buffs counterd with one run in their half of the inning but were to be denied as the Highlanders added six more runs in the next three innings to pile up a sufficient lead.

Big man for the Scots in the hitting department was Bob Shleton who rapped out four singles in six tries at the palte, Don Alford with three for four, while Wes Kinser got two for five and Jim Wiley a triple and single in four a.b.'s.

Robinson Robbin'

Chunking the last five innings for MC wa sHarry Robinson who pitched his most effective ball of the season, striking out six men and walking only one in pitching five innings of hitless ball.

Scots Dump C-N

For Tennis Win

The Maryville College netmen, turning in one of their better performances, out-stroked the visiting courtsters from Carson-Newman way to the tune of eight games to one. In the afternoon heat, with the temperature growing more intense as the match wore on, the Scotties proved just too much for the Jefferson City lads, several close games and several close decisions on chal line shots providing onlookers with an afternoon of exciting tennis.

Clyde McCampbell, Kent Buser, and John Anderson—each taking two straight sets—made quick work of their opponents. Dick Lebold and Marshall England finally emerged victorious after going into extra games in close and exciting matches. Ed Brightbach, droping the only Scottie match of the day, was the victim of close chalk line decisions in a close and exciting match.

The Scottie netmen swept through the doubles matches, taking all three matches with little trouble. Ed Brightbach and Clyde McCampbell, Ken Buser and Dick Lebold, and John Anderson and Marshall England teamed up to give the Scotties the clean sweep.

Scots Finish Third In Tennis Tourney

McCampbell-Anderson Hexed By Seeding Hex

At the State Intercollegiate championships which were held at Sewannee on May 1, 2, and 3, the Scot netmen tied for third place with Memphis State. For the Scots Clyde McCampbell, Kent Buser, John Anderson, and Dick Lebold played for the Scots.

The Old Hex

Clyde McCampbell, seeded first in singles play, drew a bye in the first round of matches, but was defeated by Jones of Memphis State, 6-2 and 6-0. Kent Buser defeated Lapsley of Sewane in a first round match but he was defeated by White of Sewannee 6-1, and, 6-2. John Anderson defeated a Memphis State man in his first macth, but was defeated by Ivy Jackson of Sewannee. Dick Lebold was defeated also in his first match.

Doubles, Doubled, Too

The Scot doubles combination of McCampbell and Anderson drew a bye in first round play, then defeated Rayburn-Porter of Middle Tenenssee Teachers 6-1, 6-1, in the quarter-final round, but they lost to Sewannee's Gibson and Keyser, 6-3, 6-3 in the semi finals. The other doubles team of Buser-England, lost also in a quarter-final round to a Memphis State Duo.

Freshman's Father Authors Novel

"Of Hell a Heaven," by Charles T. Morgan will be published this month in New York by Exposition Press. At the present time the author's daughter, Jean Morgan, is enrolled as a freshman at Maryville College. Morgan in his latest book tells the story of a wilderness preacher and his travelling church.

Morgan is a Georgian by origin, born in Lafayette, educated in Rome, and a graduate of Berea College in Kentucky. He also holds a master's degree from Peabody College, Nashville.

Professionally, Morgan has been a high school superintendent in Kentucky, alumni secretary and director of admissions at Berea, and director of publications at Centenary College, Shreveport, La. Since 1946 he has been president of Wood Junior College, Mathiston, Miss.

His previous writings, on various themes, have appeared in "The Christian Century" and "Vital Speeches." His two earlier books are "Flickering Light," a discussion of the educational scene today, and "The Fruit of This Tree," an informal history of Berea. "Of Hell a Heaven" is his first venture into fiction.

Proffitt Speaks On World Trip

"I'm very sure that if we have peace in the world, it will be because of the power of Christianity, not because of armaments or bombs," said David W. Proffitt, local merchant and past president of the Presbyterian Laymen's Association in chapel Thursday morning, May 8.

Continuing his speech about his recent trip around the world in behalf of the Presbyterian Church, Proffitt said that purposes of the trip was to visit the mission stations and to appraise the needs of the war-torn countries.

Proffitt was especially impressed by the fervor and zeal of the Korean Christians. He felt that never before had he met such dynamic Christians.

As he traveled through Korea, India, Palestine, and Germany, Proffitt realized that the greatest needs of the people were more Christian leaders, more Christian schools, and more Christian missionaries.

He concluded by saying, "One of the greatest opportunities in the world is to be found in Christian leadership and in Christian service."

Proffitt is a graduate of Maryville College.

The Federal Reserve Board has suspended controls over down payments and time-to-pay because of the easing of inflationary presures that have made the controls no longer necessary.

This means that for the first time in 20 months, the public can buy on whatever terms it can get.

Hardly 24 hours after the Government decontrolled instalment terms, many stores in Knoxville were already offering goods at low down-payments.

President Truman marked his 68th birthday anniversary Thursday with the announcement that he plans to spend the next 10 years as he damn pleases.

The President declined to be specific about his future, expressing only the desire to travel abroad after January.

Disturbed by the steel crisis, Truman said that the situation would depend on the policies of the next President. Mr. Truman in saying that he would support the foreign policy of the new President, said that there would be no third world war if the American economy could be kept on an even keel.

The Mutual Security program of aid to free countries should be carried through to a successful conclusion, advises Truman.

Walter George (D., Ga.), chairman of Sen. Richard Rusell's campaign organization claimed that the Florida primary victory "stops Kefauver completely."

Sen. Paul Douglas (D., Ill.) retorted that the Tennessee crime-hunter made a "remarkably good" showing in Florida against the "organized political machine" which was backing Russell.

145 SENIORS TO GRADUATE WEDNESDAY

Van Holland Elected 1952-53 Echo Editor

Dick Dart Named Business Manager

Van Holland, rising senior English major from Baltimore, Md., was elected editor of next year's Highland Echo by the current Echo staff Wednesday. Business manager for next year will be Dick Dart, rising senior psychology major from Franklin, Ind.

Holland appointed Joan Frei, rising junior English major from Manilla, The Phillipines, next year's managing editor. He also named Rolfe Duggar, rising junior political science major from St. Petersburg, Fla., and Bob Coles rising senior English major from Scranton, Pa., as co-sports editors.

The election of the editor is conducted by The Echo staff with votes also assigned to the chairman of the faculty committee on publications and the chairman of the student council publications committee.

The Publications Committee voted to postpone until next semester the election and promotion of staff members. This was done because the number of applicants exceeded the constitutional limit, and the committee hoped to work out some more satisfactory arangement.

Seniors Conduct Annual Chapel

The traditional Senior Chapel Service was held this morning under the leadership of Ralph Thiesse, Senior Class President.

The program included the processional, Carolyn Marshall, pianist; announcements, Walter Lange, treasurer; Scripture reading, Lois Layton, secretary; general prayer, William Robinson, vice-president; piano duet by Larry Wallace and Herb Hoover; class report, Barbara Blum and Dave Reed.

The turning over of the chapel seats by Thiesse followed, with the response by Curt Wilbanks, next year's Senior Class president.

President Ralph W. Lloyd was presented with a gift as a symbol of the class' appreciation to him and the entire faculty.

The program closed with the singing of the Alma Mater, as arranged by Charlie Huffman, class of '49, by the Vesper Choir and a prayer offered by Thiesse.

Playhouse Elects Van Alstyne Chief

Art Van Alstyne, junior English major from Pittsburgh, Penn. will serve as president of the Maryville College Playhouse for the coming school year.

Clifford Church, English major from New York, is the newly elected vice-president, David Gates, physics major from Missouri will serve as secretary, and George Caldwell, English major from Cincinnati, Ohio, is the in-coming treasurer.

Senior Music Majors To Present Program

Senior music majors will present a program on Sunday, May 18, at 4 p.m. in the Music Hall of the Fine Arts Center.

Participating students will be Carol Barnett, Marylee Snodderly Rosalie Munson, Bill Robinson, Herbert Hoover, Larry Wallace, Carolyn Marshall, and June Hood

Miss Hood will conclude the program with the Saint Saens Concerto in G Major, the first movement, Andante Sostenuto.

She will be accompanied by Miss Davies at the second piano.

Breitbach Elected MSO President

Ed Breitbach, rising senior English major from Irvington, N.J., was elected president of next year's Men's Student Organization in elections held Wednesday and yesterday morning.

A transfer student from Newark College of Engineering, Breitbach will replace Bill Norse as MSO head.

Holland Receives Journalism Award For Warfield Story

Van Holland, newly-elected Highland Echo editor for next year, was awarded this week the paper's first annual journalism prize for his interview of singer William Warfield in the February 9 issue of the paper.

Those who received honorable mention are Kathy Chase who was given second place for her "Voices, Masks, and Shadows" column of October 26; Carol Moore for "Scots and Soda" on May 10;

Darothy Greenhagen for news ceremonies in the issue of October seremonies in the issue of October 27; and Joan Frei for her editorial "On Griping" in The Echo of November 17.

The winners were selected by a committee composed of Assistant Professor Elizabeth Jackson of the English department and the faculty committee on publications; Assistant Professor of English Carolyn Blair; and Carson Seeley, managing editor of The Echo.

Senior staff members were not eligible, and qualities taken inta consideration by the judges were good journalism, general writing imagination and ability, and originality of thought and expression.

Treasurer Will Refund Deposits

Refunds of the $10 deposits will be made at the close of school. Students rooming on campus will get clearance tickets when keys are turned in at the dormitories, and all students must get clearance tickets at the book store.

These tickets must be presented at the Treasurer's Office in order to receive refunds or to renew deposits for the fall semester. Those who fail to renew the advance deposit by the end of the present semester (noon on May 22) will lose their places on the class rolls and in the dormitories.

Just leaving the old deposit will not suffice it has been announced; it must be transferred by the student in person at the Treasurer's Office. This applies to both town and dormitory students.

McMillan Operates Sister Program

The big-little sister program for next fall has begun to operate under the leadership of Edith McMillan. YWCA sponsors this program which introduces al the incoming freshman girls to Maryville through upper class girls who serve as their big sisters.

The big sisters will send out letters of introduction to the new freshman girls, during the summer, and then will see that they get to know Maryville and that Maryville gets to know them when they arrive on campus. It is an important job as it establishes the first impression which the new students will receive of Maryville, Miss McMillan said.

Several parties and activities are being planned for the big-little sisters next fall.

Council Elects Aiken, Gates, Hears Reports

Janice Aiken and Dave Gates were elected secretary and treasurer, respectively, of next year's Student Council at the joint Council meeting Wednesday, May 14.

Aiken, sophomore English major from Prospect, Pa., vied with Jean Anderson, a junior from New York City. Gates, a science major from Fulton, Miss. vied with Harold Black, sophomore from Ridgeway, Pa.

The Quickway investigation committee, consisting of Marie Richards, Jessie Dye, Bill Morse, and Dick Newman, recommended that the restaurant be put on bounds. Because of the shortness of the remaining semester, Council moved that another investigation be made next year.

Newel Witherspoon, President of the Inter-Club Council, presented the problem of dealing with irregular initiations by the four societies. Since the initiations are held too soon for Inter-Club Council to act, Council decided that the Student Body President check with the four society presidents at the beginning of the first semester.

Council discussed and evaluated the MSO. It suggested that MSO officers should promote the organization early in the year, steep the men in the purposes and worth of the organization, and take a more positive approach in its program.

Student Body President Cuthill urged all clubs to turn in their minutes to the newly formed Student Office. The Joint Council then adjourned for a farewell party.

Merwin Elected ABC President

Paul Merwin, junior sociology major from Ridgewood, N. J., was elected president of the Athletic Board of Control in all-campus elections held Friday.

Jim Wiley, sophomore pre-med from Munford was alected vice-president; and Jackie Kendall, junior from Indianapolis, Ind., secretary.

Joe Bender, junior history major from Milford, N. J.; Harry MacCall, freshman political science major from Morristown, N. J.; Bob Navratil, sophomore pre-med from Miami, Fla.; Liz Murphy, freshman from Springfield; Jay Spencer, junior sociology major from Chattanooga were elected representatives to the board.

Plans Approved For New Chapel

By Joan Frei

The design of the new Samuel Tyndale Wilson Chapel has been approved, President Ralph W. Lloyd has announced.

"This means," said Dr. Lloyd, "that Schweikher and Elting of Chicago and Barber and McMurray of Knoxville, associated architects for the building, will proceed with specifications and working drawings with a view to having them ready to ask for bids by September."

The design calls for a building containing three distinct parts, really three buildings unified into one by a simple and effective plan. The three parts are (1) the chapel auditorium seating 1120 exclusive of the platform, and about 1350 including the platform; (2) a theater seating 460 and containing a modern stage, stagehouse, and workshops; (3) a connecting two-story building 285 feet long (only 15 feet shorter than the football field) containing a "little chapel" with 100 seats, choir rehearsal and robing rooms, drama and speech class and practice rooms, and the college pastor's offices.

The three parts of the building will be open off an outdoor court 60 by 45 feet in size.

The basic materials of the new chapel will be brick, concrete, steel, aluminum, and glass. Its style will be contemporary, in harmony with that of the Fine Arts Center. It is believed that this type of building will be "original, simple, appropriate, comprehensive, and economical."

It will be located on the site of the Elizabeth R. Voorhees Chapel, which burned in 1947, but it will run across the area, parallel with the road, rather than down the hill as the old chapel did. The theater end of the building will be towards the Fine Arts Center, and the chapel end will be towards Carnegie. The entrance to the center court will be in the same place as the center of the old chapel, in line with the walk from Thaw Hall and the Book Store.

Grierson Elected TLA President

Ruth Grierson, Maryville College librarian, was named the new president of the Tennessee Library Association at a meeting last week in Cumberland Mountain State Park, Crossville.

She succeeeds Dr. Robert S. Alvarez, director of the Nashville Public Library. The Tennessee Library Association is made up of all the libraries in the state—school, college, public, town, and special libraries.

It helps co-operation among the various libraries and is currently giving special attention to the needs of town libraries.

Lloyd To Attend Church Assembly MC Breakfast

At the end of Commencement Day, President Ralph W. Lloyd will go to New York City to attend the General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church U.S.A., which convenes the next morning.

He will report on Friday, Saturday, Monday, and the closing day concerning church cooperation and union activities. On Friday and Sunday he will fill speaking engagements in New York City.

The General Assembly, composed of nearly 900 voting commissioners and many visitors from all over the world, is to meet May 22-28 in Fifth Avenue Presbyterian Church, Fifth Avenue at 55th Street, New York. Special attention is to be given this year to the 150th anniversary of the organization of the home missionary program of the Church. In this celebration one large pageant is to be given in Madison Square Garden.

Each year, at this General Assembly meeting, there is a Maryville College breakfast. This year it is to be on Saturday morning, May 24, at 7:30 a.m. at Child's Restaurant, located on Fifth Avenue between 56th and 57th Streets.

Reservations can be made here at the College, in the President's Office, or by signing posters which will be up in the lobby at General Assembly.

$1,800 Sent By College For African Work

A check for $1,800 has just been sent from the Fred Hope Fund, given by the students and faculty of Maryville College, for use in West Africa and India. Mrs. Kenneth P. Johnson, Secretary, and President Ralph W. Lloyd, Chairman of the Fred Hope Fund Board, have announced.

Of this, $1,000 goes to help build and equip the Cameron Christian College in West Africa. The other $800 is to purchase a major operating room shadowless light for the Frances Newton Hospital, Ferozepur, India, of which Dr. Dorothy Lee Ferris (MC '28) is head.

A special appeal came through the Presbyterian Board of Foreign Missions for much needed hospital equipment. Answering the appeal at once was important because a special ruling by the Governments of the United States and India is permitting hospital equipment which is shipped before June 1, 1952, to go to India freight free and to enter India duty free. This enables delivery in India at about one half the usual cost.

H. L. Leiper Will Preach At Commencement

By Emily Smith

Nearly 145 seniors will be graduated on Wednesday, May 12, at Maryville's 133rd commencement exercises. Of these, 80 will receive BA degrees and 60 BS degrees. Five people will complete their graduation requirements this summer.

The address for the graduation exercises which will begin at 10:30 a.m. will be given by the Rev. Henry Smith Leiper, M.A., D.D., New York Associate Secretary of the World Council of Churches.

The Spring meeting of the Board of Directors will be held at 8:30 that morning.

Tuesday, May 20, President and Mrs. Ralph W. Lloyd will hold a reception for alumni, seniors, parents of students, faculty and other guests at Morningside between the hours of 3 and 5 p.m.

The chapel service that morning will be given to the distribution of prizes for scholarship achievement and a program of music by the All Girl Choir and Men's Glee Club.

At 8 p.m. Monday, May 19, the final performance of the Commencement play, "Macbeth," will be given in Alumni Gym. A special program of music will be given at the chapel service Monday morning.

The speaker at Commencement Vespers will be the Rev. Dr. H. Gordon Harold, pastor of the Bellefield Presbyterian Church, Pittsburgh, Pa., a Maryville College graduate.

The Senior Music Hour Recital will be held at 4 p.m. in the Music Hall of the Fine Arts Center. President Lloyd will speak at the Baccalaureate Service to be held in Alumni Gym at 10:30 Sunday morning.

Today, Saturday, May 17, has been named Alumni Day. The annual Dinner will be held in Pearsons hall with a business meeting following. Class luncheons have been arranged. The Senior Class Chapel Service was held this morning with Ralph Theisse, president, presiding.

The first performances of "Macbeth" were held at 8 p.m. May 15 and 16. The Senior breakfasts at Morningside were held on May 6 and 7.

Atwell Elected WSGA President; Chairmen Chosen

Shirley Atwell, junior education major from Syracuse, N. Y., was elected president of next year's WSGA in elections held last week.

Also elected were Ann Kirkpatrick, education major from Atlanta, Ga., as Pearsons House Chairman; Carolyn Lime, home ec major from Canton, N. C., as Baldwin House Chairman; and Gerry Moore, pyhs. ed. major from Buechel, Ky., as Memorial House chairman.

Floor chairman have been chosen in all the girl's dorms except Pearsons.

In Baldwin, Millie Eisele, elementary ed. major from Greenlawn, N. Y., was chosen first floor chairman; for second floor, the chairman is Peggy Myers, elementary ed. major from New Brighton, Pa.; and Fern Thompson, English major from Scranton, Pa., is third floor chairman.

Mary Liechty is the floor chairman for second floor Memorial. She is an art major from Ridgewood, N. J. Edith Cunningham, home ec major from Maryville, is third floor chairman.

Since no sophomores will be living on first floor next year, no floor chairman will be chosen until next year from the freshman girls rooming on first.

Watkins To Preside At Alumni Dinner

Dr. J. R. Watkins of Loudon will preside at the meeting of the Alumni Association in Pearsons Hall at 7 p.m. tonight. This dinner meeting will conclude the annual Alumni Day activities which have been carried on throughout the day.

At the meeting the class of 1952 will be presented for membership into the Alumni Association. The report for the past year will be made at this time also, and the election of next year's officers will be held.

The classes of 1942, 1927, 1912 and 1902 (of which there are now only 3 living) have held reunions today and each class has planned its own entertainment.

Throughout the day there have been tables provided on the campus to furnish information and serve as a welcoming committee for alumni and other guests.

Final 'Macbeth' Showing Set For Monday Evening

The final performance of "Macbeth" is to be given Monday evening, May 19, at 8 p.m. in Alumni Gym.

A performance was given Thursday night for high school students, and another Friday night which was open for general attendance.

"Macbeth" is under the direction of Kathleen Craven, with Barbara Blum as student director. Tickets are on sale for Monday night's performance with an admission charge of 50 cents.

Lloyds To Entertain

President and Mrs. Ralph W. Lloyd will entertain seniors and their parents, alumni, and other guests at Morningside on Tuesday, May 20, from 3 to 5 p.m.

Those assisting Mrs. Lloyd at the reception wil lbe the wives of members of the faculty.

Clubs To Present Chapel Program

The combined Glee Clubs will present the chapel program on Monday and Tuesday morning.

On Monday morning Ann Hoover will sing "Oh What A Beautiful Morning," and "Oklahoma." Ann Dishner, Floyd Hickman, and Jim Allison, "A Paradox;" "Pour O Pour," and "With Cat-Like Tread," by Homer Rickabaugh;

"Oh, Here is Love," by Lynn Kiefer, Floyd Hickman; "Poor Wandr'ing One," Lynn Kiefer and Barbara Link.

On Tuesday morning "Although Our Dark Careers Hail Poetry," sung by Jim Allison. "Stay Frederick, Stay," Sally Butts and George Day. "I Am the Very Pattern." Harry MacCall. "When A Foeman," Wesley Kinser, Sally Butts, Ann Robinson, John Montheith.

College Schedules Summer Confabs

This summer there are five conferences scheduled to be held on Maryville College campus.

June 9 to 14 will be the Pioneer Camp of the Presbyterian Church in the US Prebsyterian Men's Advance will hold its conference June 16-17

June 17-20 the Synod and Synodical Society of the Mid-South will meet at the same time as the Westminster Youth Synod, which will be inter-racial.

Thirty

By Dick Newman

Sometimes writing Echo editorials is difficult because we have to go out of our way to find a subject matter. Sometimes we're unsure of just the right way to word something in order to put across intended meanings. At any rate, with the pressure of deadlines ever present, we have always been able to say, "Well, there's next week."

It's a rather unsual feeling to realize that there aren't any more next weeks, that all the opportunities are gone now, that this is the only time to say all the things we never quite got around to saying, that the problem is not what to say or how to say it, but, rather, how to finish up in one editorial a whole year, a whole experience.

The one thing that makes a paper is its staff. This year's Highland Echo staff has been superb: there is writing talent and ability, enthusiasm, interest, a cooperative spirit, all the factors that combine to make a paper good, and the staff a great working unit. To every member goes the editor's sincerest appreciation in a very personal way for making this year a good one in the fullest sense.

In our editorials this year we have attempted to combine congratulations and criticism, both of which we believe to be the legitimate functions of a college paper. Our criticism has always been designed to be constructive in the best possible way, and we regret any misinterpretations of that. We have tried to emphasize that Maryville is a great college with a great tradition and an even greater future. Our faculty is unexcelled. The Fine Arts Center and the proposed chapl give us an architectre that is distinctive and unequalled. Our president is a national academic and church leader. Maryville's spiritual emphasis, marked by high ideal and high principle, is encouraging and stabilizing in a time of basketball fixing and political and business corruption.

We do believe, that some aspects of our life here could easily lend themselves to improvement, and we have tried to say that in a sincere and constructive way.

In "A Statement of Policy," the first editorial of this year, we said, "A newspaper becomes almost a living person to those who are closely and intimately associated with her."

To next year's staff we assign the opportunity to discover how true and how meaningful that is.

Scots & Soda

By Carol Moore

Me: Got anything for Scots and Soda?

Joe: Yeah! Ice cubes! !

So her e I am with a tray of ice, a warped sense of humor, and an empty page. . .

Thought No. 1

We're homeward bound! ! Everybody's got their plane or train reservation and Charlie Yates reports that the flying saucer that he ordered from Mars will land at the Aztec Ruins early Wednesday morning. A few days rest, and then, for most of us, a summer job.

I inquired around among some of the students and faculty to find out what they would be doing. .

Van Holland: (Our new editor) will begin a hundred-and-fifty-three year apprenticeship to a salt miner in Siberia. His only comment, "Vee never gr-r-row old in Rahsi.a.a.a.a.a.a.! ! !"

Bob Moser: Will begin work on his novel The Spirits of Maryville and How I Became One.

Bill Deihl: Will present the original manuscript of "Milkin' Time" to Elsie, the Borden Cow, on her birthday, July 26.

Nina Ruth Gillette: Is traveling to Paramount Studios in Holywood for an audition using that old standby of hers, "Cleopatera".

Miss Ware: Is making plans now for the building for her concession stand which will run daily features of stuffed peppers, hominy grits, black eyed peas, and corn bread.

Burt McMahon: Will open up his clinic to treat sprains with his original iodine treatment guaranteed to peel your skin to the bone.

Hershel Mosier: Will appear on Ted Mack's original Amateur Hour wrapped in a Hershey bar singing a tune from "The Chocolate Soldier".

Neale Parson: Will travel to New York to star in the new Lava Soap opera, "Life With Neale".

Ed Scott: Along with Lou Masters will record the release of "John and Marcia" for RCA Victor.

Sammy Faulkner: Is preparing a booklet, "How to Play Honeymoon Bridge".

Marian Rice: Is traveling as ambassador to Russia. Her assignment. . . to climb on Joe's lap and say, "Hey, Ya' all! ! !"

Jake Peppers: Will enter into a partnership with Arthur Godfrey. He will sing and dance to "Makin' Love Ukulele Style".

Buster Haylock: Is offering himself to science in order to conclude the search for the missing link.

Peg von Geldern: Will travel to the Walt Disney Studios where she will pose for a chipmunk cartoon entitled, "Little Von Goes Gathering Nuts". (Correction, "Little Von Goes Nuts! !)

Bruce Hueser and

Cliff Church: Have already acquired positions as cigarette girls at the Stork Club.

Hazel Robinson: Will travel to South Africa to teach the natives how to do her "boneless" dance.

And so our MC students travel to the far corners of the earth. To all of you we say good-bye, be good, and have a wonderful vacation! ! !

* * * *

Something to Remember. . .

John Gould: A lecture is an occasion when you numb one end to benefit the other.

* * * *

Trapped! !

Hershel Nelson had quite a time of it last Saturday evening. After cleaning the rooms in Thaw he found that Ralph had locked all the doors at 7:00 o'clock not realizing that Hersh was still in the building. Says Hershel, "I tried everything! Windows, doors, I flicked the lights, pounded on the windows, screamed at the kids on the way to the Student Center, and nothing worked! I was all set to bed down in the town girls' room when I found a window in the College Maid Shop that was open. And still, while I was crawling out I was afraid I'd be shot for a prowler! !"

Hershel returned to Carnegie at 10:15 p.m. having been held a prisoner for over three hours. The tragic thing about it is that he would've never been missed. His roommate was gone for the week-end! ! !

What to do on Hallowe'en?

Through the grape vine comes this rumor that the architect of the new chapel has been requested by Dr. Lloyd to build a bell tower so high that no student will be able to climb it. Past experience with stolen bells has made this action necessary.

Voices, Masks, and Shadows

By Gail Brown

WHEN WE WERE VERY THREE

A long time ago "Winnie the Pooh" was our favorite story-telling booklet (like Piglet). We're older now. Our suave, sophisticated selves adore that Kelly-Pogo.

Now, in attempting to retain the solemn, literary dignity of this column and still talk about Pogo, we could print a critical examination and a scholarly review of author Walt Kelly and the 'possum.

So after we syllablelizes on a bit just about Pogo and hisself, perhaps we will get 'roun for doing something 'bout like that. Maybe not!

Maybe not you all're Pogo addicts? We'd hate to know it. Pogo and his swamp folks are irresistabobie, and Okefenokee is the champeen locale for all us Southern Democraters.

Just to elucidate, although we are not able to delineate, we're going to lift some of Kelly's stuff and put it down in play form.

This is from the story about—well, the title is "Much Adieu About Nothing. . Honor Is Upheld and No Fish and Game Laws Are Broken.' We'll start right in at the middle.

(Albert has just boughten a letter from the Real McGee the Substitute Mail Man, and is opening it.)

Albert: Here's one must be in another language.

Owl: Why, Albert, that's English!

Albert: English! I isn't gone buy any mail what's writ in a foreign tongue. . . isn't you got none what's in plain ninety States?

You is tryin' to sell mail an' this one is in a foreign language. (to Real)

I wants my money back.

Real McGee: You didn't pay none yet.

Albert: A mere technicalorie! Looky at this!. . . The language of a foreign power!

Owl: That's English, Albert. . . Our native tongue!

Albert: AHA! You is tryin' to confuse a honest citizen! Englishmens is foreigners, isn't they? Is you a spy?

Owl: Yes . . I MEAN NO! Isn't English our own language, partnr? (to Real)

Real McGee: I dunno 'bout that. . . But you can keep Yo' han's to you'self . . . You is always had a sneaky look!

We've got a sneaky look, also. We're afraid we shouldn't be quoting Pogo like this—spoils it with no pictures. But if this column isn't being adequately appreciated, it isn't Pogo's fault, but ours!

Pogo isn't just a comical strip, but real, meaningful work of artistry. Whatever you want, whether it be current events, old English philosophy, tangible political information (how to run for president), satire, even comedy—Pogo has it all to give away.

* * * * *

We wish we had some MacBeth tickets to give away to all those who heard the rumors that the production was not going to be worth the silver. Even those who thought that exams placed a length ahead of anything else, and refused to indulge in an M ticket, are going to regret it. Of course, we wrote this before last night, and counted on the cast to uphold our predictions (double, double, double, double, double).

If correct, there are still two nights playing.

* * * * *

Also playing, but down in the city, are a couple of pictureshows. Probably home is more appealing than the the Capitol, but here they are anyway.

Monday and Tuesday hear John Derek and Jody Lawrence screaming through "Masque of the Avenger." Later in the week, "When Worlds Collide," a Paramount cosmic play, paints the screen as fantastically as possible in one of those pseudo-scientific nightmares where all these brainy but solid females rocket-ship to a new planet.

You can go sentimental over a horse at the Park Monday with "Red Stalion." Mona Freeman, as the "Lady From Texas" could possibly take care of Tuesday night. We won't talk about "The Big Steal" hoping everyone has gone home. If not, it's a real chaser.

ECHO FORUM

To the Editor of The Highland Echo:

As chairmen of the WSSF committee, we would like to thank the student body and faculty for their wonderful cooperation in making the week of emphasis on world student conditions a success. It has been a pleasure to work with you and serve such a cause.

Following is a letter received from the national WSSF officially expressing their gratitude.

Sincerely yours,
Nannette Enloe
Jack Mowatt

Dear friends:

Through your generous contribution you have joined those who feel that need knows no boundaries. Your help will add strength to the world-wide student crusade against poverty, disease, ignorance and despair.

Material assistance, still so much needed, can help the giver and the receiver to experience their common humanity and thus realize that nothing human is foreign.

For those in distant lands, who will receive your gift with renewed hope, we thank you.

Very sincerely yours,

"We're in Love With A Wonderful Guy"
We're as corny as Kansas in August,
We're as normal as blueberry pie,
And now when all the voting is over
We have found us a wonderful guy.
He's been in every sports writer's grave yard
Without a conventional I-told-you-so,
Pardon and note
There's a lump in our throat,
When we speak of that wonderful Joe!
—The Barber of Seviervile with Apologies to South Pacific

●THUS WITH A DITTY THAT IS NOT SO WITTY we make mention of a guy who has always given it the full-hearted Intramural try. We salute YMCA's Intramural Man of the Year, Mr. Jack Waka, with a cheer. The little pepperpot has been on some winning teams in the past and also on others that've finished last. But we're glad to see that he got it, cause he deserves the trophy and all that goes with it.

Waka, a product of the Bronx where the skies are cloudy all day has been a literal ray of sunshine to the Intramural department with his clean, hard playing and also has been of much assistance refereeing and advising. Once again congratulations to one of the best that there has been—who has in everything and thus the trophy deserves to win.

Victory Bell

There was a tumult in the city,
In the old Mar'ville town,
And the streets were rife with people
Pacing the pavement up and down,
People gathering at corners
Where they whispered each to each,
And the sweat stood on their temples
With the earnestness of their speech.
How they shouted! What rejoicing!
How the old Bell shook the air.
Till the clang of victory ruffled
The calm of the darkened city there
How the bonfires and the torches
Lighted up the night's repose,
And from the flames like fabled Phoenix,
The sound of glorious victory arose!
The old town bell is now silent
Hushed now is its clamorous tongue,
But the spirit will be awakened
For the years are still living, ever young
And when we greet the smiling sunlight
On that very homecoming night
We will ne'er forget the ball-man
Who betwixt the earth and sky
Rang out loudly, "Victory,"
Which, please God, shall soon be nigh!"
—with apologies to an Unknown Author

●THOUGH MANY MAY HAVE TROUBLE UNDERSTANDING WHAT RELEVANCE the above has to the sport page, it is just a short statement of faith in the future concerning the noble and aged sport of football. We're just stupid and hopeful enough to think that that old Anderson Tower bell will be ringing again this fall despite the fact that prospects are very low—but remember—they could be lower.

"Passage To Elsewhere"

Cut the hawsers—haul out—shake out every sail!
Have we not stood herelike trees long enough to fail?
Have we not grovl'd here long enough, eating and drinking like mere brutes?
Have we not dearken'd and dazed ourselves with books long enough?

Sail forth—steer for the deep waters only,
Reckless O Soul, exploring, I with thee, and thou with me,
For we are bound where mariner has not yet dared to go,
And we will risk the ship, ourselves and all that be.
* * * * * * *
My terminus near,
The clouds already closing in upon me, oh, it's so drear,
The voyage balked, the course disputed, lost
I yield my pencil unto thee.

My hands, my limbs grow nerveless,
My brain feels rack'd, bewilder'd,
Let the old timbers part, I will not
I will cling fast to the past, though the waves buffet me,
They, they, at least I know.
Is it the prophet's thought I speak, or am I raving?
What do I know of sports? what of man himself?
I know not even my own work past or present
Dim ever-shifting guseses of it spread before me
Of newer better sportswriters, their trite phrases,
Mocking, perplexing me, I announce what is to be.
I have press'd through in my own right;
I have sung the body and the soul, game and practice have I sung,
and the songs of victory and defeat,
I have offer'd my style to every one, I have stumbled with humble step;
While my pleasure is yet at the full I whisper So Long!. . . .
I feel like one who has done work for the day to retire awhile.
—with apologies to Whitman

●THUS, WE PASS OUT INTO ANOTHER WORLD AND MAKE WAY FOR THOSE WHO ARE TO COME. We came here four years ago as a budding little freshman and probably leave also in the same state. We've seen some fine athletes and fine gentlemen come and go around here and no doubt there will more to come in the future. There have been some bad eggs too, but fortunately they've been in the minimum and so without much ado we welcome our successors to our post.

To some a job such as this is an easy one and as such it can be made an easy one—and at other times people will ask you everything under the sun concerning sports—who played running guard for Harvard back in 1909 or what do you do when you have a split chip in parchesi or how far is it out to the center field bleachers at League Park in Cleveeland.

You will be expected to know all the fancy foods and habits of athletes the world over and why Joe DiMaggio eats steak on Friday night and why Wes Fesler is now coach of Minnesota when he said he retired from Ohio State for his health.

Oftentimes you will be called on to write the "gossip" column of a newspaper or the feature because someone else just could not spare the "time" to do it since they had to attend a meeting of the Podunk Bridge or Dancing Club. You'll have to stay up late many nights and walk down to the plant at two a.m. in the morning with copy, and have to suffer abuse from printers, readers, and teachers. Your grades will decline at times and so will your popularity—you have to please everybody and get all the news that should be in on one page when you

Loss To Carson-Newman Ends 9-6 Baseball Year

Diamond Play Fluctuated Up 'n Down

By Rolfe Duggar

Coach Lombe Honaker's baseballers wound up the season at Bristol last week and thus ended their "worse" year since 1946. This year's nine ended up with eleven wins and nine defeats... This is a winning record, but it falls a little below the usual records for Maryville baseball teams. Last year's team won ten and lost two.

The Scotties turned on a barrage of runs as they met the Hiwassee Tigers in the annual spring tune-up game. The Scots, paced by Wesley Kinser, collected only nine base blows but crossed the plate eleven times to drop the Tigers for a 11-6 count. Kinser collected a homer and two triples in five appearances at the plate.

The Tigers bounded back a few days later to edge out a 10-9 decision from the Scots. The Tigers man-handled Jim Kren for seventeen hits including a home run.

The Redskins Not Red

The Miami Redskins of Ohio dropped by for a two game stint, but the weather didn't greet them very cordially. The two Miami pitchers limited the Scotmen to only three base knocks including a triple by Sunny Short. Miami, on the other hand, could only muster five hits, all singles, but made the most of them to win, 6-5. The second game was called off because of cold weather.

Everybody Hits

Hiwassee came back to the campus but when the dust cleared they decided that they should have stayed home. The Scots banged out twenty-one hits and won handily, 27-3. Gene Parks, Harry Robinson and Jim Harrison limited the Tigers to ten hits while the Scot guns were booming. Jimmy Campbell collected three singles and a homer while leading the Scot victory. Robinson also collected a home run.

Lincoln Memorial University dropped the Scotmen 7-2 as Ted Williams allowed only four base blows. Parks and Short were both touched for a big fat one good for four bases by Williams and Atkinson.

King Kong

The Scots came right back to hang up a 10-9 defeat on the King College boys. Kren was very effective on the mound until Briscoe hit an eighth inning grand-slam homer. Parks came in with a one run deficit to double in the tying run, and then he went on to score the winning run and gain credit for the win when Kinser drew a walk with the bases loaded.

The Scots didn't do so well against Morristown of the class D Mountain State League. They took a 12-10 loss on the chin. Short and Parks were wild giving up eight walks and only seven hits. One of those was a two run homer to first baseman Kitts.

Jim Kren finally found his real form against David Lipscome in Nashville when he gave up only three hits. The Scots didn't do any better as they too only collected three singles but won, 4-2. Kren struck out three and walked no one. Jack Patterson, Lipscome pitcher, struck out fourteen Scots and walked five.

"Nothing Can Stop The. . . ."

Gene Parks appeared to have the Seward Air Force Base diamondeers under his control until the last of the ninth. It was then that the airmen scored four runs and won a 4-3 victory. The Scots were held to a puny three singles and a double by Lynn Sextno.

TPI decided they had taken enough from past Scot teams and really poured it on for a 16-1 victory. Red Gaylor towed the mound chores for TPI and limited MC to only four singles. The Scot moundmen were touched for nine singles and two doubles. This was the game Coach Honaker decided to see what kind of an arm Wes Kinser had. It didn't prove too good of an experiment and Wes was soon back at first.

The Buccaneers from East Tennessee State pirated a 6-1 win from the Scots. Kren was touched for ten safeties including a four-master by catcher Cecil Puckette. Tom Jones collected two of the Scots five singles.

Parks Parks It

The first shutout of the season was hurled by Parks and Short against LMU, in a return meeting, 5-0. The Railsplitters gathered only six singles, three coming in the sixth. Parks hit a homer in the fourth with none aboard to continue hi spower hitting.

May Day was a big day for the Scots as they opunded out an 8-3 win over the Milligan Buffaloes. Jim Harrison was called on to start his first game and did very well until he tired in the seventh. Kren relieved him in the eighth and Kinser came in for the ninth. Kinser looked good this time as he set the Buffs down in order and left two Buffs swinging wildly in the thin air.

The MC'ers then edged out the Wasps of Emory and Henry with a single tally in the ninth, 5-4. Parks again came through, this time with a single to move Bill

Johnsonmen To Lose Only McCampbell In 1953

The Scots tennis men closed out their 1952 season with wins over Carson-Newman and East Tennessee State last week. The Highlanders topped the Eagle courtmen, 8-1, after having absorbed a 5-4 loss earlier in the year, and then in their last match dumped East Tennessee State's Bucs, 5-2, in a slight reversal in that they won on the MC courts, 7-0.

Whereas in the initial encounter CN's Bud Catlett had dumped Kent Buser in two matches, in the return bout Buser reversed the count and won over his erstwhile conqueror. Dick Lebold and Marshall England switched opponents in the match with CN and found the change to their good, though had to go three sets, and defeated Roy Dobbins and Gene Kingsley, respectively.

Clyde McCampbell and John Anderson also switched doubles partners with a change that was also to the good.

In the match with the Bucs, Coach Preacher Roberts found it advisable to change his line-ups around and in so doing he picked up a win the singles and doubles bracket, respectively.

Summary of Matches

Maryville vs. Carson-Newman

Singles

Clyde McCampbell (M) defeated Bob Bates (C-N), 6-2, 6-0.
Kent Buser (M) defeated Bud Catlett (CN), 6-4, 6-4.
Bob Youngs (CN) defeated Ed Breitbach (M), 6-4, 7-5.
John Anderson (M) defeated John Billington (CN), 6-3, 6-2.
Marshall England (M) defeated Gene Kingsley (CN), 6-1, 4-6, 8-6.
Dick Lebold (M) defeated Roy Dobyns (CN), 9-11, 7-5, 7-5.

Doubles

McCampbell-Breitbach (M) defeated Catlett-Bates (CN), 6-2, 6-3.
Anderson-England (M) defeated Young-Billington (CN), 6-2, 6-8, 6-1.

Netman's Season Nets 9-3 Record

With the wins over Carson-Newman and East Tennessee State closing out the season, Coach Ken Johnson's tennis forecloged the door on another successful season as MC tennis ability began to be strengthened more and more in the lower ranks of the team. Over the season, discounting the State Intercollegiate meet at Sewannee, Maryville netsmen won 65 matches and dropped but 34 for a close to .667 percentage—good in any man's league.

As for individual exploits, Clyde McCampbell, sole departing senior took ten singles matches and only lost to UT's Davis and Florida's Pharr. Second high man was Captain John Anderson with a 9-3 total followed by Kent Buser with 8-4, Marshall England with 7-4, Dick Lebold, 5-3; Ed Breitbach with 5-6, and Dick Gardner one loss against Dick Hogan of UT in his only match.

The doubles line-ups were many and varied with the duo of McCampbell and Anderson the most successful with three wins in that many tries.

Only departing members of the team is Clyde McCampbell with Ed Breitbach being the only Junior returning. This may sound bad but isn't when the fact is considered that Anderson, Lebold, England, and Buser are all only sophomores.

Echo Reporter Makes A Quick Review Of The Year

By Bob Coles

Remember way back to the dim past we called the first semester? Way back to the time when all of this got started, when the first nagging Chapel announcement was made to get team rosters in? The first sport of all was touch football, and a banner year it was, although the number of teams foretold trouble in the future.

The powerful YMCA team took the honors in the opening sport, although they failed to field a real contender in anything else. Behind the likes of such as Sonny Short, Al Springfield, Chuck Holsinger, and about fifteen others, the Y beat a surprising Pre-Min team in a playoff game.

Another Country Heard From

On to soccer, and the skillful line of United Nations, who imported a group of foreign trained stars to win the soccer championship, sparked by men such as Bren Olsen, In Sun Kim, and others who showed the poor Maryville trained athletes how it was to be done.

One Big Question

The Basketball season was long and arduous, but the durable Question Marks managed to hang on to take the regular season crown behind the playing of Gardner, Short, Hyatt, Glad, Upton, and others, but it was somewhat of a question what happened in the tournament when two completely unseeded teams, the Hamburg Squad, behind Jerry King and Bobby Berrong, and Harry Newberry, met the Clubfeet behind nobody special, in the finals where the Clubfeet took a very close game in the closing minutes, to finish out a good season for nearly everybody.

No Question Here

When the scene shifted to volleyball, the AAS were completely unstoppable, failing to lose so much as a single frame, either in the regular season or in the tournament. The reason behind their success lies in about ten top-notch players centered around Ace Al, the May Thing.

What Happened

In the softball season just ended the championship goes to the Ring Noses by virtue of their undefeated record and their 9-2 victory over the Hoboes on Monday afternoon in a game that took many by surprise, including players on both teams who knew nothing of the game until it was over.

It is a mystery what happened to the league as a whole, as game after game was called off for some reason or another until no one showed up for the games that were scheduled thinking they must have been called off for some reason.

And Others

Not to be forgotten either are the other Intramural events, the swimming meet, the track meet, and the wrestling tournament all of which weree successfully handled. Also to be handed bouquets are the umpires and referees who gave their time to a good year.

Intramural Medalmen

With all the shouting and hollering done for, seven Intramural Athletes had achieved the high goal of 500 points for various participations and are to receive Intramural medals for these efforts. They are,

Al Springfield
Ralph Thiessie
Branin Boyd
Horace Beckwith
Bob Coles
Jim Demer
Herb White

Also receiving medals were Intramural Officials Neale Pearson, Max Sockwell, and Bob Navratil, incoming Intramural manager who is asking that all men with gripes they want taken care of and suggestions for the coming year to see him.

Johnson Releases Bunion-Burning Schedule; Scots To Run Bryan, Sewannee, And Georgia Tech

Six meets are already set for this fall for Maryville cross country men as Coach Ken Johnson released his first draft of the final 1952 hill 'n dale schedule. Meets are scheduled with William Jennings Bryan (with whom MC split one point wins last fall) Sewannee (from whom MC took two rousing wins) and Georgia Tech whom the Scots tied in a wind-swept meet around the Atlanta water works. The Bryanites have also scheduled an Invitational Meet to which the Scots have been invited which should be one of the top events for the bunion burners this fall.

Slated to return and form the nucleus of another fair-to-middlin' team are Dick Kerr, captain, Dave Helwig, Rod McMillan, three year vets, Jack Maxwell, Al McCulloch, Wayne Brooks, either vets and Freshman prospects Bob Toney and A. C. McWilliams.

Gone from last year's squad

Oct.	4—W. J. Bryan	(there)
Oct.	11—Open
Oct.	18—W. J. Bryan	(Here)
Oct.	25—Sewanee	(There)
Nov.	1—Georgia Tech	(Here)
Nov.	8—Bryan Invitation	(Dayton)
Nov.	15—Sewannee	(Here)

Hiwassee Tigers First Opponents For 1952 Highlander Football Team

Eight games are the nucleus of the 1952 football schedule as released by Coach Lombe Honaker this past week and are a cshedule whose actuality will depend on the number of men who turn out this coming fall for football.

There are only some twenty returning vets from last year's 0-8 squad and unless there is a great deal of interest among freshman and transfer students, the outlook for the coming year will of necessity be dismaller than ever.

The Schedule

Sept.	20—Hiwassee
Sept.	27—Jacksonville St.	(here)
Oct.	4—Centre	(there)
Oct.	11—East Tenn. St.	(there)
Oct.	18—Emory & Henry	(there)
Oct.	25—Carson-Newman	(there)
Nov.	1—Georgetown	(here)
	(Homecoming)
Nov.	8—Carson-Newman	(here)

Leading the 1952 edition of the Scot-Pigskin toters will be Homer Garren, captain-elect, and Paul Merwin, co-captain elect.

TENNIS . . .

Ph.D.'s Can Coach

Dr. J. T. Buchanan, one of the many Ph.D.'s who were to coach MC opposition during the year, brought his University of Tennessee netmen over in the opening match of the year and the Vols won, 9-0, before a goodly crowd. Not one match was close.

However, things took a bright change for the better some three days later and Tennessee Wesleyan's Bulldogs fell by a 7-0 count to the Orange and Garnet-men. McCampbell, Buser, Anderson, Breitbach, and England won in singles while McCampbell-Buser and England-Lebold took doubles match over Dean John Coe's pack.

Milligan And LMU

Miligan's Buffaloes, coached by a woman, Miss Mary Mynatt, also went down by a likewise 7-0 calcimation on their own courts Captain John Anderson teaming up with newcomer Ed Breitbach to win the second doubles match. The same MC single men won as had happened against TWJC.

LMU fell by the now becoming joyful score too with Dick Lebold and Marshall England going in the second doubles duo this time in a match held on the Memorial courts. Every one else was the same and a winner for MC.

Two days after this, Carson-Newman's foul gang of Eagles really upset the works and dumped an MC crew on their home grounds by a 5-4 count as Buser, Breitbach, Lebold, McCampbell-Buser, and Anderson-Breitbach went down to defeat. Many times, MC men could have won but a noticeable lack of drive showed up and CN was not to be denied.

Get Mad!

Though they might have turned a bit red now from both the sunshine and their defeat, their tries to get back on the victory trial were in vain as Florida's Gators invade MC and went back home with a 9-0 victory. Only MC men to win sets were McCampbell and Lebold who took their second and first sets, respectively but were beaten in their two succeeding.

TPI then lost a match with the Scots by the usual 7-0 score as doubles pairs were re-arranged and then maintained the nex tweek also for a self-same-score win over East Tennessee State.

Sewannee Song

Dr. John Bruton then brought a Sewannee Tiger crew to Maryville and the Purple and White commenced to dispense with MC by taking four wins in singles matches and then three in doubles for a 7-2 win as only McCampbell and Lebold won matches.

The State Intercollegiate meet was next but before entering this MC played Chattanooga's Moccasins and triumphed over Manker Patten's team, 6-1. Only MC man to lose was Marshall England to Bryce Thompson—everyone else won.

Following the State Meet in which the Scots finished third behind Sewannee, the Scots dumped CN and East Tennessee State.

McCampbell's record as an MC tennis player is a highly-high one as the Knoxville-slasher having won twenty-two singles matches while at MC while dropping only five. McCampbell is not graduating but is a first semester senior and by virtue of his graduating at Christmas time next fall, he will be unable to fill the ranks of MC tennis teams.

should have three. There'll be times when you have three pages and can't even fillone—yourfavorite teams will lose ten in a row and you won't have anything to write a column on—you'll want heads made up and set and you won't get them and you'll want cuts and find out you haven't got the money to buy them.

All in all, you'll want many things and many things you won't get—the public will want many things and often times it won't get it. You can make the job an easy one and just cover varsity games and say that so and so did such and such and let it go. You can let Intramurals go to pot though perhaps they may have an even greater value than varsity athletics—you can ignore the sports the girls are in because they don't read the things you don't say about them in your section though it is often surprising what one will find there.

Yes, you can make it easy and get by with good grades, lots of sleep, a lot of energy, and a lot of friends or you can lose a lot of sleep, a lot of enery, and a lot of friends and you might turn out a half-way decent sports page. And it is surprising how many chose the later and later find out and know that they would do it over again if they had to because a few people have appreciated it.

Fame is fleeting and fame is short,
And often times you haven't a friend in court.
But as the old cliche has said time and time again
When the one great scorer sees your name,
"It's not whether you won or lost but how you played the game."

DIAMOND PLAY FLUCTUATES . . .

Van Benthuysen to third in the ninth. Van Benthuysen then scored on Bob Shelton's sacrifice squeeze play.

Another Buffalo Falls

Milligan again fell to the big bats of the Scotties, this time being on the short end of a 13-3 count. Bob Shelton paced the Scots at the plate with four singles.

The Eagles of Carson-Newman found their feathers clipped when they left Maryville after a 10-6 slugfest. Lynn Sexton lead the Scot's sixteen hit attack with four singles and a walk. Wiley knocked out a double and two singles and Phil Young added three singles to the Scot attack. Sunny Short and Jim Harrison did the mound duties and held the visitors to nine base hits.

East Tennessee State decided that it was time something was done about the Scotties' five game winning streak and immediately did it, 7-4. Parks went all the way giving up ten base hits. State pitcher Stout allowed only five hits, one, however, was a sixth inning homer by Parks, his second of the year.

In the thriller of the year the Scotties and the King College Tornadoes hooked up in a fourteen inning marathon. The Tornadoes tied up the score at eleven all with three runs in the last of the ninth. In the top of the fourteenth the Scots broke lose for four runs to sew u pthe ball game, 15-11. Jimmy Campbell hit a two run homer in the second, as did Wayne Robinson for King in their big seventh.

The Final Game

The Carson-Newman Eagles ended the Scotties' season on a sour note with a 9-5 victory. Left fielder Tarvin collected the only extra base blow of the game as he hit a four-master with none on to lead off the third. Short started on the mound for the Scots, but was relieved by Parks in the seventh who set the Eagles down in order the rest of the way.

Choir Members Visit, Play During Tour

By Lora Kinsinger

The touring section of the Vesper Choir had many interesting experiences this spring— from sleeping on church pews to shopping in Marshall-Field's to robing on the bus for a rush program.

The fun began at the Hermitage in Nashville, where history students gathered facts about Andrew Jackson. From the Hermitage the group rode to the Parthanon, the only exact reproduction of the original in the world, and then toured the campuses of Vanderbilt and Peabody.

On the way to Eldorado the next day the choir crossed the Ohio river on a ferry complete with paddle wheel. Saturday at Champaign, Ill., they spent an hour on the campus of the University of Illinois, before going on to Chanute Air Field. Waitresses felt at home in Chanute, because of individual dishwashing regulations.

Sunday at Oak Park the choir was welcomed by Dr. Luther Stein and Bob Lynn's parents. The next morning in Chicago several choristers visited Fourth Presbyterian Church, McCormick Seminary, and Moody Bible Institute, before everyone met for lunch in the Veranda Room of Marshall Field and Company. Curtis Hughes and Thelma Nelson were with the group occasionally in the Chicago area.

On the way to Hal Lloyd's church in Rockford, thirteen miles from Wisconsin, the choir rode through the Evanston campus of Northwestern and spent a pleasant hour at the home of Glen Lloyd in Libertyville.

At Bloomington there was a well organized welcome from Susie Martin's family and friends. Later at Scott Air Base the choir sang for the Korean evacuees, the orthopedic ward and the dependents' ward of the base hospital, and spent the night in officers' homes.

Upon their arrival at Pana, Ill., they were taken to visit the nation's largest rose greenhouse—20 acres under glass. Here Director Harter discovered that he was missing his tails.

After lunch in Vincennes, Ind., on Saturday they spent an hour at the George Rogers Clark Memorial, studying history and enjoying the beauty of the Wabash River. Evansville and Bowling Green performances flew by, and soon the natives were singing "Hills of Home," as the bus wound its way to Cookeville.

NCJW Announces Essay Contest

Class of '53 students have an opportunity to compete next fall for $5,000 in cash prizes in a nationwide essay contest on academic freedom sponsored by the National Council of Jewish Women.

Any next-year senior is eligible. The essays, of 2,500 words maximum, are to be on the subject "The Meaning of Academic Freedom." First prize will be $2,500.

Heading the committee of judges will be Supreme Court Justice William O. Douglas. Other members will be Ralph Bunche, Thurman Arnold, Mrs. Duglas Horton, and Abram L. Sachar.

The contest will be open for receipt of entries September 15, and will close December 31, 1952. Detailed rules and instructions will be made available at the beginning of the fall semester.

The purpose of the National Council of Jewish Women in conducting the contest, as explained by Mrs. Irving M. Engel, national president, is "to encourage thoughtful exploration and forthright expression on the subject of academic freedom among the students themselves."

Societies Bid Welcome During Rush Activities

Bainonian Formal Next Saturday

By Kathy Chase

Opening traditional welcome festivities of Maryville's four men's and women's societies, Bainonian and Athenian will present "Life on the Merryville Midway."

A sneak prevue of the activities for new students will be given Thursday, September 11, the opening day of rush week at the 8 p.m. party in the woods, under the direction of Abby Crosby, Jeannine Fiori, and Charlie LaRue.

All Star Cast Is Ready

Saturday night at 8 will find "The Big Top Blues" in the Alumni Gym featuring Jim Darroch, Sheila Sutton, George Caldwell. Carolyn Beatty, Hank Van Hassel, Charlie Schroeder, and many more. It is written and directed by Bruce Heuser.

Co-chairman of rush week are Millie Mowery and Jo Bash for Bainonian and Jim Hunt and Bruce Heuser for Athenian.

They Publicize And Welcome

Publicity is under the direction of Shirley Postlethwaite, Ethel Shockley, and Jack Barber.

Bainonian and Athenian presidents, LaDonna Baylor and Dick Kerr, both joined in welcoming students to Maryville and hope all will join in the coming week's festivities and those of Theta Epsilon and Alpha Sigma the following week.

All students are urged by the President's ofice to attend the faculty reception, which will be held in the library, September 8 at 8 p.m.

The line, consisting of the entire faculty and wives, will be headed by the presidents of YM, YW, and Student Council. Light refreshments will be served immediately afterwards.

Staff Positions Are Open

A number of editorial and business positions on this year's Highland Echo are open, according to Echo Editor Van Holland and Business Manager Dick Dart.

"Openings on the editorial staff are restricted to the freshman class," Holland pointed out. "An announcement will be made next week in chapel concerning the time and place of the try out."

Positions on the business staff are open to all classes and interested students should see Dick Dart.

A full year's subscription to the Highland Echo is only ($1) one dollar. Either Holland or Dart will accept any subscription.

First Week Finds Varied Activities

Maryville's 134th academic year opened Monday, September 1, 1952. Not only freshmen, but upper classmen poured onto the campus from noon on Monday until late Thursday afternoon. Tests for the frosh began Tuesday afternoon following explanations and announcements in the FAC.

Tuesday night, while the upper classmen enjoyed an evening in town, the freshmen were counselled. The first meals served were for the freshmen with lunch on Tuesday.

And Those Lines

Registration began Wednesday morning and continued until Thursday evening. Of course, there were the usual lines with the usual complaints about them. Wednesday evening was the annual "Community Sing" in front of Thaw, after which the Student Center threw open its doors for the first time this semester.

Thursday night found all the students gathered on the baseball field for supper and the Student Mixer program.

Classes Begin

And yesterday classes began. If you new students think this has been a busy week, just wait a little while. You'll find the old adage of "No rest for the weary" can really apply here at Maryville from now until Christmas vacation —just 114 days from now!

Watanabe Makes Study of MC

Mr. Makimichi Watanabe of Tokyo, Japan, arrived at Maryville College September 3 to make a study of registration and to observe the general work of the school.

Mr. Watanabe has been a member of the Meiei Gakiun school faculty in Tokyo, the oldest and largest Presbyterian school in Japan. It is the school of which last year's visitor, Tamisaburo Sugimoto, is dean.

Coming to this country in 1950, Mr. Watanabe entered graduate study at Princeton University. He has traveled through parts of the U.S. and is planning to continue his study-travel this fall before sailing back to Japan.

For two months this summer Mr. Watanabe was in Porto Rico at an ecumenical work camp. He came to this campus from the Crestview Camp in Pittsburgh, and after leaving Maryville, he will go to Park College, Parkville, Missouri.

College Faculty Study, Teach, Travel, Work

By Gail Brown

Lincoln Barker, professor of psychology and education, taught this summer at Furman University, Greenville, S. C.; and D. H. Briggs, professor of psychology and education, taught at Appalachian State College, Boone, N.C.

Dr. Ralph T. Case, professor of sociology, traveled in Minnesota. In drama and art production, Kathleen Craven, assistant professor of drama and speech, was located by the Camden Hills Theater, Maine. Katherine C. Davies, professor of music, traveled to New England.

Continuing graduate study, W. H. Ford, associate professor of economics, was at George Peabody College for Teachers; Ruth Grierson, librarian, went to New York for the American Library Association meeting, followed by vacation. Evelyn G. Guss, instructor in Greek and Latin, and Ingeborg M. Rodemann, instructor in German and education, traveled in Europe. Miss Guss also had a scholarship to the American School of Classical Studies in Athens.

They Do More Studying And Traveling

Clemmie J. Henry, special assistant to the President, and Elizabeth H. Jackson, assistant professor of English, vacationed on the Gaspe Peninsula, Quebec; Nancy B. Hunter, secretary to the President, and Viola Lightfoot, Dean of Students' Office, traveled to the Pacific Coast and Canadian Rockies. Harry H. Harter, assistant professor of music, did graduate study at Union Theological Seminary, New York. Dorothy D. Horne, associate professor of music, Dorothy Vawter, instructor in music. Off To Europe

Mary Gladys Pieper, instructor in sociology, and Arda S. Walker, assistant professor of economics, took their European travels through France, Italy, Greece, Switzerland, Germany and England. Dr. Verton M. Queener and Mrs. Queener found the Democratic National Convention exciting and interesting.

J. H. Schwam, assistant professor of Spanish, studied at Columbia University. Edrie Sellick, instructor in music, was Director of Music at the Summer Theater in Ocean City, N. J.

Mrs. Conrad Eaddy, instructor in music, and husband were with Miss Sellick, as accompanist and singer. Augustus Sisk, professor of mathematics and physics, traveled to Oregon and Washington.

Katherine Crews, instructor in music, and Edith Largen, instructor in physical education, worked during the summer in the Personnel Office.

Baylor Calls Meeting

Bainonian Society will have a short meeting on Saturday, September 6, at 6:45 p.m. in Bainonian Hall.

Presidnt Ladonna Baylor urges all old members to attend.

Dr. Lloyd Opens College Year With 'What Seek Ye?'

By Pat Ingles

The Annual Convocation of Maryville College was held Friday morning, September 5, in the Alumni Gymnasium. Pres. Ralph W. Lloyd gave the Convocation address.

Dean Frank D. McClelland led the opening exercises and was followed by Dean Edwin R. Hunter, who read the Scripture lesson. The Vesper choir sang one anthem and a prayer response.

The subject of Pres. Lloyd's address was "What Seek Ye?", and it was concentrated on answering that question which is of large importance at college—where one is likely to find what he is really searching for. President Lloyd stressed four main points in his address, which are:

I. Are you seeking a college education or just a college degree?

It is possible to accumulate enough credits for a college degree, but fail to get a college education. The main thing is the education, not the degree or the prestige of higher earning power that you get.

II. Are you seeeking Christian culture or just vocational training?

Both are essential, but the modern demands of industry and war throw excessive emphasis on technical and professional training at the expense of Christian culture. The basic need of life is the Christian interpretation of character and service which make up Christian culture. You will find intelligent, Christian culture as the central value at Maryville College.

III. Are you seeking real friends, or just self-interest?

Maryville offers a life opportunity for making friends. This can be missed through self-centered conduct, promoting yourself, or by using others for self promotion. You should seek friends among the faculty as well.

IV. Are you seeking serious business at college or a comfortable time?

College courses are serious business. You spend 1/20 of your life at college if you live to be 80. College offers many possibilities for abundant living in the years ahead, if it is taken as serious business.

The Benediction concluded the Convocation service.

First Town Night Will Be Tuesday, Council To Meet

The first town night for old students will be Tuesday, September 9, Student Body President Sally Brown announced. All town night rules and procedures will be in effect.

All new students, she said, are to report to the Alumni Gym at 7:15 p.m. for Freshman Night, when town night procedures and regulations will be explained. Square dancing will follow at 7:45. All old students are also invited to the square dance.

The first meeting of Student Council is scheduled for Wednesday, September 10, at 8:30 p.m. in the Student Center. Miss Brown stated that committees would be announced and delegates to Student Faculty Senate elected.

Elwood, Dartnell Launch Yearbook

Payments for this year's Chilhowean can now be made at any time, it was announced this week by the Business Manager, Bill Dartnell.

Editor Walt Elwood also commented, "Work on the yearbook is progressing satisfactorily, and we hope to publish one of the bst yet, However, the sooner the students make their payments, the sooner we will be able to publish it."

Five New Members Named To College Staff Of '52

Kiger Retires, Cooper On Leave

By Lora Kinsinger

Additions to the faculty and staff include two new teachers, one housemother, one assistant in the Personnel Office, and one assistant in the library, as announced by President Lloyd this week.

Richard E. Beard, of Kenosha, Wisconsin, has been appointed instructor in art. He holds the Bachelor's and Master's degrees from the University of Wisconsin, where he did special work in applied art and art history.

Mr. Beard is being married today at Evanston, Ill., to Dorathea Karow, and they will return to Maryville at the first of the week. Mrs. Beard and Mrs. W. L. Patterson of Maryville, formerly head of the art department here, will teach art part time.

Mrs. Beard received her Bachelor's degree at Wellesley College and her Master's degree at the University of Wisconsin. Mrs. Patterson is a graduate of Iowa Wesleyan College and the Museum School of Fine Arts in Boston.

Other New Staff Members

Mrs. G. L. Robinson, last year assistant, has been appointed head of Baldwin Hall to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of Mrs. Anna Currie.

Mrs. Doak Moore of Knoxville has been appointed assistant to the head of Baldwin Hall. Mrs. Moore has been on the personnel staff of the University of Tennessee for the past three years.

Eleanor Tom of Hawaii has been appointed assistant in the library to fill the vacancy caused by the transfer of Miss Miles to be Student-Help Secretary.

Miss Tom came to the United States several years ago to attend Tusculum College, where she graduated, and then to attend the School of Library Science at George Peabody College for Teachers in Nashville, where she received her Master's degree this summer.

Alice Wilhoit Morton of Maryville has been appointed assistant in the Personnel Office. Mrs. Morton is a former student at MC.

Returning Faculty

Edrie Sellick, who was on the music faculty second semester last year has returned to teach voice and direct the glee clubs.

Curtis Hughes, assistant professor of music, who has returned from sabbatical leave, will have charge this year of all radio programs, President Lloyd has announced. Mr. Hughes, who received his Master of Music degree at Northwestern University this summer, will teach organ and such other music as his program will allow, and direct the band and orchestra.

Arthur Bushing, assistant professor of English, who was on leave of absence to do graduate study last year, will continue his study this year, but will give part time to the handling of the special studies program in the place of Maurine Owen.

Archibald Pieper, associate professor of political science, will have charge of the forensics program this year, assisted by Arda Walker, assistant professor of economics, and Mrs. Pieper, instructor in sociology. Mr. Short, who supervised this program last year, has not returned.

Not Returning

Paul Cooper, assistant professor of French, as been granted leave of absence to teach at the University of Tennessee.

As was announced at the 1952 Commencement, John Herbert Kiger, assistant professor of history, has retired from active teaching. He is a 1919 graduate of MC and has been a member of the faculty for the past twenty-eight and one half years.

IRC Meets September 15, Will Sell Magazines

International Relations Club will hold its first meeting September 15 at 6:45 p.m. The place of meeting will be announced later.

Results of elections held last semester for the officers this semester are Van Holland, president; Evelyn Fields, secretary, and Charlie LaRue, treasurer. As of yet, the club has no faculty advisor.

Subscriptions to current national magazines are again available to students through IRC. Magazines of Time, Inc. are offered at student rates. Treasurer Charlie LaRue is in charge of the sales.

YMCA Schedules Pow-Wow Tonight

The annual YM Watermelon Pow-Wow will be held at the golf course on Saturday at 8 o'clock.

The Big-Little brother party which is under the leadership of Jim Campbell will include group singing led by Jake Peppers, entertainment; introductions of Coach Lombe Honaker, Dean Edwin R. Hunter, and the football captains. The watermelon pow-wow will follow.

YM big brothers will bring their little brothers, and any other boys are urged to attend.

Wedding Bells Ring For MC'ers During Summer Vacation Months

Cupid enjoyed happy hunting days when he aimed his bow and arrow at Maryville College couples this past summer.

Among his victims were Doris Cook, former Director of Religious Education at the First Presbyterian Church of Maryville, and Dave Reed, MC '52, who were married August 21 at Asquith Presbyterian Church in Baltimore, Md.

Rev. Cameron B. Reed, father of Dave, and the Rev. Edward G. Conrad performed the double ring ceremony. After honeymooning in the North, the couple went to New Haven, Conn., where Dave will enter Yale Divinity School, and where Doris will work.

Among those who attended the wedding were Van Holland, MC '53, who ushered; Bill Vogel, MC '49; Lincoln Shimomura, MC '51, and Henry Heaps, MC '51. Local Maryville citizens M. A. Whitehead, Juanita Fortner, Alice Blackburn, and Mrs. Joe Beals, Jr. also attended.

Cooper-Grey

Virginia Cooper, ex-MC '53, and Donald Grey, MC '52, were married August 2 in Baltimore, Md.

After touring the east coast, they went to their new residence in Edwardsville, Ill. Don is employed as a psychiatric social worker at a nearby state hospital, and Virginia will teach at a local elementary school.

Van Holland, MC '53, who ushered; Virginia Smith, MC '54; and Barbara Miller, MC '53, were among those who attended the wedding.

Whiting-Poling

Janet Whiting, MC '52, and Delbert Poling, MC '51, were tied in the holy bonds of matrimony June 14 in the Ogden Memorial Church in Chatham, N. J.

After honeymooning in Shipbottom, N. J., the couple came to East Tennessee where Delbert was pastor of Washington Pike Presbyterian Church (Isaac Anderson's first church) for the summer.

Delbert is now in his second year at Western Theological Seminary. Janet will teach elementary school in Pittsburgh, Pa.

Branin Boyd, MC '52; Jessie Dye, MC '52; George Ogle, MC '51, and Beverly Jacobi Kincaid, MC '52, attended the wedding.

Kemp-Ferrar

Sally Kemp, MC '51, was married to Ralph Farrar in Marietta, Ga., on August 30. They honeymooned in West Virginia and then returned to Marietta. Both are employed at the Lookheed Aircraft Corporation.

Mary Alice Kemp, MC '55, maid of honor; Jean Davis, MC, '52; Ruby Jean Harris, MC '51, Cora Anthony, MC '52; Barbara Blum Mabry, MC '52, and Ann Kirkpatrick, MC '53, attended the wedding.

Points-Rose

Peggy Points, ex-MC '54, and Ray Rose, senior political science major from Trevose, Pa., were married in Dry Ridge, Ky., August 23.

Peggy plans to work in Maryville; Ray will continue his education at Maryville.

Barbara Scott, MC '53; Chuck and Nancy Holsinger, and Jerry Points were among those who attended the wedding.

And More Weddings

Jean Ellis and Tasker Robinette were married in Chatham, N.J., this summer. Jean is a senior sociology maor from Chatham, N. J., and Tasker is a senior from Berea, Ohio.

Ellen Turner, and Bob Burgreen also were married this summer. Ellen is a junior language major from Wilmington, Del., and Bob is a pre-ministerial student from Eustis, Fla.

The Year Begins

Perhaps the most exciting and enjoyable time of college is the first week when we meet new and old friends on the campus and when the freshman class is welcomed. But now that classes have begun and the routine of college life has started, it is time that we begin to consider seriously the importance of the coming year.

Let us not forget that college is an institution with serious traditions and serious purposes. It represents an organized opportunity to learn, and we assume that young men and women attend college to learn.

Most of us will emphasize one of the three following phases of college life: social, extra-curricular, and classwork. However, in order to learn the most, these three phases should be wisely balanced, and we hope that most students will attempt to do this.

Before long, many of us will no longer be protected by the guiding arms of Maryville College. Therefore, this year should be our year for decision and action. As we embrace those ideas that will guide our future actions, let us do it with serious and high intent.

Echo Prologue

Any newspaper, whether a professional or amateur one, should be dedicated the highest principles of good journalism. And the primary goal of all good newspapers is to present the news in an unbiased and objective manner. Although we of the Echo Staff may make some mistakes, our sights shall always be set on this first goal.

Editorials, we believe, should be written to stimulate, and somtimes reflect, student thinking on those vital topics that affect the students. Therefore, in our editroials we shall freely comment on local, national, and world events that rate the attention of the student body. Criticism shall never be presented editorially, unless it is of the constructive type.

Some features and most columns naturally are opinionated, and the success of this kind of writnig, depends mainly on the ability of the writer. We will attempt to write in a lively, interesting, and sometimes amusing manner, if not, we have failed you.

We do like to emphasize that this newspaper is the students' newspaper. It is written by and for the students. It is a living organism with a personality of its own that is serving you.

Cakes & Ale

By Carol Moore

Hello! Hi. and Hey, ya' all! We're back again to Echo assignments and themes and Echo assignments and experiments and Echo assignments and Special Studies and Echo assignments and Comps and Ec. . . (yep, I know I used the same line last year, but Holland told me I could do anything to take up space!) So here I am in my miserly furnished cell propped up on my prisoner's cot by my strong imagination pecking out the first Cakes and Ale of the year. (This is so sentimental I'm getting all choked up!)

The campus is terrific when it's so green, likewise the freshmen. No matter what way you look at it. . . To be back—it's great! (We'll do anything for originality's sake!)

* * * * *

I skipped over the subject of freshmen, or should I say freshwomen (Are they? much too fastly.) If I can slow down my nimble fingers I'll attempt to dwell upon the beautiful subjects a bit longer. Perhaps I've said enough. I have? On to something else.

* * * * *

Hold everything kids! Somebody just handed me a copy of the little booklet, "Social Don't and Do's for Your First Date at Maryville", thought up and written by the gnarled hand of Bettinski Hammervich, our Social Board chairman.

Boy-comrades:

1. Never say, "Are you busy tonight?" when seeking a date. Merely tell the dame as pleasantly as you can that you will slit her throat if she does not accompany you to the pool hall this evening. Immediate results are guaranteed.
2. Never wear a soiled white shirt or wrinkled tie. Just don't wear them. Workers for the cause must realize that overalls are the tuxedoes of the laborers. Besides blue goes with almost anything.
3. Never precede your date through a door. It's easier if she goes first since she'll be opening it anyway.
5. Never appear bored on your date. If you are, say so. Hero medals are won by honest people.
6. Upon arriving back at the dorms, grasp your date's hand quickly, but firmly, allowing no time for any emotions to be aroused. If you have no emotions let her walk back from town alone.

* * * * *

Girl-comrades:

1. Never accept dates with men weighing less than 200 pounds. If you wrestle it is only fair that you are evenly matched.
2. Be conservative with dress and make-up. Bite your lips a few times after zipping up your burlap sack dress. You'll look as good as the women in the grain fields and even better than the scrounges in in the salt mines.
3. If you would like to see the show at the Capitol and your date prefers the Park . . .don't argue. You go to the Capitol and let him go to the Park.
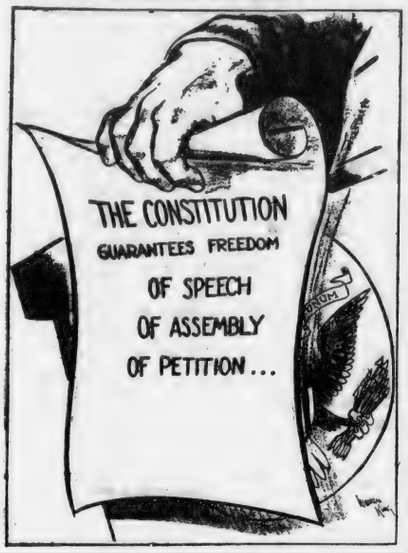
4. Never insist that your date take you out to eat after the show. Pack a lunch before leaving the dorm.
5. If you look good in a sweater don't wear one. Your date's first thought is of his country.
6. Never be aggressive on your first date. After three monhts of steady company you may wear a belt on your burlap sack dress.
7. If you do not wish to shake hands on your first date, bite him when he comes near you. He's bound to get the idea.



* * * * *

Believe that, my children,
And you will see
What a mess
This world can be.

* * * * *

And that brings her to a close. See you next week when my mind is cleared up.

UPHOLDING OUR RIGHTS

Voices, Masks, and Shadows

By Joe Gilliland

NEW BOOKS

The volumes on the library's new book table all appear to have some subject that would appeal to nearly everyone.

Only two new books of fiction are displayed. The music department appears to have been instrumental in the book purchases during the summer. There are four books concerning music in one way or another.

One book which is listed in the classification system as music, but seeming to us more like physics, is "A Fugue In Cycles and Bels" by John Mills. The inside covers contain such gems of wisdom as "Did you know that all the critics at a performance don't hear the same music?" Another startling bit of information says, "how you hear the notes of a violin greatly depends upon where you sit in the auditorium."

And More Music Books

About the biggest in the group of music books is "The Schubert Readr" written by Otto Erich Deutsch and translated by Eric Blom. This English translation is the version of the original, "Franz Schubert: Die Dokumente Seines Lebens."

The book consists of the letters and papers of Schubert with a "running commentary" by the author. With all the appendices, it has 978 pages.

Another technical music book on the table is "Counterpoint" by Walter Piston.

Rounding out the musical collection is "A Dictionary of Vocal Themes" edited by Barlow and Morgenstern.

Merrill Moore's 'M'

The prize for the book with the shortest title undoubtedly goes to "M", a book of autobiographical sonnets by Merrill Moore. We are supposing that the title represents the Roman numeral since there are 1000 sonnets in the book. The book itself incidentally, is a first edition autographed by the author.

Books Of Other Departments

A small but valuable addition, so far as pre-ministerial and other Greek students are concerned, is a new Greek-English dictionary. It might be well for the library to "pick up" a few more of these for the convenience of those who don't seem to get along so well in that subject.

The psychology department has thought of its students and followers. Two books, "Case Histories in Clinical and Abnormal Psychology" and "Handbook of Experimental Psychology" are found with other new books.

The "Case Histories" is edited by Arthur Burton and Robert E. Harris. The handbook is edited by S. S. Stevens. The handbook is one of the "monsters", having a total of 1362 pages.

Chambers Authors Book

Worthy of mention at least before the end of this column(?) is "Witness" by Whittaker Chambers. This is the story that was serialized in the Saturday Evening Post some time ago. It tells of Chambers' activities before and leading up to the conviction of Alger Hiss.

It has been the subject of much discussion and much controversy. The book furnishes the interested person an opportunity to get the entire side of Chambers' story.

Two fiction books on the table are "The Demon's Mirror" by James S. Wallerstein, and "My Cousin Rachel" by Daphne Du Maurier, the author of "Rebecca" and "The King's General".

In the sociology department we have "Bureaucracy in a Democracy," by Charles S. Hyneman, and "The Rise of Modern Communism," by Massimo Salvadori. The former is dedicated to Charles R. Denny, "whose leadership as Chairman of the Federal Communications Commission was the outstanding administrative achievement I observed during five years in federal service."

Money From The Faculty

The faculty play given in the fall of 1951 brought some additional funds to the library. Two books on the table show where some of the money has gone. "Conscience on Stage," by Harold Ehrensperger, and "Ants," by Julian Hadley, have information on the inside front covers that they were presented by the Maryville College faculty with proceeds from "Arsenic and Old Lace".

"Conscience on the Stage" is one of the new drama books. Another is a British publication, "Masks Mimes and Miracles" by Allardyce Nicoll. This latter publication is a type of history of drama types.

Look At The Great Books

For the benefit of freshmen and other new students we might call attention to the Great Books of the Western World that are on display in the library right behind the new book table.

These books were presented to Maryville College last spring by Glen Lloyd of Chicago brother of President Lloyd. The set is a Founders Set, one of the first 500 to be released, and is autographed by the author, Robert M. Hutchins.

An extra dictionary has been added in the periodical alcove. A Funk and Wagnalls edition will aid the old faithful Webster.

CAPITOL CAPERS

"The Story of Will Rogers" is the movie at the Capitol for Town Nighters next week. Bookings at the movie house across the street are indefinite, so we can't let you know about the features there. But "Will Rogers" will run Monday, Tuesday, and Wednesday at the Capitol.

In the title role of the Will Rogers film is Will Rogers, Jr., who at least loks like his father. The story is narrated by Rogers' wife, played by Jane Wyman. It picks up in the little town in Oklahoma where Will was born. He has just come home after being away in Texas for two years, returning on money which his father had sent to him. He has an unusual first meeting with his future wife in the railroad station.

From the dialogue, we get the impression that Will is not at all pleasing his father with his "jaunts". His father, a Senator, tries to get him to settle down, but soon Will is off again.

He gets into show business by traveling with a Wild West show. The movie brings out his accidental start as a comedian and his success and leadership.

AT THE FINE ARTS CENTER

Now that we've been down to see the movie, we'll return to our own Fine Arts Center. The bulletin board features a newspaper clipping telling about the musical activities of Miss Edrie Sellick, and Mr. and Mrs. Conrad Eaddy at the Gateway Musical Playhouse at Sonnes Point, N.J. this summer.

The review of the playhouse production of "Brigadoon" gave a lot of credit to Miss Sellick, who was musical director and had the part of Fiona MacLaren. Conrad Eaddy also won applause from the critic for his performance in the role of Charlie Dalrymple. Mrs. Eaddy was the pianist in the orchestra.

The FAC Record Library's hours are 3:30 p.m. to 4:30 p.m. daily; 1:30 p.m. to 230 p.m. on Saturday; and 6:30 to 7:30 in the evenings.

Sports Echoes

By Bob Coles

THE OLD ORDER CHANGETH

So a new year begins, and with it, for the first time in several years, comes a new sports editor, or rather editors, to the Highland Echo. These editors and their staff pay here and now their highest respects to our old chief, Neale Pearson, who did his best always, both for this page and for ust about everything else that needed help around the campus. Neale was always busy, always running somewhere, always in a hurry, but he always had good grades, and he was never in too much of a hurry to help out, or be a good friend to anyone who needed a friend. Our hats off to Neale Pearson, and our thanks to him for his work, his friendship, and all he taught us about printing a sports page.

But this is a new year, a new staff, and new sports news. We hope our treatment and presentation of it is in the right Maryville tradition. We will try to cover all the sports news, and try to make it interesting. Towards this end, any suggestions anyone, and may we repeat that, anyone, faculty or student of any class, has to make that would help this page to be better will be gratfully received and carefully studied, and used if possible. And anyone, boy or girl, who would like to write sports, or help keep records, or like to help figure statistics is more than welcome. The more, the merrier.

Fall Sports

There will be more of this news elsewhere on this page, but this year Maryville will try again the win column in intercollegiate football. Last year's team met with an amazing and probably unrepeatable combination of bad luck, bad breaks, bad guesses, and worse luck. We here last year were sure four or five times that the team could win, but it just seemed as if every time we met a team we could fight with speed, it poured until the field was pure mud, and every time we met a team that mud would help cut down to size, it was clear weather. The team and the coaches, many detractors to the contrary, fought with great courage to do what they could. This year, with the breaks our way, and the same willingness to fight that has always graced Maryville teams we may very well win our share, despite the subsidation which goes on in so many of our opponents' schools.

Policy

Every year YMCA awards a Good-Sportsmanship trophy to an Intramural athlete, as a deserving reward for a trying year. This year this paper will initiate a poor-sportsmanship award in this manner. Any Intramural Athlete who displays poor sportsmanship flagrently and consistently will search in vain for his name on this page for his exploits, eeven though he may excel in every sport. Especially in this category will fall bickering with umpires, who, poor as they may be, are trying, and are usually the only ones who will help. Those who challenge his calls should be asked to umpire themselves. Let's have good sportsmanship in Intramurals this year, making them better than other Maryville standards, instead of a sore spot.

An Editor Fills Up Space

We got the spirit, we got the pep,
So here's you're chance to get all hep
To the setup here at Maryville
And the football scene here at the "Hill."

As for the coach, Lombe's his name,
A coach of nearly two hundred year's fame.
He's been here so long but have no hopes,
For no one has ever heard ALL of his jokes.

His helpers are many. First there's J. D.,
As trusted an aide as ever could be.
Of centers and guards he must keep track.
(He sent one man in who never came back.)

A second aide is Honaker's son.
Since he's been here we never have won)
For those who don't know, his first name is Scott,
But what is the truth? Does he help or not?

A fourth we've seen, dressed in lilywhite shorts,
A star of many past Maryville sports,
Who hopes to help with this band of thugs.
His name? Oh, yes, Mr. Charlie Scruggs.

The captain of our fabulous team,
And a scholar and a gentleman it would seem,
A man who leaves the ladies starin'
Introducing—Mr. Homer Garren.

His helper in all of a game's decision
A man who plays with fabulous precision.
(In wrestling too a hard man to pin)
Is dear handsome and lovable Paul Merwin.

The others are many, we can name just a few,
The space we have is limited, too.
But some of our team we surely must mention
Before they get sent to the House of Detention.

We can't pass by without a peek
At that strange man they all call "Deek."
We can't understand, we would like to say,
Why they sing Happy Birthday to him—every day!

Another you'll know before very long,
Is one who though small is still very strong.
Jim Campbell, tough and resiliant in bone,
But no wonder, for his head is made of pure stone.

Of course, not all of our Maryville team
Is as handsome as Frankie to make girls scream.
You saw the picture entitled "The Thing,"
Well, that was none other than our Jerry King.

At tackle we have a hulking brute
Who looks like a monster in a football suit.
But don't let that fool you, for he's really quite tender.
That's sweet and cuddly, handsome Joe Bender.

At fullback there's one who is really a man,
His opponents cringed wherever he ran
But this of course makes no one sad,
In fact, it really makes Harold Glad.

A lineman you'll meet in the thick of the tussle,
What he lacks in size, he makes up in hustle.
Don't mind those rumors, he be seen
In the midst of a game—his name's Bill Breen.

A tall blond man is in there a lot.
(He's seen on campus with Barbara Scott)
Since he plays center, he often gets sat on.
We'd like you to meet smiling Dick Patton.

We wish we could mention every one
In such a manner of poking fun,
But since for both time and space we're stuck,
The best we can offer is "Lot's of Good Luck! ! !"

Scots To Play Eight Game Football Schedule

Cross-Country Runners Meet Bryan, Sewannee

To Arms! To Arms!

Coach Ken Johnson has issued an appeal to all men who can put one foot ahead of another more than seven times in a row to see him about trying out for cross-country. From last year's team only two lettermen, Dick Kerr and Rod McMillan, will be returning to take to the hill and dale for Maryville. Men are desperately needed, not only for this year, but to begin building for next year and the years to come. The sport has had a long and honorable history at this college, much too long and far too honable to see it die from lack of men to run. From last year's team go such runners as Neale Pearson, Ric Rogers, George Day, and Tom Kelly, all men who have been running for several years. The slack will be hard to make up, but it can be if those who can run, or who think they might like to learn are encouraged to come out.

The season opens on October 4th with an away meet with William Jennings Bryan University at Dayton. The rest of the schedule is:

Oct. 4—W. J. Bryan
Oct. 11—Open
Oct. 18—W. J. Bryan here
Oct. 25—Sewanee there
Nov. 1—Georgia Tech here
Nov. 8—Bryan in Invitation Meet Dayton
Nov. 15—Sewanee here

To meet this schedule Coach Johnson has in addition to his two lettermen a number of men who were out last year but who didn't earn letters, including among others Al McCulloch, Wayne Brooks, Bob Toney, and A. C. McWilliams, plus anyone who may come out.

Spring Sports In Review

Tennis

With spring in the air and the sport scene taking a back seat—for the time being, that is—we thought it would be wise to bring everybody up to date on the successful adventures of our tennis and baseball teams last spring.

Coach Ken Johnson's lads, dropping three games while winning nine, finished strong and left bright rays of hope for the future. MC netmen dropped two of their three losses to Southeastern Conference stalwarts, U.T. and Florida, its only other losses being to Carson-Newman's Eagles on their court. The Scotties posted a total of 65 wins against 34 losses for a .667 percentage, very good in any leaugue. Clyde McCampbell, lone departing senior, was M. C.'s leading individual performer with ten wins and two losses. Captain John Anderson grabbed second slot with a nine and three record while Kent Buser and Marshall England both posted eight and four records. Dick Lebold, with five and three, Ed Breitbach, with five and six, and Dick Gardner, with no wins and one loss, rounded out the Scottie scoring for the season. McCampbell and Anderson, Coach Johnson's most prolific doubles team, rang up three wins while losing nary a match.

Not So Bad

M.C.'s nine, although having one of their worst seasons in recent years, wound up with an eleven and nine record. Coach Lombe Honaker's charges also started slow, but picked up momentum as the season wore on, winning six out of their last eight games. The Scots swept two from King, Emory and Henry, and Milligan while taking two and losing one to Hiwassee, splitting a pair with L. M. U. The Orange and Garnet dropped single games to Miami of Ohio, Morristown of the Class "D" Mountain State League, Seward Air Force Base and T.P.I. A single victory over David Lipscome kept the Scots above the five hundred mark.

With booming bats playing a big part in the Scot's late season drive, M.C. had four regulars winding up the season with better than .270 averages. Bob Shelton laced out nineteen hits in fifty-three attempts for a .358 average and Wes Kinser's big extra base bat bagged twenty-five hits in seventy-five attempts for a .333 average. Lynn Sexton, Tom Jones and Don Alford rounded out the top five for Scottie regulars with .290, .273, .250 averages respectively.

All Girls Welcome

Women's Varsity Open to All Women

The 1952 season of the women's varsity is going to open soon. All girls, of every class and every description are welcome to the first meeting to see what it is all about, and welcome thereafter to play in all the sports and activities that Women's Varsity has to offer. This reporter does not profess to be an expert in the subject and would appreciate it if someone connected with the activity would get in touch with one of the sport's editors, Rolfe Duggar or Bob Coles. This much at least is known, that the girls play an amazing number of games, more than the boy's Intramural program has to offer, starting early in the first semester and continuing on through the year. The year's program usually begins with aerial dart, but everything will be included before the year is over.

Rewards

For all this activity, the participating girls receive certain very attractive awards. The whole system is run on a point basis, each girl receiving a certain number of points for each thing she does. At the end of the year, the points are totaled, and those girls who have accumulated a total of 500 or more points receives a letter sweater, and becomes a member of the "M" Club. If the girl has more than 400 points she gets an "M". All of these points have to be collected in one year, no points carrying over from year to year.

Reason

This system was initiated several years ago, when Maryville College dropped out of intercollegiate sports for women, leaving the women without any sort of sports activity save their two years of required gym classes. Realizing that this was an undesirable situation, the women's varsity program was begun with great success. All old members are urged to come out again, and bring any new members along at the proper time. Inquiries about the events should be directed to Mrs. Queener at the Athletic Office.

Intramurals....

Football Season

Manager Bob Navratil announced today that the year's Intramural season would begin on the 15th of September when the touch football season would start. As usual, all teams are urged to get in their rosters as soon as they can so that the schedules can be drawn up and posted. This year things will be slightly different, as the game will be played under the intercollegiate rules for touch football, Navratil announced. This means a change in the number of men who will play, instead of a four man backfield with a three man line, two extra men will be added to the line, so that all teams will have nine players instead of seven. Another main rule change will be that only one hand is necessary for a touch rather than two as was the case last year.

High Hopes

Those connected with the Intramural program have high hopes this year for a successful program, a program that can be made possible only by the participation and cooperation of a large number of Maryville men. Last year was marred by the participation of so few teams, especially in football. It is hoped that there will be enough rosters submitted for two leagues, making a playoof possible at the end of the regular season. Aside from the regular society teams, Athenian, Alpha Sig, Pre-Min, and the YMCA, there should be a number of independent teams, including freshmen teams which could easily be formed from the required gym classes.

What It's About

For the benefit of freshmen and other new students who do not understand the workings of the Intramural system (as indeed, who does) we make here some sort of explanation. The whole idea is to provide some sort of physical recreation for those men who like to play the various sports, football, basketball, volleyball, softball, but who are not good enough or for some reason do not want to play on the varsity teams. It gives a chance to blow off some steam and relax a little by wearing out the body to catch up with the mind. Coach K. P. Johnson is the director of the system, and Bob Navratil is the student director. All the umpiring is done by volunteer students for love of the game. The more men who participate in the various activities the better. In addition to the above mentioned sports, ther is a wrestling match, one in tennis, pingpong, swimming, and badminton, so that all who are interested can find something to do.

Hiwassee Tigers First Opponents For 1952 Highlander Football Team

Scots Open On 20th

Head football coach, Lombe S. Honaker, got first look at his team for 1952 on Labor Day, September 1st. Perhaps the day was symbolical, representing the work which Honaker and his assistants will have to put into the next three weeks to mold their fifty some aspirants into a good, winning team to take the place of those which the school has fielded for the last few years. Coach L. S. H., however, has never been one to duck the necessary labor, and along with J. D. Davis, hopes to field a strong unit.

There's Hope

This year's intial tryouts showed over fifty men hopeful of gaining a starting berth on the Highlander eleven. This in itself is a good sign, being a larger number than have shown up for a number of years previously. For help and a neucleus to work with, Honaker, Davis, Scott Honaker, and the great Charlie Allen, back for a few more hours credit, have most of last year's veterans, including Co-captains Homer Garren and Paul Merwin, Jim Campbell (who is still offplaying baseball), Newberry, Shelton, King, Alford, Frank Garren, Tom Allen, Jim Hares, Davis, Glad, Patton, and many others who saw extended service last year. Again this year the team will not be over large as far as size goes, although there are a few freshmen who at least look bigger.

Schedule

The old regulars appear on the Maryville schedule of eight games, four at home and four away. Through a quirk in the list, there will be no home games during the month of October, all four scheduled games being away, the first, October 4, at Centre, followed by a game at East Tennessee State Teachers College on the 11th, then at Emory and Henry and at Carson-Newman, the Traditional Rival on the 25th of October. The home folks will have two chances to look at the team before the dearth begins. The season opens on the 20th of September with the usual opener of every sport, the Hiwassee Tigers, and then the next week the Jacksonville State team will move in. The last two games of the season will be a thome, also, first with Georgetown, a day which has been deisgnated as Homecoming Day, and finally closing the season on the 8th of November with a final game with Carson-Newman.

Against these opponents last year, the Highlanders' record, of course was not too good, no wins and eight losses to be exact. The Hiwassee game, never-to-beforgotten, went to the Tigers in the mud, 7-6, Centre won 13-6, JSTC crushed out a 26-0 score, but East Tennessee beat by tacking a 27-0 win. Carson-Newman won two games, 12-0, and 21-0, Emory and Henry gained a 38-12 victory, while Georgetown won 21-0. This year, it is hoped, at least some of these scores will be reversed.

New Men

To help reverse these scores, there is beginning to be felt at Maryville a certain something, a glimmer of spirit and hope that this is the year that the bell will ring from Anderson Tower once more. All kinds of stories are circulating around school about the new faces that are to be seen on the practice field in the afternoons. Men are speaking in awe about the number and quality of the men who have showed up for opening practice. Among the latest newcomers, one who has not even been in practice yet is an All-State tailback from the fair southern state of Florida, a young man who was offered a football scholarship to Eastern Kentucky, but turned it down because he didn't like the looks of the place. Someone said that the captain of last year's Hiwassee team had chosen to come to the "Hill," but as yet, due to the lack of a roster and time for this issue all of these stories have not yet been authenticated. The coaches however, have promised their help, and as soon as a roster is available, a full story of the new team will be printed, most likely in the next issue. Besides the new men, there is a new determination among the veterans to win some games, beginning with Hiwassee on the 20th. This determination will, of course,

Korean War

August was the best month of the entire war for the Air Force in Korea. Reported shot down were 32 Red MIG's, and 42 were announced as damaged.

Last week Navy planes based on 3 U.S. carriers struck almost at the Siberian border in a surprise attack against the Reds. They hit in extreme Northeast Korea, within sight and sound of Siberia.

Communists

High-ranking Chinese officials paid a visit to Moscow recently to confer with Russian chiefs. They did not disclose the reasons for their trip, but it is believed that the negotiations will put Chinese Russian relations on a new basis.

The Communist party was reorganized when the Politburo was changed to the Presidium, but "centralism" is still essential in the party structure.

Presidential campaigns

General Dwight Eisenhower and Governor Adlai Stevenson have formally begun their intensive campaigning in the presidential race, which will be settled by the voters in November.

Foreign Affairs

Government agencies concerned with foreign affairs have prepared a mammoth report on all phases of the world situation. This will serve as a basis for briefing the incoming president on the world problems and responsibilities that he will meet.

Iran

A year after the beginning of the Anglo-Iranian oil dispute Truman and Churchill issued a personal appeal to Iran's Premier Mossadegh for some kind of compromise. He immediately turned down their proposal for cooperation between the two countries.

President Nancy Ferguson urges all old members to attend.

Lloyd Travels During Summer

President Ralph W. Lloyd attended the Presbyterian General Assembly the week following Commencement in May.

In June he went to Chicago for the meeting of the General Board of the National Council of Churches.

In July Dr. Lloyd visited Chicago, Philadelphia, and New York on church, college, and personal business.

On August 3 Dr. Lloyd spoke on the Protestant Hour which was broadcast over 175 radio stations across the country. This program was produced in Atlanta. Also, in August Dr. Lloyd made speaking trips in North Carolina. Tennessee, and Ohio.

Other places Dr. Lloyd spoke during the summer were New York City, Knoxville, the Maryville New Providence Presbyterian Church, Jonesboro, Cincinnati, and Oak Ridge.

YWCA Slates Party Tonight

The YWCA big-little sister group will have a party on the grounds in front of Thaw Hall at 8:00 p.m., Saturday.

Edith McMillan, Chairman of the big-little sister program, announced that there will be group singing led by Betty Hammers,; entertainment which will be presented by Sheila Sutton, Mildred Eisle, Betty Hammers, Hazel Robnison, Ruth Orr, and Marie Richards; group games, and refreshments.

Big Sisters will bring their little sisters to the funfest. All other girls are urged to attend.

Religious Groups Meet Tomorrow

The YMCA, YWCA, Pre-Ministerial Association, and Student Volunteers will conduct a joint meeting on Sunday at 1:30 p.m. on the lawn between Pearsons and Thaw.

Ruth Burgos, YWCA president; Bob Johnston, YMCA president, Bruce Miller, Pre-Ministerial president, and Isabelle Leitch, Student Volunteers president, will be in charge of the service.

Lawyers to Get Lie Detector Survey Results

Tennessee lawyers attending the 1952 Law Institute at the University of Tennessee will be the first to hear results of a nation-wide survey on reliability of the polygraph—commonly known as the "lie detector."

William H. Wicker, dean of the U-T College of Law, said the annual institute will be held Nov. 14, the day before the Tennessee-University of Florida football game which falls on the week end of U-T Homecoming.

The U-T psychology department and College of Law have surveyed more than 1,600 psychologists, criminologists and personnel officials to find out what they think of the value of the polygraph. Returns are now being analyzed and will be available for presentation at the institute, Dean Wicker said.

In addition, speakers will demonstrate the machine in actual use, show how polygraph charts are interpreted, and comment on the polygraph as it relates to the courts.

Writing inks were used by the Romans.

Superstition Gives Name To Great Smokies

Superstition is often a more important factor than we realize in the conditioning of our lives. And this truth often applies to the cultured as well as to so-called primitive peoples.

There was a tradition among the Indians that a lost person may be found by shooting an arrow in the direction which the lost one is believed to have gone. If the surmise prove correct, then the arrow will not return.

A certain young Indian wishing to find his father, according to the account of this legend given to us by Royce Burnette of Townsend, Tennessee, shot arrows in all the directions of the compass. Each of his arrows returned. In his wrath, the young warrior shot an arrow straight into the sky above him. The arrow never returned, and then he knew that the chieftan had gone to the happy hunting grounds, the land of the Great Spirit.

The Great Spirit was enraged at the warrior and sent his thunder against him. In his awe the young Indian prayed to the Great Spirit to save him, knowing full-well the reason for his punishment.

Finally the Great Spirit promised to stop the thunder, but the smoke should cloud the mountains forever as a warning against his rash act. Thus we have the legend which associates the name with the characteristic hue which hovers over that region known as the Great Smoky Mountains.

be matched by other schools, but with both new talent, not the least of which is the returning Keny Shepherd, heavier and solider than before there is a new hope on the "Hill."

No team, though, does too much without the student body behind it. Old students at Maryville, in line with this idea, have already been teaching school songs and cheers to the new freshmen, so that hope is now springing eternal within the human breast for a winning team.

ED. Note— The game with Emory and Henry will be played at home on October 18, rather than away as announced above, making five home games.

Freshmen Discussions Begin Next Week

Freshman Discussions designed to help orientate new students to college life, will begin next week. The discussion groups, each of which is led by a member of the faculty and a member of the student body, meet twice a week to discuss various aspects of Maryville, such as studies, dating, and dormitory life.

The course lasts for 5 weeks, and is required of all freshmen. No cuts are given for this class, since it is believed that every discussion period will be of great value to all taking part.

Did You Ever See A Piggin?

Most of us have seen the old fashioned wooden buckets or pails made of red cedar and hooped with brass, and which would hold on an average of from two to three gallons. Few of us, however, are familiar with the smaller piggin, which rarely had a capacity of more than three or four quarts.

This smaller cousin of the bucket family had no bail, having one long stave which extended far enough above the others to serve as a handle. This upright handle was not as convenient perhaps as the horizontal handle on the gourdor dipper, but for certain uses, maintained its advantages. With a hole bored thrpugh the stave handle, the piggin could easily be hung on a peg or a nail, thus making a handy container for whatever one might wish to keep up out of reach of small children or away from rats and mice.

"My grandmother, Mrs. Allie Leslie, Route 1, Riceville, Tennessee," says W. R. Bickley of Athens, Tennessee, "who is now seventy-seven years old, has a small cedar piggin which she as a small child used to plant peas and corn by hand. This particular piggin is made entirely of wood. The hoops were formed and driven into place while green so they might fit more tightly as the wood shrank from seasoning. It is used now for a catch-all on the bureau, where it ordinarily holds a small magnifying glass, a few rifle cartridges, odds and ends of string, two or three stubs of pencils, and a small hand-mirror with a broken handle."

There were larger containers also occasionally called piggins. These had opposite handholds or staves, and were used in soapmaking or even for doing the family wash. Have you seen a piggin? How was it made, and for what was it used? The mystery surrounding this quaint vessel is the origin of its name. Why is it called a piggin?

Theta Epsilon and Alpha Sigma presidents, Nancy Ferguson and Bob Navratil, join to invite all the new students to participate in the coming festivities of a Holiday in Holland.

Shriners To Sell Papers For Benefit Of Crippled Ones

Papers carrying news of the Shrine Hospitals For Crippled Children will go on sale Sunday, September 14, between Washington Avenue and Broadway Street at $1.00 per paper, it was announced this week by E. E. McCurry, chairman of the Blount County Shrine Paper Sales.

Requirements for entrance to the Shrine Hospitals For Crippled Children are as follows: (1) any child under 14 years of age, whose parents are unable to pay for treatment, may be admitted, regardless of race, color, or religion; (2) the child must be sponsored by a Shriner.

These hospitals are staffed with silled surgeons, dentists, superintendents, nurses, and attendants who are sympathetic, and devoted to their work.

Shrine Hospitals Began In 1922

W. Freeland Kencrick of Philadelphia, Pa., is credited with the founding of the Shrine Hospital organization. The first unit was opened at Shreveport, La., on September 16, 1922.

The 16 Shrine Hospitals now in operation have treated and cured thousands of children who otherwise would never have had the opportunity to walk, run, or play as normal children do.

James L. Reed, secretary of Blount Shrine Club, will be in Mr. McCurry's Carnegie office on Sunday to assist in the sale of papers.

Freshmen Will Meet Thursday To Name Officers

The freshman class will meet after chapel Thursday, September 25, for the purpose of nominating class officers and Student Council representatives. The election will be held Friday, September 26.

In response to a request voiced at a freshman meeting Tuesday night that the Student Council officers appoint a nominating committee, the following persons were asked to serve: John Graulich, chairman, Charles Cureton, Esther Lerch, and Betty Messer.

In accordance with the Student Body Constitution, nominations may also be made from the floor.

College Boosters Club To Honor Football Squad

The entire football squad will be the guests of the Maryville College Boosters Club at a dinner Monday night, September 15, in Pearsons dining hall.

The Boosters Club is made up of local businessmen and alumni interested in MC football.

Theta Alphs Elect Hicks President

Mary Ann Hicks, senior Bible and religion major from Williard, Ohio, was elected president of the Tennessee Delta Chaper of Theta Alpha Phi, national honorary dramatic fraternity, on Tuesday of this week.

Other officers elected were vice-president, Joanne Edwards, junior English major from New Jersey; secretary-treasurer, Clifford Church, junior English major from New York; and historian, Arthur Van Alstyne, senior English major from Pennsylvania.

Tentative plans for the coming year include social programs for the members of Playhouse. Kathleen Craven, head of the drama department, is faculty adviser for Theta Alpha Phi.

Moore Speaks At Chapel

The Reverend Mark M. Moore, pastor of the Broadway Methodist Church, spoke at the first long chapel service of the year Thursday morning.

"Christianity in Politics" was the topic of his sermon.

Echo Subscriptions

Subscriptions to the Highland Echo beginning with the first issue are still available, according to Business Manager Dick Dart.

A full year's subscription costs $1.00 and may be secured from either Dick Dart or Van Holland.

Meet MC's New Librarian Eleanor Tom Of Hawaii

By Joe Gilliland

Most Maryville students continually wail and bemoan because they are not at home, except for vacations between semesters. Perhaps they can get some sympathy from the new college circulation librarian, Miss Eleanor Tom. She hasn't been home for five years!

Miss Tom left her home in Wahiawa, Hawaii, on August 22, 1947. On August 22 of this year she received her M.A. degree in Library Science from Peabody College in Nashville—five years from the day she left home.

Before taking graduate work at Peabody, Miss Tom was a student at Tusculum College in Greeneville, where she graduated in June, 1951, with a B.A. degree in English.

She Was A Campus Leader

During her four years in college, Miss Tom was active in girls' intramurals, worked in the college library as a student assistant, was elected to Who's Who in American Colleges and Universities, was president of Tau Beta Gamma, a women's athletic sorority, and was a member of the Student Christian Association.

For two summers while she was a student at Tusculum, our new librarian worked at a private school in Poughkeepsie, N.Y. She has been in New Orleans, Kansas, and California. She stayed in California with relatives for the first week when she came to the mainland.

Life In Hawaii Was Different

Miss Tom's home in Hawaii is on the island of Oahu, about 15 miles from Pearl Harbor and about 22 miles from Honolulu. Her parents are of Chinese descent. She explained, "There are very few real Hawaiians left in the islands, due to the migration of many different races."

During the time that she was in public school, Miss Tom went to an American school from 7:40 a.m. until 2:30 p.m. From 3 p.m. to 5:30 p.m. she attended a Chinese language school. "I used to speak Chinese well," she added, "but now I've forgotten a whole lot of it." Miss Tom then explained that the people from different countries have language schools for their children in addition to the regular public school.

Jumping From Hawaii to Tennessee

From Wahiawa, Hawaii, to Greeneville, Tennessee, is a long jump. According to Miss Tom, she came to Tusculum because she worked in the public library with a lady who was a graduate of Tusculum. She heard about the college and decided that she would go to that school.

During the time that Miss Tom was at Tusculum, George Davies, brother of Miss Katharine Currie Davies, professor of music at Maryville, was president of the college.

There Ar More Barefoot People There!

In discussing life in Hawaii, Miss Tom commented, "There are a lot more barefooted people in Hawaii than there are in Tennessee. Where I lived, the high school football team played barefooted."

Miss Tom's home is very near a large Army barracks. During the Pearl Harbor raid in December, 1941, her town was bombed, but her home was not damaged. She said that the bombers were trying to destroy the barracks in the town and that was the reason

Student Council Name Committees, Select Senators

Five committees were appointed by President Sally Brown at the first meeting of Student Council on Wednesday, September 10, in the Student Center.

Appointed by the president to the Steering Committee were Jim Hunt, Shirley Atwell, Ed Breitbach, Betty Hammers, Ruth Burgos, and Bob Johnston. Miss Brown is ex-officio chairman.

Jim Hunt was appointed chairman of the Elections Committee. Other members are Curt Wilbanks, Hank Van Hassel, A. C. Williams, Jean Anderson, Emma Curtis, Hal Black, Bruce Miller and Bill Morse.

Appointed to assist Betty Hammers, chairman of the Social Board, were Sally Brown, Ruth Burgos, and Bob Johnston. Faculty members are E. F. Massey, dean of women; N. G. Strict, director of the Student Center; A. S. Walker, assistant professor of economics; Dr. F. D. McClelland, dean of students, and Dr. E. R. Hunter, dean of curriculum.

Van Holland, Editor of the Highland Echo, was appointed chairman of the Student Publications Committee. Others on the committee are Walt Elwood, Janice Eakin, and Mary Ann Hicks.

Dave Gates heads the Finance Committee. Paul Merwin and Harry McCall were named to assist him.

Pat Halstead was named chairman of the Student Programs committee. Other members are Jay Spencer and Jim Kessler.

Sally Brown, Betty Hammers, Ed Breitbach, and Shirley Atwell are ex-officio members of the Student-Faculty Senate. Hal Black, Mary Ann Hicks, Bob Johnston, and Bruce Miller were elected to serve on the senate. President Ralph Waldo Lloyd is chairman of the senate.

Two town night violations were reported; council voted to apply the penalties.

Navratil Heads Pep Committee

By Gail Brown

New Cheerleaders Doris Glad, freshman from Brooklyn, N.Y.; Marie Richards, senior biology major from Manasquan, N.J.; Jim Cummings, chemistry major and freshman from Maryville; Jim Deamer, sophomore political science major from New York City; and Jack Maxwell, junior from Clinton, S.C., will lead the yells at the first pep rally, Saturday afternoon, 1:30 p.m. on the football field.

Dixie Conner Leads Cheerleaders

Joining them will be recent elected cheerleader captain Dixie Connor, sophomore physical education major from New Market, N.J., plus other carry-overs Kathy Morrison, sophomore from Trenton, Ga. majoring in education, and Jim Bang, junior from New York City.

Bob Navratil, pre-med junior from Miami, Fla., is chairman of the pep committee, and in charge of the pep rallies; the team, captains, and coaches, and the band.

Don't Forget The Snakedance!

The usual snakedance will be led by the band through the down town Maryville area.

Navratil announced the newly elected cheerleaders and the members of the pep committee, including Isabel Leitch, Liz Murphy, Hank Van Hassel, Dixie Connor, cheerleader captain, and faculty members Arda Walker and Commodore Fisher.

Students Guide Frosh Discussions

Freshman discussions began their five weeks span this week. Each of the twelve groups are under the guidance of a panel consisting of a faculty member and two student leaders.

These discussions will follow the same general pattern as in previous years, using the book "Making the Most of College" as the text, with the addition of a discussion on Student Government. This extra period is considered desirable because Student Government has taken a roll of much greater importance since the original publication of the text.

Orr To Hold Vespers

Dr. Horace E. Orr, professor of philosophy, will be the speaker at Vespers tomorrow night in the Music Hall of the Fine Arts Center.

The text for Dr. Orr's sermon will be, "In all things God works for good . . . ." The Vesper Choir, under the direction of Harry Harter, will sing.

Improvements Made Past Summer

In case you have not already figured out what they mean, the small signs around the campus saying "Please" are for the benefit of those students who have been dissatisfied with the regular concrete sidewalks and are making paths of their own.

E. C. Brown, college engineer, told the Echo that persons last year had worn paths to and from Carnegie and Pearsons Halls. Mr. Brown said that the areas had been seeded over the summer, and for students to please use the concrete walks.

Even Mains Are Moved!

Other than the above repairs, a four inch water main which served the Fine Arts Center was moved around the site of the new chapel. The main had been placed in service only two years ago when it was thought that the new chapel would run up and down the hill, but when plans showed that it would be parallel with the street, the water main had be moved so that it would go around the site. Places around the old chapel site that have been dug up show where the main has been changed.

They Worked On The Buildings

In Carnegie Hall workmen varnished the floors, installed a long awaited water cooler, and painted about 50 or 60 rooms. Baldwin Hall received an overall one-coat outside paint job.

In the Student Center, inside improvements included the sanding of floors and varnishing of all the woodwork.

Roof painting and painting of fire escapes was done on all dormitories. The Alumni Gymnasium received a varnishing and paint job. In the swimming pool, painting and erections of safety posts were done.

There Was More Work!

All the floors in Pearsons were painted, and some papering was done. The kitchen and the dining hall was also painted. Repairs at the heating plant consisted of painting and general cleaning. The office annex floors were all painted, and some outside painting was done at the Fine Arts Center.

Painting of classrooms and furniture in the home economics department were the repairs done in Fayerweather Hall.

The American Citizen

Most Europeans seem to have the mythical attitude that the American citizen is a robot chained to the hands of an industrial monster, of a police state, of capitalists, and of illiterate political bosses. And what is more, our novelists, social scientists, journalists, and intellectuals have helped to present this dim, distorted view of our country to them. And it is shameful that the defeatist attitude toward the Korean War, and the suppression of our political liberties by McCarthyism have added to that already idstorted view.

Why don't we speak up about what we have to offer in the realm of politics and correct this false view of the U. S.? A dictatorship shall not arise here because the ingrained spirit of freedom in free citizens will safeguard our present type of government. Our numerous fraternal orders, educational, health, and social-welfare institutions whittle down prime loyalty to the state and develop a sense of solidarity among our people. Our free citizens jealously guard their right of opinion and judgment, resulting in our government always being under careful scrutiny. We have a government wherein the people can produce and share among its members the necessities of life, and enjoy those freedoms as vital as bread and shelter.

Let us correct that distorted viewpoint of Europe and bridge the gap of misunderstanding. We are proud to export our technological "know how"; let us export our self-rule "know how." However, this can be fully accomplished only when there is more sympathy and identification between our writers, thinkers, professionals, and "experts."

"Perhaps soon those who must do our talking to European opinion will find the kind of unabstract, living words that because they report of things seen rather than dreamed or feared, will bring belief, accord, and a new courage to our allies in continuing the great struggle for human freedom. . . ."

The Library, Good For What?

To a large number of Maryvillians, at least those who are not as yet involved in special studies, the library is an unfamiliar place. Their acquaintance with it is confined to the study tables or perhaps an occasional visit to the "Encyclopedia Britannica." The other features that the library has to offer are largely neglected. In addition to the main purpose of a library, that of making books available to the students, it also provides the best of the latest magazines—and absolutely free! In the museum connected with it are strange and interesting objects from all over the world. The bulletin boards are informative and often amusing.

Besides these extra attractions, the library does contain books of many types. And they exist to be used, not only for outside reading in required courses, but for the pleasure and profit of each person who uses them. Almost everyone has in mind a few books that he has always meant to read. Now is the time to do it! As time goes on people become busier rather than acquiring more leisure. The library is full of books that they may never read, if they don't read them while they are in callege. After all, college is the place where one is supposed to get an education, or at least to carry on the learning process that should continue throughout life.

The remark is often heard, "I used to read a lot, but now I just don't have the time." It is true that classes, activities, and social life do take time, but it is also true that they do not take all the time that people have at their disposal. Everyone has a few spare minutes throughout the day, if he really wants to make use of them.

This is not to suggest that we ignore other activities and become a colony of bookworms, but rather that we should give a place to yet another activity that is both profitable and fascinating. Novels, both old and new; humorous essays and books of cartoons; informative books and entertaining books—the library has them all for our benefit.

Cakes & Ale

One week gone . . . . and by now we've completed our stretch in the registration lines, gotten hold of the cribbed language books, noticed that the ice-cream cones at the student center are smaller this year, picked out THE freshman girl for the Rush Week formals, complained about dining hall coffee at least fifteen times, blamed the summer sun for the blonde streaks in certain hair-dos, told at least one girl that she's put on weight . . . . but he still hasn't said it. Come on Dr. Lloyd! It's great to be back! Isn't it?????

* * * * * * * *

There follows now a chapter in the exciting life of Jake Peppers. Quote: I goes walkin' inta my room, see? An' I smell somethin' an' it smells lousy, see? An' I think to myself, 'Somethin' fishy is goin' on around here!' So I start to look around, see? My roommate isn't there so I know it can't be him. So I look under the bed, see? an' it isn't there, ya' know, whatever it is that I'm lookin' for. So I look in the closet, see? And there's nothin' there either. An' all the time this odor is gettin' worse an' worse. So I look in the desk, under the desk, behind the desk, an' I still can't find whatever it is that I'm lookin for. By this time I'm beginnin' to turn purple, see? Then I look under the chair, An' there I find a dead fish! A smelly old fish! A lousy, smelly, old fish! A dirty, rotten, smelly, old fish! So I notice that it's still got a little life in it, see? So I walk out the window to Patton's room an' he says it would be all right if I want to leave it in his aquarium. So I do, see? And now everybody's happy. My room doesn't smell, Patton feels like a father, and the boys on fourth floor have a playmate. End quote, see?

There have been quite a few comments on the staff's attempt to change the title of this column. Therefore, we now open our office doors, hoping that some budding journalist will offer a title or two. All entries must be submitted to Van Holland or me by September 30, 1952.

And now we get to the prizes:

THE AMERICAN WAY

Every key but the right one

Voices, Masks, and Shadows

By Kathy Chase

BOOK-NOOK

For our first stop into the magical land of Voices, Masks and Shadows, we find ourselves at the new book table in Lamar Memorial Library, inspecting all the books, and trying to summarize them briefly.

For Our Poets

For all you poets, we have a new volume of Robert Frost's poems, very appropriately called, "Complete Poems of Robert Frost." As many of you know, and for those of you who don't, Frost is considered the central and commanding poet of our time, and perhaps America's greatest living poet, whose works are widely and popularly read. He has won three Pulitizer Prizes; 1924, 1931 and 1943. He is one of three poets ever to have been awarded the gold medal of the National Institute of Arts and Letters.

This new publication is the only complete volume of Frost's works, and includes portions of ten of his best books. It is the first overall edition since "Collected Poems, 1939."

Dizzy—Not Dizzy Dean

Anyone for biographies? I know, you just think they're dull, but you haven't read this one and you should. It's called "Dizzy—The Life and Personality of Benjamin Disraeli," by Kesketh Pearson, one of the most outstanding biographers of our time.

Disraeli was the most fascinating, perplexing, and dramatic figure of the Victorian age—a man equally famous as a statesman, author and wit. He began life with everything against him—race, disturbing wit, love of pageantry and deliberately extravagant appearance, passionate devotion to aristocratic traditions, coupled with a romantic temperament alien to the sober, middle-class atmosphere of his age. But through genius and undeviating self-confidence, he lived to become an object of national reverence and affection in spite of ridicule from opponents and constituents alike.

Side by side with that famous sphinxlike figure who could hold the House of Commons spellbound during a three-hour speech, we have the character who danced a jig with his wife in their bedroom, wrote her daily notes, was inconsolable at her death, and eventually emerged from a self-imposed isolation to fall in love with another man's wife.

Written with wit and perception worthy of its subject, this is a brilliant re-creation of the man whose personality was his genuis.

Cowboys 'n Indians

How about a good Western you tough he-men? Or for that matter, you girls, too—or anyone who has a soft spot in his heart for the West, here's your book. "Little Britches: Father and I Were Ranchers," by Ralph Moody.

The relationship between a boy and his dad provides the theme of this charming account of a happy boyhood.

When the Moody's moved from a farm in New Hampshire to a glowingly-described ranch in Colorado, they found nothing but a piece of ground. No fences, no livestock, no crops and only a ramshackle building that had been moved out from Denver. But the Moody's were hardy people who took national and economic obstacles in their stride. The ranch became a home.

School days, rodeos, tornadoes, a fight over the irrigation ditch, the endless seasonal activities of life on a farm-ranch—these are the skeleton of this fine book of reminiscenes. The real flesh-and-blood of it is the give-and-take between a sensitive father and a devoted son.

Drama, Faith and Courage

And here's one of the most-heart-warming autobiographies ever written. "His Eye Is On The Sparrow" is Ethel Waters herself—her warmth, faith in God, lusty humor and above all her courage. Her story begins in a sordid Negro tenement in Chester, Pennsylvania; it neds fifty years later—in a star's dressing room on Broadway.

Ethel Waters, illegitimate, born in the Chester slums, unloved by her slatternly mother; a honky-tonk singer, and then, by turn, a fabulously successful blues singer and actress—has never been discouraged. Deep faith and belief in her God have given her the strength and determination to make the long hard pull from tenements and cheap roadhouses to Broadway lights and Hollywood cameras.

This rich autobiography of a great American woman tells her whole life story from lowly background to heights of success. Completely realistic, it is written in rich, colorful idioms.

"His Eye Is On the Sparrow" is as magnificently honest as Ethel Waters herself; it is the truly inspiring story of a great woman and theatrical person.

CINEMA SPOTLIGHTS

And Some More Westerns

Here come some more Westerns and just for Town Night, too.

"The Return of the Texan" with Dale Robertson, Joanne Dru, and Walter Brennan can be seen at the Capitol Monday and Tuesday. Really a rip-roaring western straight from the old west!

There's another western in store for you Tuesday and Wednesday at the Park. Only it's a little different type of western. It's called "'Ride 'Em Cowboy" and stars Bud Abbott and Lou Costello. I think you understand why I say they're a little different types.

Wednesday through Friday finds "The Merry Widow" at the Capitol. Lana Turner as the Merry Widow and Fernando Lamas as the fortune-seeeking Count Danilo provide romance, comedy and just loads of entertainment in this happy musical! Don't miss it—you'll love it and find yourself humming that wonderful "Merry Widow Waltz" all the time!

FAC ART EXHIBIT

Back to Feudalism

For our last stop before leaving, let's go to the art exhibit at the Fine Arts Center. Over there, we find an interesting exhibit of Life photographs of Medieval Europe. It's really something anyone taking history should see. There are photos and sketches of medieval churches, towns, feudal life, tournaments and amusements, books, and close-ups of armor. But the most imposing photo of all is an air-view of Mont St. Michael, the famed monastery.

Our tour is all over now. Hope you enjoyed it as much as I did.

ECHO FORUM

To The Editor of The Highland Echo:

As a student of Maryville College, subject to all of its rules, regulations, etc., I feel that I possess that peculiar right, common to the democratic type of society, of self-expression upon matters relating to that society. Such a society is, or should be, according to its basic assumptions, subject to constant revision within the limits of its jurisdiction, being avowedly flexible enough to embrace changing circumstances and situations.

The tenets of such a society, to have any value, must be expressed in certain rules, or laws, duly arrived at, and capable of being enforced; otherwise the society is powerless to support itself, much less any exigencies which may arise in its operation. All of this is common knowledge.

It is also common knowledge that any body, acting in a legislative or jurisdictive capacity, or both, duly elected by proper democratic procedures, is required to have an extensive acquaintance with the basic tenets of that society as they are implemented in its rules and laws, not only in their form, but in their content.

Thus it is necessary for each and every member of such a body to have a thorough knowledge of the meaning of the laws or rules, which can be had only through an investigation of the principles agreed upon prior to the actual implementation of the laws or rules, before the body can take any intelligent, consistent action in any situation arising which would, or should, require a re-

Intramural football goes into full swing Monday with the usual amount of thrills, spills, gladness and sadness. We hope that with the installation of intramural football rules interest and participation will reach a new high. The game should certainly be more interesting to the spectators. Blocking will need to become an art if running plays are to gain ground. Otherwise the contests will be worse than an SMU-Baylor game with passes going every which way. That in itself is not bad, but a long run sure can be beautiful.

There always is a need for men to volunteer their services to Bob Navratil as referees. This year is no exception. So how about all you fellows interested in the intramural program giving a little of your time to help make this a great year for Bob and the program.

There has been much hub dub in recent weeks over in Knoxville about the case of Buddy Cruze, last year an all-state high school football star. We think this deserves a quick lok at here. The reason being that it reminds us of a similar incident here at Maryville back in the fall of 1949. That was the semester when John Huffstetler enrolled at Maryville.

Huffstetler was an outstanding high school pitcher in Maryville and with the CIO team. Evidently the well-known abilities of Coach Lombe Honaker as a baseball coach attracted Huffstetler with the prospect of playing on an outstanding team. I remember seeing Huffstetler several times in a Bible class. Then one day he disappeared only to show up later on the UT campus, against all ethics of good relationships between schools. The lure of easy money once again found it mark. Needless to say people here on the hill were quiet mad at Coach Tom Anderson, Colonel Bob Neyland and UT in general.

The late Pete Norton, dean of Florida sport writers, who abhorred the Tennessee Colonel and his school for their antics, devoted a paragraph to the case of Huffstetler in his colmun. This was in his column containing a long list of similar incidents of boys being taken from Florida by Neyland. This was only one of many out of state attacks on Neyland and UT.

Cruze, it seems, accepted summer school courses from UT as a part of his scholarship to play football there. Then a few weeks ago he pulled a "Neyland" on UT and headed for SMU where we bet he will be a star in their aerial wizardry. I'll bet old Pete rolled over in his grave laughing about the one who got away from Colonel Neyland.

It seems that if colleges would quit trying to cut each others throat and take off all the emphasis on sports such incidents would then die in the past. There is slight possibility though that within the near future education will again become the major aim of many "institutions of higher scores."

To get away from the local scene and since there is little to talk about this early in the season those major league races are sure interesting. Especially so in the American League where the Cleveland Indians and New York Yankees are fighting it out to the wire. The Indians are rated the stronger team, but they haven't been able to come through before in the clutch. Can they now?

If they don't and the Yankees take the flag there certainly is going to be heard the yell, "Break up the Yankees!" Already in some cities fans are becoming disgusted with the way the Yanks win year after year. "Let's balance the teams more to make it interesting" has been a constant cry in the "Letters" section of the Sporting News.

Maybe some of you fans on the hill have some comments on the subject. This column is always willing to recognize those who have arguments one way or another. Let's hear from you. Write down your ideas and drop them off in the Echo office or hand them to Bob Coles or to me.

Left In

Seventy tried and new members of the College Women's Varsity met together in Bartlett Hall this past Thursday for the first discussion meeting of the year's sports for girls. Mrs. Evelyn Queener introduced Barbara Rodgers, senior physical education major and president of the "M" Club, who gave a complete explanation of Varsity workings.

Varsity formally opens Monday. Those girls who missed out on the Thursday meeting and have interest in this sort of thing, or think that they could create an interest, should contact Mrs. Queener at her office in Bartlett rear. I am urging you to do so—I was just going to write this column, but have probably decided to join myself. And I know that there are girls around who just don't know what it's all about (speaking this time solely of sports) and who should try and find out now while they can. The meeting was a good initiation, but if you missed it, it's the last one to miss if you don't want to spoil your attendance record.

Barbara Rodgers explained the basis of the point system, leading to the awards. Points are given through participation in the team work, captaining and managing teams, written tests, sportsmanship, attendance, and individual skills. Helen Drinnen, senior physical ed. major in charge of tennis, announced that the tennis tournament is on its way now. Aerial darts, with Barbara June Frazier, and stunts, with Barbara Rodgers, physical ed. majors in charge, are the sports following. 20 points for entrance, with 50 points limit, are given for tennis and aerial darts; 25 points limit for stunt work.

Girls are awarded points for other paritcipation such as hiking, major assistants, scholarship, and health rules. These later two, although apart from the actual sporting region, are excllent additions to the program. A girl to receive points for scholarship must maintain a B average. Health rules cover some limitations, such as one cup of coffee per day, that all realize are excellent limitations, but which need this kind of willpower support. Other individual sports include track and field and swimming; the next team game will be soccer, in October. Captains are elected for each sport; no girl may be captain or manager of more than one sport during the year. The captain is chosen by the group vote.

After the entire list of members of Varsity is completed, the girls will be divided into the two teams—the Chillies, meeting at

Football, Football

By Bob Coles

So what do you know about football? It would be very interesting, to say the least, to hold a carefully prepared written examination at a football game some brisk November evening. Collect all the fans, pass out the paper and pencils to those who didn't have one on their persons, and give a little—what Maryville teachers like to call a pop-quiz. See just how much the fans really did know about the great American pastime of Football, or is it now a pastime or does it rank more in the realm of Big Business? What would the questions be like? Try a few sometime like these for a starter, just to get warmed up.

1. Explain the difference between the Split-T formation and the Notre-dame Box.

Differentiate between a cross-buck and a pitch-out.

3. List at least three defensive line-ups and explain each.

4. Explain at some length the origin of football.

Now there's one question we are willing to bet that even the most up to date fan, player, and coach would miss. In fact, we bet that nearly everyone would miss it in almost any kind of a crowd, at a football game or not. It all goes way back into the deep and very faintly known past, where we have few writings to guide us. In the beginning, the game we now play as football was anything but a game. It was one of the most serious events in the entire lives of the participants, something that no one took very lightly. It seems that long ago, in the most primitive of religions the world over, there existed a myth to the effect that there was a god who died in the fall of every year, and was resurrected in the spring. That this idea came from the turn of the seasons is easily seen, and that this god was soon made the god of fertility is also plain. Soon, to pacify and please this very powerful and very important god, services in his honor were held at the appropriate times in the year, almost always at the beginning of spring, when the god was thought to return to life. In very early times life was short and cheap, and the people had no Christianity to hold them in check as we do today, and so each year at spring they held a service to their god at which they drew lots among the villagers and the winner, or loser, depending always on which way you look at it, was decapitated and his head was chased around an open field, until some lucky devil captured it, whereupon he would take the head back to his field and bury it, hoping to bring the special blessing of the god upon his lands. (There seems to be some clinging to this practice of burying heads in at least some of the football games still played). Later on, of course, as people became more and more civilized, life became more and more precious, until at length, they no longer cut off a man's head, but used an inflated pig's bladder instead. From there the development was pretty gradual, down into rugby, and then to the American game as we play it.

Who Plays

Of course the game was not always to the strong and the big, as a matter of fact, it still isn't. If you don't believe this, go out to the Maryville practice field and look at our team. The game for centuries has wandered in a pendulum, from only the big and strong to the small and brainy. The day the forward pass was brought into the fray, football changed into a much more varied and interesting sport, until nowadays, some teams consider the game a failure if they don't throw at least twenty-five passes during the four quarters. It always seems that some of the better players are at least comparatively small. Witness such men as Hank Lauracella of the University of Tennessee last year who was not a big man, and his teammate, All-American Ted Daffer, or Bob Ward of Maryland, none of whom were big men at all. There are many exceptions to the rule of big men, but most sports people will always tell you that a good big man is better than a good little man in any sport that requires strength and just about in any other. There are other requirements than size. More and more brains are needed, especially in football. Larry Isbell, who sined a contract recently with the New York Yankees, the baseball variety, made a long statement to the effect that he thought that baseball was easier to play than football from the viewpoint that baseball took less brains.

What's This?

He said that baseball has been pretty well standardized. If you learn the basic moves you are pretty well set. "The plays are all well planned out ahead of time," Isbell said. When a certain play comes up, it has already happened a million times before in the history of the game and there are only a certain number of things that you can do with the ball. He admits of course, that great ball players do the right thing more often and faster than poorer ones, but he insists that if you have the reflexes and speed you can more easily play baseball, while in football, as he played it at Baylor last year, the players must be near geniuses to figure out what is going on. He says that every week you scout a team you play the next Saturday, and then practice all week. You have a few dozen plays of your own which you plan to use, and you set up your blocking assignments and pass plays to the defenses that the other team has made a habit of using, and set your own defense against the plays of the other school, then comes the game on Saturday, and the enemy uses a score of plays you have never seen before, and lines up in some new defense with the result that all the players have to adjust their blocking assignments on the spot and the best way they can. It does seem

Highlanders Drill For Opening Date

By Bob Coles

Fifty Men Train

Coach L. S. Honaker, head coach, line coach J. D. Davis, and assistant coach Scott Honaker continued to work with the fifty men who have reported for the Highlander grid machine this season. As opposed to last year, the coaches and team have so far at least been blesed with clear, hot weather in which to sweat a few extra pounds off those who need to lose weight.

The team has been running through dummy plays, not yet down to the more bruising and dangerous work that requires a lot of body contact, and probably would cause a few injuries that could be ill afforded by the team. The team, at least to relatively uneducated bystanders, must be said to look more than a little hopeful. This is not to say that the team looks as if it would receive a bid to the Cotton Bowl later in the fall, or even to the Tangerine Bowl, to which Maryville went in 1946, bu tit does look as if it would give everybody a decent fight, and with the football taking its funny bounces in Maryville's faor, perhaps even take its share of gridiron contests.

The coaches as yet are reticient about their views of the team, and rightfully so, since it will be after the first game at least before they, or anyone else, will be able to speak with anything better than guesswork about those old Maryville bugaboos, a passing attack, and more important perhaps a defense against an aerial attack by the Scottie opponents. Since the memory of this reporter the greatest weakness of the Maryville teams has been its inability to guard against the passing attack of its rivals. If this gap is plugged, at least to a greater extent, then a far more successful season may be forthcoming.

To help the passing attack, there may be hope among the new men to add depth to the ends, only three lettermen returning at that position, Frank Garren, Paul Merwin, and Dick Gardner. Besides these there are seven others out for that position, including Bob Davis, out in spring practice. If one or two of these new men should turn out to be a fast, deceptive, glue-fingered end of the "Crazy-legs" Hirsch type, the offense could go a long way.

At Tackle

Back to strengthen the Maryville line at tackle are Joe Bender, who holds the distinction of being the heaviest letterman on the team, weighing in at 200 pounds. To help him are Bobby Berrong and Dick Patton, along with two freshmen, including 220 pound Roy Hayes from Alcoa. Next to them will be only one letterman, Gene Russell at guard, and about five freshmen, some of whom seem to have the size whether or not they have the ability.

In The Middle

Four men are out to hold down the center slot, led by team captain Homer Garren, and Bill Breen who saw action last year. Two Freshmen from Alcoa and Maryville are also trying to cut into the returning men's monopoly, Gerald Harrison and Dave Lee.

Carrying the Mail

There are a number of men back to carry the ball. Keny Shepard erturns after an absence of two years. Also returning are lettermen Jerry King, Harold Glad, Wes Kinser, and Jim Campbell, and a host of new men, many of whom come with good high school references. Coach Honaker has high hopes that several of these will work neatly into the Highlander attack for the fall season, so some of the older men can get the rest they needed badly at times last year.

interpretation of the laws and rules.

Throughout the history of democratic society, it has been found that it is impossible to formulate any law, or laws, which will cope adequately with any and every situation that might arise within the jurisdiction of those laws. This is true because those laws invariably come in contact with that very real thing called human nature. Thus it has been found that something is needed, in addition to law. That extra "something," according to our Christian belief, is Love.

It is unfortunate, but true, that this contribution is very often apt to be forgotton by our governing bodies when they are involved in the rigors of law application and enforcement, even among those bodies which profess to adhere to the tenets of Christianity.

It is doubly unfortunate that such a thing should occur in the local democratic and Christian society of which we are members. Enforcement for the sake of enforcement is no longer thought to be the true course of action by most thinkers, if circumstances merit otherwise.

It seems quickly apparent then, that if a thorough investigation had been made of all of the circumstances, and the members made cognizant of the factors involved,—in their proper relationship—a recent enforcement of a penalty by our local democratic and Christian governing body would have been a little less precipitate.

The cause of the infraction having been completely removed, it would seem a little senseless to have applied a penalty merely for the sake of a penalty to those persons innocently, although justifiably (in the light of all those Christian ideals which we hold dear—of forgiveness and loyalty, and respect for human dignity, and brotherly love, and willingness to offer aid where it is quite obviously needed) involved.

It is not my purpose to ask for a withdrawal of the penalty. That is obviously impossible. I do hope that I have adequately expressed the viewpoint of several members of our society, stressing the need of our governing body to have a fuller understanding of those things with which it works.

This enlightenment is necessary if we are to have a governing body that is alive to all of the facets of its responsibilities.

Sincerely yours,

G. Edward Scott.

Speaking of Holidays!

In the Hawaiian schools, Miss Tom continued, the school system observes all American national holidays plus the holidays of Hawaii and the various national groups represented in the Hawaiian population. She will probably find that Maryville College's "holiday taking" system is quite different from the Hawaiian one.

She has been working in the MC library since August 25, three days after she received her degree from Peabody. "I think it's very nice here," she observed. "Everyone is very nice and friendly."

There Are So Many Yankees!

One of the things that surprised her was the number of students from northern states. "At Tusculum the student body was about 50 per cent yankee, but it surprised me to find so many here," she said. When Miss Tom used the word, "yankee", she asked, "That is what you call them, isn't it "

At the present time her greatest desire is to fly home during the Christmas holidays and see her family for the first time in over five years. She plans to take her scrapbooks and picture books to show her family.

She hasn't had any communication with her family since her coming to the mainland except by mail. "I don't want to talk to my family on the phone," she sighed, "I'm afraid it would make me more homesick."

If Eleanor Tom does realize her ambition of getting to see her family during Christmas, she will find Maryville's longer Christmas vacation a real help.

that the man has a point in what he says.

A Funny Thing

It does seem a bit odd, however, that so many more top-notch players seem to get hurt playing baseball than playing football. The football players do wear a great deal of protective clothing, and they say if you play hard and do things right, there isn't much chance of getting hurt, all other things being equal, (by that we mean if no one is out to "get" you.) While in baseball, by the very nature of the game, the small things will keep a player out. A sprained finger, or even a broken nose will not keep a good football player out if he is really needed, but in baseball, a man with a sprained finger can be a real detriment, rather than an asset.

A Miracle?

It does seem somewhat of a miracle when you see a game, or better yet, the pictures of a game, and realize that out of that, men actually emerged alive. The pictures of the Maryland-Tennessee game on New Year's day looked as if Neyland-Tatum, Inc. had invented a new machine for grinding up living humans, new and improved model. Yet most of the players emerged in nearly one piece. The secret, of course, is in being in shape, and that is why the players get out here on the practice field and go through all sorts of strange contortions in that blazing sun, so that when the game comes, there won't be too much chance of breaking more than your leg, if you are one of the lucky ones.

Highlanders Determined To End 20 Game Losing Streak Tonight

By Bob Coles

Tonight at eight p.m., the Maryville Scotties open their 1952 football season by entertaining the Hiwassee Tigers at Honaker Field, seeking their first win since 1949.

For weeks Coach Lombe S. Honaker has been working with the team and now expects to field a team that will average about 186 pounds in the line, and a backfield averaging around 171, featuring many new faces brought by a large freshman group, transfer students, and a few Korean veterans. Line coach J. A. Davis plans to introduce the two-platoon system into the line play, something he found impossible to do last year when he had so few linemen. This year, however, there are four full lines available, and at least until he gets a battle-tested view of the material, Davis will use a two-platoon system.

All-County

Four of the freshmen are All-County players of last season. Jimmie Harris, last year's Maryville High tailback, is fighting for a starting berth in the Scottie backfield, as is Jack Renfro, and Wayne Newman, all of whom showed up well in last week's Orange-Garnet scrimmage. Don Moore, Everett tackle has about clinched a berth on the varsity. Moore, a big rugged tackle, at 200 pounds, has looked good in pregame workouts. There are 27 freshmen out, 10 sophomores, eight juniors, and eight seniors, including seventeen lettermen.

Open Fight

No position is safe this year as Coach Honaker endeavors to build a winning team. At left end, co-captain Paul Merwin seems to have the inside track, but will see plenty of competition from Frank Garren, Bob Davis, Romeo Gren, a transfer from Hiwassee, and Marvin Boring. At the other end of the line, Dick Gardner is leading the race, but tall Jim Saunders from Alcoa and Charles Dunn from Florida will give him a race for his job. All of these positions will shift on the two-platoon system.

Larger Size

Next to Merwin, the offense will probably see Joe Bender, with LeRoy Wheatly and LeRoy Gooden will spell him. Don Moore and Dick Patton, switched from center, will share the right tackle slot, with the top tackle replacement being Ted Godfrey, a freshman from Townsend who has looked good in practice.

They Shall Not Pass

Left guards include Bobby Berrong, Rarrell Akers from Oak Ridge, Roy Hayes, 200 pound frosh from Alcoa who will most likely see action on defense. The other starting guard looks like Jerry King, blocking back for the past two years who has now been shifted to guard where his aggressive type of play can be most often felt. Harry Newberry will also see a lot of action, along with Gene Russell, all returning lettermen.

Homer Garren, team captain and letterman will start at center again this year, backed up by the fast-improving Bill Breen and several freshman candidates for the job.

A Wealth

For the first time since 1949, Coach Honaker has a lot of choice in the backfield. A look at the backs in the Orange-Garnet game revealed a number of men who looked as if they knew what they were trying to do. In addition to the veterans of last year, Harold Glad, Wes Kinser, Jim Campbell, Don Alford, Steve Bell. Tom Allen, and Snell Mills, the two Sheperds have returned. Budding stars two years ago when they earned their letters as freshmen, Keny and Clarence, have been fighting for starting berts. The star of last spring's Orange-Garnet game Jimmy Harris, who returned a punt for the game's lone score, has been trying hard to

Dougal To Lead Vespers

Vespers leader for this Sunday evening, September 21, is Mr. Don MacDougall, a representative of the Presbyterian Board of National Missions. He is in charge of missionary Sunday schools and churches in this area.

Vesper choir will lead the singing and contribute the special music.

Students Will Vote On Town Night Proposal

President Sally Brown urges all students to read the following Student Council Town Night Proposal in order that they will be prepared to ratify or reject it at the student body meeting to be held Thursday, September 25, after chapel.

This proposal must be ratified each year by the Student Council and the Student Body before it becomes effective for that year. Following are the provisions in effect last year.

Responsibility

The Student Council is to assume the responsibility of carrying out the plan and enforcing the terms. These special privileges are to be effective only as long as the Student Body is willing to cooperate fully with the Student Council and Executive Council of the Faculty. The Student Body is to signify its willingness to recognize the authority of the Student Council by a vote of approval of the plan.

Provisions

1. The special privileges are effective on Tuesday night on which no all-campus function has been scheduled. It shall be the duty of the Faculty Committee on Scheduling of Activities to designate which Tuesday night activities are to be considered all-campus.
2. Couples and groups of three or more girls are eligible for the privilege.
3. All girls must sign out in their dormitories before going to town, and sign in when they return. Girls without dates must remain in groups of three or more at all times.
4. The privilege goes into effect at 5:00 p.m. Town Night rules go into effect for all the campus at 7:15 p.m., and 5:00 p.m. for the areas in town. Ten twenty-five o'clock is the time limit.
5. Definite boundaries and limits are to be observed.
   a. Court, Cusick, and College Streets are the only streets to be used going to and from town. The College and Court Street gates and the Carnegie Steps are the only exits from and entrances to campus which may be used.
   b. In town the north and south limits are bowling alleys and the theatres. East and west limit boundaries are Broadway and Harper Streets (Bowling Alleys).
   c. The boundaries include Ellis Street between College Street and the Roller Skating Rink only, and Stanley and Miller Streets as far as Cates Street so as to include the College Hill Grill. Thus only the part of Cates between Stanley and Miller is on bounds.
   d. Students must walk directly from their dormitories to town and back to the dormitories; there shall be no loitering.
6. The usual rules of the College and restrictions of residential districts and campus areas are to be observed.

Penalties

It shall be the duty of the Student Council to inflict or recommend the following penalties.

1. Suspension of the Town Night privileges for two months of the school year for a. Being out of Bounds. b. Overstaying the privilege.
2. Suspension of the Town Night privilege for six weeks of the school year for a. Failure to be in groups of three girls or with a date at all times. b. Loitering.
3. Suspension of the privilege for a. Failure to sign out and in—three weeks. b. Failure to sign in—two weeks.
4. Suspension of the Town Night privilege for the remainder of the semester for breaking college rules and regulations. The (The Executive Council of the Faculty will inflict more severe penalty at its discretion.)
5. Three demerits for going to town during the time in which the privilege has been suspended.

Note

1. Girls are to remain at all times in groups of three or more.
2. Over-staying the privilege pen-

MSO Constitution Rejected By Men

179 Of 322 Men Vote In Poll

The constitution of the Men's Student Organization was rejected in the election held this week, it was announced by Ed Breitback, president-elect of the MSO.

Of about 322 college men, 179 voted in the election, with 107 men voting in favor of the constitution, and 72 voting against it. As provided in the constitution, two-thirds of number of men voters (at least two-fifths required) had to approve the constitution, which meant that 119 affirmative votes of the 179 cast were necessary for approval.

Commenting on the rejection, Breitbach said, "I think that the men of Maryville College have made a grave mistake. Because they have voted against the way the constitution was enforced, they also voted against the principle of self-government and against the content of the constitution, which they approved last year."

Just Four Years Ago

MSO is a comparatively new organization, for it was initiated in the spring of 1948, a little more than four years ago. It was formed by a nine man board in 1948, consisting of Carl Murry, chairman; Paul Yambert, Henry Heaps, "Tubby" Callaway, Bill Vogel, Tom Stovall, Bill Proffitt, Howard

No Echo Next Week

Due to financial difficulties again encountered this year, the Highland Echo will not be published every week.

Accordingly, there will be no paper published next week. Other issues will be omitted on October 11, October 25, and November 29.

Yearbook Pictures Slated For Monday

Chilhowean editor Walt Elwood has announced that pictures for the 1953 yearbook will be taken next week, beginning on Monday, in Baldwin basement. Days for having pictures made will not be allotted to the different classes, but all are urged to come during their free periods, especially the morning hours, so that the photographer will be kept busy all day.

Taking the pictures this year is Thompson Studio. The charge will be only one dollar for each person, and the cost of prints will also be low.

Senior women will wear drapes for the pictures, and senior men will wear tuxedo jackets. All other men will wear ties and coats. Junior girls are asked to wear light-colored sweaters, suit coats, and pearls. Sophomore girls will use sweaters and pearls. Freshman girls should wear sports blouses with dark scarves.

Allison Attends Summer School In Austria

F. Dean Allison, senior German major from Saleneville, Ohio, sailed to Europe June 2, 1952, for travel and study, and returned September 13.

Landing in La Harve, Allison visited Paris, and Germany where he traveled without expense for four weeks, spending nights in German homes. His main part of the summer was spent in Gumnden, Austria, in the northern Alps at the University of Vienna special summer session.

He Studied!

Allison took thirty hours of classes, (taught in English) during the six weeks period, receiving credit for World Diplomatic History from 1918-1945, History of Central Europe, and International Law, and auditing Geopolitics, Modern Economic Theories, and History of Austrian Art. The instructors were professors from the Universities of Vienna, Insbruck, and Gratz.

In his classes were twenty American students, thirty-three Austrians, one Arab, one French, two Norwegians, and two Swiss. Several times during the summer he visited the Salzburg music festivals, and six tours of Austrian historical and geographical interest were included in the six-weeks course.

Behind The Iron Curtain

After August 24 he returned to Germany, traveling through Strassburg, Munich, Garmisch Partenkerchen, Bonn and other cities. At one time Allison discarded his passport and spent three days behind the Iron Curtain.

He travelled both trips by student boat. On the trip over were 800 U.S. students, 150 under the auspicies of the Agricultural Department for study, and 300 going to workcamps of various church groups. Coming back he traveled with 150 German trainee students sponsored by the Moravian Church, the World Council of Churches, and the Labor Department, plus 850 other students.

Bushing Is Editor Of Special Studies

Arthur S. Bushing, assistant professor of English on leave for advanced study at UT and editor of special studies for 1952-53, is available three days a week at his desk in the library for consultation with seniors who are completing special studies this semester.

Mr. Bushing's hours are 7:30 to 9:30 p.m. on Monday, Wednesday, and Friday. His desk is located next to the door leading into the museum.

All seniors are urged to see Mr. Bushing, and to avoid waiting until the last minute before the deadline.

MC Band Elects Murphy Sponsor

Walker Named Band Leader

By Gail Brown

Barbara Anne Murphy, senior home economics major from Glen Ridge, N.J., and a Theta Epsilon member, was elected by the 1952 Marching Band to serve as Band Sponsor for the coming year.

Although the quota of band members is not yet filled, Mr. Curtis Hughes, assistant professor of music, announced the following members:

Walker Will Lead Band

Hugh Walker, senior, math major, Nashville, will lead the 1952 band as drum major; the twirlers are Edith Kienen, Ruth Orr, and George Carpenter; majorettes include Anegla Fords, Jolene Jones, Mary Alice Kemp, Faith Nellener, and Phyllis West.

The band will lead in the pep rally and at the Hiwassee game, tonight. Mr. Hughes promises another good year for the band.

Pep Rally

MC's traditional pre-game pep rally will be held at 1:45 this afternoon on the football field. The band will be there, and the cheerleaders will be on hand to lead in the yells.

Football team will be present and the players are to be introduced. The pep rally will wind up with the annual snake dance through downtown Maryville.

Everyone is urged to come out to support the team.

BARBARA MURPHY

Writers' Workshop Elects Durant

Jack Durant, senior English major from Birmingham, Alabama, was named chairman of the governing board of Writers' Workshop at a meeting held Monday, September 15.

Carolyn Symmes, senior English major from Cranbury, N.J., was chosen as secretary. Other members elected to the governing board were Bob Coles and Miss Jessie K. Johnson.

A membership board was also selected ,consisting of Walter Elwood, Sally Drum, Miss Carolyn Blair, and Miss Elizabeth H. Jackson.

Bob Coles will read Monday at the first regular meeting.

1952 Graduates Enter Varied Fields Of Work

By Abby Crosby

A large number of the class of '52 are enrolled at the different seminaries throughout the country. McCormick claims the largest number, with Marilyn Edge, Claude Cowen, Russell Owens, Charles Schwenke, Ralph Theissee, and Ken Upham in their first year there.

Chuck Holsinger, Lee Cook, and Frank Vigh are enrolled at Western; Bob Cuthill, Tom Jones, Jim Kren, and Austin Van Pelt are enrolled at Louisville; Wes Miles, Clarence Reaser, Ronald Fleming, and Jack Waka at Princeton.

George Day is enrolled at San Francisco Seminary; Dick Newman at Union in New York; Jerry Wheat at Pittsburgh-Xenia; Dave Reed at Yale Divinity; and Don Stillwell at Garrett Biblical Institute.

Seeley—A Student!

Carson Seeley is studying German and philosophy at the University of Tennessee and is working for his masters degree. While working with the Products and Chemical Corporation, Nashville, Dave Nolen is enrolled in the YMCA Night Law School.

Barbara Rosensteel is taking courses in Occupational Therapy and hopes to be with the Women's Medical Specialists Corps. Helen Sims is taking a diabetic internship at Michael Reese Hospital in Chicago, Ill.

Joan Titley is working for her Master of Library Science degree at the University of Illinois, Urbana, Ill. Maggie Warren is working and studying voice in New York City.

They Study

Pro And Con Situation

This editorial was written March 6, 1948, by Craig Fisher a few days before a campus-wide, two day poll vote of the men of the student body was to be made for the purpose of ratifying or rejecting the first constitution of the MSO. We feel that it is especially appropriate to reprint it now.

Safely past the Executive Council, the constitution of the proposed Men's Student Organization comes back to you, the men, for a vote on Wednesday and Thursday. We were unable to get letters to the editor from the leaders of both the pros and the cons giving the arguments for their positions, so we will try to weigh what seems to be the outstanding argument against it ourselves.

This, simply expressed, is the fear that the MSO will lead to a monitor system in the Men's dormitory. We feel qualified to speak because we, too, experienced this fear.

But for several reasons we have been convinced that it is unfounded:

1. A monitor system will not function for the men. Unlike the women, the men, would neither take discipline from themselves, nor would they be inclined to administer it. It would be unrealistic and doomed to failure.

2. Conditions remaining as they are, the men would never vote for a monitor system. The opposition is unanimous.

3. In the remote possibility that it were voted in by the men, they would find it so antagonistic that it would have small chance for survival. The elaborated precautions taken in the constitution against anything the men find wrong with their organization would insure its immediate death.

All of which, taken together, seems to us ample argument that any fear of the constitution is based on a fallacy that such a fear would never materialize as fact. On this basis we wish it bon voyage, and may it prove robust and effective in working in behalf of the men.

C.F.

The Death of MSO

The fact that the constitution of the Men's Student Organization was rejected this week means exactly what? Some will say that the men of Maryville do not want the opportunity and advantage of self-government. Some will say that the men have indicated that they are not sufficiently mature to carry out the responsibilities of self-government. And some will say that the men are unwilling to give the constitution enough time to operate and improve with time.

However, the fact that MSO was rejected means that enough men were dissatisfied with it to warrant its end. This does not mean that the men do not want the advantages and opportunities that come with self-government, or that they are insufficiently mature to carry on a self-governing body. It means that the men were not convinced that they had been given enough power to set up any sort of real student men government. And it means that the men are unwilling to accept any kind of government that emphasizes police action alone!

If the MSO had been constructed to allot more responsibility to the men, if MSO had emphasized its more constructive objectives (like possible material improvements in Carnegie), if MSO had not emphasized police action alone, it would have been, we think, overwhelmingly endorsed by nearly all the men.

Until such a government is constructed, the men will not tolerate an organization based only on monitors and policing.

Scots & Soda

By Carol Moore

Not knowing what bakery goods and beverages will appear in the title of this week's column, I hardly know how to begin. But since I've gotten this far, I'll consider myself begun, and be shocked with the rest of you when I spy something like Tea and Crumpets in the little box.

* * * *

By popular request I bring you this question of the week. "Where did Dick LeBeau lose his keys?" It all seems rather confusing to me. If anyone knew the answer to the question, he'd probably say so, therefore making it possible for Dick to retrieve them. (These boys from Carnegie are a strange bunch. . . . they think this whole situation is hilarious!) By the way Dick, where did you last see them?

* * * *

Grapefruit! Grapefruit! Grapefruit! I hear they were really flying around Carnegie this week. It's shame, though, that Paul Merwin was used for the target. A football player is a football player is a FOOTBALL PLAYER and they must be protected!! Remember? This year we're going to WIN! !

* * * *

Speaking of winning, let's do just that, if for no other reason than to hear the bell ring after 7:15 p.m. When you stop to consider that over half of MC has never heard the victory bells ring, you can see that it's time for a Scotty victory. C'mon boys! Let's make it tonight! !

* * * *

After seeing what happened when Francis, the talking mule, was enrolled at West Point: I was tempted to write to Hollywood to see if we could borrow him (?), her (?), (to get on with the story), for our '52 season. We might have a hard time convincing Honaker to take his (?), her (?., (to get on with the story), advice, but given a chance I'm sure that he (?), she (?), (to get on with the story) would prove himself (same as before) a fine addition to our coaching staff.

It seems that francis (now it's neuter!) has the strange and mysterious power of reading the opponent's mind. And it also seems that an animal such as this, with a brain such as this, would come in very handy-dandy about now since we have tried everything else to no avail.

However, Student Council warned me that it was an utterly preposterous idea. They were sure that Francis would demand at least one chance a semester to come in late on Town Night, and they wanted me to understand that under NO CIRCUMSTANCES is one allowed to come in after 10:25 p.m. And (to quote) that is that!

I never wrote the letter to Francis, I didn't think she'd care for the penalty of two-and-a-half months campus, so it's now up to us, which it should be. Get the Scottie spirit and, donkey or no, we'll have a success season!

* * * *

Notice to Freshmen: It is traditional that all members of the freshman class wear their best footwear to the football games held at Maryville during their freshman year. This tradition is very old, and is held sacred by upper classmen who showed the utmost of respect for their new school by wearing hose and heels, new bucks, suedes, or their finest leather shoes. It is expected that ALL members of the freshmen class will enter into this with one thought in mind, "My only regret is that I have but one life to give to Maryville College."

Not to Upper Classmen: Tee Hee Hee!

* * * *

When asked what she wore in the Theta Fashion Show Thursday afternoon, 'E' McMillan replied quickly, "Nothing!" Have you no shame, dame!

* * * *

And now we go on a vacation. No paper next week. . . . but when we return—hope we'll be bragging about a FOOTBALL WIN! ! ! !

TALK OF THE WEEK

Voices, Masks, and Shadows

By Emily Smith

THE GREAT WHITE WAY . . .

The cinema offering at the Capitol next Tuesday and Wednesday is the much touted "The World in His Arms." Gregory Peck is a roistering sea captain who gives the Russians in Alaska a hard time (period is 1850), making off not only with valuable seal pelts, but also with one of their prettier countesses, Ann Blythe. The movie is in Universal Technicolor which is supposed to be good, and has lots of exciting action, which is more than we can say for the end-of-the-week offering at the same theater. "Cimarron Kid" stars the handsome (?) young Audie Murphey but is just the same familiar old whitewashing of Western outlaws by our hero. It's in color.

Tuesday and Wednesday at the Park we have "Callaway Went Thataway" with Howard Keel, Fred MacMurray, and Dorothy McGuire. A rather involved plot helps to spoof the TV cowboys without insulting them too much.

Thursday and Friday offers "Young Man with Ideas," a screwball comedy with a few serious side glances about an ambitious young lawyer played by Glenn Ford. You could go along just to look at his leading ladies, though, Ruth Roman and Denise Darcel.

BOOKS . . . Old and New . . . we find on the new books table eight books on England that should be interesting— for the delightful caracatures, if nothing else. They are by varied authors, all thin little books on politics, history and customs of the nation. They are edited by W. J. Turner and published by Collins of London. All are of current interest and should give us a true insight into our friends across the Atlantic.

Two books on the theatre intrigued us. The first is "Conscience on the Stage" by Harold Ehrensperger, in which he discusses the relation of drama and the church. He does not attempt to advise on actual production but defines the relationship and the uses of drama in the religious sense. The idea is advanced that any really good drama has religious meaning, regardless of whether or not it deals with the Bible or some strictly church-connected matter.

And More Books

"Masks, Mimes, and Miracles" by Allardyce Nicoll is sub-titled "Studies in the Popular Theatre." He gives a detailed history of the earlier theatre, presented in a form to interest the casual reader or the more intent researcher. It is a large, heavy book with many excellent illustrations.

Most of us have heard or read of the "Syntpoicon", the 102 great ideas which have been selected, compiled, edited, and published. The edition which was presented to the college last spring is on display now in the library, and book lovers can be impressed by only looking at them in the glass case. It is a rare collection of thought, and he who has time and intellect to read and understand it is to be envied. Perhaps, though, we can absorb something from looking at them.

Contemporary Poetry

While still in the realm of literature, we feel obliged to mention the Louis Untermeyer anthology being used as text for contemporary poetry class this year. He has included everything from Walt Whitman to the inimitable Ogden Nash in the American section. Trying to "catch up" on a week's work has prevented inspection of the British section.

And also we must not forget to mention that there is a new Pogo book out. This one is "I Go Pogo." Don't miss it! Walt Kelly has outdone himself once more. The innocent little possum has long since stolen the hearts of many of us, and there is always something new to laugh at, no matter how many times you read about him.

A PLUG FOR THE BOOKSTORE

. . . Agitating for unavailable textbooks in ye olde bookstore other day, Doc Grittitts showed us a copy of the new Revised Standard Version of the Bible. The New Testament has been available a few years but we are just now getting the complete Bible. Some of the more poetic books have been printed in poetry form (free verse, Dr. Hunter), which should make for easier reading as well as more enjoyment of the beauty of the words themselves.

WE SHALL HAVE MUSIC . . . We wish to take this opportunity to congratulate the new members of both the Vesper choir and the Glee Clubs. The experience and fellowship are invaluable. The best of luck in the new year!

It's pretty tough to try to pat one's own back, but I shall attempt it here. Only four more days and I, too, will be able to sing with the choir again. They're going to unwire me Tuesday! I hereby challenge all takers to a battle of words with the jaws held rigid!

ADLAI TAKES AIM

Gov. Adlai E. Stevenson headed his "propeller-stop" campaign into the East the latter part of this week.

Stevenson left his Illinois base of operations with the advice and good wishes of a new, if temporary, advisor, Sen. J. William Fulbright (D-Ark.), Fullbright told reporters candidly that Stevenson faced a "tremendous problem in getting the people acquainted with the kind of man he is, the way he thinks" and getting as many basic questions as possible on record before the pace of the Presidential race is stepped up in October.

Fulbright said that he feared the "Taft-Eisenhower coalition" would mean that in the event of Eisenhower's election, the Ohio senator "would be in a dominant position for at least four years."

GENERAL RESUMES TOUR

Gen. Dwight Eisenhower returned to the corruption issue on his way to a major farm speech at Omaha, Neb.

Crossing politically doubtful Iowa, and bidding for Iowa's 10 electoral votes, the Republican presidential nominee dropped his criticism of Gov. Adlai E. Stevenson for the latter's quipping approach to some of the campaign issues.

PUSH-BUTTON WARFARE

American guided missiles already have been hurled at Communist targets, and enough are immediately available in the Far East to launch large-scale attacks against the Reds, the Navy announced in Tokyo.

It is just a question of time until guided missiles will take over aerial war; they can be refueled in air, thus making continent-to-continent warfare possible.

LEWIS SEEKS PACTS

John L. Lewis, head of the United Mine Workers union, was reported trying to win over soft coal owners one by one to his contract terms. Most of the soft coal industry, at this time, seem to be set against bowing to the union chief's money demands.

Presbyterian Church Will Open December

The New Providence Presbyterian Church now in construction, located on the upper end of Broadway Street, will be ready for services by December, it has been recently announced.

Almost completed are the sanctuary and the basement, and the concrete floor of the basement. The steel framework of the three floors in the education building is up. The architect's plans stated that the pews and stained glass windows will be ready by the end of the year.

The church is open every Sunday afternoon, 2:00 to 5:00 p.m. for those who would like to witness the growth of the new church.

ECHO FORUM

To The Editor of The Highland Echo:

Have you ever stopped to think what part you play in making Maryville the college which will give you the success you seek as a member of its student body? Yes, it's entirely up to you. . . what you gain from your classes . . . how valuable the friendships made. . . and your adjustment and happiness here on the campus.

In planning the social calendar for the coming year we are interested in knowing what type of campus social functions You would like to participate in. The only way to know what kind of programs you are looking for on Maryville campus is to hear your suggestions. Your opinions and ideas are not only welcomed but sought.

Do make this your campus by placing your suggestions in the boxes which will be located in the lobby of each dorm during the coming week. To have an active social life it will be necessary for all students to prove their enthusiasm for one.

Your social board is waiting to hear from you!

Sincerely yours,
Betty Hammers,
Social Board Chairman

Sports Echoes

By Bob Coles

Every year now for the last fifty years around about the twentieth of September, a football season has begun on the campus of Maryville College. When a thing has gone this long, you might almost say it has reached the level of a tradition. For weeks now, all we have been hearing around the campus are remarks that maybe this year we will win a game, and this page and this author have made as many of these remarks as anyone. Perhaps the impression has been erroneously given that Maryville has been chronically a losing school.

Not so at all

In the words of one of Maryville's more eminent professors, this is "Not so! Not so at all!" Over the years the record of this school has been at least as good as nearly any large and powerful university that you would care to name. The game has been played here longer than any of the great state universities has even been in existence. Way back in 1903 the string of uninterrupted games began. The rest of these figures are the product of Maryville President Lloyd, figures which he gave in his speech Monday night at the booster dinner at Pearsons Hall, more about which we will say later. Through sixty years of intercollegiate football, Maryville has played a total of 390 games. Of these, we have won 199 and lost 170, tying 21. (This means that the first game that Maryville wins this year will be the 200th win in the history of the school). Since Coach Honaker arrived to take over thirty-one years ago, his teams have won 139, lost 104, and tied 13. Since Pearl Harbor, th eteams have taken forty wins and lost the same number, despite a string of twenty losses in a row. Three times Maryville team shave gone unbeaten, in 1903, 1915, and 1946.

The Teams

The teams we played in years gone by are now numbered among the nation's most powerful, mostly through the influence of money, coming from one place or another. The names of the universities of Tennessee, Chattanooga, Vanderbilt, and Kentucky appear often on the Highlander schedules up to 1942 when Chattanooga appears for the last time, Kentucky for the last time in 1938, when they administered a 46-7 licking; and U.T. appears for the final time in 1937, when they won, 19-0. Through the years the scores have often gone in Maryville's favor, the worst beaten we ever gave U.T. in football coming in 1906, when we downed the Knoxville lads 11-0. The worst defeat ever taken by a Scottie eleven was in 1912, when the Commodores of Vanderbilt ran up a 100-0 score in the midst of Maryville's longest schedule of thirteen games.

The Way

So our records through the years have been good. True, for the last two years and a half, Maryville football teams have never tasted the sweet flavor of victory. This year has been hailed as the beginning of a new era in Maryville football, when the tide turns the other way. Last year, the support that the team received from the town was confined to the attendance of a few individual people with no organized effort on the part of any organization to give any aide to the team. The conditions here on the Hill were very little better. Student attendance was disgraceful, even considering the often bad weather. The pep and general attitude was one of, "well, so what?

Perhaps that is a good question, so what does it matter if you go to the games or the pep rallies? It seems that it matters a great deal, when you get right down to the roots of the matter. It is all tied up with the whole concept of Maryville principles. Every year, a large group of young men who happen to have been blessed with the right physical attributes go out for football. There are a lot blessed with even better prowess who do not go out. Those men on the football field, often wallowing in the mud, r in a heavy rain are not getting anything for their efforts, except perhaps a letter. Every year stories make the rounds that so and so is getting paid to play football. Not by the college, perhaps, but nevertheless getting paid, else why under the sun would so proficient an athlete ever come to Maryville College, choosing that from among many from whom he could have had a lucrative offer, to one where he gets nothing. Therefore, so and so gets paid. This paper has no way of knowing whether or not those stories are true. The college and the coaches say no one gets a scholarship for athletics, and that has always been enough for most people. Then why do they come, the cynic asks with a leer. The answer is simple, because they find in Maryville what they want in a college, the same reason everyone else came here. Perhaps what Homer Garren or Paul Merwin want (we mention them because they are the co-captains) is it not the same thing you want, or perhaps it is, but they came because Maryville offers what they want in a college, not money. If those men, then, will play football for love of the game and the school they play it for, then the town from which so many come, and the people with whom they live in school should have the spirit they have, and show support and pep.

Half Done

The job is at least half done. Over the winter months the men of Maryville formed a booster club to back the team, with the result that many of the area's better high school performers are now coming to Maryville. The freshman turnout at football practice is one of the largest in many years. The men of the town gave jobs to many players during the summer so that they could enter Maryville—if they chose to. Many boys would normally have missed the chance to go to college it it were not for the generosity of these men, or at best would have had to go on afotball scholarship, with all the commitments that that implies. At Maryville and from Maryville they receive no favors or monetary support that all other students do not receive.

Well, So What?

And now the question again, so what? The boys are here, they are practicing, the people of Maryville are doing all they can to help make football good at the school, so the rest is now up to the student bdy. Get behind the team, in thought, word, and action. Back it up, and the team can win. This much at least is the duty of every student of Maryville.

Appeal

Attention all those connected with the Intramural program! This week the touch football season opened. Through the first three days, and the first three games, two of them have been forfeited. If there is to be any program at all through the year the teams must show up.

New Men

Are there no men at Maryville who are interested in writing for the sports page? Help is badly needed this year, but more is needed next when only two staff members return. Anyone who even likes the idea of trying out, please get in touch with one of the editors.

LEFT IN

Actually Women's Varsity had their first official meeting Tuesday, as brilliantly predicted last week. There are about 33 girls in each group, which is a goodly number but still could be larger. Both Tuesday and Thursday were spent this week practicing tumbling and stunts, with next week reserved for the tests in the feats —points coming up! Barb Rodgers demonstrated the skills, and the girls began standing on their heads gleefully.

Also, Varsity members are in the midst of the tennis tournament. It should remind those girls who have games to be played to get them off and not hold up the line. After all, we want to know who the winners are.

Women's M Club had their first meeting this week—September 11. After this they meet once a month on a Monday. Barabra Rodgers, president, brought up a discussion of possible projects the club might work with the object being to create useful projects that are ultimately for the betterment of the campus and school.

Added to this discussion were talk and plans for the annual fall hike. A few facts definite are

Garnet Team Takes Practice Game, 18 - 12

By Rolfe Duggar

A hard-hitting "Garnet" team swooped down on a bewildered "Orange" squad last Saturday for three quick touchdowns and then coasted on to an 18-12 win. It was the first full scrimmage for the 1952 Maryville College football team.

Coach Lombe Honaker, in an effort to find out where his strength lies, divided his fifty-three man squad into two teams for the scrimmage. Both looked equal at the opening kick-off, but within minutes the "Garnets" showed their superior punch.

Freshmen Stars

Play was hard and gave the spectators a good idea of things to come. Both sides were sparked by freshman, four of whom were on the Blount County All-Star team last year. They are Jimmy Harris, Don Moore, Wayne Newman and Jack Renfro. The chances of the Scots breaking their twenty game losing streak looked good if the boys play as hard in a real game.

Harold Glad opened the game by kicking off to Bob Shelton. A few plays later Glad left the field with a bloody nose. Though he did not realize it until after the game he had suffered a broken nose. He went on to play most of the second half.

An Important Arm

Steve Bell showed he had a couple of good runs up his sleeve early in the game. The first long gain of the afternoon came on a beautiful psas play from Wesley Kinser to James Saunders for a thirty yard gain. Kinser, who threw from about twenty yards behind scrimmage, is expected to lead the Scotty aerial attack this year.

A few tries later Don Alford drew first blood for the "Garnet" boys on a optional buck-lateral play from five yards out. There were no extra point tries during the scrimmage.

Dick Patton then kicked to Jimmy "Flash" Harris, a Maryville High School star last year. The "Orange" team then tried to get back into the ball game. Wayne Newman, another local high school star last year, ran a good play and then Harris took the ball for a first down. Failing to pick up any more ground Harris punted the ball downfield.

The Jack Rabbit

Shelton then made a surprise showing, with what we hope is an indication of things to come, by carrying the ball off-tackle for a sixty-four yard touchdown run. It might rather have been called a limping dash as Shelton is still suffering slightly from last years broken leg, but it was good enough to outrun the eleven amazed "Orange" men. "Garnet" then had a 12-0 lead.

Earl Lawson, another freshman hopeful, ran three nice consecutive plays to pick up a "Garnet" first down. Alferd then carried the ball for ten yards. Jim Campbell then ran a heartbreaker when he ran end for twenty-five yards and a touchdown only to have the play nullified by a back-field in motion penalty.

Learn Those Rules!

Later when "Buddy" Gilbert, transfer tudent from Wofford College and candidate for the quarterback slot, tried a punt for the "Garnets" he was roughed up; so a new rule had its first Maryville airing. That is, when a kicker is roughed up the offensive team receives an automatic first down.

O. L. Davis, freshman and former Porter High School star, then put on a one man offensive show. On a spin-buck Davis picked up twenty-three yards. Tnen he passed to Bob DeLozier, another freshman, for fourteen yards to the "Orange" five yard line. Davis then carried it over on an inside tackle play. The "Garnets" then held a commanding held a commanding 18-0 lead.

Times Awaistin'

Evidently feeling that it was now time for the "Orange" squad to get back into the ball game substitutions were made strengthening them. This brought on a series of good runs for the "Orange-men." Harris picked up eighteen on a buck-lateral. Clarence Shepard carried it for eight yards. Newman took it to the nine on a seven yard run. Harris picked up three and Newman four to put the ball on the two. Then Newman took honors by scoring on a line buck for the "Orange-men." The score then read 18-6.

A few plays later the "Orange" squad again took possession of the ball and began the long march to a TD. O. L. Davis picked up eight, but not enough for a first down.

Maryville Coaches Prepare For Season Opener

Cross-Country Team Practices For Opener

Coach Kenneth Johnson's 1952 cross-country team holds its first official time trial this afternoon at three o'clock over the woods course. This is the first of several time trials which will help Coach Johnson to pick out his seven starters for the first meet October 4 with William Jennings Bryan University at Dayton.

The course is laid out mainly in the woods except for two laps around the track and a jaunt across the golf course at the beginning and two laps around the track at the end. The total distance is four and two-tenths miles. The average time for the course is twenty-four to twenty-five minutes.

". . . UT For Practice . . ."

Coach Johnson announced that he is near an agreement with UT for several practice jaunts in between regular meets. He emphasized them as being for practice only and not regular meets. Sweden's gift to UT, Alf Homberg, won't be with the team this year due to his mother's illness.

Captain of the team is Dick Kerr from Fair Lawn, N.J., Because of a week long cold Kerr will not run in the first time trial. The only other letterman besides Kerr is Rod McMillan from Los Angeles, Calif.

Other hopefuls out for the vacancies on the team include Dave Helwig, Herb Catlin, Morris Taylor, Dick "Bugs" Ebright, Jim Sanford, Paul Payne, Herb Kauhle, Homer Rickabaugh, A. C. Williams and Bob Vandergrift.

Does It Work Here?

Coach Johnson follows the Farhlick method of training which means "play with running." The method originated in Sweden and is responsible for developing many of Sweden's great long distance runners. It was first put into operation here on the hill several years ago.

INTRAMURAL INFO

The Intramural Scene

By Hersch Mosier

Touch Football

The intramural touch football season opened September 15, with seven teams answering the call. The teams are Alpha Sigma, Athenians, Local Yokels, Pre-Mins, Rebels, YMCA, and the Y-High Pockets. When the season is over October 13, each team will have played all the other teams once. All games that have to be postponed because of the weather will be played off during the week of October 13.

Y Swamps Athenian 31-0

After Alpha Sigma won by forfeit over the Rebels in the opening game Monday, the Y Crew, featuring a snappy pasisng attack, smothered a game team representing Athenian 31-0. Here is a summary of the contest.

Athenian won the toss and elected to receive. After a short runback of Buster Haylock's kick off, Athenian made a short gain on their first play and then succeeded in getting a first down. The Y line stiffened, and Athenian failed to gain any more ground and had to kick. Immediately after they received the ball, the Y passing attack began to roll. Bill Van Benthysen passed to Jimmy Cammings for close to a first down as the first period ended.

On the first play of the second period a Benthysen pass to Cummings gave Y a first down in Athenian territory. Just when it looked like Y might lose the ball on downs Benthysen lofted a pass to Cummings who hit paydirt for the first score of the ball game. After an unsuccessful attempt for the extra point, Haylock got off a good kick-off which went into the end zone. Ralph Force attempted to run the ball out of the end zone but he was nailed deep in Athenian territory. After failing to make a substantial gain George Kipp attempted to get a kick, but "strongman" Hank Van Hassel smashed through the Athenian line and blocked the kick. Lee Counts fell on the ball and Y had the ball within five yards of the goal line. On the second play of this sequence Benthysen clicked with a pass to Cummings who scored his second touchdown. Haylock's attempt for the extra point was no good. After receiving the kick, Athenian attempted a passing attack of their own, but Cummings intercepted Ralph Force's pass. Realizing that the first half was almost over, Haylock heaved a long pass which Herb White, making a circus catch, snared a few yards from the goal. As the first half ended.

The third period opened with Athenian kicking off. After receiving the kick, Counts completed a pass to Jimmy Demer for a first down. After three unsuccessful plays Grippo of Y gambled and chucked a pass on fourth down only to have it intercepted by Walt Hiller deep in Athenian's own territory. Unable to dent the Y's defense, Athenion lost the ball on downs. The third period ended shortly thereafter.

On fourth down Benthysen completed another pass to Cummings for the Y's fourth touchdown. Haylock's attempted kick for the extra point was no good. After gaining possession of the pigskin, Athenian failed to get its attack going and had to kick. On the second play after the punt return deadeye Benthysen completed a pass to Haylock. Then Benthysen passed to Cummings for the Y's fifth and final touchdown. Finally after four unsuccessful tries Haylock made an extra point. The game ended a few minutes later. Wednesday's game between Pre-Mins and the Local Yokels went to the former by forfeit. Alpha Sigma and Athenian will be played on October 14.

This season the National Collegiate Touch Football rules are being used. Here are the main ones: a. A regulation football field divided into five twenty yard zones will be used. b. A touch tackle is made by touching the ball carrier with one hand between his shoulders and knees.

Boring Visits Campus

Donald Robert Boring, one of Maryville's more distinguished sports figures, returned to the scene of many of his sports glories this week when he visited the Maryville campus. Boring will be remembered as one of Maryville's top athletes by the seniors, who were freshmen during his senior year. On the Scottie eleven, Boring played fullback, and is remembered as one of the best kickers that Maryville has ever had. In basketball, he was a hard-driving guard, and set a record for individual scoring in a single game, until Meano Shields topped it last season.

Baseball

Baseball, however, was Boring's greatest forte. After playing stellar ball at Maryville, he was signed up by the New York Giant organization and sent to Elizabethton in the Class D Appalachian League, where he led the league in hitting with a .388 average, and home runs, with 26, placing second in fielding among the shortstops. The next year, after a trial with Newark, he went to Jacksonville in the Class A Sally League, where he hit .303. Last season, the one just completed, he played with Nashville in the Southern Association, where, playing in 126 games he hit .323, 13 home runs, and drove in 77 runs batting second. He plans now to spend the winter in Puerto Rico, the equivalent of AAA ball, and next year to try for a berth with the Giants. After two years at shortstop with Elizabethton and Jacksonville, Boring was switched to second base at Nashville, and believes that he will be tried at third in Puerto Rico, as the giants try to find a top-notch third baseman.

Dr. Hunter

You think football is rough, but thank your lucky stars that you weren't a fan in 1721, when a master of ceremonies read poetry to the crowd from mid-field for an hour before the game to soften them up. Dr. Hunter, how about it?

Box Scores

Opponents Open Seasons

Carson-Newman

Last week-end, two of Maryville's gridiron opponents opened their football campaigns with differing luck. At Jefferson City, the Carson-Newman Eagles dropped a game to Middle Tennessee State, an old Maryville opponent, 19-7, in a rather surprising score, since Carson-Newman was expected to do better than that. As usual, Hubert Ashe, Maryville's nemisis of last year, led the Eagle attack with a forty-two yard pass and a twenty-five yard run. He also kicked the point.

Emory and Henry

The Wasps of Emory and Henry, Maryville opponents on the 18th of October, opened their season on a different note by trouncing Concord College 42-0. This two was a surprise too, since last year's team won by only 40-2. Emory was led by Creed Bruce, Bunny Saltz, and Brownie Polly.

A Mile

. . .Here's one for the cross-country fans, who worry about putting a mile behind them. The record for rowing a boat a mile in five minutes; ice skating, 2:38.4; walking, 6:25.8; roller skating, 3:04.4; running, 4:01.4; and on snowshoes, 4:18.3-5. Last, but not least, specialist Henry Page estimates taking a girl for a walk of one mile would take three hours and 45 minutes.

Some Runner

In 1923, Red Grange gained 1,260 yards rushing, never attempting a single pass.

FOOTBALL GAME . . .

nail down the starting tailback job. Aside from the Sheperds and veterans, his chief competition has ben coming from Bobby Shelton, who broke his leg early last year and reports that it still bothers him a little, and Earnest Raulerson, one of five men from Inverness, Florida, Bob Lawson, from Sevierville, also looked good in Saturday's game.

Quarterbacks will be Don Alford, Jack Renfro, or Buddy Gilbert, a recent transfer from Wofford College.

Hit That Line

The starting fullback will be chosen from among Harold Glad, who did most of the work last year, Wesly Kinser, who can still throw the long pass, Wayne Newman, a hard running boy from Everett, and O. L. Davis from Porter High. Jim Campbell, Steve Bell, Tom Allen and maybe one of the Sheperds wil fight it out for the wingback job.

The Opponents

Very little is known about the Hiwassee Tigers this years, or the Jacksonville Gamecocks who play here next week. Indications seem to point that the Tigers will not be as strong as they have been the last few years when they won 30-20 and 7-6. Over the years, the two teams have met a total of thirteen times with Maryville winning ten and dropping three.

Student-Help Program Employs 260 Students

This year 260 students, or over one-third of the Maryville student body, are employed under the student-help program, Mary Miles, Director of Student-Help, has announced. This program has had a long and successful history, beginning in the 1830's when board cost 10 dollars a year.

To reduce expenses for the students the faculty made it possible to work one day a week at the college farm. In return for this work, the bill was brought down to only $7.50 a year.

All Kinds of Work

Types of work done by students now include such jobs as waiting tables, carrying mail, washing windows, mimeographing, modeling for the art department, dusting erasers, typing, assisting various faculty members, cleaning, sewing in the College Maid Shop, selling ice cream at the Student Center, being a life guard, helping in the library, working on the campus crew, and assisting the house mothers.

75 Waiters And Waitresses

Of the students employed under the student-help plan, 75 work as waitresses and waiters in the dining hall. Time spent on the various jobs ranges from 1 to 12 hours a week. Miss Miles also announced that people interested in work may make their applications at any time at her office in Anderson Hall.

In addition to opportunities offered to work, student loans have been made this year to 110 students. Their amounts totaled over 2,000 dollars. These loans are to be repaid this semester.

"A new booklet describing the student-help program will soon be in the hands of the students," Miss Miles said.

TENNIS TOURNAMENT

This week the open tennis tournament is taking place on the Maryville courts. In singles play former MC tennis star Chesley Anderson is seeded first and Clyde McCampbell is seeded second. In opening round matches Chesley Anderson defeated George Roberts 5-7, 6-3, and 9-7; and Kent Buser defeated Marshall England 6-4, and 6-2 to fill the upper bracket semi-final post. Ed Breitback defeated John Anderson 7-5 and a forfeit, and will oppose Clyde McCampbell who defeated Dave Helwig 6-1 and 6-4.

In doubles play, the duo of C. Anderson and McCampbell is seded first and the duo of J. Anderson-Buser is seeded second. In the only doubles match played so far the team of Breitback-England defeated J. Anderson-Buser 1-6, 6-4, and 8-6. Yesterday the semi-finals in singles was played as well as the C. Anderson-McCampbell vs. Lebold-Helwig. Today weather permitting the finals in both singles and doubles will be played.

SCRIMMAGE . . .

Newman then took the ball on fourth down on a fake punt play for six yards and a first down.

Oh, That Boy!

On successive runs Campbell and Clarence Shepard picked up another first down. Campbell then hit the headlines with a thirty-seven yard run off his right end for the last touchdown of the day.

Only other spectacular play was an eighteen yard pass from Lawson to Steve Bell for the "Garnets." Play after that was hampered by rain which finally caused the scrimmage to be called. Final score was 18-12 in the "Garnets" favor.

Only other injury of the day to amount to anything besides Glad's nose resulted before the start of the scrimmage when Paul Merwin crashed into a spectator. The unidentified man suffered a gash on the head. Merwin was trying to catch a pass that went off the playing field near the players bench.

Societies Close Rush Activities

Theta Epsilon and Alpha Sigma closed three picturesque days in Holland with the production of "Two Yanks in Holland," written by Naomi and Ruth Burgos and directed by Pat Halstead and Naomi Burgos.

Using a similar theme to that of "The Red Mill," the show featured Sally Butts, Don Brakebill, Harry MacCall, Joe Stater, Bill Davis, Dock Jennings, Elizabeth Murphy, Arnold Munn, Pat Ingles, Helen Seay, and a ten member chorus.

Earlier in the week new students were entertained at a Splash Party directed by Jackie Kendall and Ginny Smith, and at a fashion show, directed by Barbara Scott and Phyllis West. Co-chairmen for the Holiday in Holland were Pat Halstead and Arnold Munn.

A.B.'s Gave Merryville Midway

Last week members of Athenian and Bainonian societies presented "Life of the Merryville Midway," under the direction of Millie Mowery, Jo Bash, Jim Hunt, and Bruce Heuser.

Entertainment included a party in the woods planned by Abby Crosby, Jeannine Fiori, and Charlie LaRue. Shirley Postlethwaite, Ethel Shockley, and Jack Barber handled publicity.

Students Will Choose Tuesday

Tuesday is the day for joining the society of your choice. All new students are urged to sign up at one of the usual polling places.

Mission Film To Head Student Vols Program

"And Now Tomorrow", a full length film, will constitute the program for Student Vols this Sunday night, September 21, in Bartlett Hall, immediately following Vespers.

With its theme as National Missions, this ninety minute motion picture, will present one aspect of the many Student Vols activities, as presented in last week's skit.

"And Now Tomorrow" tells the story of National Missions from their most insignificant beginnings til the immediate present. It was first presented last spring, at Carnegie Hall, New York City, and was enthusiastically received.

Sunday School To Hold Picnic At Laurel Lake

The annual Sunday School picnic for New Providence Presbyterian Church will be held this Tuesday afternoon and evening at Laurel Lake.

Transportation will be provided from the church beginning about 2:30 p.m. Games will be played in the afternoon and food will be provided.

All college students who attend New Providence Sunday school are invited to attend.

Dr. Cragan To Address Pre-Meds Thursday

Pre-med Club will meet Thursday night at 6:45 in the chemistry lecture room in Fairweather, according to President Emerson Flurkey.

Dr. Mary Cragan, a local practitioner, will speak on the qualities necessary for the medical profession. All students interested in science and medicine are welcome.

Rodemann Will Speak To German Club Monday

German Club will meet at 6:45 Monday evening in the language laboratory. Miss Ingeborg Rodemann will speak about her trip to Germany this summer, and will show pictures to illustrate her talk.

German Club is open to all students who are interested in German history and culture. Everyone is invited to attend this first meeting of the school year.

Stein Directs Dancing Classes Every Tuesday

Social dances are held each weekday night except Tuesday and Saturday in the Intramural Gym between 6:30 and 7:15 p.m.

Free classes in dancing are held on Tuesday night, under the leadership of Bill Stein, junior philosophy major from Wilkes Barre, Pa.

Bainonian Meets Tonight

Bainonian will meet tonight at 6:15 in Bainonian Hall. Chapter chairmen and treasurers will be elected.

President Ladonna Baylor urges all members to attend.

4. Any stopping between the dormitory lobby and town or vice versa is considered loitering.
5. In connection with note 4, the lobby of Pearsons is on the second floor, not in the dining hall entrance.
6. Town Night rules concerning general conduct and loitering apply to all students regardless of whether they have been to town or not; Town Night rules concerning time limits and groupings of couples or three girls pertain to those signed out on the Town Night sheet.
7. Penalties are carried over the Christmas Holidays and are not included in that period of time.

M Club To Meet Friday

The Men's M Club will hold its first meeting Friday, September 26, in Bartlett Hall at 7:15 p.m., it was announced this week by M Club president, Jimmy Campbell.

All old members are urged to attend.

Pat Lewis To Preach At Prayer Meeting

Mid-week prayer meeting will be held Thursday night at 9:30 in the Y rooms. Pat Lewis is in charge of the program, the theme of which is "Living Prayerfully."

The meeting will carry on the idea of "Living for Jesus," the theme for the whole year. Carolyn Beatty will sing a solo, and Lora Kinsinger will play. Don Brakebill is the song leader for the meeting.

All students are invited to this weekly service of prayer and meditation.

Fergie Calls Meeting

Theta Epsilon will hold its regular meeting at 6:15 p.m. in Theta Hall tonight for the purpose of planning initiation for the new members.

President Fergie urges all to attend.

Freshman Editorial Positions Are Open

A number of editorial positions on the Highland Echo are still open to freshmen, announced Editor Van Holland this week.

"No previous experience is necessary, and any freshman interested in writing for our paper should attend the staff meeting Monday in Thaw 208," Holland said.

Subscriptions to the Highland Echo may still be secured from Dick Dart or Holland.

Bernardin To Speak At Chapel Thursday

Dr. J. B. Bernardin, pastor of St. Andrews Episcopal Church, will speak in the Thursday morning chapel program, September 25.

His topic has not been announced.

The First Constitution

As the constitution was then upon the men involved, because it was a representative body, only, not an executive or judicial one.

Secondly, the first constitution did not make the men of the college subject to the faculty or administration to a greater extent than they already were.

The present MSO constitution is the result of revisions made last year.

Disc Club Plans For Coming Year

Disc Club meetings will be held in the Music Hall of the Fine Arts Center this year on the first and third Thursday of every month. Disc Club is an all-campus organization started by Miss Katherine C. Davies, Chairman of the Fine Arts Division.

Barber Donates Player

D. W. Barber of Barber and MacMurray architects, Knoxville, has donated a larger record player especially designed for the hall for us at meetings and radio work. Dr. J.W.F. Davies of Miller's Cove built a case for the player of wood to match the furnishings of the hall.

Mr. Barber has also given the college a three-year subscription to Concert Hall recordings of special and restricted European recordings of rarely heard compositions. These recordings will be available only for Disc Club and other special occasions through special arrangements with the Fine Arts Office.

Committee Plans Programs

A committee of three non-music majors and three music majors, along with a chairman and a faculty sponsor, plan programs designed to be of interest to the entire student body.

Four places on the committee are vacant and will be filled very soon. Any persons who are interested in being on the committee are asked to see Miss Dorothy Vawter, faculty sponsor.

Trapp Family Will Sing For MC Artist Series

Sylva Slated For January 23

By Lora Kinsinger

First on the Artist Series this year will be the Trapp Family Singers, who will sing and play in native costume November 17. The Trapp Family sang here in 1937-38, their first year in this country.

Maria Augusta Trapp, six of her seven daughters, and two of her three sons have been one of the most heavily booked attractions in U. S. concert history since the family fled to here from Austria during World War II.

Directed by their priest friend, Father Franz Wasner, they have thrilled American and European audiences with their programs of sacred and folk music for many years.

Sylva Plays in January

Luigi Sylva, Italian cellist of world renown, will appear here January 23. Sylva has studied, taught, and performed in Europe and the United States, and at present he is re-editing cello literature for the music publishing firm of Schrimer.

Season Tickets

Season tickets for this year's Artist Series will go on sale Tuesday, October 7, under direction of Ann Hoover. Reservations may be made before and after meals and from 3:30 to 4:30 in the Student Center until Friday noon.

With the necessary activity card, student season tickets are sixty cents each and will be delivered the following week.

Reservations will be made for students, faculty, and townspeople at the same time. Seats will be reserved for the first names on each list, then for the second.

TALK OF THE WEEK — By Susan Cook

Who's Delinquent? Will Head YMCA Program

YMCA meeting is scheduled for 1:30 p.m. Sunday in Bartlett Hall.

Bruce Miller, program chairman, announced a movie entitled "Who's Delinquent?" will be shown.

All men are urged to attend.

Mr. Pieper To Talk On Radio Pep Rally

The speaker tonight at the pregame pep rally over WGAP will be A. F. Pieper, associate professor of political science.

The radio pep rally, held each Saturday night at 6:00, whether the games are at home or away, features the Maryville College band, the cheerleaders, and an interview with some person connected with athletics. Speakers on the last two programs were Coach Honaker and Coach Davis.

The radio show is written and produced by Johnny Moed in cooperation with Maryville's public relations work, WGAP's promotion of football games, and the Radio and Television Commission of the Presbyterian Church.

Curtis Hughes, instructor in music, supervises the program, which aims to promote school spirit and also to further better relations between the college and the town. Charlie Reid assists in the engineering for the radio pep rally, and Johnny Moed directs and announces it.

'Jeans' Drag' Will Start At 8 p.m. In Alumni Plaza

The Jeans' Drag will be held tonight at 8 in the Alumni Gymnasium. The Drag is being given by the combined boys' and girls' glee clubs in place of the usual Sadie Hawkins' day dance. It will operate in the same way with the girls asking the boys.

There will be square dancing plus an extra program in a rustic hillbilly atmosphere.

Boys are asked wear their "He's Took" tags to the dance, for they take the place of tickets, and no one will be admitted without one. Tickets are ten cents.

YWCA Plans Hike For Next Saturday

The annual YWCA trip to the mountains will be held Saturday, October 11. A chartered bus will leave for Montvale at 1:30 in the afternoon and will return about 10:30 that evening.

All women students are invited to go on this trip which will include hiking, games, a picnic supper, a short devotional, and group singing.

Mrs. M. G. Pieper, Louise Lloyd and Carolyn Blair will serve as chaperones. Betty Hammers and Mildred Cooper, YW Social Committee Chairmen, have organized the trip.

Bainonian Elects Chapter Chairmen, Treasurers

Chapter chairmen and treasurers for the coming Bainonian year have been elected, reports LaDonna Baylor, president.

They are the following: Upsilon, Shirley Posthelwaithe and Peg Reed; Mu, Pat Lang and Don Cooley; Zeta, Barbara Chubb and Kathie Chase; Chi, Elaine Barker and Bev Kingston; Gamma, Betty James and Lou Hutson; Tau, Jeannine Fiori and Eloise Gazaway;

Iota, Dixie Conner and Abbie Crosby; Omega, Judy Johnson and Rosemary Avery; Phi, Carol Demler and Joan Edwards; Beta, Lee Hodgson and Edith Keenan; Delta, Joyce Kaebnick and Barbara Miller; and Kappa, Jerry Moore and Hazel Timblin.

The program Saturday night, October 4, will consist of formal initiation for incoming freshmen.

AAUW Continues Two-Day Meeting On College Campus

The Tennessee Division of the American Association of University Women is holding a two-day leadership workshop, October 3-4 on Maryville College campus, Miss Davies has announced. State and local officers, committee chairmen, and branch representatives are attending.

The sessions have been set up to interpret the program of the AAUW, and to emphasize the responsibility of leaders for continuing educational advancements of university women through study.

The Executive Board and the Board of Directors met Friday afternoon, October 3. The general workshop began at 7:30 on October 3, with an opening address by the state president.

The other speakers of the evening were Dr. Ella W. McKee, vice-president of the Southeast Central region, who spoke on "International Federation of University Women and AAUW"; and Dr. Ruth Stephens, professor of History at the University of Tennessee, whose topic was "International Situation and AAUW Implications." An informal reception followed.

A business meeting will begin the activities on Saturday, October 4. A panel discussion on "Program Planning" will be featured. Individual committee workshop sessions will be held during the rest of the forenoon session.

The afternoon program will be concerned with committee reports and a panel discussion on branch projects.

A dinner meeting will be held Saturday evening at 6:30 which will be highlighted with an address by Dr. Hallie Farmer, chairman of the national committee. This meeting will close the workshop.

Council Nominates, Discusses Issues

Forty-five seniors were nominated for Who's Who at the past Student Council meeting on Wednesday, October 1. Each Council member voted for 10 of the 45 nominees; the faculty will compose a similar list and vote for 10 of the nominees on their list. After comparison of the two lists, the winners will be officially elected to Who's Who in the near future.

Carson-Newman Fact

Council voted in favor of renewing the Carson-Newman Sportsmanship Agreement, and plans are now in process to complete the act.

After hearing that Ed Breitbach, ex-president of the defunk MSO, had been retained as advisory member by the Student-Faculty Senate, Council also voted to retain him. Breitbach was then appointed chairman of a committee to revive the Men's Student Organization.

President Brown then appointed the newly elected freshman officers to the following committees: elections committee, John Graulich; publications committee, Sibyl Squires; and finance committee, Buddy Gilbert.

Past Meetings

At the September 24 meeting of Council, the members agreed to present the plan of holding a dance after the Homecoming football game to Student Faculty Senate. The plan has now been forwarded to the Executive Committee by the senate.

After discussing the possibility of putting the Quickway on bounds for this year at the Septmber 17 meeting, Council, upon the advice of the local police and Dean McClellan, decided against such action.

Vesper Choir Elevated For Sunday Singing

An elevated platform has been placed on the stage in the music hall of the Fine Arts Center which will enable the Vesper Choir to sing the evening anthems from their seating position.

This will eliminate the use of the risers and will, according to director Harry H. Harter, present a more orderly woship service.

Kress Takes Lead Role In 'Heiress'

Play Scheduled For Nov. 14, 15

By Betty Ham

Nancie Kress, sophomore drama major from Belle Vernon, Pa., was chosen last week to play the part of Catherine Sloper in the Playhouse fall production of "The Heiress."

George Caldwell, junior drama major from Cincinnati, Ohio, will play the part of Dr. Sloper, Catherine's father.

Herb White, sophomore English major from Peekskill, N.Y., was selected to play Morris Townsend.

Garnetta Alexander, freshman drama major from LaFollette, is to portray Mrs. Lavinia Penniman.

Others in the cast are Carol Ann Doll, Marcia Williams, Bill Howell, Mary Sue Munson, and Pat Ingles.

Other Playhouse Productions

"The Heiress" will be presented November 14 and 15. In March Playhouse will present "Goodby My Fancy" by Fay Kanin.

The commencement play will be Sophocles' "Anitgone," to be presented on the steps of Thaw amid the atmospheric setting of the Greek columns.

Craven Predicts Good Year

Miss Kathleen Craven, head of the drama department, says Playhouse is in for a promising year. Nearly 60 new students attended a meeting given for the benefit of those interested in the theatre.

Committee lists for "The Heiress" are posted on Bartlett bulletin board.

Experimental Theatre

Experimental Theatre will present three short plays next Saturday night, October 11 in Bartlett Auditorium.

"Box and Cox," by John Madison Mortno, includes three characters played by Arthur Fryer, Bruce Heuser, and Florence Clark.

"The Sentimental Scarecrow," by Rachel Field, includes Ken Rutherford, Sue Carter, Anne Buckley, Emily Smith, Jim Daniel, Dave Ramsey, and Susan Cook.

In "Poverty" are Bob Lorenz, Mary Ann Hicks, Joan Campbell and Clifford Church.

Experimental Theatre is presenting this combination of farcical, fantasy, and highly realistic plays to demonstrate three different styles of writing and acting.

Lists for committees are posted in Bartlett Hall.

Protestants Celebrate New Revision Of Bible

By Kathie Chase

One million copies of the greatest story ever told speak our language today—the most important event of Bible history in 341 years.

More than 3000 religious services in the past week have celebrated the appearance of the Revised Standard Version in bookstores throughout the country. It is the 23-year achievement of 91 distinguished scholars, all of whom served without pay. It is also the biggest book-publishing venture of all time.

Most Notable Monument

Word by word, these men of the major Protestant and Evangelical churches have constructed the most notable monument in modern times and members of 150 denominations are paying it tribute.

Much of the memorable King James Version has been retained. For example, the psalmist's "Though I walk through the valley of the shadow of death, I will fear no evil, for thou art with me," remains.

The new Bible is clearer, easier to read and more accurate. Poetry appears as poetry, comprising 40% of the text. By a two-thirds vote, the scholars replaced more than 300 words that above changed in meaning since 1611.

Gone are "maketh", "doeth," and even "thou," except in address to the Deity. "And it came to pass" disappears in the new version.

Actually A Revision

Technically, RSV is a revision of the American Standard version of 1901. ASV, despite its accuracy and clarity, never enjoyed the popularity of the Bible-reading public. But the Revised Standard Version, in doing honor to the beauty of the King James, has fired the imagination of the entire Protestant world.

Copies are available at the college bookstore and one is on display at the Library.

Hughes Organizes College Orchestra

The Maryville College Orchestra has begun rehearsals under the direction of W. C. Hughes. The first orchestra concert will be held November 22.

Those participating in the orchestra are Katherine Crews, Sue White, Alice Eaddy, Ann Yoakum, John Graulich, Catherine Snedeker, Ann Kirkpatrick, Rosemary Avery, and Esther Lerch; violin.

Dorothy Horne, Myrna Ginaven, viola; Gail Brown, Wayne Shelton, Cello; Marcia Dieter, Randal LeQuire, Buddy Rogers, clarinet; Florence Clark, Mildred Williams, flute; and Jim Fisher, trombone.

Eddie Grigsby, Raymond Van Stone, trumpet; Jeannine Thompson, Evelyn Guss, French horn; Richard Morse, oboe; Benton Bogia, bassoon; Buddy Biggs, double bass; Cathy, and Garrison, timpani.

Mr. Hughes has announced that some seats in the orchestra and some college instruments are still available. Anyone interested is urged to contact him.

Athenians Meet Tonight

Athenian will meet at 6:15 tonight in Bartlett Hall. A talent show will be presented.

President Dick Kerr revealed twenty-five boys were initiated into the society this year.

Rev. J. H. Rodman To Speak At Vesper Service

Rev. John R. Rodman, associate pastor of the Second Presbyterian Church in Knoxville, will speak at Vespers tomorrow night at 7:00 o'clock in the music hall of the Fine Arts Center.

The Girls' Choir, under the direction of Curtis Hughes, will provide the music.

Mr. Harter To Give Recital October 17

Harry H. Harter, tenor, associate professor of music, will present a recital on October 17 at 8 p.m. in the music hall of the Fine Arts Center. He will be accompanied by Mrs. Alice Eaddy.

Among his selections will be three old arias by Vivaldi, revised in 1948. They are "Dille ch'il viver mio," Vieni, vieni o mio diletto," and "La Pastorella sul primo albore." Another will be Handel's "Total Eclipse."

He will sing three of Mendelssohn's works: "Be Thou Faithful Unto Death," and two recitatives from "Elijah." He will present four of Strauss' German songs.

His program will close with Hindemith's "Echo," Diamond's "If You Can't," Herbert's "Jenny Kiss'd Me," Elgar's "Shepherd's Song" and Bridge's "Love Went A-Riding."

Cordell Hull Celebrates

Cordell Hull, former Secretary of State, whom the late president Frnaklin D. Roosevelt once called "the Father of the United Nations," observed his 81st anniversary Thursday.

UMW Conciliates

Coal miners in Appalachian area of Northern Tennessee, Virginia, and Kentucky were back to work by Thursday night. Miners near Chattanooga are not expected to return till Monday. The reason or the lay-off was a delay in signing a contract with the United Mine Workers.

H. S. Truman "Label"-ates

President Truman after singing his "I Like Ike, But" theme, from North Dakota to Washington, told a crowd in the National Guard armory that he was "sorry to see the abject surrender" of the Republican Presidential nominee "to the reactionary vindictive wing of the Old Guard."

Ike's Warnings Debatable

Mr. Truman has termed the five-star General—once reported to be his choice for the Democratic presidential nomination—a "front man" for the lobbyists; and he stated that Eisenhower misled the American people about the peril of Communism after World War II.

Administration Changeable(?)

Eisenhower, in turn, has called the Administration a corrupt, extravagant, bubbling leadership

Meet Noemi Arjona From Mexico

By Emily Smith

Have you met Mimi yet? She's the sweet little girl from Mexico with the big brown eyes. Her real name is Noemi Arjona and she is a special student from Merida, Yucatan, Mexico. Mimi attended the Escuela Normal "Rodolfo Menendez de la Pena" in Merida, and taught the fifth grade in the American School in Merida, and was superintendent of her Sunday School.

Mimi is studying education at Maryville; curriculum, psychology, art education, Bible and English are her courses. She has joined Bainonian and the Student Volunteers.

As A Teacher

The American School in which she taught in Merida is the only Presbyterian school in that area and has an enrollment of 554 in the primary department and about 150 in the high school. The school has been established 32 years.

About two-thirds of the student body is Catholic and some of the faculty are, but an effort is now being made to get Protestant teachers in the school. Mimi will teach in the school when she returns to Mexico.

Studying English

English has come to Mimi much as Spanish or German comes to most of us. She studied English in high school but it was not until last year at the Normal School that she really got a concentrated study of the language.

She says she doesn't talk so well, but don't let her fool you! If I could speak Spanish as well as she speaks English, I certainly would be proud of myself.

Many of the people in Mexico are learning to speak English now as a result of the influx of tourists to the Mayan and Axtec ruins and other historical spots.

At Maryville

Mimi got her introduction to Maryville through North American missionaries in Merida. She admits to being homesick some, but says she likes the college very much. The state of Yucatan in Mexico doesn't have mountains, and Mimi likes our Chilhowees and even the hills.

It is easy to understand though, how she would be homesick. She is the oldest of a family of nine; five girls and four boys.

Cute and Lively

Mimi has a very active sense of humor and a delightful one. She is cheerful and full of life, always interested and always interesting. She expresses a wish that more North American missionaries would go into Mexico and is understandably disturbed about the false impression most people have of her home land.

The educational system, both public and private, is developed much like that of the United States, though perhaps not so well advanced in some parts of the country. An effort is now being made to build up the schools. The United States dollar is worth only sixty-five cents (eight pesos) in Mexico.

Mimi is a fascinating person to talk to and definitely an asset to Maryville College. We all say "Welcome" and "Glad you're here" to Mimi!

On International Relations

As American college students we are often unaware of all world events and world conditions. We are so absorbed in campus life that we seldom take the trouble to read a newspaper or listen to the news on the radio. We have little knowledge of other countries beside what we have acquired from an enthusiastic language teacher or from occasional contact with a foreign student. We know very little about the people of other lands—how they think, how they live, and what problems they face. We are indifferent to things that go on beyond our own little group.

This ignorance might be less inexcusable if we really were isolated, if these matters really had on effect upon our lives. The fact is that they do. Everything that goes on in the world today affects us in some way. A seemingly unimportant incident in some obscure little country may have far-reaching consequences in our lives. The war in Korea is the best example of how an event in a distant place can have great—and perhaps tragic—significance to us.

Since international affairs do have such important effects on us, they should also occupy an important place in our thinking and actions. We should know something about the world and what is going on in the different countries. Both as individuals and as members of various groups we can make an attempt to further understanding and cooperation in international relations.

—J.F.

Orderly Living

We are not free just because we may be living in a country that is free. We may be so disorderly in our mind and in what we do from day to day, that we become more confused and less free than those held under bondage.

Amiel, the famous Swiss scholar and writer, once said: "It is the lack of order which makes us slaves; the confusion of today discounts the freedom of tomorrow." In order there are strength, economy, and freedom of mind. The orderly life is always a successful and useful one. And a happy one, too.

That one who keeps his appointments exactly on time, who gives his word that he will meet an obligation, as arranged, who keeps his desk clean, and knows just where to find important data, who keeps his car clean and in order as well as religiously observing all the rules of the road, and who never disappoints a friend, that one lives an orderly and commendable life!

We are sadly witnessing a period of history where there are confusion, disorder, and fear in the world. It is far from being an orderly time. We can only hope and pray that out of all this travail and disorder a better day is in the offing. Meanwhile it becomes the responsibility of us all to increase our courage, to put our trust in the Great Creator, whose stars in the heavens never vary their course btu continue orderly to shine from their space in the sky.

Nature has its set laws—few at that—and they function orderly from time to time, silently, as an object lesson to us all. If catastrophe overtakes the inhabitants of nature, they bear it with courage and no complaint. Theirs is an orderly life. Wars may come and go, yet they sing, nest, rear their young, and live out their time in order.

The orderly life is the unworrying life, one of peace and faith, with simple trust in the Heavenly Father, of whom it is recorded that He doesn't even miss the sparrow's fall.

Scots & Soda

By Carol Moore

Carnegie . . . . . Carnegie . . . . . What would we do without that place? (Sleep in tents, no doubt!) It's the source of the most interesting little tales concerning life at MC. Take, for instance, the story about a certain dead squirrel found by a certain Bob Clark. Seems that the corpse, clothed only in its delightful aroma, (What? No shirt?) made the rounds of various rooms where it was hidden under pillows, chairs, bed-covers, etc. Three of the hosts to the fascinating visitor were Al Hoyer, Steve Bell and Dick Gardner.

* * * * *

Thay felloth. ! This remark is intended for Charlie Schroeder, Sonny Short, Harold Glad, and Emerson Flurkey, who, when returning from a botany field trip with arms full of posies, were offered rides by all sorts of people.

* * * * *

Someone said that Wes Kinser wasn't hurt too badly in the game last week! Said Wes as he took his girl's arm, "C'mon! I've got to take a shower!"

* * * * *

With the announcement of the cast of "The Heiress" there has been some speculation as to what the faculty will present this year in the way of dramatics. The Snake Pit has made its mark on Broadway, I've reason to believe that a parody on it would do just as well on Circle Drive. We could build the plot around Miss Lightfoot who begins the journey to the crack-up when she wears divers' shoes to keep her feet on the ground. This would be followed shortly by the inability to distinguish between the various registration cards. . . . they'd all appear fuschia. The final straw would come when she'd do a samba with Helen Seay in the reception room.

By this time Dean Mac would have realized that something was in the air. Namely, Miss Lightfoot. He'd call Fayerweather Home for the you know whats and register the new inmate.

Upon arriving she would be greeted by the "Chief", Dr. Williams, (He looks so handsome in his white jacket!) and he would usher her into the Pit. There she would become acquainted with the other inmates, the first step on the road to recovery.

Over in one dark corner we would see Miss Ware doing the Charleston to "There's Be A Hot Time in the Old Town To-night". On a Lava Soap box we would see Miss Craven as she directed the Lower Slobbovian version of Romeo and Juliet. From an aged manuscript Miss Heron will be extracting all the verbs, piling them into Mr. Black's hands for use as fuel. Miss Crews, playing her imaginary violin, will at the same time be singing a duet with Mr. Harter who, thinking he is in the celestial choir, has a pair of crows' wings dangling from his shoulder blades.

Viewing this scene of chaos Miss Lightfoot realizes the need for organized recreation, so she groups the inmates in circles and starts them playing Winkum. The "Chief" is very pleased with her reaction to the situation so he promotes her to kindergarten. From there on she spends onee day in each of the grades and is a Doctor of Philosophy in three weeks time. In the final scene we find Miss Lightfoot graduating magna cum laude, with her sheepskin and her right mind, being offered the presidency at Vasser. The punch line and her final speech, "Why don't YOU flip YOUR lid. . . . look what it did for me! ! !"

(Curtain Closes)

John Borter's comment when he heard the plaster fall in Anderson: "I'll bet the ivy IS holding up these buildings! !"

MOVIE VIEWS

There'd be nothing like having a burlesque queen enrolled at Maryville, or would there? Virginia Mayo undertook this questionable (?) occupation to add up such monies that it would take to go to school. Naturally, this movie is "She's Working Her Way Through College" playing at the Capitol, Monday through Wednesday.

The picture supposedly has a moral about academic freedom; but we're glad Virginia sings once and again to break up the story from time to time. It's technicolored, too . . .

Snow White

"Snow White," Disney's masterpiece, dating from about our birthday, still has appeal for us sophomores at least. She'll be here Thursday and Friday.

To carry on the fairly good selection of pictures this next week is "This Woman Is Dangerous," featured by the Park on Monday. Joan Crawford does per usual, except with junior-sized bird-men, instead of romantics even near her age.

She Is Tough!

She does the "leader-of-a-big-gangster-outfit" part, wearing clever wordrobes and gambling in ritzy casinos while her mob pulls off the job. After an eye operation, she changes personality, and saves the day and her new doctor-boyfriend, Dennis Morgan, after a good roudy-doudy gun fight. Lots of flying glass?

It is surprizing that Joan doesn't run away with this female Willie Sutton business, but falling in love with her eye man made everything come out all right. . .

Joe Cotton

Also on the other side of the street, playing Tuesday and Wednesday, is the "Man With A Cloak." Insanity can result from looking at fushia registration cards or even from drinking too much.

An expensive talent, namely Joseph Cotton, didn't quite qualify for an asylum but—well most of us know something of the oddities of the 19th century poet, E. A. Poe, whose life the movie gives in its own version. Of course, we can hardly find anyone resembling Poe, and keep running into Cotton; but that's excusable since this is supposed to be a mystery.

Miss Barbara Stanwyck and Miss Leslie Caron don't add too much to the suspense since everyone knows already what those two misses are good for. But at least there is a big fat, black crow prominently featured, although the producer forget his name so couldn't lime-light him along with Cotton.

War Is H!!!

Finishing up this week of tremendous and even fairly good movies, at the Park is an RKO melodrama, "Drums in the Deep South," which sees Georgia with Sherman marching through her.

The Confederate bands just love this Georgia, try real hard to penetrate the Union lines to top a sheer mountain, all of which makes for some honest excitement; but then the romance comes, and since no one has thought of any new wry to make out on the screen, it rather kills it, Georgia too.

Sophomore Test Scores Are Below Average

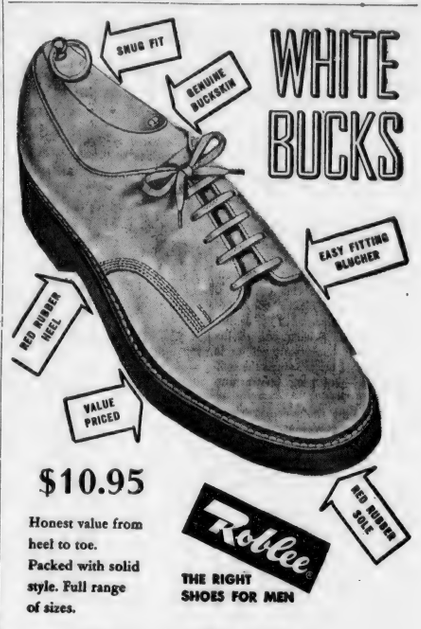
Any interested student may obtain his scores for the two tests by calling at the Personnel Office.



The sophomore tests are given each spring as a measure of the student's progress both in his class work and in his activities outside class. They enable the student to see how he compares with other studnts in the nation, and also indicate the standing of the college as compared with other colleges throughout the country.

Stay SOUTH, Young Man!

IT'S FALL—and that means back to school again.

Perhaps this is your last year—so you'll bear down on the books a little more. You'll look ahead as you haven't before—pulling your dreams for the future out of the clouds and bringing them down to earth.

Hold fast to those dreams, young man. Stay South and see them come true! For right here at home, in the Southland you know and live in and love, a great new "opportunity-land" is coming of age, where dreams can take root and grow into reality.

In Southern industry, agriculture and commerce, new frontiers are opening up on every hand. Here, horizons are limitless for young men of courage, competence and vision. You are the youth of the South today. You will be the leaders of the South tomorrow.

Look ahead—stay South, young man!

Sports Echoes

Rolfe Duggar

This week's big bouquet of roses goes to the Scot gridders for a performance in their first two games above and beyond all expectations. Needless to say, (it can be seen on all faces) that it is wonderful to again have a winning team on the hill. And the prospects look good for the rest of the season, too.

I'm not going out on the limb and say anything so rash as an undefeated season, that comes next year, but the chances for a 6-2 season are very good at this point. Any record better than that would be remarkable considering that this year's team is a "Green" one. Seldom, if ever, does a team with over half the members in the freshman class end up with a better than 50-50 season.

Certainly we hope the boys can make it all the way, but we don't expact miracles. We are behind them, one hundred per cent, are you? We on the staff hope so, but after the last pep rally we can't help but wonder. Anyway boys, good luck tonight at Centre and next week at East Tennessee State. We will be there cheering you on.

Though it is still early in the season it is not too early to look at some statistics on the first two games. Following are a list of those carrying the pig skin, the number of times they carried it, the total net yards gained and the average yards per carry they picked up. The net yardage is arrived at by subtracting any yardage losses they might have suffered, such as being caught behind the line of scrimmage when attempting to throw a pass, from the total yardage gained.

Name	Tries	Net Yardage	Average Per Try
Paul Merwin	1	18	18 yards
Ken Sheperd	6	47	7.8 yards
Buddy Gilbert	2	15	7.5 yards
Bob DeLozier	1	6	6 yards
O. L. Davis	1	6	6 yards
Jimmy Harris	22	121	5.5 yards
Wayne Newman	25	107	4.3 yards
Harold Glad	5	13	2.6 yards
Jim Campbell	1	2	2 yards
Clarence Sheperd	22	41	1.9 yards

Now that the Scot gridders are on the winning slants again the need for a football scoreboard becomes more acute. From the press box we often hear fans mention the fact that they wish they knew how much time was left or what is the score. This is especially true to those who come in a little late, and to some of the women who don't always follow the game too close because of the hat six isles to their left or something.

The clock helps not only the spectators, but the players, the coaches, the band and the press and radio booths, too. Who ever before heard of a radio announcer who in the closing minutes of a tight ball game could not read off the fast ticking seconds.

At present with the Scots winning still a novelty to most fans the scoreboard is not missed too much. But later, after the fans become accustomed to seeing the Scots march to victory game after game they will want and demand that a scoreboard be set up. Let's beat the fans on the draw and erect one before they become irked.

We would like to take this opportunity to welcome aboard two new sports writers, Dixie Connor and Jim Deemer, both are sophomores. Dixie is writing the girls' varsity column which she has named "Varsity Side-Pocket," no known relationship to the green-top sport, replacing Gail Brown's Left In column. Dixie's interest and friendly manner should make this column one that all girls will want to follow. Maybe some boyfriends who want to "peep through the keyhold" and see what goes on with the gals will also enjoy it. Jim is breaking in on the intramural column this week and should do well if the carpenter union doesn't go on strike.

VARSITY SIDE-POCKET

By Dixie Conner

Bells ring at three-thirty and four-thirty every day, but on Tuesdays and Thursdays they ring particularly loud—and all too soon—for some. At this time girls migrate from the peaceful environment of the dormitories and, clad in proper athletic apparel, present themselves at the Intramural Gym for Varsity and that bi-weekly workout. They will tell you it is as rough as any football workout, and maybe it is.

Virginia Sanderson is giving the orders these days—circle right—circle left—now both together. All right, rock on your feet. Workout is hardly the word for it.

A lot of the freshmen have never played soccer before, but I must say that it is hard to tell th difference at times. Naturally some girls excel in this, others in that; then there's the girl who does this as well as that. For example, Jay Spencer, one of the old-timers, who zips through the skill tests, dribbling practice, passing—it must come with practices. I hope so.

Watch Jannie Eakin pass that ball. She will make a good soccer player if she is not expected to dribble. Sometimes it would be nice to have brains in your feet, eh, girls?

A figure "eight" around two tenpins isn't very hard. Henny Laing, one of the two "Laing Wonders", can show you how, as, with an involved hop-and-skip step she comes loping in from a long dribble. There is really nothing to it. You just—oops! That crash was Peggy Fisher coming in on two scraped knees and one damaged soccer ball. Practice makes perfect, Peg.

Thus far the Varsity girls have undergone a tennis tournament and a stunts skill test. There's lots of proof that the girls did this—just listen to those creaking joints and complaints of aching muscles. Some people don't mind hiking the loop before breakfast on Sunday morning, though, or Gridders Amaze Fans, Win Two Games !

Hiwassee Falls To Scots, 39-0

200th Victory For MC

By Rolfe Duggar

A highly inspired Scotty eleven booted the Hiwassee Tigers all over the field and walked off with a 39-0 victory in the first game of the season. It was the Scots first victory since the mid-

Halof-time found the MC band a 20-game losing streak. It also was the 200th win for Mayrville since its first grid team entered the field in 1892.

The Scotty grid machine completely pulverized the hapless Tigers from Madisonville to open Coach Lombe Honaker's 32nd season at Maryville. It was win number twelve against only three losses for the Scots since 1932 with Hiwassee.

The Scots land attack was particularly impressive to the victory starved fans. Several times the offensive line opened gapping holes in the Tiger's defense as the Scots rolled up 286 yards on the ground. Freshman Wayne Newman, former Everett Bulldog, led the Scots scoring with three touch downs to his credit.

Harold Glad opened the game by kicking off to the Tiger's Joe Jolly. Jolly returned the ball twenty-three yards to his twenty-seven. Three plays later Jolly picked up a first down. From then on the Scot line became impregnable and the Tigers kicked their first of seven punts.

After an exchange of punts the Scots took over on Hiwassee's thirty-seven following a twenty yard runback by Buddy Gilbert. Jim "Flash" Harris and Wes Kinser then teamed up to drive the Scots over for their first score.

Nice Big Hole

Harris carried through center for six. Kinser then went over left tackle to pick up nine yards and the first first down for Maryville. Harris then decided not to be outdone. With the forward wall of the Scots opening yawning holes in the Tiger defense Harris also went over left tackle for eleven yards and another first down.

Two more plays over the weak left tackle slot of the Tigers and the Scots were only two yards away from pay dirt. Kinser then went over center for the TD. Kenneth Sheperd's kick for the extra point was wide.

Before more than two minutes had elapsed Bob DeLozier, formerly of Porter, intercepted a Tiger pass on their thirty-six and the Scots were on their way again. Bob Shelton, who didn't know of the tragedy which had hit his family until after the game, picked up four more.

Army Did Them Good

Ken Sheperd then took the ball around the left end of the line for the most beautiful run of the evening. The scat-back wing-back picked up twenty-one yards to the six. Newman was given the honor and in two center plunges had picked up his first TD. Harold Glad split the uprights for the extra point. The score read 13-0 at the end of the first quarter.

The second quarter saw little action after an early score by MC. Gilbert returned a punt to the Tiger forty-three. Newman then made a beauty of a run off left tackle good for eleven yards. Harris picked up three and Newman eight for another first down. Then Harris ran off right tackle for eighteen yards. Newman then plunged through center for the third Scotty score. Glad's extra point try was off. The half-time score was 19-0.

Half-time found the MC band marching through their paces in such formations as a football and an "H" in honor of Hiwassee. With the band in a heart formation band director Curtis Hughes presented this year's band sponsor, senior Barbara Murphy.

A Family Affair

The Scots started right off again in the second half. Ken Sheperd picked up fourteen on a reverse that completely baffled the Tigers. Then brother Clarence picked up twenty-three on a sweep around right end. Keeping the ball in the family Kenneth picked up seven on another reverse. Clarence tried a pass which failed. Then he ran around end for four and a first down on the two.

Clarence then found a hole in the center of the line and without being prompted went right in, through and over for the score. Glad's kick was good and the score read 26-0.

Minutes later Dick "Deac" Gardner, rangy end of the Scots, intercepted a Tiger pass on their twenty-six. Ken Sheperd carried through the weak left tackle slot for eight. Alternate captain Paul Merwin then on a double reverse raced eighteen yards for another Scotty score. Clarence Sheperd tried for the extra point but the kick was wide.

It Had To Happen

It wans't until a minute before the end of the third quarter when the Tigers first crossed the center line and on into Scotty territory.

Bob Lankford recovered a Tiger fumble on the first play of the fourth quarter to stop the only real Tiger threat.

The Scots then proceeded to grind out their last scoring drive. Newman took the pig-skin on a buck-lateral fifteen yards to the Tiger twenty. Three more plays netted eight yards, and then Newman crawled through center for twelve and the TD. Glad made his last try good and the score read 39-0.

Harriers Meet William J. Bryan

The Highland harriers race William Jennings Bryan University at Dayton, Tennessee this afternoon. Since the series of meets began in 1950, the Scots have won three out of four.

This year's edition of the Scotties has only two lettermen returning: Captain Dick Kerr and Rod McMillian. To supplement these two, there are other runners who had previous varsity experience. They are: Homer Rickabaugh, John Hale, and Dave Helwig. The other two members of the varsity squad are basketball star A. C. McWilliams and Herb Catlin.

Good Record

Since Coach Ken Johnson came to Maryville in 1947, the MC cross country teams have turned in some fine records. In 1948 they won two out of four meets, in 1949 they won all five meets including a 20-39 win over U-T, in 1950 they took four out of six meets, and last season they won three meets, lost three meets and tied one—Georgia Tech.

Homer Shows Up

Al Kuykendall of Tennessee crossed the finish line in the good time of 16:25 for the three mile course. Frank Albertson and Dick Gamble took second and third places for U-T. In fourth place came the first of the Scotties to finish the race, Homer Richabaugh. Last year Homer had to leave the squad early in the season because of leg trouble. Wednesday's performance indicates that he is in fine shape and that he will run several good races this year.

Following Homer across the finish line were Scots John Hale and A. C. McWilliams. Although both John and A. C. are relatively inexperienced runners they turned in veteran performances. Coach Johnson was very pleased with the races of those three.

The order or finish was: Kuykendall (T), Albertson (T), Gamble (T), Richabaugh (MC), Hale (MC., McWilliams (MC), Hill (T), Waith (T), Kerr (MC), McMillian (MC), Catlin (MC), and Short (T).

Gamecock Skein Over Scots' Ends

Gardner, Newman Score; Green and Lawson Aid

By Bob Coles

The Maryville Scotties, on point all week for the Gamecocks from Jacksonville, finally went in last Saturday night and flushed them out, snarling and snapping like blue ribbon champions, as they ran up their second consecutive victory, winning 15-6.

A Roaring Start

Upon receiving the ball on the opening kick-off, the Scotties opened an attack that within a few minutes had rolled up thirteen quick points, enough to win the game.

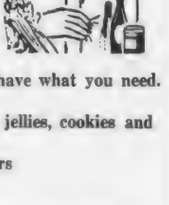
With a first down on the fifty yard 'line, the Scotties swept on with Sheperd carrying twice in his favorite spot, right tackle, for five and four yards respectively, and then Newman, through the middle again, made it a first down on the forty. By this time the fans were going wild, but for a moment their hopes were dampened when Sheperd gained only two yards at tackle, then lost a yard at the same spot.

On the next play, Clarence dropped back a step or two, waited a split second, then flipped to Dick Gardner, cutting over from right end. Gardner took the pass on the dead run, swerved toward the goal line and ran the rest of the way untouched to put the Scotties ahead, 6-0. Harold Glad then calmly dropped back and split the uprights for the extra points.

The students pleas to "Get that ball" were soon answered. Four plays after the kickoff, Joe Dacus, Jacksonville's all-purpose back, was froced to punt to Jim Campbell after three cracks at the Maryville line feell two yards short of th necessary ten. Starting with Campbell's twelve yard return, the Highlanders were off again.

A Big Help

And here the great help Maryville received all evening began. A fifteen yard penalty was called for roughing the kicker, and the Scotties had a first down on the Jacksonville thirty-five. Whether through dirty playing, misdirected roughness, or poor coaching, the Gamecocks ran up a total of 172 yards of penalties, a fantastic total when you realize that forty yards is about the average, Maryville losing only forty-five. This first penalty really cost the Gamecocks since it led directly to the Scotties second score.



Keny Sheperd lost two yards in at wingback, but Jim Harris, in at tailback, picked up those two and two more beesides. Five yards were added on an offside penalty, then Harris went through right tackle for thirteen to the Gamecock fifteen. Harris was held for no gain, but on second down Wayne Newman went through the middle for fourteen yards to the two yard line. Two plays later, Newman smashed through the middle again for the touchdown. Glad missed the point and the score stood at 13-0.

Mr. Green

came late in the last quarter. After Dacus carried around right end, a fifteen yard penalty for intentional roughness put the ball on the one-yard line, and was kicked out on the first play to the forty. After Maryville lost on downs, another fifteen yard penalty for offensive holding put the ball on the four. This time Jacksonville chose to run it out, and paid for it, for on the first play Romeo Green broke through and dropped Bob Shelly in the end zone for two points.

Rehearsals for the twentieth annual production of Handel's sacred oratorio "The Messiah" by a Maryville College chorus will begin on October 12.

Rehearsals will be held this year in the Music Hall of the Fine Arts Center starting at 7:15 on Monday nights under the direction of Harry Harter, professor of music. The change in rehearsal time was made as a result of a poll of th chorus last year, when it was decided that Monday would be more convenient for most of the members than was Sunday afternoon.

Membership in the chorus is open to all students, faculty, staff, and townspeople who are interested.

Students Win Homecoming Dance!

VOLUME 38 | MARYVILLE, TENNESSEE, OCTOBER 18, 1952 | NUMBER 5

Students Granted Homecoming Dance

Dance To Begin After Game

A dance after the Homecoming game with Georgetown on November 1 became a reality this week, as was announced by Betty Hammers, chairman of the Social Board.

The dance will begin immediately after the game in the Alumni Gymnasium and will close at 11:45 p.m. Members of the student body, Maryville alumni, the Georgetown football team, and the cheerleaders of the football team may attend the dance. Student Council will sponsor this festivity.

The Procedure

After Student Council approved Betty Hammers' suggestion of sponsoring the dance, the plan was presented to the Student Faculty Senate. Senate passed the suggestion, and sent the bill to the Executive Council of the Faculty. E. F. Massey, dean of women, reported the decision of the Executive Council to Miss Hammers this week.

Miss Massey's letter read as follows:

Dear Betty:

I am glad to report that the Executive Council of the Faculty has voted approval of a dance to be sponsored by the Student Council following the Homecoming game on November 1, 1952.

It is understood that the dance will follow the general plan of the dancing each evening after dinner in the Intramural Gym and that it will close at 11:45 p.m. Approval also includes your plan of passes for the opposing team and cheering section and for Alumni.

The Faculty would like to have the understanding with the Student Council that this approval is for this year only. Should the Council wish to continue the plan next year, request should be made in the same way and the Faculty decision would be largely influenced by the results of this year's dance, particularly with reference to adequacy of space for the size of the crowd invited, and the management of the crowd when outsiders are included.

Good luck! We are hoping for a happy successful evening as much as you are.

Cordially,
Frances Massey.

Y Radio Features 'Great Stone Face'

Set your radio dial at the 1400 spot Monday night, October 20, to hear "The Great Stone Face," by Nathaniel Hawthorne.

This is the story to be characterized by the Y-Radio group at 9:30 p.m. over radio station WGAP.

The announcer will be John Graulich, who is the permanent announcer for Y-Radio.

All that listened last Monday night heard a story entitled, "The Good Soldier." This was the story of the conversion of a Roman jailer by St. Paul.

The characters were Nancy Rideout, Arthur Fryer, Rod McMillian, Charles Rogers.

Away Game

Special buses will be provided for students desiring to go to the football game with Carson-Newman College on October 25 at Carson-Newman. The trip will cost approximately two dollars per person. The buses will leave from the old chapel site after supper on Saturday and will return to Maryville immediately following the game.

Sign-up sheets will be placed in each of the dormitories on Monday and will stay up through the week. The college band will make the trip. This is the only game this year away from home for which buses are provided.

Eisenhower Wins M C Echo Poll

74% Of Students Prefer Gen. Ike

By Joe Gilliland

An Echo poll this week of about seven per cent of the student body showed that General Dwight Eisenhower, Republican nominee for presidnt, is preferred over the Democratic candidate, Adlai Stevenson.

Out of 46 students who were polled, 34 showed a preference for Eisenhower, seven for Stevenson, and four were undecided. This means that approximately 74 per cent of those asked "liked Ike."

The students asked about their presidential preferences were chosen according to states, the number from each state being proportional to the total representation from the state in the student body.

Ike Also Picked Last Semester

In a poll taken last semester when interest in party nominees was high, Eisenhower was chosen as the favorite. At that time the General received 42 per cent of all votes cast; Stevenson received none. Senator Estes Kefauver, junior senator from Tennessee, was picked as the favorite Democratic candidate.

One of the students' comment reflected disappointment at Senator Kefauver's loss of the nomination. This student commented, "I wanted Kefauver, the people's choice. It looks like I'm going to have to settle for Stevenson, the party's choice."

The majority of reasons for student preference of Eisenhower was that those particular students felt that the nation needed a change in administration. Practically everyone said after their comments, "And, of course, I'm a Republican."

Another point brought out in favor of the General was his foreign policy, and the fact that "he knows foreign policy better."

Supporters of Stevenson emphasized his experience (he is governor of Illinois).

However, in reference to Stevenson's being governor of Illinois, an Illinois resident said, "Stevenson is governor of my state, and

Dr. Hunter To Speak At Vespers Sunday

Speaking at this Sunday evening's October 19 Vesper Service will be E. R. Hunter, Dean of Curriculum at Maryville College. Dean Hunter's subject will be, "What is Most Worth Doing?"

The Vesper Choir will provide background and special music.

Echo Staff Adds Six Freshmen, Promotes Others

At a recent meeting of the Publications Committee six freshmen were elected to the Highland Echo staff. These freshman reporters are Annie Bucher, Eleanor Cantrell, Susan Cook, Elizabeth Frei, Don Layton, and Betty McKenney. In addition to these people, Don Layton and Don Thorn are trying out for positions on the staff.

Promotions

Van Holland, Echo Editor, also announced the promotion of reporters now on the staff. Sophomores are Kathie Chase, Abby Crosby, Joe Gilliland, Roberta Hadley, Pat Ingles, Gail Brown, news bureau editor, and Carol Moore, morgue librarian. Hershel Mosier and Bob Navratil are reporters on the sports staff. Juniors promoted this year include Emily Smith, associate editor, Lora Kinsinger, associate editor, Rolfe Duggar, co-sports editor, and Joan Frei, Managing Editor. Co-sports editor Bob Coles and Editor Van Holland were promoted at the end of last year.

Publications Committee

The Student Publications Committee, of which Van Holland is the chairman, is made up of Student Council members and two other members of the Echo staff. Those appointed from the Student Council to the Publications Committee are Walt Elwood, Sibyl Squires, Janice Eakin, and Mary Ann Hicks. Representing the Echo are Van Holland, Bob Coles, and Joan Frei.

Dr. Fred A. Griffitts, the Echo's faculty advisor, is chairman of the Faculty Committee on Student Publications, which includes A. S. Bushing, E. H. Jackson, and R. T. Case.

Louise Lloyd Skips Across Campus; Archie Pieper Wins Debate Honor

By Joan Frei

Looking through old books and papers is always an interesting business, but it is especially fascinating to leaf through back issues of the Echo from many years ago. The recent efforts of the morgue librarian have brought to light a number of entertaining documents that might otherwise have remained hidden indefinitely. One of these is a copy of the Echo dated October 19, 1928. The paper is yellow and brittle, but it preserves a record of what a Maryville publication was like in a year before most of us were born.

In 1928, 21 students were registered to vote at Maryville College, for that, too, was an election date. The news story was careful to point out, however, that this statement did not indicate a low interest in contemporary affairs, for it states that "politics is the big subject here at present."

"Collegiate Slouch No Longer Stylish"

The information was also imparted that "the university man has returned to sanity in dress." Styles had changed from sloppy to neat and tidy clothes, according to a 1928 survey. "The starched collar was found to be so nearly universal that it appears to constitute almost a uniform." Evidently the reform in college men's style of dressing was to be only temporary.

In October of 1928, just 24 years ago, campus gossip centered around the news that a "freshman steps forth into matrimonial sea," to quote the headline. Student marriages were not so common then as they are now, and everyone was astounded at the news. The offending freshman did not, of course, return to college, but departed for Chattanooga.

The Library Was Criticized

An Echo editorial in 1934 criticized the library very severely for its unsatisfactory lighting system. Confusion over lost and misplaced books was blamed on the fact that too many students were allowed to roam the stacks and inexperienced librarians made errors.

Also in 1934 the museum received the gift of an ancient idol from a returned missionary. Writers' Workshop was one of the first organizations on campus to adopt a revised method of initiation. No statement could be found

Council Plans C-N Sportsmanship Agreement

Sally Brown, president of the Student Council announced that the student body will meet Thursday, October 23, after chapel, in order to nominate Barnwarming king, queen, and class sponsors, and to ratify the Sportsmanship Agreement with Carson-Newman College.

The Sportsmanship Agreement between Carson-Newman and Maryville reads as follows:

SPORTSMANSHIP AGREEMENT
Carson-Newman and Maryville Colleges
October 11, 1950

We, the representatives from Maryville College and Carson-Newman College in conference agree to the following:

1. The student body of each college will make a sincere effort to maintain a friendly spirit of cooperation and fair play toward the other college.

2. When each college visits the other, cooperative arrangements, will be made for welcoming, parade, band program, seating, etc.

3. We agree to carry out friendly rivalry such as cheering, parades, etc. on either campus. In carrying this out we agree not to participate in any activity that would permanently or temporarily damage or disfigure the campus or commit any act which would be detrimental to the good feeling between the two colleges. We students agree to uphold this agreement, but in the event that an individual or student body violates this agreement, the student body will make full and complete restitution.

4. This agreement shall be in effect for a period of two years and will be subject to renewal with the ratification of the student body.

A committee of Dr. F. D. McClelland, Sally Brown, Jim Hunt, Betty Hammers, traveled to Carson-Newman this past Friday to arrange the details of the renewal of the pact.

Past Council Meetings

At the October 8 meeting, the faculty sent thanks by way of the council to all the students who participated in the Freshman Discussion classes.

Walt Elwood announced at the October 15 meeting that the M Club has purchased the yearbook page for the Barnwarming pictures.

As a result of a discussion in the Student Faculty Senate, the Quickway is being re-investigated as to whether or not it may be put on bounds again. Members of the Council are supposed to search out student opinion on the subject.

Editor Announces Staff Openings

"Six freshman positions are still vacant on the Echo Editorial Staff," it was announced this week by Editor Van Holland.

Holland pointed out that no previous experinece in journalism is necessary for tryouts and that any freshman interested in trying out for the positions should attend the staff meetings held every Monday at 8:30 p.m. in Thaw 208.

Students interested in working on the Business Staff of the Highland Echo should contact Business Manager, Dick Dart.

Theta Epsilon Plans For Homecoming, Rally

Plans for the pep rally and the Homecoming Float will be discussed at the Theta meeting in Theta Hall tonight.

At their last meeting, which was a fireside meeting in the college woods, the members of Theta Epsilon voted to elect a chaplain to open their meetings with prayer.

This chaplain will be elected at the meeting this evening, after which the program will be in charge of Naomi Burgos and Sally Butts.

President Nancy Ferguson urges all members to attend the meeting.

Dr. Vale To Speak For Founders' Day

I R C Sponsors Mock Elections

Campaigns Start Next Week

By Carol Moore

The Maryville College students' national election activities, sponsored by the International Relations Club in conjunction with the Social Board of the Student Council, will be held Tuesday, October 21, through Saturday, October 25.

The Democratic party will furnish a demonstration and all-campus publicity which will be followed by registering of students at Pearsons dining hall, when they open the election campaigns on Tuesday.

Wednesday the Republicans will dominate the campus with their publicity campaign, demonstrations, and registration of voters. Thursday the final campaign will be staged by the Socialists.

Speech Night

The Alumni Gymnasium will be the headquarters for campaign speeches which will be presented Thursday night at 7:00 p.m. by the campaign managers and candidates of all the parties.

Voting will take place Friday, October 24, at the tables set up at various spots on campus. The winner, who will be announced Saturday, October 25, may stage a victory demonstration in chapel if he chooses.

In charge of registering voters will be Naomi Burgos and Harry McCall. Publicity will be handled by the Republican and Democratic campaign managers, Bob Reed and Bob Young, respectively.

Master of ceremonies at speech night will be Charlie LaRue, who will introduce the program and explain the purpose of it. IRC members are in charge of the voting.

Introducing The Candidates

Student candidates are Ken Wilkinson, sophomore from Akron, Ohio, Republican; Gail Brown, sophomore, Democratic; Herb Catlin, Socialist.

The result of the mock election sponsored by the IRC in November, 1948, was:

Dewey	58%
Truman	16%
Thurmond	16%
Wallace	9%

Seventy-one per cent of the student body, 435 students, voted in that election.

LaRue Announces Sale Of Time Magazine

Charlie LaRue, treasurer of International Relations Club, has announced the sale of Time, Life, and Fortune magazines at special student rates. The cost of the magazines at student rates is less than half of the regular price.

M. G. Pieper, A. S. Walker, I. Rodemann, and E. Guss spoke at the last program meeting of IRC. They presented a panel report on their observations and experiences while traveling through Europe last summer.

IRC Club is now busy sponsoring the MC Student National Elections.

200 MC Students Welcomed Gen. Ike

About two hundred students from Maryville College gathered at the Knoxville airport last Wednesday, October 15, to welcome Dwight D. Eisenhower to Blount County. They were among ten thousand who were on hand to greet the Republican aspirant for President.

Most of the group went in buses provided by the Republican Club of Blount County. The Maryvillians arrived at the airport around 6 p.m. and secured the most strategit positions possible to see the Republican nominee for the top position in the country.

Greeting Ike!

At 7 p.m. Mr. Eisenhower made his appearance and was greeted by the cheering crowd. After recognizing certain groups, the General made a brief speech which was greeted enthusiastically by the highly partisan gathering. The group from the school joined in the demonstration by displaying their signs and joining the choruses of "I Like Ike." Some of the college group were lucky enough to get their picture in the Knoxville Journal.

Back to MC

After Mr. Eisenhower departed, the group from school headed back to the campus, weary but, according to reports, happy.

The Republicans who sponsored the buses realized that there were no votes to be gained by their gesture, but they felt that it was their privilege to help MC students see a person of national importance. In appreciation of this gesture several fellows served as ushers for the program.

Church Leader To Address MC

By Lora Kinsinger

Dr. Roy Ewing Vale, pastor of the Tabernacle Presbyterian Church, Indianapolis, Ind., and a director of Maryville College for the past thirty-seven years, will be the principal speaker at the Founders' Day service, Saturday, November 1.

The theme of the service will be "The Place of the Chapel on a Christian College Campus," in preparation for the ground breaking for the Samuel Tyndale Wilson Chapel which will take place later in the semester.

A Church Leader

An eminent church leader, Dr. Vale is a former pastor of Second Presbyterian Church in Knoxville, of the First Presbyterian Church in Oak Park, Ill., and of Woodward Avenue Presbyterian Church in Detroit, Mich. He was moderator of the 1944 General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church, U.S.A.

Born in Ewington, Ohio, Dr. Vale received his B.A. degree from Washington College and Tusculum College in Greeneville and graduated from Princeton Theological Seminary in 1912.

He holds the degrees of Doctor of Divinity from Washington College in Tennessee, Wooster College, and Tusculum; and LL.D. degrees from Maryville, Washington and Jefferson College, and Indiana Central College.

The Program

Dr. R. W. Lloyd, Dr. E. R. Hunter, Dr. F. D. McClelland, and the Vesper Choir, under direction of Harry Harter, will also participate in the service. The regular February meeting schedule will be followed, this service being at 9:45 a.m.

The Board of Directors will be in session all day Friday and Saturday morning. Directors will participate in the Founders' Day events.

Hughes To Give Organ Recital

W. Curtis Hughes, assistant professor of music and head of the organ department, will give an organ recital in the music hall of the Fine Arts Center Sunday afternoon, October 26, at 4 p.m.

The program will begin with a "Trumpet Voluntary," by Henry Purcell, and move on into a traditional "Pastorale." Johann Sebastian Bach's Chorale Prelude "Nun Komm, der Heiden Heilland," and Prelude and Fugue in C minor will follow.

The next section of the recital will consist of three choral preludes from Johannes Brahms' "Opus 122"—"Herzlich tut mich verlangen" (in two settings), "Schmucke dich, o liebe Seele", and "Es ist ein Ros' entsprungen"; and "Piece Heroique," by Cesar Franck.

The program will come to a close with four lighter numbers—"Fantasia on 'Ton-y-Botel'" and "Canzona on 'Liebster Jesus'" by Richard Purvis, "An Old Irish Air", arranged by Clokey, and "Grand Choeur," a voluntary on a Gregorian theme, by Guy Weitz.

Echo Staff Introduces 'Poetically Speaking'

Beginning this week a new column called "Poetically Speaking" will appear in the Echo. Poems contributed by interested students will be published here. Poems submitted may be on any subject, and may be either serious or humorous; but they must be reasonably short, because of limitations in space.

Anyone who has written poetry, or who would like to attempt poetry, has an opportunity to have his original work published. Contributions can be given to Echo staff members or left in the Echo office at the east end of Thaw.

There is no guarantee that the contributed poems will be printed.

The Homecoming Dance

We hail the inauguration of the Homecoming dance as a good and worthwhile move! We think that this new student privilege is another step in the right direction of more student self-government. We think that it is a needed expression of more faith and confidence in the ability of students to accept and carry out responsibility. And we think that it widens considerably the breadth of social life at Maryville College.

We should remember, however, that the responsibility of the students to ensure the success of this dance is of great importance. Whether or not a Homecoming dance will be held next year depends on the management of this year's dance. Whether or not dancing after all football games becomes a reality in the future will greatly depend on the outcome of this year's dance.

It is regretable that some individuals tend to abuse any newly given privilege. We hope that this will be untrue in our case. The administration has given us this new privilege; let us not abuse it.

E.V.H.

On Criticism

One of those inalienable rights we possess as Americans is the right to offer criticism, complimentary or otherwise, to those we feel deserve it—from the President of our nation on down to our family, our neighbors.

That right belongs way up at the top in the bracket with such assurances as freedom of religion and press. It is vital to our way of life, for by criticising the things we do not like and praising those we approve of, we are guaranteeing the stability of democratic governments in the nation, our colleges, and churches.

Since so many of the organizations in our country are conducted democratically, the value of public opinion cannot be overlooked. Any group attempting to serve the public is anxious to please and therefore will welcome constructive criticism on any phase of its work.

A Reminder

Many of the students this year, especially the new ones, do not seem to be aware of an unwritten law in regards to letter sweaters that has been observed at Maryville for many years.

Out of respect and loyalty to the new alma mater, it seems only in good taste that those who wish to wear their sweaters from high school remove their letters. This will also make room for the new letters that such a person will undoubtedly earn in college.

Scots & Soda

By Carol Moore

Look and the birdie and . . . Ugh!.!

Seems that not too many students were pleased with the results of a certain photographer's hurried sittings. And judging from some of the proofs, I'd say they had a right to their opinions. Take Madlon Travis for instance. Poor girl was nearly shocked out of three year's growth when she had the first gander at her shots . . . . one eye half closed, the other rolling around in her head somewhere! And Kathy Morrison who looks all of five years old. "A" resembles an ad I've seen remarking that "I like Yummy-Wummy Butter Cookies! Why don't you try them today?", and "B" looks like she'd eaten three thousand of the delectable delicacies.

Lib Parrish's "D" has a remarkable resemblance to the "Sentimental Scarecrow" and the "C" of Charlie Schroeder's looks like he'd just found out that his throne was dynamited.

Pity the people who, not being acquainted with the students, look at the Chilhowean. "What manner of men are these . . ."

* * * * * *

And the weekly tale from Carnegie . . .

Mr. Mac, investigating noise in the dorm, came upon Homer Garren who was whispering rather loudly. Pulling out his pad of paper he asked the name of the offender. Homer's reply, "Roy Rodgers!" He wrote it down, turned around and continued on his way. A few minutes later, footsteps were heard and Mr. Mac returned with the comment of the week, "Where did you leave your horse?"

This little gem, written by Bob Coles, should cause more than one woman to think twice. But enough explanation . . . it speaks for itself!

Ode to Peggy Williams

or

I'm on a Diet

There sits at our table in Pearson's Hall
A girl of campus fame,
A girl so sweet she's known to all,
Peg Williams is her name.

You'd never think to see her eat
That she is on a diet,
The food she downs is such a treat
I think I'd like to try it.

Miss Williams now, to hear her tell,
Can eat most anything.
Her story is, we know so well,
"This isn't fattening!"

Calories she counts, and then forgets,
When're she sees temptation.
Our jeering cracks this gem begets,
"You ail, I'm on vacation."

Nor is this all of her stock by half,
When dessert to her appeals
Her saying then is really a laugh,
"I didn't eat between the meals."

She starts the day with a healthy zeal,
Her knife and fork do swing.
And then to us does she reveal
That, "Breakfast isn't fattening!"

At noon, the story is quite the same,
She eats with consumate skill.
Her story then, "I'm not to blame,
I have to get my chlorophyll!"

At supper she eats whate're she wants
And eats with wonderful zeal.
She answers to our nasty taunts,
"You have to eat ONE decent meal."

When we tease at most every meal
At the food she manages to chew,
She says then in a voice of steel,
"And what's the matter with you?"

Another trick she often tries
In order to escape our malice
Is at breakfast to wail in plaintive cries,
"I'm taking this back for Alice."

If she's on a diet, we wish she'd stay,
If not, then please omit it.
For what we want in an honest way
Is for Peg just to ADMIT IT!

Apple Polishing?

Said the little boy when he saw Daisy walking down the street with Herb Catlin, "Good morning Mr. Walker! How are you today?"

Voices, Masks, and Shadows

By Roberta Hadley

CAPITOLIZING

History lives again in "The Big Sky" showing Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, at the Capitol, as French fur traders and adventurers make a realistic journey up the Missouri River in the early 1800's.

The action is slow moving in comparison with some outdoor adventures, but interest is to be found in their methods of trapping food, taking care of wounds and keeping alive in general.

They meet with hostile Indians and rival fur traders who dislike competition to keep the plot moving. Stars are Kirk Douglas, Dewey Martin, Elizabeth Threatt and Arthur Hunicutt.

Presenting 'Macao'

"Macao", a "mildly suspenseful" melodrama, starring Jane Russell and Robert Mitchum will be featured Thursday and Friday at the Capitol. Macao is an island off the coast from Hong Kong where law officers are corrupt and gamblers have great influence.

Saturday's big features will be "Thundering Caravans" with Allen "Rocky" Lane, and 'Bal Tabarin" starring Muriel Lawrence and the famous French Can-Can girls.

PARK VIEWS

"Glory Alley", a psychological study of the scars that led up to a prizefighter's sudden walk-out on the championship bout, is playing Monday and Tuesday at the Park. The acting rather than the script is outstanding.

There are some very good musical numbers by Louis Armstrong and dance acts by Leslie Caron, the American in Paris girl, during the narrators' recall of the sights and sounds of what he calls Glory Alley, a tough spot in New Orleans. Ralph Meeker and Kurt Kazner also star in this "just fair" movie.

Sea Adventure!

A somewhat artificial sea adventure, glorified by fast moving sea action and color by Technicolor, "Mutiny", will be playing Thursday and Friday at the Park. The plot includes a mutiny by the ships gun-crew against the captain. Mark Stephens, who is bringing a loan of ten million dollars in gold bullion from France during the War of 1812.

The nervy captain pilots the first known submarine to save the day. Angela Lansbury and Patric Knowles also star in this adventure.

Ernest Hemingway's "To Have and Have Not" will be showing Tuesday and Wednesday October 28 and 29 at the Park. This Howard Hawks' release stars Lauren Bacall and Humphrey Bogart.

FAC QUICKIES

Mr. Curtis Hughes will feature a portion of the recital which he gave in the Spring when he received his Master of Music in choral and church music, with organ as his applied major at Northwestern University, in his recital in the music hall of the Fine Arts Center, Sunday, October 26 at 4 p.m.

Further organ recitals will be presented during the year, the next being given by Arnold Blackburn of the University of Kentucky on November 11 at 8 p.m. in the music hall. Blackburn's performance is under the auspices of the American Guild of Organists.

The Maryville College marching band will become a concert band after the close of the football season in November. At this time they will begin preparation for several concerts which will be presented during the second semester of this year.

MAGAZINES

But since not everyone can afford theaters and after-dinner shows, perhaps a substitute. With the national election so strongly a part of our everyday talk now, it's an excellent and appealing time to take out a magazine or two, go home to bed with her, and catch up on the political fiction and other types of good stories.

Of course Time can be counted on every week to give her readable resume of the latest political happenings. This past week they took up Nixon and his troubled trust, and, of course, Texas, both having been leading articles in many magazines lately. Wait till someone starts guessing on Tennessee?

The New Republic of the 15th discusses the beginning of the Eisenhower crusade. Before his Labor Day speech, there was fear in the party that the candidate who was "supposed to electrify the nation was just a plain dull fellow," but the attitude is more encouraging with the past month behind him.

MORE POLITICING

U. S. News and World Report of September 12 informed you of the proposed strategies of both Republican Chairman Arthur E. Summerfield, former General Motors dealer, and Democratic Chairman Stephen A. Mitchell. That week they also covered Stevenson's labor policy. This is an appraisal on both sides, with opinions of several Union leaders plus Denham, former General Counsel of National Labor Relations Board.

The New Republic of last week contains the record of the 82nd Congress on 31 major roll-calls—quite a voter's guide because too many people forget the conflict of interests between Congress and the executive, and also forget the consider the results of this conflict on legislation. The guide measures individual members of Congress and compares the two parties in their voting liberal or conservative.

And if you could be caught in the dreadful act of not knowing who your congressmen are, we suggest . . .

EXTRA

Stevenson wants to keep the advance standard of living gained under the past five Democratic administrations.

New Republic, September 15
Conflict between views of press ownership and editors and staffs of so-named Republican papers.

Newsweek, September 22
Senator McCarthy . . .

U. S. News, September 26
If our magazines could not be counted on as being reliable; if you weren't able to pick up an article and know that it was an unbiased report, then there would be some reason for neglecting the news magazines. But with some discrimination reasuringly-untainted magazines are published, to be read.

Poetically Speaking-

THE GLORY ROAD

Give me your youth, the best of your youth,
The clean, the brave, and the strong,
From city streets and countryside
Where life is a careless song.

Make him forget his house of dreams
With lilacs around the door,
For I have a task for his eager feet,
Wallowing deep in gore.

Give me your youth, the cream of your youth,
You may keep the other kind,
For what I need is an honor creed,
With questions left behind.

I'll whisper to him of a fight for peace. . .
To forget his honor, and hate. . .
Until he goes forth with the lust to kill,
Like a crazed inebriate.

I'll take him out where the shrapnel whine,
And the dying curse their fate,
For the pain and the rain of death that came
For the peace that came too late.

Give me your youth, only your youth,
I'll torture his soul with lies,
Of the deeds he's done, of the peace he's won,
As he stumbles on, and dies.

ECHO FORUM

Dear Editor,

I would like to express my thanks to all who helped make the caravan to the airport to see Dwight Eisenhower a success. I am confident that the students who were among the ten thousand at the airport had a good time.

My particular thanks are expressed to Miss Massey, Miss Ware and Miss Lloyd for their help in my project. To the fellows who ushered at the airport, the girls who organized the dorms, and to Bob Reed for his help I express my warmest appreciation. Your cooperation in this affair made a wonderful evening possible for many of our students. I am sorry that it was not possible to secure more buses.

To all of the students who went to the airport I also thank you. If you enjoyed yourselves one-half as much as I did, the trip was a success.

Sincerely yours,

Ken Wilkinson.

Road Trip Disastrous As Scotties Drop Two

By Rolfe Duggar

Special to the Echo

Johnson City, Tenn., Oct. 11—The Maryville College Scotties ran into a homecoming celebrating East Tennssee State squad last Saturday and could do little to dampen the festivities. The Buccaner's had little trouble in rolling to a 33-13 victory before some 5,000 fans to remain in the undefeated, although tied, class.

The first half was dominated completely by the pulverizing grid play of the home boys. Taking the opening kickoff the Bucs marched seventy-one yards in ten plays for the first score. John Crumley, ace quarterback and formerly of the Duke Blue Devils, sneaked across from his quarterback slot to score the first touch down. The try for an extra point failed.

Crumley's No Crumb

After Maryville found the going too tough for four downs the Bucs took over. Crumley took the ball forty-six yards and until Buddy Gilbert stepped into the picture on the Scotties thirty-three it loked as though he would go all the way. Harold Poe then carried for twenty yards on the next play and the Bucs were knocking at the doors again. There the attack fizzled out thanks to tackle Dick Patton who broke through the line and set the up-state boys back for a loss of seven yards.

Early in the second quarter the Bucs started an eighty yard drive which took only five plays to complete. The drive was high lighted by Poe who broke through the Scot defensives for forty-four yards and the second score. Again the kick was no good and the score read 12-0.

What Stops Fords?

Four plays later the Bucs again took the ball, this time on their own thirty-three and in just three plays had another score. Crumley completed a forty-four yard pass to Buc co-captain Hal Morrison, an all-conference end for two years. Two off-side penalties and a thirteen yard run put the ball on the five. From there Jerry Ford took the ball over with Ed Frye making the conversion and the score was 19-0.

Again the Scots failed to move the pig-skin and again the Bucs started their march to the goal, this time from their forty-seven. Now the Scots fought harder and it took the Bucs ten plays before Jack Raby carried over on a quarterback sneak from the three-inch line. Frye made the conversion and half-time found the Bucs out ahead 26-0.

During the half-time the ETSC "Rats" (freshman) finished up their week of initiations with a foot race across the gridiron. The band performed to the theme of "Democracy in Action" which proved to be colorful and enlightening. Prizes were awarded the thre best floats in the homecoming parade and the king and queen of the freshman class were crowned.

Half Time Spirits?

The second half again found the Scots a new ball club with all the spirit and ability that the squad had lacked in the first half. The Bucs were completely outplayed in the second half as Maryville rolled up eleven first downs to only four for the Bucs.

O. L. Davis and Clarence Sheperd sparked the Scots in their first scoring drive as they rolled up six consecutive first downs. Buddy Gilbert took the ball off tackle from the four-yard strip and banged his way over for the score. Ken Sheperd's try for the extra point, a fake kick pass attempt, failed and the Scots trailed 26-6.

The Scots' forward wall then held the Bucs for four downs. Taking over the ball on their own thirty-eight the Scots marched down to the eight yard marker before running out of steam. Ken Sheperd was the big gun rolling off nine and seventeen yard runs. An interference penalty called against the Bucs won on a pass from Gilbert to Paul Merwin netted nine more yards.

On the first play of the last quarter Bob Lloyd, a four letter man, took the ball from his own thirty-five and raced sixty-five yards for another ETS touchdown. Many Scot would-be tacklers came close but the shifty back from Johnson City dodged and cut across field at least five times before he finally found clear sailing into the end zone for the playing gem of the day. Frye's toe found the mark and the score read 33-6.

Long-Armed Wes

An exchange of punts followed before the Scots started their final march of sixty-three yards to pay dirt. Kinser hit for two passes, one to Frank Garren for five and one to Ken Sheperd for seventeen. Then with the team running from a split formation on the Buc thirty-six Kinser spotted

Center Colonels Win

Special to the Echo

Danville, Ky., Oct. 4—The victorious Maryville Scotties ran into a stone wall when they journeyed to Danville to take on Centre's Praying Colonels. In what was to be an "easy" game the Scots had their "winning streak" of two broken by a 20-0 defeat. The game was the first loss of the season for the Scots and was the opening game for Centre.

Play in the first half was all Centre as the Praying Colonels, led by five freshman, rolled up two easy touchdowns.

Taking the ball on the opening kick-off Centre marched sixty-six yards in eleven plays for their first score. Failing on his first two tries Jim Schneider finally connected with Powell Gillenwater for a thirty-four yard pass play which put the ball on the Scotty thirty-two. Schneider, a freshman, and Gillenwater, a sophomore and formerly one of the leading high school tennis stars in the state, teamed up throughout the game to complete five out of ten passes good for 153 yards. If they can conitnue they could become one of the more feared passing combinations in small college football.

What a Start!

Jim Howard, also a freshman, picked up twelve and eleven yards on runs through the tackle position. Then with the ball on the seven Mickey Harmon, fleet-footed halfback freshman from Louisville, carried the ball over into pay dirt on his first try. This may have set or tied some kind of a record for it was Harmon's first carrying attempt in eleven man football. Previously he had been a star in six man ball. Bobby Fowler, another freshman, then added the extra point.

The Scots then took the ball and failed to pick up a first down. The Colonels took over from their own thirty and moved to MC's nineteen in eleven plays, this time sparked by Gene Scott, another freshman from Louisville.

Thanks to great defensive play by tackle Dick Patton, who repeatedly throughout the game broke through the line and dumped the ball carrier for a loss, and to Don Alfred, who intercepted a pass on the Scot five, the Colonel threat was temporarily ended.

O. L. Tries Hard

Maryville then picked up its only first down of the half after a five yard penalty against Centre and a smashing nine yard drive by O. L. Davis. Davis picked up another six yards, but a fifteen yard holding penalty put another first down out of the Scottie's sight and they were forced to punt.

The Colonels took the ball on MC's forty-nine and marched in ten plays for another score. Carroll Holmes carried the ball over center for two yards and the TD. Fowler's kick was no good and the score stood at the half, 13-0.

The second half found a vastly improved Scot squad taking the field, minus the services of Dick "Deac" Gardner who was hurt late in the first half. Still they were not good enough to change the ultimate outcome.

Early in the third quarter Harry Newberry recovered a fumble on the Scot's own thirty-six to halt another Centre drive. Failing to pick up the necessary yardage Earl Lawson punted to the Centre twelve where it was taken by Howard.

Howard handed the ball off to Bill McGurn, another freshman, who raced straight up the sidelines with the help of some beautiful blocking, crossed the mid-field strip and down into MC territory. It looked like a sure TD until Lawson streaked in to hit him just enough to get him down, and the ball flew out of McGurn's hands. Harold Glad, who had been trying in vain to catch McGurn, fell on the ball on the twenty and Maryivlle took over.

All Glad

Glad then found himself and picked up six yards off right tackle and then eleven more on a fake pass play. Here the attack puttered out and for the rest of the quarter there was little offensive action.

Statistically the Scots outplayed the Praying Colonels in the second half, picking up six first downs to only two for the Colonels. Centre made the most of what they tried though and dug in and held whenever the Scots threatened.

The last score came late in the final quarter on a beauty of a seventy-five yard pass play from Schneider to Gillenwater for a TD. The pass covered thirty five yards and Gillenwater ran the last forty with no one near to try to lay a hand on him. Steele Harmon, another frosh Louisville, split the uprights and the score read 20-0.

Harriers Take On William J. Bryan This Afternoon

Scots Race Bryan Today

Hersch Mosier

Seeking their second win of the season, the Highland harriers race against William Jennings Bryan University this afternoon on the Maryville course. This marks the second meet between these teams this season and the Scots will be out to reduplicate their 21-38 conquest of the Bryanmen on October 4. The leading runners for Coach Johnson so far this season have been Homer Rickabaugh, Dick Kerr, and John Hale. Homer has led the Scots across the finish line in all three meets. His best performance was against Bryan when he finished first. He finished fourth against Tennesse and sixth in the triangular meet. Although he ran a relatively poor race in the first UT meet, placing ninth, Dick Kerr, the captain of the squad, really started hustling in the other meets finishing third in the Bryan meet and was the second Scot runner to finish in the triangular meet. Rookies John Hale, A. C. Williams, and veteran Dave Helwig, have also been running very well. John and A. C. started the season on their right feet by placing fifth and sixth respectively in the Tennessee meet. In the Bryan meet A. C. finished sixth and John came in seventh. John also took eighth place in the triangular meet. After not finishing in the first ten in the opening meet, Dave Helwig really improved his performance in the Bryan meet and took fourth place, coming in fourteenth in the triangular meet.

Scots Defeat Bryan

On October 4, the Scotties journeyed to Dayton, Tennessee and crushed William Jennings Bryan University, 21-38. Homer Rickabaugh, of the Scots, broke the tape first with a time of twenty-two minutes and twelve seconds.

Close of Homer's heels came the first Bryan finisher, Everett Boyce with a time of twenty-three minutes and nineteen seconds. A minute later Dick Kerr came in third and was followed by Dave Helwig, Dean Koontz of Bryan took fifth place and in sixth, seventh and eighth came three more Scotties, A. C. McWilliams, John Hale and Rod Millian. The other runners that finished were Jim Reese of Bryan, Don Walker of Bryan, Herb Catlin of M. C., and Bill Smals of Bryan.

Triangular Meet

Last Saturday the Scotties placed second in a triangular meet at U. T. The Vol runners really put on the steam and took the first five places to compile a perfect score of 15 points. The Highlanders came in second, collecting 50 points and Davidson College came in last place with 55 points. Frank Albertson finished a step in front of teammate Al Kukendall and did his home course in 17:45. Charles Waits, Dick Gamble, and Sam Hill took third, fourth and fifth places for the Vols also. In sixth place came the first Scottie, Homer Rickabaugh. He was followed by two more Scots, Dick Kerr and John Hale. Sparks and King took ninth and tenth places respectively. Dave Helwig, in fourteenth place, was the fourth Scot to finish and Rod McMillian and A. C. McWilliams took seventeenth and eighteenth places. In the dual meet between M. C. and Davidson the Scotties won 27 to 30. In the competition between the two schools Scotties' Rickabaugh, Herr, and Hale finished in the first three places. In fourth through eighth place came five Davidson men, Sparks, Henry, Gooding, Turner, and Shipley. Scot Helwig took ninth place and McMillian took twelfth place. The points each Scot got in relation to Davidson go towards the winning of their letters. So far Homer has 17 points, Dick Kerr, A. C. McWilliams, and John Hale all have 10 points each, Dave Helwig has 8 points, and Rod McMillian has 3 points.

Highlanders Return Tonight Meet Emory-Henry Wasps

By Bob Coles

Maryville's Highlanders return home tonight at the Maryville College Football Field, hoping to get back into the win side of the won-lost column, when they take on the powerful Wasps from Emory and Henry. The team from Abingdon, Virginia, is ready to add another victim to their impressive 1952 record. The Wasps have lost only one game so far this season, to Hampden-Sydney two weeks ago by the low score, 6-0. Aside from this, their only blot on the record, the Wasps, under the direction of able coaches have racked up four victories. They beat Carson-Newman, Maryville's opponent next week, only 7-2, so the game tonight will give anxious Maryville fans some idea of comparatives strength. In their opening game, sparked by Creed Bruce, halfback, Bunny Saltz, diminutive quarterback, and Brownie Polly, Bruce's running mate at halfback, the Wasps rolled to a 42-0 win over hapless Concord College. Last year, with Little All-American Bob Miller, Chick Davis, and Pat Spurgeon, the Wasps wer able to win only 40-12.

No Fluke

The men from Emory and Henry went on to prove this was no fluke by beating a strong West Virginia Tech team in a tight game, 13-6, and then topping Maryville's time honored rival Carson-Newman, 7-2, when Creed Bruce went over from the one, late in the third quarter and R. O. Van Dyke booted the point. Last Saturday night Bunny Saltz carried the load for the Wasps as Bruce was out with a broken hand, scoring once, and setting up several more scores to lead his team to a 26-7 victory over Guilford College.

In Good Shape

This week the Wasps report everyone ready to go against the Scottie grid machine which is not in the same condition at all. Coach Lombe Honaker expects that Harold Glad, Don Moore, and Ted Godfrey will be unable to play in tonight's game, leaving the Scotties far below their full strength. The Wasps are in good shape for next year too, as few of their starting team are seniors.

The Line

Coming down from Emory and Henry will be a strong team with a goodly number of experinced and big men. Starting at defensive end will be two freshmen, Tom Rasnick, 5' 11", 176 pounder and Moore, who weighs four pounds more than Rasnick. At the defensive tackles will most likely be Bill Stevenson, another 5' 11" boy, this time weighing in at 190, and a junior, Steve Brown, the same size as Stevenson, and also the same size as guard Hank Wallace. Wallace's running mate will be A. C. Glover, a sophomore. Bill Cline will be the defensive center, weighing in at 180, being 5' 11" tall.

Backs

The defensive backfield will compose the versatile Bruce, a hard-running 170 pounder, Tom Horwatt, a promising sophomore

Hoopsters Train

Monday afternoon the basketball season opened at Maryville College as a group of new and old men reported to Coach K. P. Johnson at the Alumni Gym. Old faces at the opening session niciuded Bob Johnston, Phil Young, Bill Van Benthuysen, Jon Hale, A. C. McWilliams, Dick Lebold, Lynn Sexton, Jim Wiley, and Dick Abbott. A number of returning basketball players are also out for football and so are not at the first practices. These are Bob Davis, Jim Campbell, Wes Kinser, and Dick Gardner.

Lots of New Faces

In addition to the old men back for another try, there were a large group of new aspirants at the Gym, cavorting before Coach Johnson's eyes. Although not too much is known of their ability as yet, these names may still become some of the greater names in the sport history of Maryville College: Harry Bibee, Bill Blair, Herb Kauhl, Pat Flynn, Doh Allen, Dave Williams, Jack Keny, Bob Patterson, Jack Crouch, Ted Webb, Al Hoyer, Malcolm King, Clyde Young, Al Grippo, Larry Hill, and some men still on the football squad, LeRoy Gooden, and Jim Saunders. All those who still want to try out are welcome.

Westlers Drill

A new face was added to the coaching staff of Maryville College the past week, as Chesley Anderson took over the wrestling team's opening tryouts in the absence of Coach J.D. Davis, who is still busy with the football team. For a week now the wrestling squad has begun the long hard task of getting into shape and reviewing the basic holds and positions. How much is to be expected from the team will not be known until practice really begins in earnest.

Was Gibt?

For a change, Anderson had a few heavyweights to look at. George Kipp and Dave Goltare, a pair of two hundred pounders were on hand to try and build up Maryville's sadly depleted stock of victories in that division. The old men out included Bob Buchanan, Herb Catlin, Harry MacCall, Curt Willbanks, Jack Maxwell, Jim Demer, and Bill Morse.

The new men were Choy Horn, Beuford Miller, Jerry Cummings, Al Homan, Dave Ramsey, Tom Bugahagen, Jim Darroch, and C. S. Anderson.

High Pockets Take Intramural Crown

INTERAMURALS
Rebels Beat Local Yolkels

Thursday, October 2, saw the Rebels beat the Local Yokels 13-0. The pass receiving of big Jack Keny proved too much for a spirited Local Yokel team. Dock Jennings stopped a third touchdown with an interception in the end-zone.

The Y.M.C.A. Highpockets met the other Y team on Friday. As usual Sonny Short's passing to "Monk" Johnston was the deciding factor. Big "Monk" caught two touchdown passes for the 14-0 score.

The Highpockets contained their winning ways with a 12-0 victory over Alpha Sigma in the Monday game.

Battle of The Cellar Dwellers

Tuesday, October 7, was the big day. Two teams, Athenian and Local Yokels, fought it out to see who would score for the first time this season. The Local Yokels finally did it. Yes, they finally scored a touchdown, the result of which brought their first victory of the season 6-0. Athenian keeps trying but they have yet to score a TD.

Scoreless Game

The Pre-Mins and the 'Y' team played to a scorless tie Wednesday. Good line play of both teams kept the passers constantly rushed. Each team had the ball within scoring territory at least once, but both failed to score.

Monday, October 13, the 'Y' team shut out the Local Yokels 12-0. This broke the Yokels winning streak at one game.

Alpha Sigma, which is still in the running for the league crown, helped their chances by beating a much improved Athenian team 12-0. The addition of Charlie Partee to the Athenian team helped to keep the score down considerably.

High Scoring Game

In a make-up game on Wednesday, Alpha Sigma, with only eight men, beat the Pre-Mins 2-0. Bob Weaver caught Harry Robinson in the end zone on an attempted pass play for Alpha Sig's two points. The Pre-Mins, after a good start have failed to score in the last three games; but have had only five points scored against them.

As the season is drawing to a close, the YMCA Highpockets lead the league with a five and nothing record, and Alpha Sig is right behnid them with a four and one record. The Highpockets have scored 103 points while their opponents have gone scoreless.

Frank Garren standing all by himself in the far corner on the goal line. A tremendous heave from "Dead-Eye" Kinser struck in the arms of Garren and Maryville had another score, once again proving Kinser's ability to fill the bill as the passer which the Scots need so badly. Ken Sheperd split the bars and the score read 33-13.

Two plays later Dick Patton and Buc co-captain Cecil Maddux were put out of the game for not being in complete agreement on the preceeding play. Play continued with no more excitement until the final gun when both teams emerged into a general free-for-all. This turned out to be the Scots only victory of the day, though it could hardly be called honorable.

French Club To Meet

The regular meeting of the French Club will be held Thursday evening at 7 p.m. in Anderson 206.

Prints On Display At Art Gallery

Starting October 10 and continuing until the 31st, an exhibition entitled "How Prints Are Made" is being shown in the art gallery of the Fine Arts Center.

This exhibition has been lent by the Metropolitan Museum of Art in New York and is circulated by The American Federation of Arts, Washington, D. C. A special gallery talk explaining this exhibit was given by Mrs. R. E. Beard last Thursday evening.

How It Is Done

All the processes of printmaking are shown by photographs and original prints in this exhibition. It explains the method whereby the ink is put onto the paper, whether from grooves, scratches and hollows, from the tops of plateaux, through prepared silks, or off drawings on a stone.

For the amateur or young artist the simpler methods encourage a try at original work. For the student who has already made his linoleum block Christmas cards, the more complicated prints are intriguing.

Another purpose of this exhibition is to explain the characteristics of different print methods so that the print collector and amateur may recognize for themselves what they see in print exhibitions and sales. The limitations of each method and its virtues are explained with examples of each kind of print.

The collector is shown how to recognize good and bad impressions of woodcuts by Albrecht Altdorfer, and engravings by Durer with good and bad samples of the same print.

A Work of Art

By one definition of a print—a work of art of which there are many originals—it is plain that the cost of one print is less than the cost of an unique drawing or painting by the same artist. For this reason it is possible for many people to own collection of print originals without a great outlay of money. Also, the more they know about prints, the greater is their enjoyment.

E-H GAME . . .

who tackles hard with all of his 168 pounds tacked on a 5' 10" frame, George Stuart and Bill Bently both juniors and both 158 pounders.

Big Enough

It is in the offensive line that most of the weight and experience make their appearance for the Wasps. Rasnick plays offensive ball as well as being a good defensive end. One of the chief targets of Saltz's passes holds down the other end slot, and with good reason. A veteran senior who tops six feet by two inches, and throws 185 pounds into every block, Bill Hankins is one of the mainstays of the Emory and Henry team. He is not the largest member of the team, however. This honor is held down by two men, the two tackles, Phil Long and Charles Deacon, both juniors, and both 195 pounds. Two other tackles who will probably see considerable action opposite Joe Bender and Dick Patton, will be Dick Looney, a junior who stands 6' 6" tall and weighs 205 pounds, and Bob Dail, another junior, an inch shorter and the same weight.

Small But Fast

The rest of the offensive line is not this big, but what they lack in size they make up in speed and aggressiveness. Sommers and Brown are the two, Sommers a senior and Brown a junior. Between them is Pete Stanton, the lightest lineman at 168 pounds.

The power of the Emory and Henry attack comes from the smooth tricky attack, built around the passes and pitch-outs of Bunny Saltz, and the hard running of Creed Bruce, Brownie Polly, Don Brookman, Creed's replacement, Bill Edens, Tom Horwatt, and a host of other aggressive backs who promise to give the Scottie ends a rough time as they run their fast Split T option plays where Saltz either keeps or flips the ball out to a trailing back. For whatever extra points they need, the Wasps have a specialist for that, too, named R. O. Van Dyke who has a ten for thirteen record on the season so far.

Pieper Won Debate

On May 30, 1936, it was announced that Archibald Pieper had won first place in Men's Debate. First honors in Women's Debate went to Mary Gladys Brown, later to become Mrs. Pieper.

Another 1936 paper mentions "Dr. Lloyd's youngest daughter and her pretty hair. . . her happy skipping across the campus reminds us of how we'd feel if we had all our term papers in." By this time movies had taken their place in Maryville life, and the Capitol theatre had a large advertisement of the latest Laurel and Hardy picture, for the benefit of the college students.

These samplings of our predecessors' writing are only a small part, chosen almost at random, of the information and entertainment that can be found in a perusal of the Echo's files from previous years. We wonder whether Maryvillians of the future will derive as much amusement from our own efforts.

there's been quite a bit of corruption during his administration."

Truman's Endorsement

The endorsement of Governor Stevenson by President Truman led some to turn thumbs down on the Governor. A typical reaction was, "I like Ike, not only because I think we need a change in office, but because I have a suspicion that Stevenson is more hooked up with the present administration than he will admit."

Another student commented, "I could stand Kefauver, but I would not support anyone endorsed by New Dealers."

An Eisenhower supported qualified his statement somewhat by saying that from listening to both candidates speak he would pick Eisenhower, but that he thinks Ike is too dogmatic in saying that that there would be no corruption in his administration.

'He's Cute'

Of course there were the usual comments that "He dresses well," or the constantly used "He's cute."

Now that opinions of some seven per cent of our fellow students has been polled, all that remains are the "rehashing" and arguments until the night in November when everyone will be taking light cuts (if necessary) to see whether they'll cheer or cry.

Van Alstyne Prays

Prayer-meeting was lead this week by Art Van Alstyne.

The all-campus meetings are held in the YW rooms each Thursday night.

Student treasurers of campus organizations are reminded by Dr. L. L. Williams, that financial reports are now due, the deadline being November 15.

to make the league worth the trouble. Last years champions, the United Nations, still have several members of their team around the campus and can give trouble if they reorganize. For the benefit of new men at Maryville, it should be explained that here on the campus we play soccer the best way we can. There are few good players around, and those who have some native ability are usually well scattered throughout the league, so that any team which is entered has a good chance of coming out on top. The game is generally played very cleanly and without too much argument, chiefly because the players don't know the rules as well as they do for other sports. Referees are always needed, as they are for any sport in Intramurals. Those who are interested should get a team roster and begin to collect a team. An announcement will be made with more details of the starting dates as things begin to take shape a little later on, but Intramural Manager Bob Navratil hopes for at least a half-dozen teams if there is to be a really decent league at all.

3 Great Symbols of America

That Spell FREEDOM!

The G.O.P. Elephant . . . the Democratic Donkey . . . and the famous Red Feather of the Community Chest are all emblematic of our free way of life. For free elections and private philanthropy are two sides of the very same coin. Our two great parties keep up independent of political dictatorship. And private giving . . . through the Community Chest . . . keeps us free of Socialism and its tax-supported, government-administered dole. Give to the Community Chest . . . it's as important as voting next month.

Dwight Eisenhower Wins College Mock Election

Stevenson Gets 27% Of Votes

With an overwhelming number of votes, Dwight D. Eisenhower won the Maryville College Mock Election that was conducted by the International Relations Club last week.

Dwight D. Eisenhower received 361 votes, 70% of the votes cast. Adlai Stevenson, Democrat, received 139 votes, 27% of the votes cast. Nine votes, or about 2% of them, were cast for Darlington Hoopes, Socialist.

Over 550 students and faculty members, 80% of them registered to vote. And 517, 73% of them, voted in the election.

Wilkinson Led Republicans

Ken Wilkinson, sophomore English major from Akron, Ohio, represented Eisenhower and the Republican Party in the campaign and electoin. His campaign manager was Robert Read, junior psychology major from Wilkes Barre, Pa.

Gail Brown, sophomore history major from Narberth, Pa., represented Adlai Stevenson and the Democrat Party. Horace Beckwith, junior from Morristown, N. J., was her campaign manager.

Representative for Darlington Hoopes and the Socialist Party was Herb Catlin, sophomore from Ogdensburg, N.Y. His campaign manager was Joe Hacker.

Election Week Activities

Election week at the college began Tuesday, October 21. On Tuesday, Wednesday, and Thursday registration was held, under the guidance of Harry McCall and Naomi Burgos. On the same days the respective political parties held demonstrations and publicized their candidates.

The climax of the week was reached on Thursday night in the Alumni Gymnasium when the three candidates presented their final speeches to the student body. The program was introduced by Charles LaRue and Van Holland, president of International Relations Club.

Republican Party Won

Voting was held all day Friday. Saturday morning Van Holland announced in chapel the Republican victory. Holland then introduced the leader of the Republican Party on campus, Ken Wilkinson, to the students and faculty.

Wilkinson made his speech of acceptance and "hoped that the results of the Maryville College election was an indication of how the national election would come out."

Letter From Ike!

Wilkinson then read a letter from Arthur Vandenburg, Jr., which expressed Dwight D. Eisenhower's sincere appreciation to the college students who worked in his behalf.

The results of the mock election sponsored by IRC in 1948 are as follows:

Dewey	58%
Truman	16%
Thurmond	16%
Wallace	9%

In that year 435 students and faculty registered, and 71% of them voted.

The victory clasp of Dwight D. Eisenhower and Richard Nixon, Republican presidential and vice-presidential candidates is appropriate for their winning of the Maryville College Mock Election held last week.

Theta Epsilon Features 'Stop The Music!' Tonight

A musical program patterned after "Stop the Music!" will be featured at Theta Epsilon tonight.

At their last meeting Thetas elected Trudy Furman to be their chaplain. Madlon Travis was put in charge of the Homecoming Float; Jean Maxwell was asked to take charge of the Pep Rally.

Anna Sue Combs and Ann Youell were appointed to the Card Committeee, which remembers Thetas with an appropriate greeting on various occasions.

All Maryville Alumnae, especially former Theta Epsilon members are invited to attend the meeting.

Wells, Carpenter Read At Worksop

Writers' Workshop will meet at 4:30 Monday afternoon in Doctor Hunter's classroom. Dorothy Wells and George Carpenter will read, and Hank Van Hassel and Joanne Edwards will criticise.

New members elected to Writers' Workshop this semester are George Carpenter, Ed Breitbach, Joanne Edwards, and Naomi Burgos.

Joan Frei was recently elected editor of the 1953 Chips. Appointed to the editorial committee were Dorothy Wells, Hank Van Hassel, and George Caldwell.

Mr. Beard Exhibits Art Work At FAC

From November 3 to November 30, the Art Gallery of the Fine Arts Center will house an exhibition of paintings by Richard E. Beard. All students and faculty are invited to attend this exhibition, which consists of oil paintings, watercolors, and tempera.

Mr. Beard has recently joined the Fine Arts faculty at Maryville. He studied at the University of Wisconsin, where he received his bachelor's degree in art, and his master's in art history. He has exhibited his work with various organizations in Madison, Wisconsin.

The artist uses a variety of techniques in several media, and his work ranges from color abstractions to studies in expression.

Kelly, Beatty, Scott Schedule Student Recital

A student recital will be held on Tuesday afternoon at 4:30 in the music hall of the Fine Arts Center. Alice Kelly, contralto, will sing Handel's "Obstination," by H. de Fontenailles, with Mary Virginia Ferguson as accompanist.

"Nacht unde Traeume" by Schubert will be sung by Carolyn Beatty, mezzo soprano, with Lora Kinsinger accompanying. Ann Hoover, pianist, will present MacDowell's "To A Water Lily, Op. 51, No. 6" and "A. D. MDCXX, Op. 55, No. 3".

Betty Ham's Father Authors His First Novel, 'Give Us This Valley'

By Gail Brown

"Give Us This Valley," a first novel by Tom Ham of Decatur, Ga., father of sophomore English major Betty Ham, is to be released by the MacMillan Co., November 3.

Tom Ham

This is a story poignant in its romance, poignant in its every detail of lives of pioneer people in the North Georgia mountains. It is a novel based on authentic historical facts, not presented in a cold, scholarly fashion, but with warmth and the tenderness of love.

Ham Went To Georgia U.

The author spent many years in preparation for this novel. Ham was educated at the University of Georgia, graduating in 1931, anxious to do journalistic work. To start out, he and a friend bought a weekly newspaper in Lineville, Alabama. From 1937 till the war he worked on several Georgia papers, including the "Atlanta Journal," as picture editor.

After the war Tom Ham returned from the Navy, and in 1948 he joined the Coca-Cola Company as director of the Sales Promotion Department.

Betty Recalls His Work

Miss Ham can remember her father going off into the Georgia mountains, while doing features for the "Atlanta Journal," to study that locality. "He would walk for miles back into the mountains, observing life in those back hills and talking with the people," she said.

It is understandable then that the story has an absolute flavor of authenticity. The story concerns a young married couple and their dangerous winter journey from Pennsylvania down the Valley of Virginia.

The journey is exciting and terrible. A fierce blizzard almost freezes husband Wash Stonecypher. The quarrel between the Stonecyphers and the Williams couple develops and grows.

The Setting Is Historical

It is the story of the Stonecyphers, a family now, beginning at a new home and farm, a life in the wilderness of Georgia's Blue Ridge Mountains.

This is another historical novel, but it deals with a section of the country about which little has been written.

It is the author's home, and the heritage that induced him to write the novel also inspired him to put forth a rich and deeply emotional story whose characters glow with the innocence and sincerity of early America.

New Students Invited To Religious Ed. Club

Religious Education Club will meet Monday, November 3, at 6:45 p.m. All new students who are interested are invited to attend, and this means especially the fellows who are needed so as to have a well-rounded club.

President Ethel Stockley urges all members to be present.

Athenian Not To Meet

The Athenian Society will not meet tonight, due to the Homecoming festivities.

Council Plan For Election Eve, Approve Reports

Student Council on Wednesday approved a request that the Student Center be left open election night as late as necessary for the benefit of the boys who want to listen to the election returns.

The proposal still has to be approved by the faculty. It was mentioned that girls have permission to listen to the election results in their rooms, as late as the returns keep coming in.

Council also approved a request by Theta Alpha Phi to sell refreshments during the intermissions of the big plays. It was pointed out that this would not take any business away from the Student Center, since it is not usually open after the plays anyway.

Committee Plans MSO

A committee made up of Bob Navratil, Jim Kesler, A. C. McWilliams, John Graulich, and Walt Elwood was appointed to help Ed Breitbach in organizing material on a new men's student organization.

President Sally Brown thanked the people who worked on the away game with Carson-Newman, especially Paul Merwin and the Athletic Board.

More Proceedings

It was reported that the faculty had approved the Student Council-sponsored blood drive in January.

A letter was received from the United Negro College Fund, asking for contributions. It was decided to pass this appeal on to the Inter-Club Council and the other organizations on campus.

Students Vote For Barnwarming Queen, and King

At a meeting of the student body Thursday morning, October 23, Betty Hammers and Marie Richards were nominated for Barnwarming Queen, and Jim Campbell and Bob Mizelle were placed on the ballot for Barnwarming King.

Miss Hammers, a sociology major from Stewartstown, Pa., is a member of Bainonian and Vesper Choir. Miss Richards is a biology major from Manasquan, N. J. She is also a member of Bainonian and was chairman of the Social Board last year.

Campbell And Mizelle

Campbell, a physical education major from Mars, Pa., is president of the Men's M Club and a letterman in football. Mizelle is president of the Men's Glee Club, a member of Alpha Sigma, and is a sociology major from Arlington, N. J.

Class sponsors were nominated at individual class meetings following the student body meeting.

Jean Anderson and Beverly Edwards were nominated from the senior class; Dorothy Wells and Patricia Halstead from the junior class; Peggy Fisher and Sally Butts from the sophomore class; and Ann Daniels and Martha Jackson from the freshman class.

Election by secret ballot of the nominees was held the following day, Friday, October 24. Results will be withheld until Barnwarming night.

'What Is Modern Art?' Slated For Friday

"What is Modern Art?" is the controversial question which will be answered by a movie of that name to be shown Friday evening, Novmber 7, at 6:45, in the Philosophy lecture room of Thaw Hall.

This color movie, produced by the Museum of Modern Art in New York City, is designed to explain the movements and theories of modern art, and to aid towards the appreciation of the following and other types of this art—cubistic, abstract, modern realistic, and surrealistic.

Baylor Is Queen Of Homecoming

Hicks, MacMillan Attend Queen

By Lora Kinsinger

LaDonna Baylor, senior elementary education major from Sturgis, Mich., will reign as queen of Homecoming this afternoon and tonight. Miss Baylor has chosen for her attendants Mary Ann Hicks and Edith MacMillan.

President of Bainonian society this semester, Miss Baylor is a member of the Vesper Choir and Future Teachers of America and was an ABC calendar girl.

They are active!

Miss Hicks, senior Bible and religion major from Williard, Ohio, is a Bainonian, and a member of Theta Alpha Phi and student council.

Miss MacMillan, senior sociology major from Marietta, Ga., is an active Theta Epsilon and Y.W.C.A. member and was Alpha Sigma Sweetheart for 1951.

Storey to Crown Queen

Chosen in a recent campus election, Miss Baylor will be crowned by Alumni Association President Carl Storey of Maryville just before the game with Georgetown.

Vogel Named New Club President

A new organization has been welcomed to Maryville campus, called the Student Members Chapter of the Music Educators National Conference.

The club elected its first officers October 23, who were president, Maryel Vogel; vice-president, Jackie Speigner; secretary-treasurer, Margaret Potts; and program chairman, Randal Lequire.

Other members are Annette Foust, Eddie Grigsby, Ray Harley, Buddy Jenkins, and Ruth Sexton. Miss Crews is the club sponsor.

Promoting interest in teaching music and giving future music teachers opportunity for professional development while still in school is the purpose.

Meetings will be held every first and third Thursdays at 6:45 in the lounge of the Fine Arts Center. Anyone interested in the field of public and private music teaching is invited.

Mr. Harter Selects Madrigal Singers

Harry H. Harter, professor of music, has announced the 1952 Madrigal members. They are sopranos Sheila Sutton, Shirley Smith, and Helen Seay; altos Pat Ingles, Ann Dishner, and Carolyn Beatty; tenors Don Brakbill, Floyd Hickman, and Harry Harter; basses William Cunningham, John Barrows, and Randal LeQuire.

They Plan Banquet

Plans for this semester include participation in the Christmas Vespers program which will be preceded by an Old English banquet.

On March 4, 1953, they will sing for the Knoxville chapter of the American Guild of Organists.

The traditional Madrigal style of singing around a semi-circular table is followed by this group. Membership is limited to twelve.

Mr. Fisher To Read Paper At Faculty Club

Commodore Fisher, associate professor of history, will read a paper on "Thirty Years in Iran" Monday evening at the Faculty Club meeting.

The club will meet at 7:30 p.m. in the home economics department in Fayerweather Hall.

Sen. Kefauver Predicts Victory For Democrats In Tuesday Election

By Van Holland

"I have a firm conviction that the cause of the Democratic Party has improved, and I predict a Democratic victory in the election Tuesday," was the statement of Sen. Estes Kefauver (Dem. Tenn.) in a Highland Echo interview Wednesday, October 29.

Sen. Kefauver

Kefauver appeared at the Maryville Democratic Headquarters Wednesday afternoon as a part of his national campaign tour in behalf of the Democratic Party.

He was accompanied by his father, R. Cooke Kefauver, Dr. and Mrs. Verton M. Queener, and other prominent friends.

Important Issues

When we asked Sen. Kefauver what the most important issues in the national campaign are, he replied, "The two most important issues are foreign policy, which includes the Korean problem, and the so called 'mess' in Washington.

"I believe that the Democratic foreign policy is the most forward-looking and realistic, and I believe that the Democrats are the most capable of cleaning up the 'mess' in Washington," he continued.

"Also," he said, "I think that we will win this election because the South will go Democratic, and the people have always prospered under the present administration. Too many people are recognizing that the Republicans are vacillating in their proposed platform."

Great Interest of People

The most striking impression that Kefauver has encountered in his present tour through 27 states was "the tremendous interest that the people of America have in this election."

Concerning college students, the Senator added, "Because they are receiving the benefits of higher education, college students have a special responsibility to participate in our government. The formation of political clubs and the many mock elections conducted express the great interest of college students, and they are to be congratulated for these worthwhile programs."

Great Work of Maryville

In an Echo interview last year Senator Kefauver stated, "My heart has always been with this college, and I hear from many miles away the great work Maryville is doing."

And he especially enjoyed being with "my old and good friends the Queeners." Dr. Verton M. Queen-

Adlai, For President!

In spite of the great popularity and known integrity of Dwight D. Eisenhower, and in spite of the results of the MC Mock Election, we think that Adlai Stevenson is the most qualified man for the presidency of the United States.

His record as governor of Illinois is proof of his administrative ability, leadership ability, honesty, integrity, resourcefulness, and all those other necessary qualities that are required for the presidency of our country. And in the words of Sen. Estes Kefauver (D., Tenn.), "He is an independent, and no one is going to push him around. I believe our best hope in the days to come lies in the election of Adlai Stevenson."

More important, perhaps, than the Democratic candidate himself is the platform and principles of the Democratic Party, which he intends to carry out. The foreign policy of the Democrats has consistently been one of international outlook, as opposed to the outmoded isolationist view of most Republicans. The domestic policy of the Democrats has been geared to provide for the advancement of your common man and lower income groups. And the other planks of the platform such as civil rights, public power development, extended social security, and low cost housing, to name a few, are as equally commendable and important.

When present perilous times demand a great executive and a forward-looking party to lead our country— — or Adlai Stevenson and the Democratic Party— — we see no reason for that so called "change."

E.V.H.

Welcome, Alumni!

For us who are still in school Homecoming is probably not a very significant event. It means a parade and a football game and the crowning of the queen, and that is about all. It is just another item in an already crowded schedule. For alumni, however, it has perhaps more meaning. It is a time when they can return to the campus where they spent four long years, and can renew memories of their youth.

The game is not only another football game; it brings back the days when they were students cheering for the team, or maybe even playing. Greeting people with, "Let's see—did you graduate in '28?" is not merely part of the reunion spirit, but is an expression of sincere pleasure in meeting close friends of former years. Seeing the floats in the parade recalls the time when they belonged to campus organizations and worked hard to make their activities successful.

When we come back to school after a vacation the first few days are always exciting. We greet our friends enthusiastically, and catch up on all the gossip. We note with a critical eye any changes that may have taken place. Although the happiness may wear off, we are at first actually happy to see the old place again. This feeling is perhaps intensified in the case of alumni, who have been away for even longer. There have been more changes, and there are more friends to meet.

So, knowing how it feels to return to Maryville, welcome the alumni and hope they will join us in that time-honored saying, "It's great to be back."

WANTED: One cover for an Underwood Typewriter. Having just settled down to type this column I'm finding it difficult to breathe due to the clouds of smoke—how did that get in there? I mean dust—that is rising from my 1912 model. Anyone offering said article will be guaranteed his name in the paper every week. "Sounds more like a booby prize!" says my roommate.

* * * * *

Along the line of typing, Kathy Chase delivered to me a brief manuscript, reprinted below, created by Ed Breitbach, Office Annex employee.

To the employer who through the years has borne my griefs:

My name is John Gutenburg and I am employed by Mrs. K. P. Johnson. I am becoming frustrated by the printing job that I hold. Everyday that I have thought about my work here, I am led to certain conclusions. It seems that I work endlessly and unceasingly for my employer to no avail. When you find this letter I will probably have flung myself from the heights of Carnegie. Adieu, my friends! I can't go on any longer!

Signed, John Guenburg

P.S. The poor typing is not a result of fear of death, but is caused by my haste to join my fathers.

And Mrs. Johnson's reply,

Dear Guenberg:

Are we all invited to the funeral?

* * * * *

QUOTABLE QUOTES:

Said Miss Johnson as her students left the classroom, "We'll be spending another day in Hell tomorrow!"

Ed. Note: Don't fire her Dr. Lloyd, they're studying the Divine Comedy!

Miss Blair, speaking about Milton, "He taught school until he felt he was ready for something important!"

Dr. Brigg's answer to Dick Patton's question regarding the possibility of getting a raincheck for the class film which produced no sound, "Yes! provided we get some thunder!"

Mr. Harter, who, having succeeded in teaching the men to "pulse" a certain phrase in the Messiah by squeezing their sides, "All you have to do to get a pulse out of a man is squeeze him!!"

* * * * *

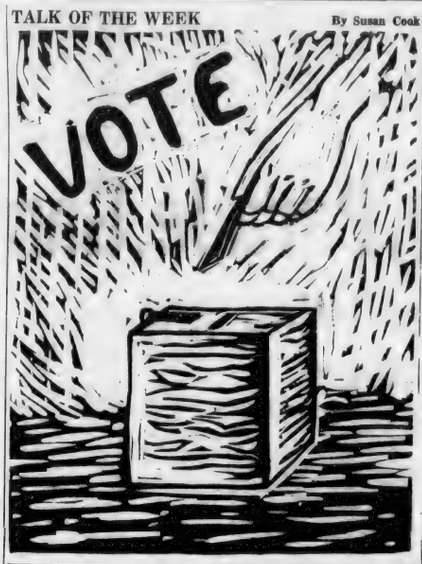
BOO-O-O-O-O-O-O-O

A day late, that's true, but it seems a shame to skip over Hallowe'en. I'll assume that the bells are still in Anderson Tower and congratulate all the students for being good little witches.

However, that doesn't mean that there was no excitement on campus last night. Following the Midnight Horror Show at 9:30 I saw a flock of broomsticks, with passengers, take off from the football field. In the lead was Dr. Lloyd, followed by Deans Mac and Maskey, Dr. Hunter, Miss Flightfoot, and other goblins on the faculty and staff. Bringing up the tail was Herr Reber in his Messerschmidt.

They circled the campus twice, then landed on circle drive behind the dining hall. After stealing all the silverware and loading it on their sticks, they waited while Miss Guss painted a big KKK on the water tower. Then over to the library to steal the stack cards and pull the light switch. From there the crew flew to the Alumni Gym where they proceeded to hang from the rafters one dozen cats filled with embalming fluid. Cats hung in place they set 12 alarm clocks for 8:10 and placed them under the bleedchers.

Their last fiendish plan for the evening was accomplished when the air squadron bombarded the dormitories with coke bottles and fire crackers. With their ghastly deeds done they followed Dr. Lloyd out to Mourning Side where they were served a delicious Midnight snack of scrambled Special Studies and Miss Ware's coffee.



This morning when some student mentioned giving ten demerits to the offenders I heard Dr. Haunter whisper to Dr. Lloyd, "Gosh, We've got to have some fun once-in-a-while!"

TALK OF THE WEEK By Susan Cook

Voices, Masks, and Shadows

By Abby Crosby

TUESDAY NIGHT APPROACHETH, and at the PARK Theater, MC Town-Niters will find Samuel Goldwyn's "I Want You"—the movieland version of the impact of the Korean War on a movieland typical middle-class US home.

Dana Andrews, a World War II veteran and reserve officer watches his kid brother, Farley Granger, being called to duty in the midst of a youthful romance with Peggy Dow, the draft board chairman's daughter.

He Convinces Her

When Andrews learns that his old wartime company has been recalled to active duty and is badly in need of officers, he prevails upon his wife, Dorothy McGuire, to keep the home fires burning while he goes off to the wars.

There are a few good scenes in this movie, but the stern reality of the conflict of home ties versus patriotic duty is visible even through the movie-type glaze of sentimentality.

ACROSS THE STREET at the CAPITOL, the Town Nite movie is of a definitely different tyep—"Pat and Mike", one of the season's gayest comedies.

Katherine Hepburn, who portrays Pat, the sports enthusiast, excels in golf, tennis, skeet-shooting, basketball, boxing—well, you name it, and she's the champ—even in judo.

Spencer Tracy plays the part of Mike, a sports promoter, who wears striped suits and signs Miss Hepburn to a contract. He immediately puts her on a rigorous training schedule along with Hucko, his husky-voiced boxer (Aldo Ray), and Little Nell, his horse.

He Falls For Her

But soon Tracy transfers his affections from Little Nell to his lady athlete, resulting in an excellent Tracy-Hepburn comedy.

As an added attraction we find several sports figures presented as themselves in this movie, including Babe Didrickson Zaharias, Gussie "Lace" Moran, Donald Budge, and others.

AT THE NEW BOOK TABLE.

I looked around for a book I heard mentioned the other day. It's name is Cake Decorating.

With only my major subject at stake, I thought I might review it for VMS this week, but not finding it on the NB table, I quit looking, hastily assuming that some starving creature had withdrawn it in order to taunt his likewise starving room-mate.

TURNING FROM New Non-Fiction to the Reading Room jacket catalogue, my eye caught the title, They Went to College by Ernest Havemann and Patricia Salter West.

Since all of us at times wonder just exactly what this business of going to college is all about, I decided to investigate further.

A Milestone Book

They Went to College is a milestone book, in that it is the first complete study made of the college graduate.

In America today there are six million graduates and two million undergraduates— and the numbers are constantly increasing—so it is correct to assume that the influence of the college graduates far exceeds their number.

Notes from the Calf's Hoof. . . . Here's where we leave the rest of the paper and put in a good word for a great sportsman, Ike Eisenhower, who we hope will be getting ready to move into the White House soon. The sport staff had to disintegrate to individual rooms in the dorm the past few weeks to get away from the so-called "Democrat National Headquarters of Maryville College Campus" which illegally took over the Echo office. Ike is a fair golfer and a former fullback for the Army team of old, and has always been a great competitor. Good Luck Ike!

. . . . Last week's game with Carson-Newman was the thirtieth meeting of the two teams during which the Eagles have come out second best. Maryville has won seventeen and one ended up in a tie. Last week was a far cry from days of old when in 1905 the first first meeting of these two rivals took place. That was the year the Scots walked off with a 72-0 victory. Probably, though, the Eagles were thinking of the 99-0 shallacking their fore-fathers took in 1915, and which thy are still trying to avenge.

. . . We noticed that Erwin Saltz, flashy quarterback for the Emory-Henry Wasps is leading the southern indpendent teams in scoring. Saltz has seven touchdowns for forty-two points, and that doesn't include his passing attack! He is almost sure of a spot on the Scots' All-Opponnt team unless Georgetown's Pinchback is really sensational this week-end.

. . . . You can forget about any game with the U-T freshmen. It was on and then off, and at last word it was completly off. It yould have been played Novembr 15, if, for reasons known only to Bob Nyland and staff, it hadn't been cancelld. They certainly aren't still scared of us, are they?

. . . . We wish to take this opportunity to extend our deepest sympathy to Joe Bender in these days of sorrow for him and his mother. Joe's dad passed away early this week after a prolonged illness. The team will miss "Big Joe" tonight. Let's hope they can win this one for him.

VARSITY SIDE-POCKET

WOMEN'S VARSITY

By Dixie Conner

Sighs of relief resound throughout the Intramural Gym as the Women's Varsity Soccer Tournament comes to a close. It has been a rough week for the Chillies, or 3:30 group, and Howis, or 4:30 group. The tournament has been hard and long, and we find many a bruised and taped-up leg as a result. No one team ever did win. The girls played three too-evenly matched games, and the only outcome was three hard-fought games all ending in tied scores.

We cannot say, either, that the games were poorly played. As Mrs. Queener said, "Both teams are too eveninly matched, and, for the first time in the history of Women's Varsity, they both are playing a good game." From Mrs. Queener, who helped Binny Sanderson referee the games, this is truly a compliment.

The low numbers enrolled this year allowed only two teams to each, and with the more experienced playrs playing the greater part of the time, some girls only played a very short, if any, time. A "squad game" was held so that the girls would get a chance to play.

Captains of the two teams chose their players wisely, and good teamwork was apparently the by-word of both. Joan Herschelman and Gerry Moore served as co-captains of the Howies. Joan herself played wing and Gerry forward and we can easily see why they were elected to that position.

Mary Ann Thompson and Emma Curtis took charge of the Chillies. With their enthusiasm and good sportsmanship to spur their team on, how could the Chillies possibly have lost?

We all have heard the expression, "May the better team win." Prhaps we have proved that there is not always a "better" team; sometimes both teams are just too good.

Gridders Drop Two

Traditional Rivals Drop Scots, 20-0

By Rolfe Duggar

Special to the Echo

Jefferson City, Tenn., Oct. 25—For the fourth consecutive weekend the Maryville College Scotties took it on the chin, this time by their arch-rivals the Carson-Newman Eagles, 20-0. It was the Eagles second victory and the Scots fourth loss of the year against only two victories.

Except for the third quarter the game was close with the accent on defense. The first quarter ended scoreless but certainly not without some thrills. The first came on the third play of the game when fullback Bob Warren, a freshman, found a gapping hole through center and dashed thirty five yards to the Scotty forty-one before finally being brought down. The Scot line then buckled down and really dug into the "dust-bowl" turf.

Flash Goes For 49

The Scots next took over and ran for two first downs before running out of steam. Taking the ball from his own fourteen Wayne Newman picked up seven yards. Ken Sheperd fought for three more and a first down. Newman picked up two more before Jimmy "Flash" Harris took over to turn in the most sparkling run of the evening. Harris took the pig-skin around his right end, twisted and turned as he fought his way through a host of would-be tacklers, cut across field and ran forty-nine yards to the Eagle twenty-five before being brought down by the Carson-Newman secondary.

Down to the middle of the second quarter the game was a sea-saw affair with the defensive platoons doing bang-up jobs. Harrell Akers and Dick Patton again being the mainstays of the Maryville line as they broke up one play after another throughout the game.

A fumble by Harris on the Maryville twenty-one was the blow that hurt. The Eagles recovered and in four plays had a score. A fifteen yard penalty for unnecessary roughness which saw one of the Scotties being given the heave-to put the ball on the eight. Captain Hubert Ashe, star wingback of the Eagles and former Knoxville High ace, went straight up the middle and over for the first touchdown. The kick was no good.

Wes Rides Ball

Wes Kinser then put his good right arm to work with some beautiful long passes. The first was a twenty-two yard jump pass to Frank Garren who made a terrific running, stumbling catch on the forty-six. There he fell to the ground but held on to the valuable piece of leather.

Three plays later Wes again cocked his arm and let loose, this time his target was Dick Gardner. The "Deacon" hooked on to the ball on the twenty and drove on to the Eagle eight.

O. L. Davis then received the ball and on two plays drove to Powerful Wasps Drop Scots, 34-13

By Bob Coles

Led by the brilliant running of halfback Bunny Saltz, the Emory and Henry Wasps defeated the Highlanders by twenty-one points, 34-14, last October 18th on the Maryville home grounds. Saltz was the whole story for the Wasps as he gained consistently around the Maryville ends, in addition to saving the Wasps several times with quick thinking and quick ball-handling.

His run was not the longest of the evening, however, by some eight yards. The longest run turned in by a Maryville back in many years came only two plays before Saltz made his run. The score came with awesome suddenness. After a scoreless first quarter in which there were plenty of thrills, and with only four minutes left in the second, Clarence Sheperd returned Phil Long's punt to his own twenty-five. On the first play from scrimmage, Jim Campbell circled left end on a reverse good for four yards. On the next play, Jim Harris broke through right tackle, cut for the sidelines and raced into the open. From the stands it didn't look as if there was going to be a hole for him to cut into, but a hole opened just as he appeared. On the Emory and Henry thirty yard line, the Wasp safety man had a shot at him, but Harris cut back inside him, tore loose from his grasp, and went the rest of the way alone.

Short Lived

Maryville's hopes for an upset were short lived, however, when Saltz scored only two plays later, and R. O. Van Dyke booted the extra point that put the Wasps ahead to stay, since Ken Sheperd had missed the point for the Scotties. Having finally tasted blood, the Wasps came right back to score again one play before the end of the half. After the kick-off, Maryville could gain only seven yards, and Clarence Sheperd kicked to the Wasp 46. From there the Wasps were set back to their own forty-three, but a pass from Tom Horwatt to Johnny Barrow was good for thirteen yards, but when Horwatt threw the ball past Saltz it looked like a long loss for the Wasps until the quick-thinking Saltz threw a pass and almost made it good. On the next play, though, his pass to Walt Hankins was caught on the four line and downed at once. For a moment it looked like the Scots would hold when Horwatt kept the ball and slid over right tackle for the score. Again Van Dyke added the point.

More Power

In the second half, the game was more one-sided, with the Wasps scoring twenty points, and driving close several other times when they failed to score. The first score was set up when Jim Campbell fumbled a punt on his own 45. After an exchange of punts, starting from their 49, Saltz carried to the six. On the fourth down Saltz took a pitchout and flipped a pass to Bobby Howard in the end zone, and Van Dyke made it twenty-one.

Once More

The Wasps kept grinding away. Saltz picked up 24 yards in the last quarter to the Maryville 26. From there Tom Horwatt carried the ball to the ten, and in three more tries he took it over for the score, and again Van Dyke kicked the punt.

The First Time

The Scotties salvaged some glory from the game by being the first team this year to score more than six points on the Wasps. After the kickoff after Horwatt's score, Lawson took to to the air, flipping 17 yards to Ken Sheperd, then again to Sheperd on a jump pass for seven more. Wayne Nwman then carried the ball for the first time and gained eight yards through the middle. On a reverse, Sheperd picked up 16 over left tackle. In four plays Maryville picked up a first down on the six, and Earl Lawson scored standing up from there. This time Sheperd added the point. Lawson's passing game went awray a few plays later when Jerry Watkins intercepted one of his passes and went all the way for the game's final score.

Scot Harriers Meet Georgia Tech

All Urged To Attend

This morning at 11:30, the Highland harriers will run against Georgia Tech on the MC four mile course seeking their fifth victory of the season. The Scotties led by their "big three", Dick Kerr, John Hale, and Homer Richabaugh, will face a rough rambling wreck squad which was defeated by the Vols 17-40 last Saturday. The only previous meet between the Scotties and Tech ended in a 13-13 tie.

Since the last issue went to press the Scotties have won meets over William Jennings Bryan University and the University of the South otherwise known as Sewanee. In their best race of the year the Scotties literally ran away from Bryan in defeating them 18-40. Kerr led the pack home in the excellent time of 17:24. A few yards in back of Dick came Hale and Richabaugh. These three boys have been consistently scoring a great many points for the Scotties. In fourth place came the first Bryanman to finish, Everett Boice. Then came steady Dave Helwig who took fifth place for the Scots. Bryan's Don Walker barely took sixth place from A. C. McWilliams.

Last Saturday the Scotties won their ninth straight meet over Sewanee by defeating them 25-30 in a squeaker on the Sewanee course. Hale sped home first in the good time of 2:02. This was John's best race of the year. In second place came Kerr and in third place came Rickabaugh. Then came a pack of five Sewanee runners, Patston, Don Crane, Doug Crane, Romertson, and Fleming. Helwig and Rod McMillian took ninth and tenth places for the Scots.

Gridders Ready For "Big One"

Georgetown College, of Georgetown, Kentucky, invades Maryville tonight for the Scotties annual homecoming debute. Litkenhous, if any faith can be put in him, rates Georgetown over the Scotties, but the Scots will be out there fighting all the way. Since 1919 the two teams have split eight decisions.

Little is really known in these quarters about the Kentuckians. It is known that the Moccasins of the University of Chattanooga swamped them 86-0 in their first game and Depauw took them later 20-14. Georgetown won over Carson-Newman, 19-12, and over hapless Taylor, Indiana, 51-0.

Georgetown's victory over Carson-Newmon spoiled the Eagles' homecoming. They will be gunning for another spoiler tonight.

Tight "T"

Georgetown runs from a tight T formation, the first the Scots have met this year. Pinchback, a six foot two inch senior from Berkley, Michigan, is the big gun in their attack and is rated as one of the top quarterbacks in small college football. An end who will have to be watched carefully is six feet two inch Menne, a terrific pass-catcher. Pinchback to Menne is a mean combination.

The tackles are all over two hundred pounds except for two lightweights, Keylon at a 180 and Marshall at 190. The others are Carey, 220, sophomore Baugh, 222, and freshman Hosch, 200, and Sutton, 205.

Pre-Game Warm-up

The center of the line isn't so large but they more than make up for it in their roughness. Craft, the center, weighs only 155, and the guards Newell and Browning both tip the scales at 175.

The band will present a pre-game ceremony during which the homecoming queen will be presented. At half-time the band will run through an election theme.

the one yard strip. Then with the Eagles fully expecting what was next to come Davis tried twice to buck his way and ended up back on the two.

Ashe Makes Ashes

Early in the third quarter the Eagles took a punt from Earl Lawson on their forty-eight and ran it back to the MC thirty-eight. Ashe, running from the fullback slot in the place of the injured Bill Jennings, picked up one first down on a short pass. Warren then on a fake reverse that completely baffled the Scotties drove through the centr of the line and went twenty-seven yards to pay dirt. Norman Wright faked a kick for the extra point, picked up the ball and handed it off to Tommy Mize, both freshman, who dashed to the right side of the line and passed to Trudley Carr in the end zone, completely fooling the Scotty secondary.

Following another Scotty punt the Eagles marched from the MC forty-five and in four plays racked up the last TD of the game. Mize went throught center for five. Warren hit center again, this time for eleven. A penalty put the ball back on the thirty-four. Ashe then again showed his versatility by uncorking a touchdown pass to Wright. Jim Cardwell added the final point of the game with a boot through the uprights.

Bill Stein Directs Tuesday Night Dancing Classes

By Kathie Chase

Just a sample of what goes on at the dancing classes, conducted each Tuesday night from 6:30 to 7:15 p.m. in the Intramural Gymnasium by Bill Stein.

Other patient, long-suffering instructors include Fanny Weber, Iz Leitch, Jeannette Whittaker and Van Holland, of whom Bill says "They deserve a great deal of credit. If it were not for them, there'd be no class. I can't express all my appreciation to them."

"Just Beautifully"

Dean McClelland stopped by the other night and said that it was going "just beautifully."

Bill himself is very pleased with the class. Though it began with 50 members, only 36 took the final on the fox-trot, but that's still a good attendance record.

Just Like Classes

It's being run on a new system this year—just as any regular credit class, although none is given for it. Students register for each dance to be taught over a period of approximately four weeks.

Attendance is taken at each class meeting, the student being permitted two cuts before his name is dropped from the roll.

A test is given at the end of each dance taught after the four week period. Marking is based on posture, rhythm, feet position and the ability to lead and follow. Grades given are Good, Poor and Bad.

Want To Jitter, Bug?

The class has just completed the fox-trot and is now registering for the jitterbug, which, Bill says, is such a difficult dance to learn that they may work on it six weeks, after which they will take up the rhumba.

Izzy Leitch and Bill are the instructors for the jitterbug class of 40 students.

State Department Trainee Program Open To Seniors

The Department of State has recentely announced its 1953 trainee program to colleges and universities throughout the country.

Seniors and graduate students with good backgrounds in political science, economics, public administration, international relations, or related fields, who are interested in a career in foreign affairs management may be considered for the program.

For Outstanding People

The foreign affairs management trainee program which begins in the summer of 1953, is designed to secure a limited number of trainees who possess outstanding ability for eventual promotion to top level positions.

Beginning salaries, depending on ability, are from $3410 to $4205 per annum.

Selection Program

The Department is again planning to use the civil service commission's junior management assistant examination as part of the selection process for its 1953 program. This examination opened October 14, and will close November 11, 1952. It is important that the applicant compete successfully in this examination.

Nominating boards, composed of faculty members, will assist the department on each campus by screening qualified students and nominating the most outstanding candidates for consideration by the Department of State. Selections must be received in the State Department not later than February, 1953.

Assigned To Washington

Trainees will generally be assigned to administrative and managerial activities in Washington. About 90% of the trainee's time is spent in regular work assignments under the guidance of a training counselor; the remaining time being allotted to orientation, counselling, and seminars. After successful completion of the program, a trainee progresses to positions of greater responsibility as he demonstrates capacity for advancement.

Not Foreign Service

These assignments, which are in Washington, should not be confused with positions in the foreign service.

Students interested should contact their nominaitng board chairman or placement director.

Barnwarming Officers Prepare For Festivities

Theme Of Show Remains Secret

By Carol Moore

Committee chairmen for Barnwarming, the YM-YWCA Thanksgiving night carnival and musical, have been announced this week by Barnwarming heads, Marie Richards, Pat Halstead, and Mary Ann Hicks.

They and their co-workers will begin their work soon, building their ideas about the theme of the student-written and directed show, which will be kept secret until that night.

Booth Committee Chairmen

Heading the booth committee will be: Carol Demler, Peggy Evans, Emma Curtis, Ginny Smith, Emily Lathrop, Gerry Moore, Pat Laing, Jackie Kendall, Dixie Connor, and Barbara Chubb.

Set: Mary Jim Bevan, Florence Clark, John Glanville; properties: Barbara Rogers, Stan Ray; lights: Dean Allison and Doug Stubblefield; publicity: Carol Moore.

More Committees

Make-up: George Caldwell; orchestra: Bill Davis; music: Lesta Merrick; script: Jeannine Fiori, Karole Kapp, Maurice Richards; costumes: Bobbie Young, Jo Anne Edwards; Programs: Dot Wells; posters: Emily Smith; tickets: Jean Anderson and Barbara Miller.

Tai Joon Park Visits Maryville

Visiting our campus recently was Mr. Tai Joon Park, chairman and conductor of the Korean Oratorio Society.

Mr. Park has been doing musical research and advanced study at the Westminster Choir School, Princeton, N. J., and is now on his way back to Korea and his position as head of the music department at Chosen Christian University.

Expresses Interest In Elections

This is Mr. Park's second visit to the United States. He likes our way of life very much and expressed interest in our current presidential election.

He thinks that the United States should continue to pursue its present foreign policy in Korea, but that the country would profit much by a speedy and successful conclusion of the war.

Mr. Park spoke in chapel on November 6 and to a combined section of economics and history classes on that afternoon.

Dr. Hutchison To Speak At Vespers Sunday

Dr. Stuart Nye Hutchison of Pittsburgh, Pa., will be the guest speaker at Vespers this Sunday night. He will also hold the services at the New Providence Presbyterian Church on Sunday morning.

Dr. Hutchison is the former pastor of the East Liberty Presbyterian Church in Pittsburgh, and the Moderator of the General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church, U.S.A. He is also a director of this college.

Rev. George Vogel Assistant Pastor At New Providence

The Session of New Providence Church, upon the recommendation of the Board of Christian Education and approval of the Board of Deacons, has engaged the services of the Reverend Mr. George William Vogel, Jr., as Assistant Pastor and Director of Religious Education. Mr. Vogel will assume his duties in this capacity the first week in December and will preach at New Providence Church Sunday morning, December seventh.

He is a native of Baltimore, Maryland, a graduate of Maryville College class of '48, Princeton Seminary class of '51, and has been Assistant Pastor and Director of Religious Education at Hillsboro Presbyterian Church, Nashville, Tennessee, for the past year.

Choir Float Wins Homecoming Contest

The Choir float judged the best of last week's Homecoming Parade will receive the trophy awarded by the Business Men's Association of the Maryville Chamber of Commerce.

There were 24 floats participating, which, led by the college band, paraded through Maryville Saturday afternoon. Various merchants of Maryville judged the floats as they passed through town.

M Club Sponsored Dance

The dance following the Saturday night game, mistakenly announced to have been sponsored by the Student Council, was put on by the Women's M Club. They began plans for the dance last year.

'Heiress' Stars Explain Character Of Roles

By Pat Ingles

"It would be impossible for me to say what kind of a person Catherine Sloper is, because she changes so rapidly and frequently," stated Nancie Kress, as she viewed the major character she is to portray in the Playhouse fall production of "The Heiress".

Catherine Sloper is described as an awkward, abnormally shy, New York society girl, who is scorned by her father, who cannot forgive her for not being either beautiful or clever.

She Has Problems

She falls in love with an adventurer who forgives her being plain and dull because she is rich. He woo her, and then jilts her when he learns that her father threatens disinheritance.

Catherine follows the pattern of being intimidated, jilted and revenged. She ultimately works for and intensily achieves revenge on the men who wrecked her life.

Nancie Kress sums it up with the following statement, "I think that the part of Catherine Sloper is a challenge to any actress, professional or amateur."

Herb White Has Male Lead

Herb White says of the male lead he is to take in the play, "Morris Townsend is the object of extreme emotional attitudes. The audience will feel either sympathy or disdain towards him.

"This is the prime reason why I shall enjoy presenting Morris Townsend. It will be interesting to discover the reactions of the audience as the personality develops."

Morris Townsend appears as a penniless, consciously charming person who launches on a series of bold and artful stratagems to achieve his engagement to the heiress. It is a role made fascinating by its ambiguity.

Caldwell Explains Role

"Dr. Sloper is a person that I doubt that anyone would much

Faculty, Council Select Leaders

By Joan Frei

Elected to "Who's Who in American Colleges and Universities" are Sarah Heron Brown, Ruth Esther Burgos, Betty Ann Hammers, Isabel Leitch, Bruce Roderick, Miller, Marie Lockhart Richards, and Mary Jane Spencer, it was released this week.

Biographies of these seven seniors will appear in Who's Who In American Colleges and Universities published next spring. They will be allowed to wear the official "Who's Who" key.

Selections are made by a joint vote of the student council and the executive council of the faculty. They are chosen on the basis of excellence and sincerity in scholarship, leadership and participation in extracurricular and academic activities, citizenship and service to the school, and promise of future usefulness to business and society. Each college is allowed a certain percentage of the senior class in "Who's Who."

SALLY BROWN

Sally Brown, history major from Laurel, Md., is president of the student body this year. During her junior and senior years she has been a member of Student Council and Student-Faculty Senate. Last year she was editor of the 1952 Chilhowean. As a freshman and sophomore Miss Brown was on the editorial staff of the Highland Echo. She was a Nu Gamma leader and in the Daisy Chain at last spring's commencement. She is also a member of Writers' Workshop and Bainonian.

RUTH BURGOS

Ruth Burgos, a sociology major from New York City, is the president of YWCA. She was a Nu Gamma leader in her sophomore year, and has been on the YW devotions committee. She was president of the Spanish Club in 1950-51. A member of Theta Epsilon, Miss Burgos has served on the deputation teams and is on Student Council, She was also in the Daisy Chain at graduation last year.

BETTY HAMMERS

Betty Hammers is a sociology major from Stewartstown, Pa. She transferred to Maryville her sophomore year. She is the chairman of the Social Board, and has been on Student Council and Student-Faculty Senate for two years. Last year she was the secretary of YW. A member of the Vesper Choir, Miss Hammers has been a "Messiah" soloist and was one of the Madrigal Singers last year. In 1951 she was a rush week chairman for Bainonian.

ISABEL LEITCH

Isabel Leitch, elementary education major from Brooklyn, N. Y., is the president of Student Volunteers. Last year she was vice-president of the junior class and a member of the Daisy Chain. As a Bainonian she was a rush week chairman in 1951. She has served on the Y cabinet as social chairman. In her sophomore year Miss Leitch was a Nu Gamma leader. And she is a member of Writers' Workshop.

BRUCE MILLER

Bruce Miller, history major from Trenton, N. J., is president of the Pre-Ministerial Association, of which he was vice-president last year. He is another transfer student, coming here from Trenton State Teachers' College. Miller is on the Student Council and the Student-Faculty Senate. Also, he is a member of Student Volunteers.

MARIE RICHARDS

Marie Richards is a biology major from Manasquan, N. J. last year she was chairman of the Social Board. She is on the Y cabinet as chairman in charge of Barnwarming. Miss Richards is a cheerleader and has been on Student Council and Student-Faculty Senate. Her sophomore year she was a program chairman for Bainonian, and she was in the Daisy Chain last spring. The Political Picture

By an overwhleming number of votes, Dwight D. Eisenhower and the Republican Party have been given control of the national government by the people of our country. Most political observers diagnose the outcome of the election as a result of the undercurrent desire for "a change" and the personal popularity of Eisenhower. Other factors in the Republican victory were probably the complex Korean situation, the few indications of Communistic influence in our government, and the relatively few exposed cases of corruption in our government.

Although the line up in Congress is close, an estimated 48 Republican senators to 47 Democrats (one independent); and an estimated 221 Republican representatives to 213 Democrats (one independent), Eisenhower will have the necessary support to carry out his program and policies. We are hoping that he will not be much influenced by the reactionary Senators Taft, Jenner, and McCarthy. We fear for the newly made advancements in our foriegn and domestic policies if these men wield any influence on Eisenhower.

Probably one of the greatest closing speeches ever spoken by a losing candidate was that of the great and noble statesman, Adlai Stevenson. We are certain all Americans agreed when he said, "That which unites us as American citizens is far greater than that which divides us as political partisans.

"I urge you all to give to General Eisenhower the support he will need to carry out the great tasks that lie before him. I pledge him mine.

"We vote as many, but we pray as one. With a united people, with faith in democracy, with common concern for others less fortunate around the globe, we shall move forward with God's guidance toward the time when His children shall grow in freedom and dignity in a world at peace."

Our Playhouse

Next Friday and Saturday, November 14 and 15, will see the first of three major productions by the Maryville College Playhouse. A great portion of the semester has been given to preparing "The Heiress" for this performance for our entertainment and appreciation.

Those who are not active in Playhouse are not aware of the many handicaps inherent in such a production here. The costumes must be made in the College Maid Shop in Thaw basement; scenery is prepared in third floor Bartlett, dusty, dark, and cramped quarters for such work; the stage is built up on the floor of the Alumni Gymnasium only a few days before production. The cast must become accustomed to the stage and props, the lights and scenery set up within a very short period of time.

All this and more, and still Playhouse usually comes through with an excellent play. Perhaps they are not the smooth-running performances of a professional group, but they do not claim to be. We have the sincere effort of a group of people to present to us a small part of our heritage in drama for its value to the observer.

We should ask no more than this of our Playhouse. They are all deserving of our attention and our praise for a job well done in the face of their many difficulties. The forth-coming play promises to be a good one. Why not go and help support drama at Maryville!

Poetically Speaking

The world lamented the death of George Santayana last month in Rome, for he was a renowned philospher, teacher, critic, and poet. Among his many papers was found this poem, entitled The Poet's Testament, and it was read at his funeral in place of a religious service.

SANTAYANA'S TESTAMENT

I give back to the earth what the earth gave,
All to the furrow, nothing to the grave,
The candle's out, the sprit's vigil spent;
Sight may not follow where the vision went.

I leave you but the sound of many a word
In mocking echoes haply overheard,
I sang to heaven, My exile made me free,
From world to world, from all worlds carried me.

Spared by the Furies, for the Fates were kind,
I paced the pillared cloisters of the mind;
All times my present, everywhere my place,
Nor fear, nor hope, nor envy saw my face.

Blow what winds would, the ancient truth was mine,
And friendship mellowed in the flush of wine,
And heavenly laughter, shaking from its wings
Atoms of light and tears for mortal things.

To trembling harmonies of field and cloud,
Of flesh and spirit was my worship vowed.
Let form, let music, let all-quickening air
Fulfill in beauty my imperfect prayer.

MOVIES

Movie goers can welcome an excellent selection this week.

The Park, on Monday, presents "Lady Possessed", with June Havoc and Jimmy Mason.

From A Novel

This is a love melodrama from the novel "Del Palma" by Pamella Kellin.

On Tuesday and Wednesday nights "The Tanks are Coming." Stephen Cochran and Phillip Cary are starring in this rip-roaring war film that promises an exciting town night.

Ride 'Em Bill:

Thursday and Friday Wild Bill Elliott shoots through another technicolor western—"Kansas City Territory".

Across the street, at the Capitol, on Monday, Tuesday, and Wednesday nights, it will be "One Minute to Zero" when Ann Blyth and Robert Mitchum live through a love story, as packed with adventure as its name.

Thursday and Friday, Ava Gardner and Robert Mitchum star in "My Forbidden Past."

BOOKS

A. J. Cronin, author of "The Green Years" has written another tense, yet tender novel, "The Spanish Gardener."

We see a frail, sensitive boy, a father afraid to face himself, a psychiatrist who turns words into mental torture, and, above all, the liveable Spanish Gardener. The story revolves around the father's passionate love for his son.

Dewey Writes Book

Moving to the more serious we are presented with a wide yet conservative viewpoint by Thomas E. Dewey in his, "Journey to the Far Pacific."

Not only an informaitve book, which is also warm, human and extremely readable, "Journey to the Far Pacific" fits the strange, exotic countries into a sharp, concise picture of a land which is vital to our future security.

Hershey To Give College Deferment Tests December

According to Major General Lewis B. Hershey, the third series of the Selective Service College Qualification Test will be given December 4, 1952 and April 23, 1953 at 1,000 testing centers throughout the country. Hershey also reported that the Educational Testing Service of Princeton, New Jersey, again has been designated to prepare and administer the test on the basis of submitted bids and to send each examinee's score to selective local boards.

General Hershey emphasized that increasing manpower demands make it important that each draft-eligible student who has not taken the test do so as soon as possible.

Requirements

The eligibility requirements of the test state that a student must (1) intend to request deferment as a student; (2) be satisfactorily pursuing a full time course of instruction; and (3) must not previously have taken the Selective Service College Qualification Test.

Students whose academic year will end in January 1953 have been urged to take the December 4, 1952 test so they will have a test score in their cover sheets before the end of their academic year, at which time their boards will reopen and reconsider their cases to determine whether they should be deferred as students.

Applicants

Applicants for the test will mail application blanks for the December 4, 1952 and April 23, 1953 administrations to Educational Testing Service in self-addressed envelopes. These envelopes will be issued to registrants by local boards. Applications for the December 4, 1952 test must be postmarked not later than November 1, 1952. Applications postmarked after midnight of that date will not be accepted for the December test.

The present criterion for deferment as an undergraduate student is either a satisfactory score (70) on the Selective Service College Qualification test or specified rank in class (upper half of the male freshman class, upper two-thirds of the male sophomore class, or upper three-fourths of the male junior class).

Graduate Deferment

Students accepted for admission or attending a graduate school prior to July 1, 1951 satisfy the criteria if their work is satisfactory. Graduate students admitted or attending after July 1, 1951 must have been in the upper half of their classes during their senior year or make a score of 75 or better on the test.

General Hershey said that it was not mandatory for the local boards to follow the criteria and again he emphasized that the criteria are a flexible yard stick and that the standard may be raised anytime necessity for so doing arises.

Mr. Martin To Speak At Chapel Thursday

Reverend LeRoy A. Martin, the President of Tennessee Wesleyan College, will speak at Chapel oh Thursday, November 13.

A Sad Situation

Just about a week ago, the Intramural football system ended for the year with the Rebels winning the tournament while the High-Pockets took the regular season crown. We wish to take this opportunity to extend congratulations to both winners who played hard all year to take their victories. Nevertheless, we wish also to take this opportunity to make some comment upon Intramural conditions, which seem to be in a very poor state in some aspects.

Whose Fault Is It?

Intramural Manager Bob Navratil and Coach Johnson are certainly not to blame for any such situation. They both work hard and overtime in a real and honest effort to make Intramurals a worthwhile enterprise. The situation we speak of is the oft-repeated theme of the sportsmanship in Intramurals. Tired of pulling punches on this subject, I wish to say right now, without exception, that the sportsmanship shown in Maryville College Intramurals is the worst I have ever seen anywhere, from sandlots to top-notch professionals.

Umpire-Baiting

And the worst of all is the constant umpire-baiting that goes on. It takes all kinds of forms. Time after time the things I've seen done in the various Intramural leagues would result in immediate banishment for the offending player if not actual forfeiture of the game. I've heard umpires called some pretty dirty names in a college where one of the main emphasis is high Christian principles; I've seen umpires charged and pushed around in a manner that would be considered disgraceful in the very meanest of surroundings, in a league that is supposed to be for fun and a little friendly competition.

Conditions

It seems to me that conditions now are the worst since I came to Maryville College four years ago, and the conditions in my Freshman year struck me as pretty bad. In all four years I have played in about every sport that Intramurals has to offer in team competition and I have umpired most, though not all, at least once or twice during those years, and so I speak from personal expirience not heresay. In none of these sports nor in any of my experiences have I ever been a standout, nor do I expect to be, but then neither do a lot of the other players. Those who do go out for the varsity sports for the most part. Why then, in a strictly for-fun situation is it necessary to have such miserable poor sportsmanhip?

Not All

This is not to say that everyone who plays in an Intramural sport is a poor sport, certainly not, for many of the nicest people I know take an active part in Intramurals. I would even go so far to say that they are in the majority, but the trouble is that they are the quiet ones and their presence is not so widely felt. In the football season now past, it might not be too much to say that every team could vastly improve their actions on the field and still fall short of real honest sportsmanhip, and that means every team with no exceptions, including the one on which I played.

In What Form

The poor sportsmanship, at least hopeful in one respect, seems to take the form of the above mentioned umpire baiting, rather than the even more obnoxious forms of dirty playing, although that takes place in some extent as well, much of it deliberate. But the umpire baiting takes many forms in Intramurals. It has always been a mystery to me personally why intelligent college students, many on the Honor Roll, and playing now for their third or fourth year in the Intramural league should be so forgetful of the rules that have always been in effect in Intromurals. Take stopping the clock for instance. Time after time players have screamed in my face that the clock should be stopped on an incomplete forward pass when the rule has always been otherwise. On reflection, it seems as if these intelligent college students forget only when seconds are precious to their own team.

The Worst Part

The most unfortunat part of the whole affair is that all this yelling and griping is the one thing that impresses the spectator, and any spectator at most Inramural games must leave with a bad impression. In all honesty, there is often much room for argument on the referee's calls, since no referee is paid or in any way commended for his efforts until it is a wonder that anyone still volunteers to umpire.

Two Forms

The people who, generally speaking, gripe the most often and longest and loudest are one of two types: either they never have the nerve to referee themselves although they obviously know all about it, or else when they do referee they make calls that are even worse than the one about which they scream. And if these hard feelings and gripes would only end after the end of the game, things might have some meaning, but I could name easily about a half-dozen, at least who dislike me and everything I do because of the way I called an Intramural game. Is this good sportsmanship? Is this Christian principles? In the last game of the season, between the High-Pockets and the Rebels, the only reason the High-Pockets lost at all was because of one of the referees, not myself this time, but my roommate. The player who said that should recognize himself, and he didn't say it in fun, and he never took it back, although most of the High-Pockets will admit that they, for once at least, were clearly outplayed, no matter what the referees may have done. And the game was one of the cleanest and hardest played I saw this year.

Certainly

Certainly the umpires miss a great deal that goes on in these games. No one denies that, players or referees, but they are not biased or prejudiced one way or the other. All the umpires are trying to do is help out so that there can be an Intramural league. And what the majority of the players are trying to do is the same thing. Why can't the disagreements be settled in a more quiet way. Umpires are human, too. Yell at them and they are usually indisposed to think of things your way, but if you are kind to them, from time to time they might even listen to reason. It would be a good thing to see an Intramural game where the only arguments were conducted quietly between the captains and referees, as it is done in any decent league. If all those who were really interested in a good league and good sportsmanship would take in hand the trouble-makers on every team, the whole Intramural system would be a great deal better, more fun, more sportsmanship, and more playing.

Scots In Invational Meet Defeat Ga. Tech 27-28

Hersch Mosier

This afternoon the Scots will run in the first Annual Bryan Invitational Meet at Dayton, Tennessee. Maryville, Bryan, and Sewanee are certain to be in the meet and the Highlanders have defeated Bryan twice and Sewanee once this season. Invitations also were sent by Bryan to Berea College of Kentucky and to Emory University of Georgia. Both these schools are said to have good teams. The Highland harriers, winners of five out of seven meets, will be the team to beat.

LAST WEEK

Last Saturday the Scot hill-and-dalers won a close race over Georgia Tech 27-28. After losing to Tennessee and Alabama the Engineers came to Maryville in search of their first victory, but their aspirations remained unrealized. Leading the Orange and Garnet to victory was John Hale who did the 4.2 mile course in 3:427. A few yards behind him came A. C. McWilliams of the Scots. John and Ace have been doing very well this season especially since this is the rookie year for both. Then three-Techmen finished before the next Scottie. They were Dick Tannshill, Bill Tettleback, and Rob Savage. Captain Dick Kerr took sixth place for the Scots. William Skinner of Tech took seventh place. In eighth place came Homer Rickabaugh. Ninth place went to Ham Traylor of Teck and Dave Helwig grabbed tenth place for the Scots.

GOOD SPRINT

As the teams came out of the wodos to begin the last half mile (two laps around the football field) John Hale and A. C. Williams were in the lead and the Techmen took the next five places, Dick Kerr was in 8th. plac and Homer Richabaugh was ninth followed by three more Techman and Dave Helwig. In that last half mile Hale and McWilliams maintained their lead, Dick Kerr moved to sixth, Homer Rickabaugh to eighth, and Dave Helwig made the biggest jump of all the Scots by moving from thirteenth to tenth place.

Game of the Century

By Bob Coles

Here it is fans, the game they said would never be played. No, not UT-Georgia Tech, or Maryland-Oklahoma, but right here on our campus, the game that could never be will be. Here at last is the answer to years of argument and strife, feud and furore, dissention and despair, the great game of the century, announcing, presenting and disclosing — —

Football Men vs. Intramural All-stars that game that could never be, now is.

THE BLESSED EVENT

This collision of the mighty, this titanic struggle between two colossi, this earth shaking event will be finally engaged on the Maryville football field soon after the close of the football season. Who can stay away, or who can bear to miss this great event? Is there a soul at Maryville who will dare to say the next day that he missed it? Can anyone be so unmoved and immovable as to shun this classic of all classics, this eighth and ninth wonder of the world, this stupendous display of football talent? Surely there is none such, surely no one can be so base as to deny themselves the thrills, the excitements, the awesomeness of this clash.

OUR HEROES

For here on this Maryville sod will cavort some of the greatest lights to shine upon sports history, some of the most brilliant stars to cross the heavens of athletic annals. For the football men such all-time, all-timers, such fabled All-Americans, such immortal figures as Bobby Berrong, Harold Glad, Paul Merwin, Dick Gardner, Jerry Harrison, Jerry King, Homer and Frank Garren, Bob Daivs, Snell Mills, and Wes Kinser will take the field on this undreamed of night. For the All-Stars from the Intramural League the final returns are not yet in. Whether or not it will be a landslide this pollster dares not predict, but surely such legendary figures as Sonny Short, Bob Johnston, Howard Guess, Bill Van Benthuysen, Buster Haylock, Bob Blair, and many others will appear.

BASKETBALL SEASON NEARS

SCHEDULE ANNOUNCED

Head Basketball Coach Lombe Honaker this week revealed the 1952 basketball schedule for the Maryville Highlanders. Until the close of the football season, Coach K. P. Johnson is working with the team in the Alumni Gym in an effort to round into shape those boys who haven't had the excess weight worked off by the rigors of the football drills, and also to teach the newer men the Maryville plays.

LOOKING GOOD

To any visitor in the Alumni Gym when the men are practicing, the team looks pretty good with some real hope for the coming season. Of course it is far too early to tell yet just who is going to make the grade since many of the varsity members are still out for football. While some admittedly look better than others, there doesn't seem to be a real dud out for the team. Jack Keny looks as if he might be able to help the team with his height and general ability. Bob Patterson, Pat Flynn, from last year's Maryville High School team, Ted Webb, from Alcoa, Bob Blair, and Clyde Young looked good in a practice where not all were present. Many others looked pretty like fair ball players as well, as if they might make the team, or the "B" team at least, if they stay out.

THE SCHEDULE

Coach Honaker, in releaisng the schedule indicated that there might be some changes still to be made, with possibly an addition or two, and a few dates that still aren't positively settled. Coach Johnson, "B" team coach, also revealed some of his plans for this year's "B" team and indicated that there would be several games added later, probably a few at the last moment as happened at times last year.

HIGHPOCKETS DEFEAT ALPHA SIGMA

On Thursday, October 22, the YMCA Highpockets played Alpha Sigma to see who would meet the Rebels in the finals of the Intramural tourney. As usual Sonny Short's passing was effective, accounting for the two touchdowns which gave a 13-0 victory. Big "Monk" Johnson, the glue fingered end of the Highpockets, snagged one of the passes to score. Captain Howie Gress, was the target for the other payoff pitch, Jim "The Toe" Wiley booted the extra point.

REBELS COP PLAYOFFS

The Rebels won the Intramural touch football playoff by beating the Highpockets 7-0 in a rough and tumble contest. The pressure was on the Highpockets because a loss would put them out of the double elimination tournament.

Win, lose, or draw the Rebels would still remain in the play. John Anderson caught the pass from "Slug" Blair in the end zone. It was the only score of the game and gave the Rebels their victory. George Roberts converted for the extra point.

Congratulations on not only winning the playoffs but also on the undefeated tourney record Rebels ! ! ! !

SOCCER

The second part of the Intramural season got under way on Monday afternoon when Alpha Sigma beat an under-manned Athenian team 2-0 in the opener of the soccer league. Horace Beckwith and Johnny Glainville were the scoring booters for the Sigmas.

The play on Wednesday afternoon saw the United Nations, last year's champs triumph over a Bartlett squad. Jimmy Bong and Bent Olsen, two really smooth operators on the soccer field, led the scoring attack.

There is room for a lot more fellows in the league. Come on out.

Scotties Tie Georgetown

By Rolfe Duggar

Before packed stands of homecoming fans on College Field a hard fighting underdog Scotty team held the Georgetown Tigers to a scoreless tie last Saturday night. The tie brought a valuable moral victory to the Scots and added the final touch to a great homecoming week-end.

Previously the Tigers had won four out of six games including a 19-12 win over Carson-Newman. Defense was the word of the night as neither team could open holes for the offensive backs. The Tigers outplayed the Scotties, but penalties proved costly, nipping any possible major drives in the bud.

Tiger quarterback Ronnie Pinchback was near perfect in his passing and hand-offs, but even more sensational was the MC line which for the first time held when the chips were down. As usual Dick Patton, Bill Wheatley and Harrell Akers were the defensive standouts in the line. Wes Kinser's powerful bulling through the line and the break-away running of Jim Campbell highlighted the Scots otherwise impotent offense.

KINSER SHOWS STUFF

In the first quarter the Tigers intercepted Don Alford's pass on the Scots' thirty-seven and quickly moved to the eleven. There they ran out of steam and the Scots took over only to have Alford fumble on the fifteen giving the Tigers another chance. Again they could get nowhere. Alford was the goat as his bad luck ran high. In three tries he lost a net eleven yards, fumbled the ball twice, once on a bad center, and even when he tried to pass the ball was intercepted.

Late in the first quarter Kinser broke around right end for twenty-eight yards to the Georgetown forty-seven. His next try netted six more yards and it looked as though the Scotties were on their way. Alford picked up two and Kinser tried for the first down. There fumble-itis hit the Scot star and the Tigers again recovered.

Pinchback completed six out of eight heaves in the opening canto which netted only thirty-one yards. In the second quarter he completed two out of four for thirty-five yards. But each time roughness penalties and the Scot line kept the Tigers in check.

ALL RONNIES?

On the second play of the second quarter Ronnie Pinchback completed a ten yard pass to Ronnie Menne who lateraled to Ronnie Rhody, giant Tiger fullback, who raced fifteen yards before being pushed out of bounds. Three plays later Rhody went through center for thirteen more to the Scot twenty-four. Then on four tries the Scot line held within inches of the fourteen and again the Tigers were stiffled.

Opening the second half Wayne Newman took Bill Marshall's kick from his eight and ran straight up the middle through a host of would-be tacklers to the Scotty forty-eight. But again the Scots failed to muster up enough strength to move the ball.

Late in the third quarter Pinchback got off a poor kick which Campbell took on the Tiger thirty-eight and ran to the thirty-four. Kinser next uncorked a long pass to Campbell down in the end zone which Jimmy could only get his finger-tips on. Any other member of the team would have been able to reach it, but this time Campbell's size worked against him.

MISSING—ONE DOWN

The next play was an end around run with co-captain Paul Merwin carrying for three yards. There, someplace, somehow, the officials got mixed up with the result that the Scots were minus a down. The officials called third down, fourth down and there was nothing the Scots could do about it but punt the ball.

The fourth quarter saw three pass interceptions, two by the Georgetown secondary, and the most offensive action that the Scots showed all night. Jimmy Campbell provided the real sparks of excitment with a twenty yard run over right tackle and a thirteen yard gain over left tackle. The Scots picked up four first downs, more than half of their entire total, and seventy-seven yards, or over half of their total yardage, in the last canto, but still no score.

Postseason Game

On November 21, the Maryville College Highlanders will take on the Vanderbilt "B" Team, the Baby Commodores, who are expected to enter town with a pretty good team. The game will be under the combined auspices of the College and the Alumni Association under the presidency of Mr. Carl Storey, Maryville business man, for the purpose of raising money for a new scoreboard on the football field, new band uniforms, and perhaps for the dedication of the field which has been in use three years now.

THE GAME

At first it was hoped that there would be a game with the U-T freshman team, but that failed to pan out when General Bob Neyland, the U-T Coach, decided that he needed too many of the freshmen for his varsity squad. Then there was some talk of trying for a game with Tennessee Wesleyan, but no date could be arranged, nor was there any real serious thought given to it. A call was put through to Georgia Tech to see if they might be interested, but the bait was not taken, and things began to look dark for any post season game until someone thought of the Vanderbilt "B" Team. A call to that school brought better results. The Director of Athletics at the school thought that everything would be acceptable, but at the last minute, the Vandy Coach asked to call back to clear up details, but these turned out to be relatively minor and the game was scheduled.

NEW EQUIPMENT

Mr. Carl Storey told of the new materials that proceeds from the game would help pay for. He said that the parts for the new scoreboard have already been ordered and are on the way. The new board will have all the most modern equipment, including a stop-clock which will keep accurate time for the game, and number systems to indicate the downs the score for both teams, the quarters, yards to go, and other helps to the fans, all controlled remotely from the sidelines. It is hoped that this scoreboard will make up the lack which has been sorely felt by the loyal Scotty fans over the years. It will be the first such scoreboard used at the school. Temoprarily it will be built with Marine Plywood or Masonite or some similar material until some more permanent structure can be built, probably before the season opens next year.

NEW UNIFORMS

Ina ddition to the scoreboard the game will help defray expenses for new band uniforms, which will be dearly welcomed by all those connected not only with the band, but with the entire school and the community. In order to raise these funds, there wil lbe a big campaign in Maryville to sell tickets and boost the game so that as much as possible of the two expenses will be absorbed by the game.

Dr. MacKay Speaks In Chapel Program

Dr. John A. MacKay, president of Princeton Theological Seminary, Princeton, N.J., spoke yesterday morning at the college chapel service on the theme "The Faith of a Protestant Christian."

Among his many distinguished positions Dr. MacKay is president of the International Missionary Council and is a speaker and writer of note in the Protestant World.

He has come South to give several addresses in connection with the observance of Reformation Week.

$500.00 Contest Open To Students

A chance to win $500.00 in prizes is offered to undergraduate students throughout the country by the Association of Petroleum Re-Refiners, Washington, D. C. Contestants are invited to submit papers on the subject, "The Advantages of Re-Refined Oil," Verne T. Worthington, president of the Association announced last week.

Purpose of the contest, according to Worthington, is to further research on the re-cycling of a vital natural resource in the interests of oil consrevation. He explained that bibliography on the subject is somewhat limited and another of the purposes of the contest is to stimulate original research on the subject of the recycling of once-used lubricating oil.

How To Enter Contest

Students desiring to enter the contest may secure a list of companies engaging in re-refining of oil and a summary of available data by writing to: The Association of Petroleum Re-Refiners, 1917 Eye Street, N.W., Washington 6, D. C. Manuscripts must be no shorter than 1000 words and no longer than 2000 words in length and be submitted to the Association's Contest Committee postmarked no later than December 1, 1952.

First prize will be $250.00, second prize, $100.00 with three other prizes of $5.00 each.

Messiah Soloists Will Sing For Christmas!

VOLUME 38 | MARYVILLE, TENNESSEE, NOVEMBER 15, 1952 | NUMBER 8

Harter Selects 9 'Messiah' Soloists

Soloist List Is Incomplete

By Pat Ingles

An incomplete list of the results of the tryouts for solos in Maryville's 20th annual presentation of Handel's "Messiah" were announced recently by Harry H. Harter, assistant professor of music.

Shirley Smith, voice major from Palmetto, Fla., will sing the soprano recitatives "There Were Shepherds Abiding in the Fields;" "And the Angel Said Unto Them;" "And Lo, the Angel of the Lord;" and "And Suddenly There Was With the Angel."

Barb Scott Sings

Barbara Scott, senior music major from Wilmington, N. C., will sing the air "I Know that My Redeemer Liveth."

Sheila Sutton, sophomore voice major from Chadbourn, N. C., will sing the air "Come Unto Him."

The alto solos "Then Shall the Eyes of the Blind Be Opened" and "He Shall Feed His Flock" will be sung by Ann Dishner, sophomore voice major from Greenback.

Pat Ingles Will Sing

Pat Ingles, sophomore pre-med student from Philadelphia, Pa., will sing the air "He Was Despised."

Carolyn Beatty, junior home economics major from Dayton, Ohio, will sing the recitative "Behold a Virgin Shall Conceive" and the air "O Thou That Tellest Good Tidings to Zion."

Senior voice major Don Brakebill, from Rockford, will sing the tenor recitative "Comfort Ye My People" and the air "Every Valley Shall Be Exalted."

Conrad Has Recitative

Conrad Eaddy, senior music major from Maryville, will sing the recitative "He That Dwelleth in Heaven" and the air "Thou Shalt Break Them."

The bass solo "The People that Walked In Darkness" will be sung by Wes Kinser, from Nashville.

The remaining solos to be presented will be announced at a later date.

Publications Committee To Meet Wednesday

The Publications Committee will meet next Wednesday, November 19, immediately after chapel in the senior section in order to elect four freshman try-outs to the Highland Echo Editorial Staff, and one try-out to the Echo Business Staff.

Members of the Publications include, Editor Van Holland, chairman; Dr. F. S. Griffitts, Assistant Professor, Elizabeth Hope Jackson, Dr. R. T. Case, Assistant Professor Arthur Story Bushing, Bob Coles, Joan Frei, Sibyl Squires, Janice Aiken, Mary Ann Hicks, and Walt Elwood.

Council Discusses MSO Treasury

Student Council met for a regular meeting Wednesday evening, November 12.

After the opening prayer, the members began discussing the question of what to do with the Men's Student Government funds, as that organization is now non-existant.

Council recommended that Ed Breitbach would call a meeting of the men and let them decide what they want to do with the money derived from the coke machine.

Next, revisions of the Town Night Agreement were discussed and passed. President Sally Brown reported that the Executive Council had not yet acted on the Ellis Avenue Grill and the Quickway proposals.

The members discussed the few faults of the Homecoming Dance and suggested dropping the idea of re-naming the Student Center.

Burgos To Lead Prayer

Naomi Burgos will lead prayer meeting Thursday night at 9:30 p.m.

Everyone is invited to come to the Y rooms and join in this all campus prayer meeting.

Queener Selected Member Of 'Twenty Five Year Club'

Dr. V. M. Queener Receives Honor

Verton Madison Queener of the Class of 1924 this fall began his twenty-sixth year as a member of the Maryville College Faculty.

He has not actually been on the campus a full twenty-five years since he was on leave of absence for one year (1934-1935) doing graduate study, and was on leave three years during World War II (1943-1946) at Washington, D.C., engaged in government service.

Faculty Member Since 1927

But ever since the fall of 1927 he has been a member of the Faculty. Therefore, he is counted a member of the "Twenty-Five Year Club."

Dr. Queener is a native Tennessean and graduated at Maryville College in 1924. He received the M.A. degree from the University of Tennessee in 1930, and the Ph.D. degree from Indiana University in 1940. He has done graduate study also at the University of Chicago and the University of North Carolina.

Taught High School

For three years after graduation from Maryville College he taught civics and economics in Portsmouth, Ohio, High School. He then joined the Maryville College Faculty and is at present Professor of History and Chairman of the Division of Social Sciences.

During most of his years here he has been the very successful coach of the debating teams and has won national recognition in the forensics field. He has written on various historical subjects, is a popular speaker, and is an active political leader in Tennessee.

Brown, Newman Plan For Wedding

The engagement of Miss Abigail P. B. Brown to Richard Newman, Kingston, N. Y., was announced by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. L. Sarle Brown of Narberth, Pa., now living in Ft. Worth, Tex.

Miss Brown is a sophomore history major. Newman, a 1952 Maryville graduate and Editor of The Highland Echo last year, is in the junior class at Union Theological Seminary, New York City. The marriage date has been set for August, 1953.

Editor Announces Annual Journalism Contest For Year

The annual prize for the best piece of writing done by a Highland Echo staff member will be awarded in May, according to Echo Editor Van Holland.

A committee of judges, consisting of Editor Van Holland, Elizabeth H. Jackson, assistant professor of English; and Carolyn Blair, assistant professor of English, will select the best works from each of the following fields:

News reporting, features, editorials, sports news stories, sports features, and the special columns "Voices, Masks, and Shadows" and "Scots and Soda."

Honorable Mention

Each of these will be given an honorable mention and the committee will select from these winners, one to be awarded the special prize.

Qualities taken into consideration will be good journalism, general writing imagination and ability, and originality of thought and expression.

Holland Won First Prize

Editor Holland won the paper's first annual journalism prize last year for his interview of singer William Warfield in the February 9, 1952, issue of the paper.

Those who received honorable mention last year were Kathie Chase, who was given second place for her "Voices, Masks, and Shadows" column; Carol Moore for "Scots and Soda;" Darothy Greenhagen for her news story; and Joan Frei for her editorial.

Because Editor Holland won the prize last year and because he is on the judging committee, he is not eligible for the award this year. All other members of the Echo Staff are eligible for the honors.

Harry H. Harter Opens Money Drive For South Korean Oratorio Society

By Carol Moore

Harry H. Harter, director and conductor of the Maryville College Messiah Chorus and Orchestra, has announced that a drive to obtain money for the Korean Oratorio Society will be opened this week.

The plan, enthusiastically approved by the Maryville group, came to Mr. Harter when Mr. Tai Joon Park, conductor of the Korean Oratorio Society and recent visitor to our campus, was conversing with a small music class.

Music Scores Destroyed

Questions by the class led Mr. Park to tell the conditions he would be working under when he returns to Pusan, Korea, in the near future. Because all of the music for their society was destroyed during the communist invasion, the Messiah was not presented last year.

Mr. Park, now possessing one complete score obtained while studying at the Union Theological School of Sacred Music this summer, will begin the tremendous task of mimeographing copies for his orchestra and chorus.

He realizes that he will be a popular man when he returns to his war-torn country. Musicians will come to him from many cities to obtain mimeographed copies of the Messiah and other works which he secured during his stay in America.

Did Not Ask For Help

Mr. Park asked assistance from no one. He was thankful that he was able to study in our nation and have the opportunity to get the few books and sheets of music that he did.

Realizing that Mr. Park would seek no help in his task, Mr. Harter suggested to the MC Messiah group, Monday, November 10, that they contribute to a general fund to buy scores for the Korean Oratorio Society. The plan states that there is neither a minimum nor a maximum amount

Seniors Eligible For Root-Tilden Scholarship

Dean Russell D. Niles of New York University's School of Law today extended the nation's outstanding college seniors an invitation to apply for the $6,600 three-year Root-Tilden Scholarship for the 1953-54 term.

Designed to help train and develop potential leaders in public affairs, the scholarship program was inaugurated at N.Y.U. two years ago and at present has 42 young men under training in the legal profession.

Named For Historians

The scholarships, made financially possible by an anonymous donor, are named for two N.Y.U. School of Law graduates outstanding in American legal history—Elihu Root (1867) and Samuel J. Tilden (1841).

In the tradition of the men for whom they are named, Root-Tilden Scholarships are awarded on the basis of superior academic record (meriting Phi Beta Kappa or its equivalent), potential capacity for unselfish public leadership, and active extracurricular participation in college life.

Must Meet Qualifications

A candidate must be over 20 years of age but not over 28 when his law training begins and he must be an unmarried male citizen of the United States. (A separate series of awards, the Florence E. Allen Scholarships, are available for women at the N.Y.U. Law Center).

The scholarships each carry an annual stipend of $2,200 to cover tuition, books, and living expenses. While the award is made initially for one year, it is renewed for the second and third years when the student maintains a high standard in legal and general scholarship.

Seniors, Apply Now

College seniors who wish to be considered for the Scholarships should apply immediately to: Dean of the Law School, New York University Law Center, New York 3, N.Y.

Application for the Scholarships must be completed by March 1, 1953, according to Dean Niles. Final announcement of selections will be made late in April, 1953.

'Heiress' Staged Again Tonight

In a uniquely proficient performance, Nancie Kress, Herb White, and their supporitng cast dramatized "The Heiress" last night at 8 p.m. in the Alumni Gymnasium. The final presentation will be tonight.

Miss Kathleen Craven, assistant professor of drama and speech, is the director of "The Heiress." Martha Horton is the committee chairman for the costumes, which were excellent last evening. Miss Kress, playing the part of Catherine Sloper, had seven elaborate costume changes.

The Student Players

Other members of the cast include Garnetta Alexander, Carol Ann Doll, Marcia Williams, Bill Williams, Bill Howell, Mary Sue Munson, and Pat Ingles.

Frederick Stradtman is the stage manager who worked along with the stage crew committee headed by David Ramsey.

Disc, Music Ed. Clubs Hold Joint Meeting

Music Education Club, Maryville's chapter of the Music Educators National Conference, will meet with the Disc Club on Thursday night, November 20 in the Fine Arts Center. For the first time, the newly purchased record player will be used by the two organizations.

Maryel Vogel, MEC president, revealed that at the last meeting music certification requirements in Tennessee and several neighboring states were reviewed. It was shown that Maryville offered all the required courses.

Singers To Give Concert Nov. 17

By Lora Kinsinger

With more than 1200 in-person appearances throughout the United States and Canada already behind them, the Trapp Family Singers will perform here Monday night, November 17, in the Alumni Gymnasium.

Since their arrival in this country in 1938, they have earned the distinction of being the most heavily hooked, single attraction in the entire concert history of the United States.

Trapp Family Told In Book

The story of how this aristocratic family turned a hobby into a profession when they renounced their ancestral estate and fortune in defiance of Hitler and came to this country to build themselves a new life, has been told in book form in "The Story of the Trapp Family Singers" by Maria Augusta Trapp, mother of the family.

Appearing at all times, both on and off stage, in the picturesque folk costumes of the Austrian Tyrol, the Trapps sing and play a wide variety of music

Program For Monday

In their concert here the Trapps, conducted by the Rev. Franz Wasner, will present the following program:

I. "Surrexit Pastor Bonus," by Orlandus Lassus; "O Maria Diana Stella," an Italian Laude; Introit "Cibavit eos," Gregorian Chant; Kyrie and Agnus Dei, "Missa Brevis," by Palestrina.

II. "Lady, Your Eye My Love Enforced," by Thomas Weelkes; "To Woodland Glades I Must Fare," by Charles Tessier; "Spring Returns," by Luca Marenzio.

III. "Two Old Netherland Dances"; Vivaldi's "Pastorale in A major"; James Hook's "Trio for Recorders"; "Muss i denn," arranged for voices and instruments by Franz Wasner.

IV. A group of Austrian folksongs to be announced from the stage; and V. four folksongs arranged by Wasner, "Varmlandvisan," "Sur le Route de Dijon," "The Londonderry Air," and "Es Wollt ein Jagerlein Jagen."

Football Field Named For Coach L. S. Honaker

Coach Begins 33rd MC Year

The new football field at Maryville College, completed in 1950, has been named Honaker Field, for Lombe S. Honaker, head football coach at the College since 1921, President Ralph W. Lloyd of the College announced today.

This decision was made Monday upon recommendation of President Lloyd by the Community Relations Committee of the College Board of Directors, to which the matter had been referred by the Board.

Alumni Proposed Name

The name was proposed by alumni who played under Coach Honaker and the approval by the Directors was given after a conference Monday between the Committee and a group of interested representatives of the community.

A Committee on Community Relations was appointed October 31 by the College Board of Directors and consists of Albert D. Huddleston, Chairman, and Joe C. Gamble, Joseph J. Copeland, Frank D. McClelland, and Ralph W. Lloyd.

Committee Gives Thanks

The Committee expressed in behalf of the Board appreciation for the sincere and helpful interest and cooperation of these alumni and friends in the community.

The Committee approved also proposals of the group for a post-season benefit football game, proceeds to be used toward purchase of Scottish kilt uniforms for the college band and an electric scoreboard for the new field.

At MC For 32 Years

Coach Honaker for whom the field is being named has been Athletic Director and head football, basketball, and baseball coach at

Rev. Floyd Ballard To Speak At Vespers

Rev. Floyd D. Ballard, pastor of the Jonesboro Presbyterian Church, Jonesboro, Tenn., will speak at Vespers tomorrow evening at 7 p.m.

Vesper Choir and W. Curtis Hughes will supply the devotional music.

Student Recital Slated For Tuesday

The Division of Fine Arts will present a student recital in the Music Hall of the Fine Arts Center on Tuesday, November 18, at 4:30 p.m.

Included in the program will be Fern Thompson, playing "Two-part Invention in F Major" by Bach. Mildred Mowery will accompany Florence Clark as she sings "Pur Diesti" by Lotti.

Morgan and Walker Perform

Jean Morgan will present Brahms' "Intermezzo, Op. 116, No. 4," and Hugh Walker, accompanied by Peggy Fisher, will sing "Lady Moon" by Edwards.

Janice Clemens will present "Impromptu, Op. 31, No. 2," by Faure; Sheila Sutton, accompanied by Jean Morgan, will sing "Care Selve" by Handel, and Jeannette Whitaker will sing "Serenade" by Gounod. George Carpenter will accompany Miss Whitaker.

Barb Scott Plays

Barbara Scott will present Brahms' "Intermezzo, Op. 119 and 118, No. 1;" Joyce Linginfelter will present Debussy's "La plus que lent," and Lesta Merrick will present Brahms' "Rhapsodies, Op. 79, No. 2."

The students and faculty are invited to attend this recital.

Dr. Hunter Spends 42nd. Year At Maryville College

By Roberta Hadley

Dean Edwin Ray Hunter has been connected with Maryville College in one way or another since 1911. During these years he has won the admiration and respect of many generations of Maryville students through his understanding and guidance.

In 1911 Dr. Hunter entered MC as a sophomore, graduating in 1914. He received his Master's Degree from the University of Chicago in 1917 and returned to Maryville to teach in 1918.

Back To Chicago

Dean Hunter has been at MC since that time, except for a year and a half, during which time he returned to the University of Chicago to obtain his Doctor's Degree in 1925. He became Dean of Curriculum in 1930.

When asked what he liked most about Maryville, he replied, "the people—the young people" He feels that the best way to be happy and stay young is to be "the people—the young people."

Among Dr. Hunter's outside interests is gardening. He plans to spend his old age growing chrysanthemums, of which he is quite fond.

Just Completed His Book

His professional interests, at the present, include his study of Shakespeare. He has contributed articles to the "Shakespeare Quarterly" from time to time, and has just completed a book about Shakespeare, "Shakespeare and Common Sense."

Little Steve, the son of Dr. and Mrs. Hunter's older son, Robert, of Daytona Beach, Fla., is the pride and joy of grandparents. He even rates higher than chrysanthemums on Dr. Hunter's list of favorites.

Harold at Princeton

Harold, the younger son, and his wife, Barbara (both of the class of '49) are attending Princeton Seminary. Mrs. Hunter's hob-

Small Colleges—

An institution is not great because it is large or because of huge enrollment. It is not great because of its large endowment or its large legislative appropriation. It is not great because of its unbeaten teams or because of its new gymnasium. Indeed, there are many colleges in this country that command far higher respect than many large universities.

Invariably one finds there a faculty composed of men who love learning and delight in teaching. Their salaries may not be high but they know that the institution has first in its mind their welfare. They are satisfied to invest their lives in such an institution.

A few men leave, tempted from time to itme by higher salaries, but more often, perhaps, to become associated with universities whose finer libraries and excellent scientific equipment are indispensable for proper cultivation of some abiding intellectual interest. It is always a surprise, however, to witness the holding power of the really first rate small college.

Such colleges, too, where there is to be found in abundant measure the things of the spirit, have a tremendous drawing power among parents and students extending from generation to generation. It is an honor itself to win admission to such institutions. —Adapted

Let's Support Football!

All through the football season we have attended games free on the strength of our activity cards. We have watched our team in action without having to pay the full price. Now tickets are going to be sold for next week's post-season game.

The money will be used for a good cause—a scoreboard and new uniforms for the band. These improvements will not only benefit us during our remaining time in school, but will be valuable additions to the college in the years to come. Money goes fast when it used for ice cream and cokes, but spent on a ticket to the game it will go towards something more permanent.

With a scoreboard even those of us who know nothing at all about football will at least be able to tell who's winning. New band uniforms will further school spirit and add to the enthusiasm at the games. Surely this game is one activity we all can and should support.

Scots & Soda

Thank you, third floor of Carnegie. Your fine co-operation in our drive to liven up the campus was greatly appreciated. BUT YOU DIDN'T HAVE TO GET CARRIED AWAY!!!! A full case of coke bottles gleefully smashed on the hall floor, lights broken, trash cans heaved down the steps, war hoops, ect. . . . . please boys! Hang up a "Home Sweet Home" sampler and go beddie-bye EVERY night by eleven bells. It's good for the soul, the body, and Mr. Mac.

* * * * *

Thank you also, Jo Walker, who, at this time, receives my nomination for woman of the year. She is, without a doubt, one of the most resourceful students on campus. With two Air Foam pillows, one sheet, one brass cow bell, and one nylon stocking, she concocted an outfit that would make Einstein laugh like an idiot.

Wrapped in a sheet with the pillows stuffed behind and fore and the stocking pulled over her head and neck, she calmly plodded through the halls of third floor Baldwin at midnight, last Saturday. Ringing her bell she recited in a monotonous tone every word of the Wee Willy Winkle nursery rhyme. All who saw her were spell-bound. House mothers, floor chairmen, and house chairman . . . . all were frozen to their respective spots. Fascinated, intrigued by this strange looking monster they listened quietly while she called out,

"Wee Willy Winkle
Went through the town
Upstairs and downstairs
In his night gown . . ."

Chapel tricks moved downtown recently when a group of freshmen girls, refreshing themselves at the Park Drugstore, set a complete shelf of alarm clocks. And they looked just as shocked as the clerks did when they sang out ten minutes later!

* * * * *

Then there's the tale about the housemother who rang third floor by pushing the buzzer seven times. Willie Sutton's husky reply, "Empire State Building."

"Heigh-Ho! Heigh-Ho!

It's off to vork vee go . . ."

With a tune on her lips and a song in her heart, Maryannovich Jonesinscky, one of the many comrades in the ranks of the MC student helpers, hops off her mattress of rock, patters across the bare floor of her cell, and struggles into her burlap school dress. Another day at the glorious school of her revolutionist ancestors has begun.

After sweeping the room, doing the wash for the comrade house mothers, dusting the hall floor, scouring the bathrooms, delivering the morning propaganda, and sweeping the front sidewalk, Maryannovich discovers that it is almost 6:00 a.m. and time to ring the rising bell.

She leaves for the mess hall after she is sure that all the comrades on her floor are awake. Upon arriving she saluates Comrade Warovarski, notices that she has a new "hero" medal, and goes about her task of setting up all the tables in the mammoth room.

By 7:15 most of the students have arrived and as Maryannovich serves the zweibach and water she suddenly remembers that today is something special. Of course, how could she forget? It is the tenth of the month, payday! With the thought of wealth to spurn her on Maryannovich hurries through her work and is ready to start classes with the rest of her comrades at 9:30.

The rest of her day is divided between classes and the remainder of her student help activities: clipping hedges, mowing lawns, washing windows, simonizing cars of faculty, polisihng medals of comrade heroes, typing demerit lists, and sewing overalls for the cause. By 11:30 p.m., having had to omit supper that she might complete her tasks, Comrade Jonesinscky is in line to receive her month's pay. The small envelope is placed in her hand and with shaking fingers she breaks the royal seal. Fifteen cents!!!! Tears stream from her sunken eyes and run down her pasty cheeks as we hear Maryannovich Jonesinscky utter these famous last words, "I got a raise!"

TALK OF THE WEEK By Susan Cook

Voices, Masks, and Shadows

By Emily Smith

SHADOWS . . . At the Capitol all next week Cecil B. DeMille's show of the year is on—all week! "The Greatest Show on Earth" includes 60-odd circus acts and a great deal of mellerdrammer. "Time" magazine calls it a "mammoth merger of two masters of malarkey for the masses," the two masters being DeMille and P. T. Barnum.

Cornel Wilde plays the high-trapeze artist imported to give new life to the show and Betty Hutton is the aerialist whose star spot he takes. Eventually Wilde gets hurt and Hutton warms up to him.

Another Guy

By some method of fate Betty winds up with another guy, and James Stewart is revealed from behind his clown face, as a surgeon running from the rap in an euthenasia case. Seems he has been hiding behind a Darroch-esque face. (Shades of Rush Week.)

At the Park on Monday a Paramount production with Paula Kelly, "Fear in the Night," is showing. That's all we know about it.

Tuesday and Wednesday offer "The Big Trees" with Kirk Douglas and Eve Miller. This is another technicolor melodrama, this time concerning the timber men out where the redwoods grow —versus the settlers.

Douglas represents land grabs and destruction until Miss Miller comes on the scene to calm him down with her thee-and-thou-ing religion. It is the usual combination of runaway train plus heroine, dam and dynamite, bang-bang, biff-sock stuff!

Thursday and Friday we have the inimitable Wild Bill Elliott in "Kansas Territory." Now you know as much as we do.

MASKS . . . Dress rehearsal (or what we saw of it) Thursday night of "The Heiress" looked terrific. By this time one performance is over and lots of people are aware of the wonderful job Nancie Kress does as Katherine.

George Caldwell as Dr. Sloper gives his usual smooth performance.

We personally have always had trouble understanding what Herb White was saying, but he comes through excellently as Morris Townsend (the cad!)

Great Promise

This is Herb's first important role at Maryville as well as Nancie's. Both of them seem to show a great deal of promise as players.

The supporting players also show promise—and most of all deserving of our praise are the costume and properties committees.

What Gowns!

The gowns are beautiful. And where did all those fabulous lamps come from!

To everyone who has worked so hard on this play we say "Congratulations" and "Thanks!"

VOICES . . . Two big musical programs are in preparation now. Rehearsals for the twentieth annual performance of Handel's "Messiah" are being held each Monday night and so far both chorus and orchestra sound pretty good.

The performance will be on Sunday afternoon, December 7, in the Alumni Gymnasium.

We would like to congratulate the newly announced soloists for the "Messiah" and ask for them a blessing as they undertake to present this glorious music.

Remember Xmas Vespers

Christmas Vespers will be held in the Gym on December 14 and if the numbers the Vespers Choir is preparing are any indication, it should be a most beautiful and inspiring service.

Girl's Choir, Men's Glee Club, Vesper Choir and Madrigals will take part in the all-musical program.

DISSERTATIONS . . . That's all I can think of to call this list of new books I found! Oddly enough, they are all of main interest to the English department (just because I have two term papers due soon).

Leon Howard has a new biography of Herman Melville of "Moby Dick" fame. Vernon Loggins presents seven generations in "The Hawthornes," and F. W. Dupee presents the life of Henry James.

Arthur Hobson Quinn has edited an historical and critical survey entitled "The Literature of The American People."

That's enough books!

Don't forget Barnwarming is only twelve days away!

YWCA To Explain Role In Natl. Organization

Maryville College YWCA as a part of a world-wide organization —that is the idea being presented this Sunday afternoon, November 16, at 1:30 p.m. in the Fine Arts Center auditorium.

By an unusual method of presentation, participants and observers of the program will share experiences with their distant co-members.

Catechism Schol. Open To Students

One Westminster Shorter Catechism scholarship, valued at $50, is available through the Board of Christian Education for any Maryville College student who can qualify.

To qualify a student must be enrolled for the first time in a Presbyterian College and must be able to answer perfectly the 107 answers to the Shorter Catechism.

A few other Westminster Scholarships will be available after the first of January 1, 1953, but the student who receives the present scholarship must recite the catechism before leaving for the Christmas Holidays.

Any student who is interested is asked at see E. Frances Massey in her office before the end of this week.

Miss Johnson, Durant Read At Workshop

Writers' Workshop will meet on Monday, November 17. Jack Durant and Jessie Johnson will read.

The critics are George Caldwell and Edward Scott.

Tennessee Weleyan To Play MC Scotties In Benefit Game

Sports Echoes

Rolfe Duggar

Next Friday night the local boosters are staging a benefit game as we all know for the purpose of obtaining funds to buy our band uniforms. But I don't believe we all understand or realize the work behind putting on a game such as this. And for what? Certainly those behind this are not in line to gain anything tangable from this venture. No, it is being done strictly for us, both the present and future students of Maryville College. Thy are purchasing new band uniforms, putting in a scoreboard, and doing other things in general to boost the football team and other sports here on the hill.

I think that in view of this fact we should all pitch in and help whenever possible. If you are called on to do something please cooperate. Some will be asked to sell tickets, some to sell tags next Thursday downtown, and some to sell programs or soda at the game Friday night. There may even be other jobs that have to be done. This is not an amateur affair, it is being put on a professional basis with the ultimate aim of obtaining enough money to purchase the necessary equipment. Another thing that will be needed is plenty of spirit. Tennessee Wesleyan will be no pushover, even though Carson Newman did beat them. Let's all back the team both by showing spirit and by attending the game at newly christened Honaker Field.

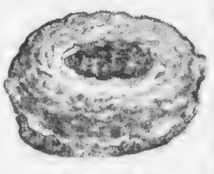
The following is what we hope is an accurate record of those who carried the pig-skin for the Scotties this year during the regular season. We covered every game and tried to be as accurate as possible. We extend our heartiest thanks to the fellows who helped us in the press box in one capacity or another, Bill Addy, Howard Gress and John Glanville. Without their help such complete coverage would have been impossible.

Several Scots had impressive records, even though the team did not quite break even with three wins, four loses and one tie during the season. End Paul Merwin's 8.3 average came on end-around plays, and particularly on one which netted eighteen yards. Jim Campbell's big boost was his fifty-one yard run against Carson-Newman last week. Jimmy has been the moral spark plug in this year's year's squad and is really going to be missed next season.

Jimmy Harris and Wayne Newman have pretty fair averages for freshman and should go a long way if they don't loose their heads. And that is a sad thing when a player or a team gets a big head. The Centre defeat should serve as a constant reminder. Harris led the Scots in four games in total yards picked up. He also led the Scots in losing ground from scrimmage, but it didn't hurt his rushing average too much. Newman has the distinction of not having lost a single yard from the line of scrimmage during the regular season, but if fumbles were counted his avrage would be down somewhat.

Wes Kinser's record we believe is really remarkable. Wes often goes in to pass, and it's seldom when a passer has a rushing average as high as he does. We believe Wes should have been used much more than he was, and the averages back us up on that. He isn't the best passer in the country, that's for sure, but he is by far the best on the Scotty team. His running jump passes may be hard ot hold on the Scotty team. His running jump passes may be hard to hold on to, but both Frank Garren and Charlie Dunn have shown that they can do it. What's more, Wes has shown the power to plow through the line when called on to do so. He is one fellow who we believe should be in there all the time.

O. L. Davis is another boy who has shown plenty of that old drive, and power is the essence of the single-wing. Both Sheperds and Harold Glad have shown good ability, too.



Getting back to the records herein, to get the net average you subtract from the total number of yards gained the number of yards lost from scrimmage and divide by the number of tries.

Name	Tries	Gained	Lost	Net Avg.
Merwin	3	25	—	8.3
DeLozier	1	6	—	6.
Campbell	16	108	16	5.1
Harris	70	367	49	4.5
Newman	58	241	—	4.2
Kinser	33	163	25	4.2
O. L. Davis	24	90	2	3.7
K. Sheperd	38	155	33	3.2
Glad	15	56	8	3.2
C. Sheperd	64	221	46	2.7
Shelton	3	6	—	2.
Gilbert	11	29	11	1.6
Lawson	18	33	30	.2
Bob Davis	1	—	—	0.0
Raulerson	2	4	5	—.5
Alford	4	5	9	—1.

The last Carson-Newman game found a new duo on the field in the persons of Don Alford and Kenny Sheperd. Those two should go steady when it comes to extra point tries. Other combinations during the season have failed, but this one surprised the majority of the fans. Don has good steady hands, necessary for any good baseball catcher, and can hold that ball in place until Kenny meets it.

Orchids to the cross-country lads for a grand performance over at Dayton, Tennessee, last week. John Hal, A. C. McWilliams. Homer Richabaugh and Dick Kerr all finished in the money for the Scots (see story, this page). Coach Kenneth Johnson has done a fine job with this year's squad and certainly deserves a big hand. The boys close out the season this afternoon against Sewanee here at home. We hope a large gathering will be on hand to give the boys a big pat on the back.

Scotties Whip Eagles Ending Regular Season

Kinser, Dunn And Newman Score TDs

By Rolfe Duggar

Playing their last regularly scheduled game of the 1952 season the Maryville College Scotties rolled up a 21-7 victory over their arch-rivals, the Carson-Newman Eagles. The Scots bounced back from a previous 20-0 defeat at the hands of the Eagles earlier this season to win handily before approximately a thousand chilled spectators.

The victory was a team victory in every sense of the word. Sterling defensive play of the always alert Harrell Akers, Dick Patton, Jerry King and Gerald Harrison, among others, prevented the Eagles from scoring until they were replaced with substitutes. The offensive team was equally as brilliant with Wayne Newman, Jimmy Campbell, Wes Kinser and Clerence Shepard carrying the pig-skin to rack up their highest point total since the opening game of the season with Hiwassee. Little Bobby Shelton was the unsung hero as he called for play after play which tore the heart out of the Eagles, in one of the cleanest fought games ever seen here.

Maryville received the opening kickoff and marched sixty-eight yards in eleven plays for their first score. Wayne Newman took the opening kickoff on the fifteen up to his thirty-two. Jimmy Harris lost five yards; then Newman picked up two off left tackle. Then pint-sized Jimmy Campbell hit the left tackle slot on a reverse, found a hole and before the Eagles knew what was going on Campbell was streaking down the sidelines. A last-ditch effort by Jack Holt finally forced Jimmy out of bounds on the C-N twenty, a fifty-one yard gain.

Wes Goes Over

Newman picked up fifteen of the necessary yardage on three attempts, and Wes Kinser bucked his way through the center of the line for the touchdown from two yards out. Ken Shepard, who evidently has been sharpening up his toe, booted the first of his three successive extra points.

Jim Cardwell took Maryville's kick on the fifteen and raced up to his forty-three on a beautiful return. From there, with captain Hubert Ashe starring, the Eagles moved down to the Scot eight before running out of steam. Ashe passed to Cardwell for fourteen and scooted left end for seventeen more to spark the Eagles' doomed drive.

Harris and Newman moved the ball to their twenty-two before Harris committed the Scot's first fumble pounced on by the Eagles. Again the Eagles were in position to score. Ashe ran right end for twelve, but thereafter brilliant line play by Akers, King and Patton saved the day. For a moment the Scots were safe on their two.

Hot Defense

Clarence Shepard immediately kicked out to the MC thirty-five where Tommy Dalton returned ten yards. Fullback Bob Warren hit center for five and again things were looking black for the Scotties. Ashe again tried to pass his way to pay dirt, but three attempts failed and the Scotties took over.

Clarence Shepard got off his best punt of the year, a short while later on a quick kick which caught the CN secondary flat-footed. The kick sailed forty yards and bounced and rolled twenty more. The only other highlight of the first half was a thirty yard punt return late in the second quarter by little Tommy Mize, Eagle safetyman.

Taking the second half kickoff the Eagles failed to pick up any ground. Ashe caught the MC secondray completely off-guard with a fifty-eight yard quick kick, his specialty, from the normal fullback position. Few men can boot the ball from so close to the line of scrimmage as Ashe.

Slippery Ball

The Scotties picked up two quick first downs, thanks to runs of eight and twenty-six yards by Clarence Shepard. The attack faltered near midfield and Earl Lawson was forced to punt. Two plays later Ashe fumbled on the C-N fifteen and Maryville recovered. Harris, Newman and Kinser teamed up to move the ball to the two foot line before Newman fumbled again and an alert Eagle pounced on the ball.

The ball changed hands several times, but always staying within the Carson-Newman half of the field. On the last play of the third quarter Don Alford recovered another fumble on the C-N eighteen yard stripe. In three plays the Scots had scored. Clarence Shepard went off right guard for one yard, then lost four yards on an attempt around left end.

Two Quickies

Wes Kinser took the ball on the twenty-one, faded back and ran wide to the left, and while still running with a host of Eagles surrounding him, jumped high and shot a bullet-like pass into the end zone. Then Charlie Dunn, freshman from Inverness, Florida, leaped high into the air next to the goal post and made a beauty of a catch for the TD. Ken Shepard converted and the score read 14-0.

Following the kick off the Eagles didn't even get a chance to complete one play when Frank Garren intercepted a pass from Ashe on the Eagles thirty-seven. Again the Scots were on the move. Harris hit right end for six; Newman pounded through center and drove his way down field for eighteen, almost breaking away for pay dirt. Harris dashed off tackle for seven, and Newman picked up another first down through center. With the ball on the three and four downs to go Newman hit center twice and scored another touchdown. Ken Shepard booted the ball through the uprights for the last Scotty score.

Eagles Fight Back

Don Moore kicked off to the ten where Tommy Mize picked up the ball and scooted up field to the forty-three. Three plays later on a completed pass play, Ashe to Trudley Carr, Eagle end Bill Kelly and Dick Patton put Jack Dempsey and Gene Tierney to shame with a rousing fist-throwing fracus. Both teams piled on to the field and a general, but short-lived, free-for-all ensued. When the original participants had been ejected from the playing field play resumed with a pass from Ashe intercepted by Paul Merwin on the Scotty

Cagers Prepare For Molding Team

Practice In Ernest

By Bob Coles

With the closing of the football season, at least the regular football season, the work of the basketball team began in real earnest this week for the men out for basketball and wrestling. New faces were to be seen in the Alumni Gym this week as head coach Lombe S. Honaker took over the reins for the first time.

The players are still going through the plays, drilling and working, hoping to mold a team for the fast approaching first game, a team that can make up the loss of such men as high-scoring Meano Shields, and center Joe Hopkins, guard Bert MacMahon and Charlie Allen.

The coaches are trying to really pound the plays in this year in the hope of spreading out the scoring a little to take up some slack since there does not seem to be a high scoring individual left from last year's team. Such an individual might though, possibly turn up among such freshmen as Dan Webb from Alcoa or Pat Flynn from Maryville High, or from Dick Gardner back after a year of independent ball, or Jack Keny, a sophomore transfer student.

Rule Changes

With the season just around the corner, it has come to attention that there are a few new rules this year that will leave the fan's guessing if they don't know exactly what to expect. The new rules, according to our source, are basically to cut down the number of fouls, especially those committed late in the game to get possession of the ball. This season, no foul shots may be waivied; all must be taken. This of course makes the game more interesting, since the last few minutes can not now be slowed down into a tight possession game by the process of waiving the late fouls. This would seem to help the cause of deliberate fouling to gain possession, but another new rule has been set up to offset that, and this is the one that will cause the confusion, and will take time to get used to. If a player misses a free throw, he will be given a second chance to make it.

If a man is fouled and is given a free throw, and should miss it, then he is given a second chance to make the point. This is supposed to offset the rule which forbids the waiving of fouls.

Intramurals....

Deluxe Battle Pits All-Stars vs. Rebels

This Tuesday, November 18, the Rebels will meet the all-star touch football team under the lights of Honaker Field. Thirteen men will represent the all-stars. They were selected by the intramural players in balloting this week. The backfield will consist of Charlie Partee, Sonny Short, Jim Wiley, and Buster Haylock. Bill Van Benthysen and Howie Gress will be alternates.

The two ends will be A. C. McWilliams and "Monk" Johnston. The guards are Ken Hammond and Bill Davis. Jim Darroch will

Game Is Attempt To Raise Fund, For Band Uniforms, Score Board

Boosters Sponsor Game

By Rolfe Duggar

In a fund raising benefit game the Maryville College Scotties will meet the Southeastern Junior College Champion Tennessee Wesleyan team next Friday night. The pre-game ceremonies are to begin promptly at 7:30 on Honaker Field.

The game, put on jointly by the Business Men's Division of the Chamber of Commerce, the Honaker Club and the Local Alumni, is for the purpose of raising funds for Scottish kilt band uniforms for Maryville College, erecting a new scoreboard and to increase interest in the Scotty team.

The scoreboard is, if all goes according to schedule, to be up for the game. It is to be a remote control job run directly from the field. The band uniforms are to cost in the neighborhood of five thousand dolars. This cost may be trimmed by having much of the work done in the College Maid Shop and elsewhere. The material is to be purchased by Proffitt's Department Store.

Tickets On Sale

Tickets are to be sold by band members and probably the Girls "M" Club here on the hill. In town they may be purchased at Spears Service Station, Byrne's Durg Store and at Gilbert's out near Maryville High. The price runs from $1.00 for all students, both college and high school, to $1.50 for general admissions and $2.00 for reserved seats. The whole east side stands seating 1500 will be rserved.

Thursday is to be Tag Day downtown. Students will be asked to give out tags to those people who will contribute to the band fund. Also, the band will march downtown with students following it. Friday is Appreciation Day for the Scots. The game is to conclude the festivities.

The pre-game dedication ceremonies are to include many known people around this section, including some out-of-town dignataries, possibly even a movie actress. Old coaches, athletes and others will participate. It is hoped that a nationally known magazine will cover the game as a feature story. Several AP newspaper men from Nashville are also expected.

Townspeople will run the concession stand with band members going through the crowds selling drinks. Programs are being printed and will probably cost a small sum. They will be excellent souvenirs and will contain historical facts plus stories of interest. An attempt is also being made to have all the local high school bands participating.

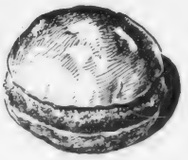
TW Has Power

Tennessee Wesleyan has a powerful squad this year. It won the Southeastern Junior College championship by whipping four junior colleges; Hiwassee (twice), Middle Georgia, West Georgia and Asheville-Biltmore, while losing only (at the time of writing) to Carson Newman. They played U.T. Senior at Martin, Tennessee last night. Wesleyan runs from a single-wing and should prove to be dangerous. The last time the Scots battled them was in 1946 when the Scots could muster up only a 14-0 victory. That was the year the Scots were undefeated and went to the Tangerine Bowl. The Scots hold only a slim advantage over TW down through the years with eight wins against six loses and one ended up in a tie. It just all goes to show that the junior college boys are far from pushovers.

Cross Country Team Wins Honors In W. J. Bryan Invitational Meet Last Sat.

By Hersch Mosier

Clearly outclassing the other four teams participating in the meet, the Maryville College cross country team took first place in the first Annual Bryan Invitational Meet at Dayton, Tenn., last Saturday afternoon. Taking first, second, fifth, seventh, and sixteenth place the Scotties obtained 31 points.



Berea College of Kentucky took second place with 68 points and in the third place with 68 points came the University of the South from Sewanee, Tennessee. The host club, William Jennings Bryan University, took fourth place with 77 points and Berry College of Mount Berry, Georgia came in last with 111 points. By their excellent showing in this meet, the Highlanders showed that they are one of the best cross country squads in the Southeast, and particularly among the small colleges in this area.

Capping individual honors was Jon Hale of Maryville who did the four mile course in 19:52 minutes. Jon, the leading runner for the Scots this season, now has a streak of three straight first place performances. A. C. McWilliams took second place for the Scots, and thus duplicated his fine performance in the Georgia Tech meet.

In third place came Bill Phillips of Berry College; he was the only runner of Berry's squad to finish in the top twenty. Ralph Wade of Berea College took fourth place. Homer Rickabaugh took fifth place for the Scotties. Everett Boice captured sixth place for Bryan, and was closely followed by Dick Kerr who took seventh place.

Don Walker of Bryan, Bob Miller of Berea, and Tom Robertson of Sewanee came in eighth, ninth, and tenth place respectively.

This afternoon the Scots will close their season with a meet against Sewanee of the Maryville course. The Scotties, led by Jon Hale and Captain Dick Kerr, will be out to duplicate their previous victory over Sewanee and to rack up victory number six for the year.

The complete orchestration which will be purchased first is priced at $30. Any amounts received over that will buy vocal scores.

The Inscription

Inscribed on each copy will be these (or similar) words:

To the Korean Oratorio Society, Pusan, Korea: from the Maryville College Messiah Orchestra and Chorus; Maryville, Tenn.

Said Mr. Harter, "Mr. Park works under tremendous difficulty for them to sing good music. Here is one small way of showing our Christian spirit of sharing. This plan is definite and concrete. It will make a difference in the giving and the receiving of the gift."

He Went To Tusculum

When Mr. Park graduated from Tusculum College and the Westminster Choir School at Princeton, N.J., he went back to Korea in 1936. At that time he organized the chorus and orchestra which he has conducted to this time.

He also teaches music and hymnology to seminary students at Chosun Christian University, a Presbyterian, co-ed school of 1200 students. It was located at Seoul, but during the invasion their buildings were destroyed, and they are now attending classes in temporary wooden buildings at Pusan. Park is living there now with his wife and four children.

They Met At Union

Mr. Harter came to know Mr. Park personally this summer when they both attended classes in choral conducting at Union Theological School of Sacred Music.

After hearing the Vesper Choir album, Park said that perhaps the Board of Christian Education would send him to our school. He arrived November 4 and left for Wooster College, Ohio, November 7.

Orchestra Concert Next Saturday

By Kathie Chase

W. Curtis Hughes, director of the Maryville College orchestra, has announced that the first concert of the year will be at 8 p.m. Saturday, November 22, in the Music Hall of the Fine Arts Center.

Miss Katherine Crews, instructor in music, will be the concertmistress and Doris Holt, senior piano major from Philadelphia, Pa., will play as soloist.

Strauss Overture First

The first number on the program will be the Overture to "Die Fledermaus" by Johann Strauss.

William Bergsma's "Paul Bunyan Suit" will then be performed. The three movements of the suite ar "Dance of the Blue Ox," "Country Dance" and "Night."

This suite is concerned with the colossal figure of Paul Bunyan, legendary giant who symbolized the opening of the frontier of the Northwest Territory.

Paul's Babe Depicted

The Dance of the Blue Ox depicts Paul's favorite pet, Babe, who stood forty ax-handles high and whose footprints made the Great Lakes. The other movements are a country dance, and a musical picture of night over the logging camps, followed by a section representing the fulfillment of Paul's pioneer work.

Grieg's Concerto Last

The last number will be "Concerto in A Minor, Op. 16 for Piano and Orchestra," by Edvard Grieg. The three movements to be played are "Allegro molto moderto," "Adagio," and "Allegro moderato e marcato."

Vols To Give Skit For Sunday Night

Student Vols will meet in Bartlett Hall after Vespers Sunday night.

As for the program, Social Chairman Homer Rickabaugh describes it as "a sort of cross between a skit and a panel." Agnes Bond will speak on "The Modern American Indian," with Charles LaRue and Janice Eakin participating.

A fumble on the Eagle forty by O. L. Davis stopped the Scots again and the Eagles were ready. The Scot line, filled with green players, some seeing their first bit of action since the opening game, failed to hold the desperate upstate boys. Ashe scooted right end for thirty-five before being brought down by the MC secondary. Bob Warren hit center for nine, and an eight yard gain by Ashe put the ball on the nine. From there Warren, a 188-pound freshman, drove through center for the Eagles lone touchdown. Jim Cardwell converted for the seventh point.

The Eagles were handed another chance to score, but time ran out before they could make it. Kinser fumbled and the Eagles again recovered, this time on the Scotty eight yard stripe. The Scots, evidently wondering how good they were, only put up ten men to stop the Eagles on the last play of the game. A fine tackle by Buddy Gilbert saved the day and ended the game.

SOCCER

Alpha Sigma and the United Nations played to a 0-0 tie on Thursday, November 6. Good defensive play by both teams stopped any scoring attacks either team could muster up. Friday saw Athenian and the Bartlett Squad battle to a scoreless tie. It seems to be a battle for the cellar between these two teams.

Monday's game between Alpha Sigma and the Bartlett Squad was postponed until November 20. The game originally scheduled for Tuesday will be played next Tuesday, the 18, as a preliminary to the ALL-STAR game. The two teams to play are Athenian and the U.N.

Sigs Beat Athenian

Wednesday Alpha Sigma triumphed over Athenian, 2-0. Horace Beckwith and Dean Allison led the scoring with a goal each. Beckwith leads the league in scoring with two goals. He is closely followed by John Glainville, Jim Bong, Bent Olsen and Dean Allison, all with a goal.

CROSS COUNTRY

On Thursday afternoon the Intramural Cross-Country Meet was won by the team composed of those men out for wrestling against a team of those not out for wrestling. For the wrestlers, Bob Vandergriff took first place to lead his team to a 23-33 victory over their opponents, who were led across the finish line by Paul Payne.

Taking third place was Jim Sanborn of the Non-wrestlers, and for those few minutes it looked as if they might take the team championship, but the next four places went to the Wrestlers. Taking fourth place was Jim Demer. Behind him came Dave Ramsey, Tom Bugenhagen, and Bob Buchanan. Beuford Miller took eighth for the non-wrestlers, followed by Al Homan, and John Carty.

The red ribbons of the Intramural championship were given to the first five placers, Vandergriff, Payne, Sanborn, Demer, and Ramsey.

Dr. Morgan To Lead February Meetings

Dr. Stringham To Lead Songs

By Kathie Chase

The leader of the February Meetings this year will be the Rev. Howard Moody Morgan, D.D., pastor of the Chambers-Wylie Presbyterian Church of Philadelphia, Pa.

This is the fourth time that Dr. Morgan has led the Meetings within the past sixteen years.

Stringham Returns

Rev. Dr. Sidney E. Stringham, now pastor of the First Methodist Church, Kennett, Mo., will lead the singing. He has rendered this service for but two series during the past thirty-two years.

This year there will be a third member of the February Meetings team, as there was four years ago. Dr. Henry Barraclough of Philadelphia is coming as guest accompanist for the second half of the Meetings.

Served Four Years Ago

He was here in the same capacity four years ago. He is a native of England who came to America first as accompanist for Charles M. Alexander, one of the most famous of all evangelical singers.

Dr. Morgan has an English background also. His father was Dr. G. Campbell Morgan, longtime pastor of Westminster Chapel, London, and one of the best known Bible lecturers and writers of the past generation.

An Eloquent Speaker

His son has inherited some of his father's gift of Bible exposition and eloquence. The invitation to lead the Meetings a fourth time is testimony to his effectiveness.

The dates scheduled in the college catalog for the Meetings are February 4-12, 1953. In that period the Meetings will take precedence over other activities at the college.

Jan Pierce, Bidu Sayao To Perform At U-T

Jan Pierce and Bidu Sayao will perform on the U-T Concert Series Monday night at 8 p.m. in the U-T Alumni Gymnasium.

Buses will leave from the chapel site at 7:15 p.m. and will return at 10:30 p.m.

Rev. Sadler To Speak At Vespers Sunday

The speaker at the Vesper Service this Sunday will be Rev. Ira H. Sadler, pastor of the White County Parish of Sparta, Tennessee. Rev. Sadler is the present Moderator of the Synod of the Mid-South of the Presbyterian Church.

All are invited to this Sunday evening worship service in the Fine Arts Center at 7 p.m.

Pub. Comm. Elect Four To Staff

At a meeting of the Publications Committee Wednesday morning four freshman try-outs were added to the Echo staff. The new staff members are Shirley Armstrong, Faith Nollner, Bud Spalding, and Don Thorn.

They have all had experience on high school newspapers, and have been trying out by writing stories for the Echo. These additions bring the number of freshmen on the Echo staff up to ten.

Those previously approved were Annie Bucher, Eleanor Cantrell, Susie Cook, Elizabeth Frei, Don Layton, and Betty McKenney. There are still openings for two more freshmen on the staff.

Church Slated For Thanksgiving

A community-wide service will be held on Thanksgiving morning, at 10:30 a.m. at New Providence Presbyterian Church.

The service is to be under the leadership of the Ministerial Association of Maryville. Various ministers from churches throughout the city will take part in the service.

Classes will not meet on Thanksgiving. Breakfast will be served in the dining hall at 8 a.m. The noon meal will include the traditional Thanksgiving chicken with all the trimmings.

The tables are to be decorated and a prize will be given for the most original center-piece.

Pre-Game Events Launch Program Tonight At 7:30

By Don Thorn

A colorful list of pre-game events is on tap for the post-season game tonight between the Highlanders and Tennessee Wesleyan. The activities are scheduled to begin promptly at 7:30 p.m. with the highlight of the evening (the game of course) starting at 8 p.m.

Welcome By Mayor Crawford

Heading the program is the welcome by the mayor of Maryville, John C. Crawford. Mayor Crawford will be introduced by James N. Holloway who is the master of ceremonies for the evening.

Following the welcome a Color Guard from McGhee-Tyson Air Base will enter the field along with the band sponsor, Miss Barbara Murphy and the drum major, Hugh Walker.

American Flag

At this time the Rotary Club of Maryville will present the band with an American Flag which will be accepted by Miss Murphy and Mr. Walker.

The Star Spangled Banner will then be played by Maryville and Everett High School bands. Both of these bands will also entertain at half-time with snappy formations and music.

Introductions

Next on the program will be the introduction of such dignitaries as Dr. Ralph W. Lloyd, President, Maryville College; Dr. LeRoy A. Martin, President, Tennessee Wesleyan;

Joe C. Gamble, representing Board of Directors; Dr. E. R. Hunter and Miss Jessie Heron representing the faculty; Carl M. Storey, President, Alumni Association; Dr. Hobart Ford, Coach Honaker's first captain, and other former team captains and players; Frosty Holt, Athletic Director Carson-Newman College;

Farmer Johnson, Coaching Staff, University of Tennessee; Maryville College Band and Director, Curtis Hughes;

Maryville and Tennessee Wesleyan coaching staffs, captains, senior members, and football squads; and other personalities amounting to approximately 380 people.

Presentations

Following the introductions will be the presentations of the band uniforms by Jack Proffitt and the electric scoreboard by Tom West and Harold Bird for the Honaker Club. These will be accepted by officials of Maryville College.

Coach Honaker Honored

Maynard L. Dunn, Honaker Club president, and Robert M. Baldwin will pay tribute to Coach Honaker after which a plaque will be presented by Mayor Crawford. Following this, President Lloyd will dedicate the football field which is to be called Honaker Field.

Dean Frank D. McClelland will then have a dedication prayer. This closing the pre-game activities, the crowd will settle back and watch the gird specialists perform.

Half-Time

Maryville and Everett High School bands will perform at half time which will be concluded with the singing of the Alma Mater by the entire crowd.

Nation-Wide Publicity

The game is to have complete coverage by the Associated Press, United Press, and the story will appear in approximately 60 large cities throughout the United States. The New York Times and its 40 newspapers will run the story. The Presbyterian Life with its 600,000 circulation will have a story of the game.

Maryville College owes a great deal to the sponsors of this game, the players themselves and all connected with this big event.

Barnwarming Set For Thurs. Night

Queen, King Await Crowning

By Abby Crosby

Thursday night, November 27, at 8 p.m. in the Alumni Gymnasium is the scene of this year's Barnwarming production. The Y WCA committee for the 1952 Barnwarming consists of Marie Richards, Pat Halstead, and Mary Ann Hicks.

The script was written by Jeannine Fiori, Karole Kapp, and Marie Richards. It is a musical comedy centering around Danny's news-stand, a common every day side-walk scene, and revolving around a case of mistaken identity.

Schroeder Has Lead

Charlie Schroeder has the part of Danny, and is assisted in the play by Jim Darroch, Bob Vandergrift, Ann Dishner, and Carolyn Beatty. Supporting roles are taken by Jack Durant, John Glanville, Arnold Munn, Ed Breitbach, Peggy Kessler, Hazel Robinson, Sheila Sutton, Judy Burgos, Cary Valentine.

Hiwassee Christians Head Vol Program

Student Vols will meet Sunday night following Vespers in Bartlett Hall.

President Isabel Leitch announced that seven students representing the Christian Student Movement from Hiwassee Junior College will furnish the program.

The program will be in the form of a radio skit.

Sellick, Lloyd Give Recital

Edrie Sellick, soprano, and Louise Lloyd, pianist, both assistant professors of music, will present a joint recital Friday evening, November 28, at 8 p.m. in the Music Hall of the Fine Arts Center.

Miss Sellick will be accompanied at the piano by Dorothy Vawter, Instructor in Music. All students and faculty are invited to attend.

Varied Program

The program will alternate selections by each soloist, Miss Lloyd opening with Beetoven's "Sonata, Opus 10, No. 1". Miss Sellick's first group will include "Dove Sono" and "Deh Vieni" by Mozart, from Le Nozze di Figaro, and "O Bona Pattia" by Parker, from Hora Novissima.

German, French Songs

Selections from Brahms, Chopin, Griffes and Scriabin will be played by Miss Lloyd. Miss Sellick includes two German songs, by Brahms, two French songs, by Monsigny and Backelet, and concludes the program with four English selections.

Maryville Graduate

Miss Lloyd graduated from Maryville College and has done graduate study at the Eastman School of Music in Rochester, N. Y., and the Zurich Conservatory of Music, Zurich, Switzerland.

Graduated from the Eastman School of Music, Miss Sellick received her Master's Degree in Sacred Music at Union Theological Seminary, New York City. She has appeared in concerts, and on radio and television in and around New York City.

Coach Lombe S. Honaker Honored In Dedication Service At 7:30

One of the largest athletic functions ever to take piace on the Maryville College campus is scheduled for this Friday night when the Maryville College Highlander football squad plays host to the Tennessee Wesleyan Bulldogs of Athens in a special post-season tilt.

The 15th meeting on the gridiron between the two-arch rival schools will serve a dual purpose. The game is being played to raise funds to purchase new band uniforms for the Maryville College marching musicians. Maryville's newly-named gridiron— Honaker Field—will also be dedicated to the man who has served as Head Coach and Athletic Director at the Presbyterian insttituion since his arrival in 1921.

COACH HONAKER

A new electric scoreboard and clock, which was obtained through efforts of a group of former Maryville athletes and interested alumni, will also be dedicated prior to the game.

Invitations Extended

A large number of Honaker's coaching friends have been extended personal invitations by the businessmen's group who are cooperating with the college in sponsoring the fund-raising tilt. Among those who plan to attend or have representatives in their stead are Gen. Bob Neyland of Tennessee, Bobby Dodd of Georgia Tech, "Frosty" Holt of Carson-Newman and Alonzo Stagg.

Eight seniors on the 50-man college football team will play their final game for the Orange and Garnet team. Three Maryville men are included in the octette. They are Co-Captain Homer Garren, Harry Newberry and John "Red" Morton.

Others for whom it will be a "swan song" performance include: Co-Capt. Paul Merwin of Ridgewood, N.J., James Campbell of Mars, Pa., Joe Bender of Milford, N.J., Dick Patton of Fairless Hills, Pa., and Harold Glad of Brooklyn, N.Y.

Stiff Fight Seen

Tennessee Wesleyan will bring one of its strongest squads in seasons to Honaker Field for the Friday game. The Bulldogs from Athens have been beaten only once this year and that was by a non-conference foe, 19-12.

Meantime they have polled up six victories over conference members again claiming the Southeastern J.C. Championship. In their game last week-end, they knocked off the power-laden University of Tennessee Junior College at Martin, 20-7.

Although the series of games between Maryville and Wesleyan date further back, Honaker-coached Maryville elevens boast a slight victory margin, winning seven tilts, dropping six and having the 1933 battle end in a scoreless deadlock.

History of Games

Maryville took the first meeting by a score of 14-0 in 1926. The following two seasons went to Wesleyan by scores of 13-0 and 13-6. Then in '29 MC took the win column again by a 27-0 margin, their biggest victory ever.

The Highlanders continued to win for the next three seasons (1930-32) by handy scores of 2 touchdowns or better; then came the 0-0 battle in 1933.

Wesleyan Triumph

Next Wesleyan took over for three consecutive years of triumps with a 14-12 win in 1934; 13-0 in '35 and finally laced the locals 40-7 in 1936. The schools dropped play in 1937 while Maryville won in 1938, 26-7, and TWC dropped the '39 battle by a 20-14 advantage.

The next game was Maryville's 14-0 victory in 1946 when the Highlanders finished the season undefeated and untied to play Catawba College of Saulsbury, N. C. in the Tangerine Bowl at Orlando, Fla.

New Uniforms

Funds from Friday's game will be used to purchase new uniforms

Exper. Theater Presents 'Closet' 'Riders To Sea'

Experimental Theater will present two plays on Saturday evening, Nov. 29, in Bartlett Auditorium. Two performances will be given, at 7:30 p.m. and 9:00 p.m.

Van Alstyne Director

Art Van Alstyne will direct "The Closet". This is an expressionistic play with special emphasis on flash backs and setting.

The characters are: Rachel, Sarah Pledge; Sadie, Mortha Horton; Brenda, Joanne Campbell, and Madam Dunn, Barbara Clark. The sets were designed by Florence Clark.

Caldwell Director

George Caldwell will direct "Riders to The Sea," which is an Irish tragedy presented in Irish dialect, written by John Millington Synge.

The cast includes: Maurya, Nancy Rideout; Kathleen, Annie Buchar; Nora, Susan Cook; Bartley, Arthur Frier.

Caldwell says of "Riders to The Sea", "this play is considered by many critics to be one of the greatest one act plays ever written."

Music, Art Appreciation Classes Plan Joint Meets

Music Appreciation (313) for the second semester will be scheduled at the same period (ex-3) as Art Appreciation (313), it was announced this week by Professor Katherine Davies.

The reason for this identical schedule is that there may be an interchange of lectures from time to time on the various periods and styles. The music appreciation course aims to prepare the student to enjoy music and to become an intelligent listener.

A study is made of the styles, forms, and instruments as they evolve through the various periods. Much illustrative material and recorded music is used. The course is open to those who have little musical background as well as to those who are familiar with music.

Vols, Pre-Mins, Y's Plan Joint Meeting

Student Volunteers, Pre-Ministerials, YMCA, and YWCA will hold a joint meeting this Sunday afternoon at 1:30 in the Fine Arts Center.

Thanksgiving is the theme for the program and will be built around a play, "The Spirit of Thanksgiving," by Barbara Blum, class of 1952.

All members of these four organizations and all others interested are urged to be present for this interesting, inspirational meeting.

Barnwarming Money Goes To Four MC Missionaries

By Joe Gilliland

Most of us think of Barnwarming as nothing but the big show of the semester that is always held on Thanksgiving night. We see the posters which tell us that the money collected from receipts goes entirely to the mission field, but our thoughts center around the show itself.

YMCA President Ruth Burgos, in announcing the recipients of this year's proceeds, said, "I believe that it should be re-emphasized that none of the money gained from Barnwarming stays here in Y—it all goes out to missionary work."

To Four MC Missionaries

The money from the 1952 Barnwarming show is going to four former Maryville students who are now in misison work in different parts of the world. Two national misisons and two foreign missions are represented.

Funds going abroad will go to Carolyn Miller, '52, who is now teaching in an elementary school in Assuit, Egypt, and to Bill Starr, '51, who is with the Woodstock School in Punjab In India. Mary Kennedy, '50, who is serving in Haines House, Alaska, and Janet Kihlgren, '52, who is working with Mexican-American children in New Mexico, are recipients in the national mission field.

Division Un-Intentional

Miss Burgos explained that the even division between national and foreign missions was not intentional. About a month-and-a-half ago, YW wrote these four graduates and asked them what their greatest need was.

After the missionaries sent replies, the funds were planned to be sent in proportion to the need.

The Needs

The funds sent to Bill Starr will be used to help with the education of a boy whose parents are in Communist China. Lynn Miller requested that books be sent that would be suitable for elementary school children.

Miss Burgos said that the available books were all on high school or more advanced subjects, and that books for the elementary level was the greatest need there.

Money For Repairs

Mary Kennedy's request was for $30 which would be used to repair a wood saw. This saw was given new last year by Student Volunteers. The fact that it is already in need of repairs would in-

Trapp Family 'Pray, Sing, Play Together'

By Emily Smith

The family of Maria Augusta Trapp is not only a group of very fine musicians, but also a rare and unusual family in this day and age. Their livlihood is music, and music is the very essence of their every day.

Mrs. Trapp came into the family originally as a governess to the children following the death of the first Baroness. She started out singing to the children and thus interested them in music.

They Married

Eventually the governess married the Baron. The Nazis started growing in power, forcing the remnants of Austrian nobility to move. They were always just one step ahead of the Nazi police.

Logically enough, the Trapp's travels led them to America in 1939. The group had sung in festivals at Salsburg as well as in their home for their own entertainment and now the necessity for money caused them to turn their hobby into a profession.

Two Costumes

The Trapp family uses two different costumes. For the religious and classical music they have designed for themselves a more formal outfit. Mrs. Trapp wears a full length flowing black gown.

The girls wear long, full-skirted and sleeved white dresses with embroidered black vests and a large red flower. The men wear plain black suits with short, straight coats.

Tyrolian Costume

When singing lighter, secular music all the Trapps don the traditional Tyrolian costume native to them. The women wear a full dirndl skirt with a white short-sleeved blouse, a scarf to match the skirt over their shoulders, red hose, and flat shoes.

The men wear knee length trousers, short bolero-like jackets and long dark hose.

Summer Home

The summer for the Trapp family is spent at their new home near Stowe, Ver. A summer music camp is conducted by them with a turnover of about 150 people every ten days.

A great deal of group singing of both classical and folk songs is done, hikes are conducted, and lessons in folk dancing and the recorder are given.

So Live That . . .

In the time of your life, live—so that in that good time there shall be no ugliness or death for yourself or for any life your life touches. See goodness everywhere, and when it is found, bring it out of its hiding-place and let it be free and unashamed.

Place in matter and in flesh the least of the values, for these are the things that hold death and must pass away. Discover in all things that which shines and is beyond corruption. Encourage virtue in whatever heart it may have been driven into secrecy and sorrow by the shame and terror of the world. Ignor the obvious, for it is unworthy of the clear eye and the kindly heart. Be the inferior of no man, nor of any man be the superior.

Remember that every man is a variation of yourself. No man's guilt is not yours, nor is any man's innocence a thing apart. Despite evil and ungodliness, but not men of ungodliness or evil.

These, understand. Have no shame in being kindly and gentle, but if the time comes in the time of your life to kill, kill and have no regret.

In the time of your life, live—so that in that wondrous time you shall not add to the misery and sorrow of the world, but shall smile to the infinite delight and mystery of it.

—William Saroyan.

Those Poor Seniors . . .

The time allotted for Special Studies is drawing to a close. A few industrious people are reported to have turned theirs in several weeks ago, but for most the struggle is still going on. Soon the hour of reckoning will come. Special Studies are due December 1 on the stroke of 12, and not a minute later.

To the seniors we wish to extend our sympathy during their sufferings. Soon it will be all over—and then ours will begin. Junior English majors have already had their advisors assigned, and have been requested to choose topics by December 1.

At the rate we are going, we may expect to have our first chapters written by Christmas. It is ironic that on the very day the seniors complete their task we are launched on ours. Soon we will know at first hand how they have felt. Now we can only commiserate with them and extend our best wishes in the week that lies ahead.

Letters to The Editor . . .

This week a letter to the Editor was surreptitiously deposited in the Echo Office. It was a very worthwhile effort entitled "The Inconsistency of Society," which included some very fine Christian ideas. However, we could not print the letter since it was not signed by the writer.

Although we will withhold a name by request, we cannot print any Letter to the Editor unless the writer acknowledges his bit of handiwork.

Scots & Soda

By Carol Moore

One thing you can say about Maryville students . . . they surely are a healthy bunch. Come what may, they never get sick. No epidemics, no diseases, no plagues, nothing dents the constitution of these robust youth. May I point out as examples of the preceding statements:

Jerry Walker—a vigorous blond who thanks Hadacol for her ability to resist plagues, etc.

* * * * *

Kathy Chase—who brushes her teeth with DDT to kill any germs that might fly in her trap.

Jack Crouch—who uses Ajax, the foaming cleanser, too. . . etc.

Dick Dart—the tough army sargeant who bayonets on-coming bacteria as they march up singing, "Sound Off".

Doris Glad—who resists notihng. She waltzes down the hall singing "O Johnny".

* * * * *

Along the same line is George Carpenter's comment on Sunday night supper, "Look, ya'all. We're having P-rations, peaches, pork, and peanuts!"

* * * * *

Not only did we have peanuts for Sunday supper, certain individuals mistook the movie in psychology lab for the current Western at the Park and munched the delicacies throughout. As Father would say, "Don't waste your time reading the child psyc. book. Hit them with it!"

* * * * *

In Miss Walker's class during an intellectual discussion on capitalism, communism, and socialism, Eldon Moore solemnly raised his hand, "M'am, may I sharpen my pencil?"

"Why Eldon," said Miss Walker, "I thought you would ask some deep, profound question."

Drawled Eldon in reply, "Well, I don't know, but I thought that was a pretty SHARP one!"

* * * * *

Miss Jackson, having finished a detailed outline on William Godwin, a questionable character with an even more questionable family, erased all her work from the blackboard with the comment, "I'd better get this erased before the freshmen come in!"

* * * * *

Then there's her statement about Byron, who was being chased by William Godwin's step-daughter, "He was quite a catch, if one didn't mind the scandle!"

* * * * *

I believe we should all support Appreciation Day because:

Natalie Prinzing—I appreciate the MC student's conduct in the parlor. Chess, poker, and crossword puzzles develop the intellect faster than would other (Ahem, cough, cough) activities.

* * * * *

Bill Davis—It's not EVERY campus that finds its swing band supplied with a night club in which to perform. I especially appreciate the Faculty Charleston Contest, sponsored by the Board of Directors in an attempt to liven up the professors. Business has really been good!

* * * * *

Ralph—I appreciate the administration's offer to raise my pay two rubels for every couple I turn in for cutting campus, loitering, etc. I've got a geiger counter now. If I can just talk Miss Ware into putting radio-active material in the milk. (Chuckle) I'll be a millionaire in a year!

Jay Spencer—Few schools have the good-natured faculty that MC may boast. Come Special Studies or high water, they remain cheerful, helpful, and considerate.

George Prohaska (spelling?)—The army was never like this! Sleep till noon, breakfast in bed, sleep till night, dinner in bed, rise and shine! Back to bed after a good shine, then start the new day right by . . . sleeping!

All kidding aside, we all think Appreciation Day is a fine idea. We're sure that the whole student body will give the Alumni Association its full support in order that their plans may be fully realized.

TALK OF THE WEEK By Susan Cook

Voices, Masks, and Shadows

By Betty Ham

Voices . . . Quite a few new voices and faces are coming to the front in the Barnwarming show.

Masks . . . Congratulations to Nancie Kress, Herb White, George Caldwell, all the cast and committees who put over such a brilliant performance of "Heiress." The costume committee deserves especial laud.

Shadows . . . We hope the things the band members are having to wear will soon be shadows. Many thanks to the businessmen of Maryville who have given so much time and effort to the college.

Downtown Maryville Cinema

The Park features this week are varied and, as always are the pick of the crop. Saturday will see its umpteenth rip snortin' western double feature.

Bela Lugosi will star in "Scared to Death." The second feature is the classic "Hot lead," starring Tim Holt.

Monday's program consists of a rip snortin' western with an all star cast, "Gold Fever."

Tuesday

Tuesday Randy Scott totes a six gun in a rip snortin' western, "Carson City." This is the usual rough riding, shootin', rootin', tootin', lovin' cowboy picture.

John Foresight will star in "Captive City" Thursday and Friday.

At the Capitol

Betty Hutton will continue her hair raising circus acts clear through Saturday in "Greatest Show on Earth."

Monday and Tuesday the Capitol will offer "Sudden Fear" starring Joan Crawford. If it's a Crawford, it's got to be good.

New Fiction

The selection of good new fiction in the library is very good. For example "The Cruel Sea" by Nicholas Monsarret. It is said to be one of the finest works of fiction to come out of World War II. It is absolutely authoritative, written with love of the sea and as good a knowledge of it as any mortal has the right to have.

The characterization is good, the action, ships, guns, war, real. Intermingled in the war is the love story. It is described as "a driving, surging novel of men, war, and the sea."

Caine Mutiny

A selection of Book-of-the-Month Club is this story of the mutiny on the destroyer-mine sweeper, Caine, a U. S. Navy ship, in World War II.

The book begins with Willie Keith, through whose eyes the Caine mutiny is seen by the reader. Keith begins as a careless, good humored Princeton boy and ends up as captain of the Caine.

The story of his love affair winds itself beautifully about the thread of the narrative. This is a book worth reading.

Another good fiction book is du-Maurier's latest, "My Cousin Rachel." In the usual du Maurier strain, "Rachel" stands out as one of the better novels of our time.

RESOLUTIONS

No resolutions ever live
Much longer than a day.
They only clutter up the mind,
Before they're thrown away.
I can perceive in them one use,
And that is this—to bore.
And so, my friends, I do resolve
To resolute no more.

Miss Jackson Heads Faculty Club Program

The annual fall dinner meeting of the Faculty Club is to be held on Monday evening, December 1, at 6:30 p.m. in the Home Economics Rooms of Fayerweather Hall.

Miss Elizabeth H. Jackson is in charge of the program. Others on the committee for the dinner are Dr. H. E. Orr, Mr. J. H. Schwam, Dr. L. L. Williams, Miss Arda Walker, and Miss Gertrude Meiselwitz.

Dress for the evening is to be formal.

Poetically Speaking

SONNET

Love is not all: it is not meat nor drink
Nor slumber nor a roof against the rain;
Nor yet a floating spar to men that sink
And rise and sink and rise and sink again;

Love cannot fill the thickened lung with breath,
Nor clean the blood, nor set the fractured bone;
Yet many a man is making friends with death
Even as I speak, for lack of love alone.

It well may be that in a difficult hour,
Pinned down by pain and moaning for release,
Or nagged by want past resolution's power,
I might be driven to sell your love for peace,

Or trade the memory of this night for food.
It well may be. I do not think I would.

Big Game Tonight

Tonight is the big night. We see a new scoreboard, all kinds of ceremonies, and hope to be able to get new uniforms for the band. For all of these things, along with the dedication of the field, many of the Alumni here in Maryville have given many hours and considerable money. It was my privileg to sit in on a few of the planning erable money. It was my privilege to sit in on a few of the planning not for their own benefit and glory, but for the benefit and glory of the school we attend, and the school they once attended in a real and honest effort to make it a better place in which to go to school.

Much To Be Proud Of

There is, of course, a great deal to be proud of in Maryville College already, and any student who does not realize it is pretty far on the outside of the real spirit of Maryville.

We have one of the more modern buildings in American collegiate circles in our Fine Arts Center. Despite the trouble you may have had, we have a literary and its staff of which we can be proud. We have a faculty that must be among the world's best, not merely in teaching ability, but also in their warm honest friendship with anyone who wants to be friends, and what is better, with those who don't particularly want to be friends. We have a student body which includes the finest people you will ever meet, some highly polished stones, and some rough and tough ones too, but none without a heart and a decent spirit.

To Them That Have

Because we have such a faculty and staff, because we have such facilities, because we have such people, we now have more, and again we see the meaning of the old proverb, "To them that hath shall be given." The Alumni of this college and the townspeople have banded together to give us much needed equipment: a new scoreboard for the football field, and new uniforms for the band. But the organization does not mean to stop with this; it is not an organization for this one purpose only.

Another Half

There is a second section to the old proverb, however, that must be kept in mind, which is, "And from them that hath not shall be taken away even that which he hath." The Boosters Club has asked very little of us for this game, only that we go. Some groups are doing more, some people are doing more, but all in all we are asked only to go to the game. If we can not do this much, then we have little of the true spirit that has moved these men and others through the years, and we are then deserving of the fate of the proverb.

Let's Go Then

With this much in mind then, let's get behind the game. It is still in time to get a ticket and go. It is more than a matter of liking football, or even of backing the team. This time is is a matter of backing the school and all that it means to you. If you can't go, you can buy a ticket and still help. See you at the game.

He Was At It Even Then

The Florida Trip

Maryville College has had better football teams than the one of this year; she has won more games and made better records. But, probably, never in the history of the college has any team representing the institution taken so long or so good a trip, as the journey to Florida this fall. At the beginning of the season, the possibility of making this trip stimulated the candidates for the team to extra effort, and those who finally succeeded in winning a place, should feel themselves well repaid for their work.

Bribery

The team, in charge of Professor Proffitt, Coach Williams and Manager Brittain, left Maryville on Thursday afternoon, October 16, and the next day at noon arrived in Gainesville, Fla., where we were met by the local manager and taken to the state university, about a mile from town. Here in Gainesville we got our first real glimpse of the tropical life of Florida.

On Friday afternoon the team ran signal practice and that night "took in" the town. There was much local interest and speculation as to the outcome of the game.

Highway Robery

Finally Saturday afternoon and time for play arrived, and found a large crowd on hand. They charged 75 cents admission, too. The sun was hot and the field sandy. Both teams entered the game against an unknown strength, and therefore carefully. During the first half, Florida made two touchdowns and Maryville failed to score, though we once had the ball inside their five yard line for three downs, but could not push it over. (ed. note: there is nothing new under the sun). In the second half Florida scored three more touchdowns and kicked two goals from the field. It was a clean game and was undoubtedly won by the better team, though the score of 39-0 hardly expresses the relative strength of the teams. Florida's interference on end runs is perhaps the best that Maryville has found this year. That they have a good team they demonstrated by holding Georgia Tech to two touchdowns.

Last And Least

Immediately after the game we left on the caboose of a freight train for DeLand. At 12:10 o'clock Sunday morning we arrived in Palatka, and found our train gone. There was nothing to do but stay where we were, and we did stay until noon on Monday.

The town is suitated on the St. John's river, and someone remarked in our hearing that there were fish in the river. Accordingly, early Monday morning, some of the fellows, including Coach rustled fishing tackle and went to gather in the fishes. At eleven o'clock they returned with fish stories galore.

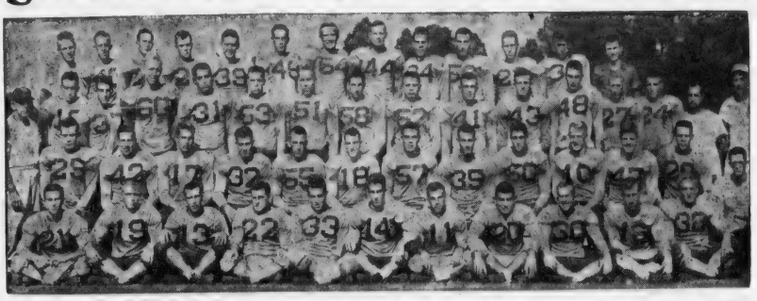
A little after noon of the same day we arrived in DeLand for the game with John B. Stetson University. We were most agreeably surprised to find at the station two old Maryville students, Miss Miriam Rood and Mr. Clyde Murray. They were there to "root" for M.C., and we were glad indeed to see them.

A Dismal Day

We were not given any dinner, for the game was to be called in about an hour and a half. Again we found a sandy field, but the day was cold and ideal. During the first half it was "nip and tuck"; one side had the ball and then the other. At one time it looked dark for Maryville; Stetson carried the ball to our one yard line, but Maryville held tight and the ball was lost on downs. Soon after the beginning of the second half, Stetson was forced back to their own goal and their fullback thrown for a safety. This made the score, M.C. 2, Stetson 0, and we were feeling good. But poor judgment and a fumble gave Stetson the ball on our twenty yard line. Good line plunging carried the ball over for the first touchdown of the game. In the last quarter they scored a second time, while we could not count again. Final score —Stetson 13, M.C. 2. It was a good game and a clean one. One noticeable feature of the two Florida games was the good work of the officials. The same man officiated as referee in both games and his work was excellent.

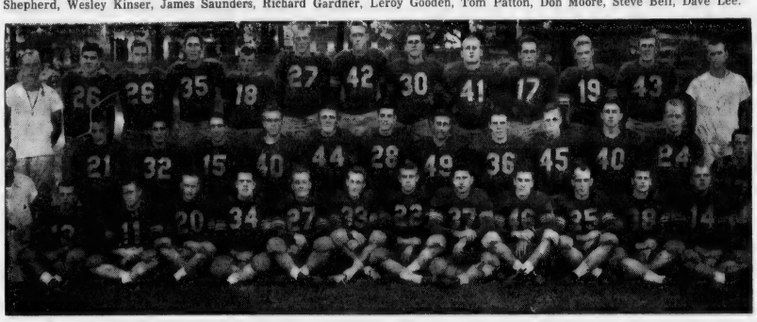
Aloha

The following morning found the team enroute by auto to Daytona Beach, twenty miles away. The ride over the white sand roads in the early morning air was exhilarating and when at last the Atlantic Ocean appeared before us, everybody wanted to jump in at once.



On the morning that we were there, enough wind was blowing to bring in some very good sized waves. The entire team took advantage of the opportunity, rented bathing suits and proceeded to battle with the waves. For the majority it was the first dip in the ocean, and to say that it was enjoyed is putting it too mildly. Everyone pronounced it the greatest thing they had ever done, and this despite accidents and near accidents.

Thief! Theif!



In the afternoon Professor Proffitt and several others went in search of an orange grove. They finally located one, which had a fence around it. This interfered with no one except the Professor.

for the Maryville band. Plans call for the outfits to be complete Scottish designs with kilts, etc. Authorities are considering making a purchase of four bagpipes to lead the marching group in their games next fall.

A leading Maryville department store has agreed to purchase the materials for the uniforms, while the student help personnel at the College Maid Shop will sew the outfits to save further expense. Approximately 50 suits will be needed and are expected to cost approximately $4,500, of which a portion is being donated by the college.

Advance Tickets

Members of the College band, under the direction of Curtis Hughes, are "stumping" the college campus and Maryville residential areas to sell advance tickets for the game and will also serve as attendants during the game.

A musical program is being planned prior to the game and during the half time intermission featuring the bands of the local high schools who will be admitted to the tilt.

Tickets have been placed on sale in most all downtown business establishments with appropriate cards in the windows where ducats may be bought. Prices are $2 for reserved seats on the North side near the press and radio booths; $1.50 for general admission to the South seats; and $1 for college and high school students who will have special bleacher seats. Only resrvd tickets will assure certain seats between the 30-yard lines. Oliver Spears is heading the ticket sales department.

Elctric Scoreboard

The new electric scoreboard and clock will be among the best in use of the smaller colleges of the South. The large board will be placed at the end of the field in view of all spectators and will be operated by a "fifth official" who will traverse the sidelines with the ball using an electric hand control switch.

The board will not only give the scores of both teams, but will also give the quarter, the down and yards to go for a first down. The clock will be easily read by all spectators telling to the second how much time remains in each quarter to be played.

Tom West, Ted Hawn and Harold Bird have been members of the committee representing the Honaker Club who have taken the procurement of the equipment as their project. A test will be made on the time and score devise Wednesday afternoon.

Tag Day

Joe Parker announced that Thursday has been set aside as a special "Tag Day" in downtown Maryville. Members of the Maryville College Girl's "M" Club will be downtown all day Thursday selling "tags" in honor of the Maryville College Appreciation Day and Game. Funds collected will be added to the uniform total.

Maynard Dunn, President of the Honaker Club, and Jack Proffitt have been placed in charge of arranging the pre-game program and all activities of the "Appreciation Day and Game."

Dignitaries Expected

Although most of the activities are being kept "secret" to assure the fans who arrive at 7:30 for the opening functions a full pre-game program of entertainment, it is known that many former grid captains for Maryville will take part along with dignitaries from near and far.

A special portion of the ceremonies will include addresses by Preisdents of both schools.

Representatives of the Air Force stationed at McGhee-Tyson wil be in charge of a "flag presentation ritual." A portable flag and staff are being prseented to the school also by the Maryville Rotary Club for use in coming seasons.

MC Harriers Close Successful Season

Scots Defeat Sewanee, 20-35; Win Six Out Of Season's Eight Meets

Hersch Mosier

With a 20-35 victory over the University of the South (Sewanee) on the Maryville course last Saturday afternoon, the Maryville College cross country team completed a very successful season. Their record of winning six out of eight meets is the second best season record since 1946 according to the pressroom's records. The 1950 edition of the Highland Harriers won all five of their meets including a victory over Tennessee. During the six year period from 1946 through the present season the Scotties have won 21 meets, lost eight, and tied one. All but one of the losses was to Tennessee, which has been the top team in the Southeast in recent years.

Good Form

Running in championship form, the Scots took the first four places as they trounced Sewanee 20-35 in last Saturday's meet. John Hale broke the tape first with a time of 23:02 for the 4 mile course. Dick Kerr, Homer Richabaugh, and A. C. McWilliams took the next three places for the Scots. In fifth place came Sewanee's first man to finish, Ralph Patson. Sewanee runners Douglas Crane, Tom Robertson, Donald Craig, and Stenson Fleming took sixth, seventh, eighth, and ninth places for Sewanee, and Rod McMillian took tenth place for the Scotties.

Review

The season opened on October 1 with Tennessee defeating a game Scottie team 21-34. The Scotties won their first meet of the season on October 4 with a 21-38 victory over William Jennings Bryan University at Dayton, Tennessee. In the triangular meet at Knoxville, on October 10, Tennessee took first place with 15 points, the Scotties came in second place with 50 points, and Davidson College came in last with 55 points. For recording purposes this meet is counted as two dual meets, which meant that the Scotties lost to Tennessee but defeated Davidson. The Scotties returned to Maryville for their next meet and trounced Bryan again 18-40. Then the Scotties traveled to Sewanee on the 24 of October and gained a 25-30 victory. On November 1, Homecoming, the Scotties surprised Georgia Tech and defeated the Engineers in a close one 27-28.

Invitational

On November 8 the highlight of the season occurred. Outclassing by a wide margin the other four squads entered, the flying Scotties won the first Annual Bryan Invitational Meet with a total of 31 points. In runner-up position was Berea College with 67 and Sewanee was a close third with 68. The home squad, Bryan University had 77 points and way behind was Berry College with 111 points. This meet clearly showed that Maryville had about the best small college cross country team in the Southeast and that it would have given several of the larger schools a rough time.

Rebels Subdue All-Stars

By Jim Demer

In a tense struggle the Rebels posted a 13-7 triumph over the All Stars Tuesday night at Honaker Field. The game was a battle until the very end as the All-Stars came from behind to tie the game up only to see the Rebels score the winning touchdown.

Huge Crowd

The forty-eight thousand fans, sitting under the lights of Honaker Field, saw the Rebels win the right to meet a team of football men on Thanksgiving Day. In command for most of the game, principally because of its strong passing attack paced by "Slug" Blair, the Rebels found the All-Stars a relative soft touch except for an intercepted pass in the third quarter.

Scoring

The Rebels scored first on a "sleeper" play when Chick Matthews caught a pass from Blair and ran it the rest of the way for the touchdown. Early in the second quarter Sonny Short hit Buster Haylock with two beautiful passes in a row for the All-Stars, but the Rebels forced them to kick, and Charlie Parte booted it out.

Passes, Passes, Passes

The second half saw Blair hit Matthews, Jack Keny, and Clyde McCampbell with pass after pass. A forty yard pass to Keny was ruled complete because of pass interference. Late in the third quarter it looked as if the Rebel would score again.

Johnston Wakes Up

Big Monk Johnston finally came to life late in the third quarter when he intercepted a Blair pass on his own thirty yard line and returned it seventy yards for the score. Short passed to Monk for the seventh and tying point. In the fourth quarter, however, a combination of Blair passes and a run by Blair put the Rebels in position for a touchdown which

Letters

Five members of this year's squad have acquired enough points for a letter, John Hale getting the most with 67, Homer Rickabaugh got 60 points, Dick Kerr, the Captain, got 56 points and Dave Helwig obtained 189 points. A runner has to acquire 16 points in order to win a letter.

Awards To All

If an award were to be given to the most outstanding runner on the squad it would be very difficult to do so because cross country is a team sport. Often a team may have a runner which takes first place individually, but the team loses the meet because the five men of the opposing team finishd before their's. The reason that Maryville turned in such a fine record was not a result of outstanding running on the part of a single runner but because the team functioned very well as a unit. Consequently this writer will not attempt to single one of our runners out as the star of the year. In this writer's opinion all the members of the squad were stars and a credit to the school.

Colleges Show Interest In Jazz As TraditionWanes

What's Happened to Jazz is the provocative title of a December MADEMOISELLE article in which Russell Roth traces the strange turns jazz has taken since it came in with the bloomer girl and her lineal descendant, the flapper. Not the least of these is the current interest of American universities, their growing need for teachers of jazz—or at least the history of jazz.

Cites Prof. Stearns

Roth cites the experimental courses of Professor Marshall Stearns at N.Y.U., the work of Herskovits and Waterman at Northwestern, and he says that the U. of Minnesota is considering its inclusion in the American Studies curriculum.

He points out an irony in this situation—namely that the universities are showing their first serious interest in jazz when the living tradition of the music is at its lowest ebb. "It doesn't seem to be at first glance: there is more talk today, and intelligent talk."

Roth Comments

Roth says, "about New Orleans jazz than ever before; there are more young musicians apparently interested in traditional jazz than at any time since the twenties. But this only veils a very serious reality, one that in the past has usually meant the death of a music: the audience has been lost—that great, undifferentiated audience that the music used to please."

Where has it gone? Why has it gone? Will it ever come back? Can we make it come back? These are some of the questions posed by Roth in the MADEMOISELLE article. Roth has searched for answers to these questions wherever jazz is played and he has come up with some interesting observations on the subject.

They Are Listeners

"The people most interested in jazz today," he says, "are with very, very few exceptions what you might call 'listeners.' They have no urge to dance; they get their kicks by listening." Roth doesn't pretend to know the final significance of this. But he does refer to Ezra Pound's much quoted remark that "music begins to atrophy when it departs too far from the dance."

Jazz has not gone that far yet and in Roth's opinion it is still dance music, whether anyone dances to it or not.

They Dance The Blues

Listeners will dance, he notes, but another strange thing is that almost without exception, what they dance to is the blues. And, mystery upon mystery, the blues seem to be what bands play best. "When I say 'best,' I mean with the most feeling."

This preference today for the blues at the expense of the "stomp" (all power, "hard body against hard body," with no softness) may have a meaning that transcends the bounds of jazz. Roth notes that the great era of the stomp—the very definite masculine component in jazz—came in in the twenties, when the man was in the ascendant.

They Prefer Blues

Passing up the stomp in favor of the blues may or may not reflect, in a way, the reversion of today's woman to femininity. But most of the average people, now, who listen to jazz, MADEMOISELLE says, seem to prefer blues to a stomp. It concurs better with their particular rhythms; it seems more natural.

Mid-Week Prayer Meet Scheduled For Friday,

Mid-week prayer meeting will be on Friday night, November 28, next week instead of the usual Thursday night.

Held, in the Y rooms at 9:30, the service will vary greatly from the usual weekly ones, using as its theme, Thanksgiving.

Quickway, Grill Now 'On Bounds'

At the Student Council meeting Wednesday night, the president of the student body, Sally Brown, announced that the proposal that the Quick Way Restaurant and the Ellis Avenue Grill be put back "on bounds" for Maryville College students had been passed by the Student-Faculty Senate. However, this does not apply to "Town Night."

Next week, on account of the Thanksgiving holiday, Town Night will be on Wednesday night, instead of Tuesday. Student Council will not hold its regular meeting on Wednesday night, due to this change.

Theta Alpha Phi Proposal Rejected

The proposal that Theta Alpha Phi be allowed to sell concessions between acts of the three-act plays was rejected by the Executive Committee. The reason for this rejection was not reported at the meeting.

Student Center Agreement Ratified

Also, the Student Center Agreement, which concerns the conduct, hours, and price of equipment used at the Center, after being passed by the Student-Faculty Senate, was ratified by the Council.

This was posted on the bulletin board in the Student Center.

MSO Issue Discussed

It was proposed that Sally Brown appoint a committee from Council to meet with Dean McClelland and discuss the issue of MSO. The problem concerning this at the present is the extent of jurisdiction which this organization would have.

A committee was also appointed to work with Eddie Breitbach in dispensing the funds of this student organization.

The Highland Echo—36 Long Years Of Journalistic Heat, Light, Work

November 4, 1916, the first edition of the Highland Echo made its appearance on our campus. J. Charles Walker was the first Editor, who with his staff formed the organization that has published a Maryville College paper ever since.

With J. Edward Kidder as athletic editor and Pat Quinn as business manager, it was followed by other issues, 19 in fact. On June 16, 1916 the last issue of that appeared. The staff had published as many papers as the College Monthly, its predecessor, could have done in four years.

The First Motto

"For a Bigger and Better Maryville," the motto on the paper shows in part the attitude with which the students began this task. Another thing attributed to this first paper is that the nicknames "Highlanders," "Scotties," and "The Scots" are generally agreed to have originated by the sports writers of the 1916 Highland Echo.

Week after week the current campus news was headlined. Some outstanding ones can be recalled such as "Hear Bryan! William Jennings Bryan to Speak in Voorhees Chapel on April 17;" "New Carnegie Dedicated;" "Spanish Flu Epidemic! College Is Placed Under Quarantine;" and on through the twenties when the special pink edition bearing "HOOVER" in huge type rolled off the press.

Don't Loiter

Not very recent, but near to the mind of everyone, is September 14, 1946 edition carrying an editorial entitled, "Please Don't Loiter," and the similar editorial in the March 12, 1949 issue, "It Wasn't Fun!"

Perhaps one of the best examples of newspaper fortidude was displayed years ago when the Voorhees Chapel burned shortly before the April Fool edition was ready to start rolling. With no news gathered, written, or edited, the staff worked almost all night in changing the entire paper to bring the students the news of the chapel fire and other stories that could be brought together at that late date.

Charter Member

The Highland Echo also has the distinction of being a charter member of the Tennessee College Press Association which was formed in 1934, when the faculty advisor was Verton M. Queener. In 1928, Dr. F. A. Griffitts became the faculty sponsor and has remained in that capacity to the present.

An annual trek to Knoxville to see one of the large newspapers in action is an outstanding event of the staff. Here they see how a large newspaper operates, soaked in an atmosphere of rolling presses, ink, and professional reporters, and get some of the thrill that working for a daily newspaper provides.

Trip To Knoxville

It is also on this trip that the Echo has its annual banquet in one of the leading Knoxville restaurants.

The Highland Echo is in its 37th year of bringing the news of the campus to the students, faculty, and alumni of the college. The aim of that first paper of creating a bigger and better Maryville is still the aim of its present 24 member staff, who hope that through their feeble efforts it may be in some way attained.

Another Fullback

Lombe S. Honaker the third is now on his way to being the third of that game to grace the halls of Maryville College. Lombe S. Honaker, Jr., better known around here as Scott Honaker, was the father this week of a bouncing baby boy promptly named the third. Congratulations to Mr. and Mrs. Honaker, and to the grandfather, too.

Janet Kihlgren stated that her greatest need was for funds to aid the construction of a recreation center in the community where she is working.

A Tradition

Barnwarming has been a regular feature of Maryville College for the past several years. Ever since the show was started on an annual basis, the proceeds have gone to mission work.

Previously the money has been contributed to a single mission center or station. The 1951 Barnwarming proceeds went to a mission station in the United States.

As Miss Burgos pointed out, Barnwarming is our own unique way of giving thanks.

'Time' Appoints LaRue Agent

John Philip Sousa III, Director of the TIME and LIFE Education Department, has appointed Charles LaRue, 425 Carnegie Hall, to the position of student representative for all TIME Inc. publications on the Maryville College campus.

These magazines are TIME, LIFE, FORTUNE, ARCHITECTURAL FORUM and HOUSE & HOME. Agent sales activities on this campus will be under Charles LaRue's directions.

His Responsibilities

His responsibilities will include hiring sales assistants, sending out his own promotion and supervising the use of TIME display promotion on the campus. Through him, students may obtain subscriptions to these magazines at a special discount rate that is considerably less than the regular subscription price.

Can Sell Any Magazine

He is also authorized to sell subscriptions to students for any other magazines published in the U.S., as well as to extend special Educator Rates on TIME Inc. magazines to all members of the faculty.

As TIME'S representative, he will work directly with the TIME Inc. College Bureau in New York which supervises sales activities in more than 750 colleges and universities throughout the country.

TRAPP FAMILY

The recorder is the fore-runner of today's flute. It is made of wood. They are of varying sizes and are named according to the range capable of being played on them, from soprano to bass.

Other Instruments

Their other instruments include the viola de gamba, which has six strings, and the spinet or virginal, fore-runner of the piano.

Six Week Season

The Trapp family came to Maryville from Danville, Ky., and went on to High Point, N.C., for another concert on their six week schedule of concerts in the South and East. They will give about thirty to thirty-five concerts during this period from October through December.

All of the Trapp family is not on tour with them this year. The younger son is in school in Rhode Island; one son is a doctor, one daughter is married and with her family, another daughter is in California teaching Bob Hope's children this winter.

Petersens Are Friends

Harold and Charlene Petersen, who are traveling with the Trapps, are friends of the family. Father Franz Wasner, their conductor, came visiting the family one day and has been with them since. He plays the spinet and sings bass with the ensemble.

Here certainly is a family to illustrate Mrs. Trapp's statement that families who "play, sing, and pray together, stay together."

Old Stuff

At 4 p.m. we left for Jacksonville arriving there about 9 o'clock, just in time for the Knoxville train. On the way we passed through St. Augstine, the oldest city in the United States. Though we did not have an opportunity to stop off, yet we gave free rein to our imaginations and though tof old Ponce de Leon and his fountain of youth. We arrived in Maryville Wednesday, having been away six days.

Smarter

On this trip we lost both games, but we lost them to good teams, and there need be no shame. Without doubt it was the most enjoyable and the most instructive football trip any member of the team has ever taken, and probably it gave to more than one an opportunity to visit a country, which otherwise they would never have seen, and because of it the general intelligence of the individual members of the team and the school will be increased.

(ed. note. This article appeared in the Maryville College Monthly in November, 1913. It will be easily seen that our president had a college training in taking trips, and also that he was a good athlete, and further proof appears in the same article in an article which he did not write, which reads as follows:)

Lloyd, quarterback, etc., (the gentleman, by the way, who brought from Florida a jaw that looked as if it weighed about four pounds and a half), has developed into something of a place kicker. In the Cumberland game he pulled his team nicely out of a hole by booting one across the center of the bar for three points.

Mayors Proclaim Friday A-Day

John C. Crawford, Jr., and O. W. Brumfield, Mayors of Maryville and Alcoa, respectively, yesterday issued the following proclamation:

WHEREAS, for one hundred thirty-three years Maryville College has been a notable institution of learning in our midst and has brought distinction to our community; and

WHEREAS, for thirty-two years Lombe S. Honaker has been the head of the Athletic Department at Maryville College; and

WHEREAS, in recognition of his services Maryville College has decided to name its new athletic field "Honaker Field"; and

WHEREAS, through the efforts of alumni, friends and officials of Maryville College a post-season football game has been arranged between Maryville College and Tennessee Wesleyan College to be played Friday night, November 21, at 7:30 o'clock, the proceeds to be used for purchasing uniforms for the Maryville College Band.

NOW, THEREFORE, We, John C. Crawford, Jr., Mayor of Maryville, and O. W. Brumfiel, Mayor of Alcoa, do hereby proclaim Friday, November 21, 1952, as Maryville College Appreciation Day, and urge all citizens to assist in making the Day and Game a success.

Post-Season Football Game Proved Successful

Financial Report Is Incomplete

By Don Layton

Falling short of the desired goal, the Tennessee Wesleyan-Maryville post-season football game on Wednesday, November 26, was nevertheless successful in raising a considerable sum toward the purchase of new Scottish kilts for the marching band. A complete financial report has not yet been made, but the new kilts have been virtually assured.

Exact Amount Unknown

The exact amount netted on the colorful post-season tilt is unavailable but should be forthcoming within the next few days. O. K. Spears, member of the Honaker Club, and in charge of ticket sales, estimated that the game would yield "a few hundred dollars" toward the approximately $4,000 which is needed to purchase the uniforms. It is known, however, that student and faculty ticket sales amounted to $504 and that the Girls' "M" Club collected $250.60 as a result of selling tags on Maryville College Appreciation Day, Thursday, November 20.

Other Projects

Spears and Carl M. Storey, president of the Alumni Association, both stressed that two or three new projects will be needed to make up for the deficit in anticipated earnings caused by poor weather. Storey stated, "I think the post-season football game was very successful considering two postponements." He also stated that perhaps a pre-season or post-season game would be played next season. Storey expressed his appreciation to the College and citizens of Maryville who supported the game.

Honaker Honored

Preceding the fund raising event, a dedication service was held on the football field which now bears the name of Maryville's veteran coach, Lombe Scott Honaker. The services were held under the auspices of the Honaker Club, Alumni Association, and other Maryville businessmen.

Highlights of the service included the presentation of a new electric scoreboard to the college by Harold Bird on behalf of the Honaker Club which purchased it. The device was used for the first time during the game.

Telegram Read

A telegram from Gen. Bob Neyland, athletic director at the University of Tennessee was read. Gen. Neyland stated his regrets in his not being able to attend the game but wished all success to Coach Honaker and Maryville College.

Music was provided by the Everett and Maryville High bands. The college band was in charge of concessions.

Lloyd Dedicated

Dr. Ralph W. Lloyd then dedicated the field as Honaker Field stating: ". . . During the college's long history of a century and a third, many persons have contributed their lives, their labors, or their money to the work of the college, but the individual who has participated directly in athletics longer by far than has anyone else is Coach Lombe Scott Honaker.

"The directors . . . have named this new football field for him as a representative of the large number of players, faculty, and coaches who have been participating in athletics at this institution."

Comments By Coach

And finally the coach himself spoke briefly to the crowd. Coach Honaker said that the occasion reminded him of the woman who attended the funeral of her husband and heard many, many fine things said about her late husband that the woman whispered in her small son's ear, "Go up and look in that casket. They must have the wrong man!"

YW, YM To Give Annual Christmas Program

Sunday night, at a joint meeting in the dining-hall, YWCA and YMCA will present their annual Christmas program.

Mr. Fisher will be the main speaker for the program, reading the story of "The Other Wise Man." After this there will be group singing of all the familiar Christmas Carols.

Everyone is invited to attend this meeting, at 7:30 Sunday night.

Shaw Chorale Tops UT Artist Series

The Robert Shaw Choral Chorale is to be featured at the second concert of the University of Tennessee Artist Series Monday, December 8.

A special bus for MC students will leave the campus at 7:15 p.m., and return at 10:30 p.m.

Other Concerts

Other concerts to be presented next semester are: Ballet Theatre, Jan. 19; Philadelphia Symphony Orchestra, Feb. 16; Solomon, pianist, March 17; and the Boston Symphony Orchestra, April 25.

Students may obtain tickets for these concerts by writing to the University Concerts, Inc., at the University of Tennessee.

Fall Dance Slated For December 13

The annual fall dance to be held Saturday, December 13 at 8 p.m. in the Alumni Gymnasium will be presented by Theta and Alpha Sig.

The theme, "Candy Cane Lane," will be carried out in decorations of red and white.

Music will be presented by such big name bands as Tommy Dorsey, Stan Kenton, and Tex Beneke. Refreshments will be served.

Theta, Alpha Sig Plan Joint Meet Tonight

Theta will have a joint meeting with Alpha Sigma in the Y Rooms Saturday night at 6 p.m.

Theta is to present nominations for next semester's officers. After separate business meetings, there will be games, a program, and a marshmallow roast.

The purpose of the joint meeting is to discuss plans for the fall dance.

Hammers, Mizelle Crowned Rulers Of Barnwarming

Betty Hammers, senior sociology major from Elizabethton, Pa., was crowned Queen of the 1952 Barnwarming Edition, last Thursday night by King Bob Mizelle, senior from Arlington, N.J.

Beverly Edwards, an art major from Knoxville, elected senior sponsor, was escorted by senior class president, Curt Wilbanks, psychology major from Rockaway, N.J.

Halstead And Fisher

The junior class sponsor was Pat Halstead, who lives in Newark, N.J., and who was escorted to the court's throne by Hank Van Hasel, junior class president, an English major from Paterson, N.J.

The sophomore class elected Peg Fisher, an education major living in Maryville, as their sponsor. Miss Fisher was escorted by sophomore class president, A. C. McWilliams.

Freshman Ann Daniels, a sociology major from Atlanta, Ga., was escorted by class president, John Graulich, from Peekskill, N.Y.

A Host of Stars

The Barnwarming production, written by Jeannine Fiori, Karole Kapp, and Marie Richards, starred Charlie Schroeder, Jim Darroch, Ann Dishner and Carolyn Beatty. The musical comedy centered around Danny's newsstand, a common every day sidewalk scene, and a case of mistaken identity.

Jean Anderson, who headed the committee for ticket sale, announced that the entire Alumni Gym was sold out, more than 800 in the audience.

Kellog Company Helps MC Pep Committee

"I want to thank the Kellog Company for their great help in making our pep program for the Homecoming football game a success," announced Bob Navratil, chairman of the Pep Committee.

To arouse student spirit and support for the Homecoming game, members of the Pep Committee passed out boxes of PEP cereal, which were provided by the Kellog Company.

Hunt, Elwood Attend Council Confab At MTS

Jim Hunt, junior psychology major from Uniontown, Pa., and Walt Elwood, junior history major from Patterson, N.J., were appointed by Student Council at the Wednesday meeting to represent Maryville at the meeting of the Middle and East Tennessee division of the Tennessee Association of Collegiate Student and Government Organization.

The meeting is being held today from 8:30 p.m. to 4:30 p.m. at the campus of Middle Tennessee State, Murfreesboro. The purpose of the meeting is to exchange ideas of college student governments and to help train leaders in student organization.

Gain Broader Scope

Student Council felt that it was important to have representatives at this conference in order to gain a broader outlook in student government and to avoid a purely localistic outlook.

With some modifications, council approved the town night revisions proposed by a committee headed by Betty Hammers. The proposed changes have now been referred to Student-Faculty Senate for their approval or disapproval.

Grill On Bounds

Although the Ellis Avenue Grill is not within the boundaries as stated in the Town Night Provisions, it and the Quickway are definitely on bounds on Tuesday night. Plans are underway to correct the Town Night Provisions.

A committee to take charge of finances of the defunk MSO was appointed at the previous meeting. Members of the committee are Ed Breitbach, chairman, John Graulich, Jim Kessler, Ace McWilliams, Bob Navratil, and Walt Elwood.

Doris Holt To Give Senior Recital

Doris Holt, senior music major from Philadelphia, Pa., will present a piano recital on December 11, at 8 p.m. in the Music Hall of the Fine Arts Center.

Her first number will be Bach's "Prelude and Fugue in Bb Minor, No. 22, W.T.K." followed by "Variations Serieuses, Op. 54" by Mendelssohn. Her third and fourthe numbers will be Braham's "Intermezzo, Op. 118, No. 6" and "Rhapsodie, Op. 119, No. 4."

Shostakovich

Shostakovich's "Three Fantastic Dances, Op. 1—Allegro, Andantino and Allegretto" will then be performed.

From Kabelevsky's "Fifteen Children's Pieces, Op. 27," she will play "Toccatina," "A Sad Little Tale," "Dance," "A Short Story," "A Little Joke' and "Etude."

For her last number, Miss Holt will play "Toccata' by Khachaturian.

IRC Announces Magazine Gifts, Postpones Social

Charles LaRue announced at the business meeting of International Relations Club, Thursday, December 4, that any student desiring any magazine subscription as Christmas gifts should contact him immediately. LaRue also added that subscriptions of "Life", "Time", and "Fortune" are still available at special student rates.

Dr. Verton M. Queener, professor of history, presented an analysis of the past national election at the November 20 program meeting.

Because of the shortness of the semester, the annual IRC social was postponed until the first of next semester. Evelyn Fields, secretary, and Catherine Snedecker are in charge of the social.

Commodore B. Fisher, associate professor of history, is advisor to the club. Van Holand is the president.

Local Minister Dr. Graham Dies

Funeral Service Held Monday

Dr. Thomas A. Graham, the widely-known and popular minister of New Providence Presbyterian Church, died Friday morning, November 28, at 10:30 at Vanderbilt Hospital in Nashville. Dr. Graham, who was 49 years old, had beenill for almost a year and was admitted to Vanderbilt November 15.

From Scotland

A native of Scotland, Dr. Graham came to the United States 21 years ago and worked in Milwaukee for a time as an insurance salesman before beginning his study for the ministry at Carroll College. Later he attended McCormick Seminary in Chicago and served as pastor of a suburban church there. Following his graduation from the seminary, he became pastor of a church in Marionette, Wisconsin.

Married Miss Rowan

In 1927 Dr. Graham was married to Miss Maisie Rowan of Milwaukee, who with her family, came to America from Scotland when she was five years old.

Coming to Maryville in 1945, Dr. Graham won the respect of all who knew him. He as active in civic and religious organizations, and served as president of the Blount County Ministerial Association.

Under his leadership, plans were inaugurated for the new church building for New Providence, construction of which is almost complete.

Funeral On Monday

Funeral services were held Monday afternoon at 3 p.m. from the church. Ministers conducting the services were the Rev. David Buzza of Minominee, Mich., a long time friend of Dr. Graham, and Dr. Walter Courtenay, pastor of First Presbyterian Church of Nashville. Interment was in Grandview Cemetery.

Active pallbearers were Joe C. Gamble, Wilbur S. Johnson, James W. King, Judson B. Murphy, D. W. Proffitt and Charles F. Webb. Honorary pallbearers were officers of New Providence Church and Dr. Lea Calloway and Dr. Julian Lentz.

Dr. Graham is survived by his wife; his parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. U. Graham, and his sister, Miss Christina Graham of Airdrie, Scotland.

Students Continue Registration

Sophomore registration is to continue through Tuesday, December 9. The usual procedure, of filling out a tentaitve schedule, which is to be approved by the major advisor and then returned to the Personnel Office, is to be followed.

The late registration fee of $2.50 is charged for any person not turning in his card within the specified times.

Freshman schedules may be called for in the Personnel Office between December 11 and 13. Generaly these schedules will be a continuation of the first semester courses, with necessary changes being made at the time of registration.

The regular day for necessary changes in schedules after registration will be Friday, January 16.

Vols Send Deputation Team To Hiwassee

Student Vols is sending a deputation team to Hiwassee Junior College's Christian Student Movement this Sunday evening, December 7.

A musical program based on the "Outreach of Praise" given here earlier this year, will be presented.

The team is comprised of Homer Rickabaugh, Izzy Leitch, Lynn Kiefer, Jim Darroch, Naomi Arjona, Anne Bucher, Helen Seay, and Floyd Hickman.

The group will leave here at 7 p.m., in time for an 8 p.m. service at Hiwassee.

On campus, the Christmas reading will replace the regular service.

Mr. Beard Comments On Art Department Of MC

By Cook and Frei

Those interested in art should find an enthusiastic collaborator in Richard E. Beard, our new art professor here at Maryville College. With a B.S. in art and an M.A. in art history from the University of Wisconsin, he has come to Maryville for his first teaching job.

Mrs. Beard is also teaching some classes here and was in charge of a recent exhibition in the art gallery of the Fine Arts Center.

Mr. Beard says that the Maryville College students as a whole seem to be "more serious-minded than those in other schools" and he gives as possible reasons the religious emphasis and the student-help program.

Religious Paintings

As this is a Christian college Mr. Beard, stated that he would like to see some good religious paintings created here at Maryville. It is his opinion that some of the finest religious paintings ever produced are being done today.

Mr. Beard's Exhibit

Mr. Beard has had an exhibit of his own on display in the art gallery of the Fine Arts Center for the past two weeks. In these paintings one can see that he is "interested in all fields of art which display strong personal expression or symbolism."

One of the most impressive of Mr. Beard's works on exhibit is his "Chicago", a large mural-type oil painting. Many people have been curious os to the meaning of the confused jumble of shapes and colors.

Dante's Inferno

Mr. Beard, in his explanation, says that he has based his interpretation on Dante's "Inferno", and if one looks at the painting closely one can see a small shade rising out of the mire in the lower right hand corner.

This little being wanders around the entire painting regarding Chicago's different types of torments in the forms of noisy, crowded, yet coldly impersonal, streets, discordant glaring lights,

12 Soloists To Sing

By Faith Nollner

Maryville College's twentieth annual presentation of "The Messiah" will be given on Sunday, December 7, at 3 p.m. in the Alumni Gymnasium. A chorus of two hundred seventy-five voices will sing twelve choruses.

The chorus is made up of the College Vesper Choir, Men's Glee Club, All Girl's Choir, and selected students from the college and community folk. The chorus will be accompanied by the college symphony orchestra, an organ, and a piano. Miss Garnet Manges will be at the piano for her eighteenth year as "Messiah" accompanist. Assistant Professor Harry H. Harter will direct the entire production.

Twelve Soloists to Participate

Twelve soloists will take part in the performance. Roy Don Brakebill, senior voice major from Rockford, will sing the recitative "Comfort Ye My People" and the air, "Every Valley Shall Be Exalted". The recitative, "Thus Saith the People" and the air, "But Who May Abide" will be sung by William Cunningham, sophomore religious education major from Holmes, Pa.

Wesley Kinser, junior physical education major from Nashville will sing the recitative "For Behold Darkness Shall Cover the Earth", and the air, "The People That Walked in Darkness". Tenor recitative, "Thy Rebuke Hath Broken His Heart", and the air, "Behold and See If There Be Any Sorrow" will be sung by John Monteith, freshman voice major from Tuckerton, N.J.

Smith Soprano Soloist

Shirley Smith, sophomore voice major from Palmetto, Fla., will sing the soprano recitatives, "There Were Shepherds Abiding In the Fields"; "And the Angel Said Unto Them"; "And Lo, the Angel of the Lord"; and "And Suddenly There Was With the Angel". Alto recitative, "Then Shall the Eyes of the Blind Be Opened" and the air "He Shall Feed His Flock", will be sung by Ann Dishner, sophomore voice major from Duffield, Va.

Sheila Sutton, sophomore voice major from Chadbourn, N.C., will sing the air, "Come Unto Him". Priscilla Fay Ingles, sophomore pre-med student from Philadelphia, Pa. will sing the alto air "He Was Despised". Carolyn Beatty, junior home economics major from Dayton, Ohio, will sing the recitatives "Behold, A Virgin Shall Conceive", "Then Shall Be Brought To Pass", and the air "O Thou That Tellest Good Tidings to Zion".

Eaddy, Scott Solo

"He That Dwelleth In Heaven" and the air "Thou Shalt Break Them" will be sung by Conrad Eaddy, senior voice major from St. Petersburg, Fla.

Barbara Scott, senior music major from Wilmington, N.C., will sing the air, "I Know That My Redeemer Liveth".

A duet, "O Death, Where Is Thy Sting?" will be sung by Carolyn Beatty, and tenor Kenneth Shaffer, senior religius education major from Philadelphia, Pa.

Divided Into Three Parts

"The Messiah" was composed in twenty-three days by the German composer Georg Frederick Handel in 1741. The text is taken from the Bible, largely from Isiah and the New Testament. Unlike most oratorios of the time, "Messiah" is epic in content and theme, and is divided into three sections.

Part I begins with the Old Testament prophecy of Christ's advent; the "Pastoral Symphony" links the prophecy and fulfillment; the celestial announcements herald the birth of Christ.

Christ's Appearance

Part II introduces Christ's appearance upon earth as the Redeemer and Savior of mankind. The Passion music in this part precedes the Resurrection and Atonement. The spreading of the Gospel and its ultimate triumph reaches a climax in the "Hallelu-

The Hydrogen Age

Little more than one month ago, the first hydrogen bomb was exploded on a small Pacific island 35 miles from Eniwetok. It is reported that the bomb exploded with the light of "at least ten suns," that it was perhaps 1,000 times more powerful than the first atomic bombs, and that the mile-wide island actually disappeared after the explosion. In short, the destructive force of this great power is almost beyond our comprehension.

The reaction of the public to this momentous occurrence has been one of acceptance and equanimity. At first glance, it would seem that most of us do not want to face the reality of its cataclysmic nature. But it is probably truer that the slaughters of this war-torn century and the impact of the first atom bombs have rendered us immune to the advancement of any greater man-killing device. To most of us, the difference between the atom bomb and the hydrogen bomb is not much more than the difference between being clobbered in the head by a baseball bat or by a sledge hammer.

In any case, the ushering in of the Hydrogen Age points up the need, more than ever, for the control of power by wisdom. It emphasizes the obligation of all countries to strive for peace in every possible honorable way. And it underscores the necessity to continue following the Christian concepts of love and brotherhood, those constituents of peace, those eternal truths that we hope some day may be more fully accepted and realized.

E.V.H.

Congratulations

People who take part in the student productions that are put on here deserve much more recognition for their activities than they usually receive. We seldom realize how much work goes into something like "The Heiress," the choir and glee club performances, Barnwarming, or the orchestra concert. These were events that we attended and enjoyed. They were part of our campus entertainmnt, and we appreciated them for what they had to offer.

To those behind the scenes and on the stage—these presentations were, however, the result of weeks or even months of hard work. When we view the finished product, we fail to think of how much it has involved.

With this in mind, we want to congratulate all those who helped to bring about the success of the recent plays and musical presentations. They have been of a very high quality, and the people who took part in them ought to get a great deal of credit for their successful efforts. —J.F.

Special Studies are all in. . . . and so are the seniors! No more note cards, no more corrections, no outlines, no typing. As the stately seniors said in chapel Tuesday,

"Type one,
Erase two!
Special Studies
We're through! ! !"

Seems that some of the advisors who were sitting in the junior section experienced cold fear that morning when they discovered a number of their browbeaten charges directly in front taking careful aim!

* * * * *

Personally, I can't see why everyone get's so hepped up about Special Studies, especially when you consider what topics one may choose to write on.

For example:

Dot Cooley: Entitled "What I'll Cook For My Husband", has 2 footnotes (both recipes) and 3 chapters on after dinner drinks.

Bev Edwards—Entitled "We Grow Trees in the Sandbox." This is a fictional work relating fantastic tales about children who play in the shade.

Homer Garren—Entitled "Every Girl Should Be Married; But How Can I Marry Them All?"

Johnnie Griffitts—Entitled "Name Daughter Mary" or "I Was Drafted".

Ken Hammond—Entitled "I Was a Ninety-Seven Pound Weakling". Gives detailed diets, health charts; suggests in footnotes that readers smoke Luckies.

TALK OF THE WEEK

By Susan Cook

Voices, Masks, and Shadows

By Pat Ingles

VOICES . . . . The combined Maryville College choirs, joining with other students and townspeople, will present the choral selections of Handel's "Messiah" in the twentieth annual presentation tomorrow afternoon in the Alumni Gym.

Christmas Vespers will be held the following Sunday, Dec. 14, in the Alumni Gym in an almost equally inspiring and worshipful service. The Girl's Choir, Men's Glee Club, Vesper Choir, and Madrigal Singers will unite to present this all-musical program.

MASKS . . . . An unusual run of good pictures will be featured at the local theatres this coming week.

The Capitol will present Roy Rogers in "Home in Oklahoma", a traditional roarin', snortin' western, which has become synonymous with Saturday matinees. Sharing the bill will be a somewhat melodramatic mystery "Dragnet", starring H. Wilcoxon.

The "Snows of Kilmonjara" which features Ava Gardner, Susan Hayward, and Gregory Peck, will be the theatrical highlight of next week. Romance, mystery, and adventure are rolled into this one exciting feature to be shown Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday at the Capitol.

The Park will go western next Monday and Tuesday when they will present "Springfield Rifle" with Gary Cooper and Phyllis Thaxter. A good supporting cast, plus technicolor, makes this an unusually fine production.

SHADOWS . . . . One of the delightful new additions to the shadows of the library shelves is the novel "Love in a Cold Climate" by Nancy Mitford. It is a tale which pokes fun at the English nobility, and about which the following has been said:

"She lives in one little tiny group or set, and sooner or later everybody in that set becomes the lover of everybody else, so that when they change their lovers it is more like a cabinet reshuffle than a new government."

One book that should never become a shadow on the non-fiction shelves is R. H. Edwin Espy's timely study on "The Religion of College Teachers". It reveals the beliefs, practices, and religious preparation of faculty members in church-related colleges.

Stephen Spender

Another new book that should be of interest to college faculty members as well as students is biography "World Within World". A relatively new and effective autobiographical technique has been developed and handled skillfully by this extremely frank and young writer.

For one of the greatest books ever written, the Revised Standard Version of the Bible, which are still available at the college bookstore.

Congratulations Joe Bender and Jimmy Campbell for making AP's Little All-American Honorable Mention. It couldn't have happened to two nicer fellows. Both boys played good, clean, hard football during the season, and have for the past four years. Three others who played against the Scots won berths also, one, Jodie Connell, made the team while two others, Art DeFillipo and Erwin Saltz, made the honorable mention list.

Connell, Jacksonville State Teacher guard, certainly deserves one of the guard slots. Though he has but one arm he certainly couldn't have fought any harder had he had both. As we have said elsewhere in this column, Connell, a Lakeland, Florida product, was captain of this year's Teacher squad and an excellent place kicker. Saltz was the quarterback and star for always strong Emory-Henry, and DeFillipo, from South Plainsfield, N.J., was a guard for powerful East Tennessee State. All are seniors.

Scots' All-Opponent Team

East Tennessee State College dominated the 1952 Scots' all-opponent team by placing four men on the mythical team. Little Erwin "Bunny" Saltz of Emory-Henry, the only Wasp to make the team, was nominated the best back to oppose the Scots. Jacksonville State's captain and one-armed guard Jodie Connell was named as the best lineman to face the Scots. Both picks seem to this writer to be exceptionally good in a year dotted with dubious most valuable player awards, etc. Saltz quarterbacked and lead the Wasps to a 34-13 conquest of the Scots. Connell played his usual great name at guard depsite his handicap and did the place kicking for the Teachers.

Other backs picked were John Crumbly of ETSC, Hubert Ashe of Carson-Newman and Ronnie Pinchback of Georgetown. Crumbly, also quarterback, scored one touchdown and led the Buccaneers to a 33-13 victory. Ashe scored once and passed for another in the Eagles' win in the first game between CN and Maryville. Both games found Ashe bulling his way through the Scotty line for gain after gain. Pinchback displayed a good passing arm, completing twelve out of nineteen attempts. The Scots were on for that game, however, and Pinchback and Georgetown were held scoreless.

Trudley Carr of Carson-Newman and Powell Gillenwater of Centre, two excellent choices, were chosen for the end slots. Gillenwater caught five passes good for 153 yards and one touchdown against the Scots as Centre won 20-0. Gillenwater is also an excellent tennis player, ranking high in the blue-grass state. Carr, besides playing a good game at both offense and defense, added one point to CN's 20-0 win by catching an extra point pass.

Other positions were nailed down by Toney Alvirez of ETSC at the other guard post opposite Connell. Harry Secrist, also of ETSC, was voted the best center to oppose the Scots. Tackles were big 200 pound Dave McInturff of ETSC and "Baldy" Carey of Georgetown. McInturff, a freshman, was rated one of the best lineman ever to enter ETSC. This rating may prove to be very much so if he plays every game as well as he did the one against the Scotties.

Ashe and Connell are the only repeaters from last year's all-opponent squad. All members of the squad are seniors except for McInturff, a freshman, Gillenwater, a sophomore, and Crumbly and Secrist who are juniors.

A Fan's Thrill

Below is a major portion of a letter that appeared in Pat Harmon's column in a big Cincinnati daily some weeks ago. Judy Johnson handed us the clipping and since it looked interesting to this writer it is reprinted in part with the hope that Scot fans will also enjoy it. The letter was written by a Mr. Glenn Franke of Cincinnati.

"I would like to turn back gridiron history to page October 26, 1924, when the coach, the Xavier team, and the fans in the stands fumbled.

"The game between Xavier and Maryville, Tenn., gave me my greatest thrill.

"The Musketeers were favored to win by two touchdowns. At the half the score was Xavier 6, Maryville 0.

"However, Xavier had to reckon with a great Maryville squad, coached by L. S. Honaker, and a triple threat quarterback, Earl (Shorty) McCall, nicknamed The Flash. McCall could run, pass, punt, and dropkick. The Maryville squad that year would compare to what Sid Gillman and Ed Kluska coached in 1950 and 1951.

"In the second half it happened. The old hidden ball or bootleg play. The fans cheered as Flash McCall was thrown for what appeared to be a 25 yard loss on a fake wide end run.

"What happened was a pass from center to quarterback, who handed the ball to a guard, who hid the ball in back of his knee while the quarterback faked a wide end run. The guard then went about 40 or 50 yards through the Xavier team without a hand being put on him. He was one of the slowest men on the squad and fell down a couple of times before he reached the goal line.

"Final score: Maryville 26, Xavier 6.

"Coach Joe Meyer remembered the game for years. Whenever a team from the south was scheduled to appear at Corcoran Field, Meyer would have a sign on the bulletin board: 'Remember Maryville.'

"I remember that game because I was 15 years old and one of the Maryville water boys. The Pink Post said: 'Milford Boy to Face Xavier.' The Milford boy was my brother, G. L. (Tinker) Franke, referred to by his Maryville teammates as That Damned Yankee.

"Maryville was the highest scoring team in the nation. In their first game they defeated Lincoln Memorial U., 103-0."

Maybe Coach Honaker should try to pull another trick out of his pocket next time the Scots are underdogs or on the losing end of a score. It certainly paid off that time, and it must have demoralized the Musketeers for Maryville went on to score three more TD's.

I believe that the 103-0 score was rolled up by the Scots in their first game against Union, not LMU, which, according to Echo records was the second opponent of the Scots. Maryville took that one 35-0. As for being the highest scoring team in the nation I also doubt. The '24 Scots totaled 242 points in eight games. The '23 Scots did much better with 346 points in eleven games. Certainly some other school must have talied more than 242 points unless it was football's off year.

Scotties Down Fighting Wesleyan Team, 20-12

Newman, Shepards, Harris Lead Way

By Rolfe Duggar

Meeting on water-sodden Honaker Field the Scotties tripped the highly taunted Tennessee Wesleyan Bulldogs, 20-12, the day before Thanksgiving. The benefit game was decided in the second quarter when Maryville raced to three quick touchdowns and then coasted the rest of the way.

The Scotties missed the services of three starters, Jim Campbell, Wes Kinser and alternate captain Paul Merwin. Campbell was in Knoxville taking a selective service physical, but he managed to return in time to play in the second half. Kinser was called home by the death of his father, and Merwin was out with an infected leg.

Sleep Disturbed

The Bulldogs opened fast scoring a touchdown on their first play from scrimmage. With the ball on their own twenty-two wing back Frank Henson pulled a sleeper which caught the Scottie secondary doing precisely that. Co-captain Pete Wilson threw the pass which Henson caught on the forty-five, and with no one near him he raced to the end zone.

The Scotties after failing to pick up a first down received a break when a Wesleyan man fumbled a punt from Clarence Shepard. Bill Wheatley immediately recovered on the Bulldog thirty-five yard stripe. Wayne Newman picked up sixteen yards on four tries and a five yard penalty put the ball on the fourteen. There Newman found the wet ball too slippery and TW recovered.

Meat Grinders At Work

A quick kick put the ball on the Scots twenty-five and the Scotties began a seventy-five yard march to a touchdown. Clarence Shepard hit for nine, Newman for seven, and the Wesleyan line fell to pieces as both boys plowed through for gain after gain. Earl Lawson broke the ground attack momentarily when he hit Charles Dunn with a short one for eight to end the first quarter.

Clarence Shepard took off left tackle, found a hole and scampered thirty-two yards to the one yard stripe before being hit from behind. Newman plowed over for the TD. Kenneth Shepard made the conversion to put the Scots out ahead to stay.

Three plays later the Scotties were again in possession and on their way from the midfield marker. Newman, Jimmy Harris and O. L. Davis teamed up to move the ball to the one yard line. Davis scooted right end for fifteen yards to highlight the drive and Newman hit center for nine to continue his "Kozaring" tactics. From the one Harris cracked through center to pay dirt. Ken Shepard again booted through the uprights and the score was 14-6.

Kick Backfires

With the ball on their own twelve the Bulldogs elected to quick kick, but the plan backfired. The slippery ball went out of bounds eight yards up the field and Maryville was set up again. An offsides penalty set the ball back on the twenty-five. Harris then scooted right tackle for eight and the score. This time the combination of Ken Shepard kicking and Don Alford holding failed as the ball hit the crossbar between the uprights and bounced back on the field.

Tennessee Wesleyan opened the second half with their first first down. Wilson then took to the air with a thirty-four yard pass to Henson. Two more aerials, one for thirteen yards and the other for fourteen put the ball over for the last score of the game, Henson scoring. Bill Brakebill's kick was again no good.

"Deac's" Fight

Midway in the fourth quarter the Scots again took possession of the ball and began a long, but fruitless drive. Harris, Newman and Clarence Shepard moved the ball to the four. Here began a disputed series of downs as Maryville received five instead of four downs due to an error of one of the men in a stripped shirt. Following the gaining back of five yards lost by an offsides penalty Earl Lawson on fifth down raced around right end for four and what he thought was a touchdown. Fighting between the two squads followed to mar the game and lasted several minutes before it could be broken up and order restored.

Wilson again took to the air in the closing plays to give the fans a few more thrills before going home. After a short seven yard pass play Wilson back-passed to a half-back far to the left who immediately threw a long pass which was caught near midfield and carried to the Scotty twenty-five yard before being stopped by the Scot secondary. Gerald Harrison stopped the drive by intercepting a pass on the Scot ten and raced thirty-eight yards before being brought down. The final gun sounded seconds later; final score, Maryville 20, Tennessee Wesleyan 12.

The twice postponed game served a three-fold purpose, to raise money to buy band uniforms, to present the new scoreboard, and to honor Coach Lombe Honaker by naming the football field "Honaker Field." The pre-game ceremonies lasted for forty-five minutes.

Intramurals....

By Jim Demer

The 1952 edition of the Maryville College basketball intramurals was unveiled on Monday, November 24. One can safely say that basketbal played at Maryville is different from that played anywhere else in the country. This year seems to be no exception. (The reader, if there is one, can take this anyway he wants.) This year the teams are divided into two leagues. The "A" league, with seven teams, is supposed to be the better league. The "B" league also has seven teams.

Monday, six teams of the "B" league played. In the first game the Athenian Owls barely beat the Happy Warriors 61 to 8. Bill Addy led the scoring for the victors with 16 points. In the second game the Y Non-Pros beat the Alpha Sigma Scotties, 31-28. Sonny Shakelford led the Y with 19 points, while Dock Jennings scored 11 for the losers. The Pre-Mins ripped the Athenian Gooney Birds, 38-22. With big Herb Kauhl controling the backboards the game was never in doubt. Homer Rickabaugh was high scorer with 10 points.

Tuesday play opened up in the "A" league. The first game saw the Question Marks, defending champs, beat the Jokers, 27-19. The Question Marks didn't hit as well as usual, but Sonny Short led the scoring with 10 points. O. L. Davis scored 9 for the losers. The Dead End Kids licked the Snowbirds, 27-21. "Monk" Johnston scored 10 to lead the Kids to victory. The Y Clubfeet who were last year's tournament champs continued their winning ways with a 22-18 win over the Alpha Sigma Scotties. Dish Boy Van Hassel hit for 12 big points for the Clubfeet.

On Saturday play switched back to the "B" league. The Owls scored a 33-14 win over the Pre-Mins. Tim Bowman was high scorer with 12 points. The high scoring warriors got 7 points in the second game, but the Gooney Birds led by Larry Hill with 17 scored 41. A rough and touch Local Yokel team beat the Non-Pros 50 to 27. Red Hairless was high man with 20 points under his belt. This is the highest individual score in either league so far this season.

Monday, December 1, also featured "B" ball. The Owls remained unbeaten in three games with a 30 to 21 victory over the Highlanders. Bowman scored 13 for the winners. The Pre-Mins beat an improved Warrior team 31-18. In the third game the Gooney Birds forfeited to the Local Yokels.

Tuesday play was resumed in the "A" league. The Dead End Kids nipped the Scotties 33-28. C. S. Anderson of wrestling fame led the kids with 15 points. The Clubfeet won over the Jokers, 31-23, in the second game. "Margie" White scored 10 for the victors. In a close game the Athenian Aces upset the ?'s 29-26. The Aces came from behind led by "Santa Claus" Ramager with 9 points. Sonny Short was high scorer with 13. The Aces seem like the team to beat.

Wednesday the Clubfeet won over a fighting Dead End Team, 31-23. Phil Young of B team renown swished in 9 to lead the Clubfeet. In the second game the Aces ripped the Jokers 44-17. Ramager and Kent Buser led the Aces with 14 and 13 points. The Scotties forfeited to the Snowbirds in the third game.

Standings:

A League
Y Clubfeet	3	0
Athenian Aces	3	0
Dead End Kids	1	1
Question Marks	1	1
Snowbirds	1	1
Alpha Sigma Scots	0	3
Jokers	0	3
B League
Athenian Owls	3	0
Local Yokels	2	0
Pre-Mins	2	1
Y Non-Pros	1	1
Athenian Gooney Birds	1	2
Alpha Sigma Highlanders	0	2
Happy Warriors	0	3

Wrestlers Open Season With "Y"

Who's Wrestling

With the first match with Knoxville YMCA scheduled for tonight, wrestling coach J. D. Davis is still not sure who is going to wrestle for the Scotties against what will be a very strong Y team. There are a number of men out, but only eight have been showing up for practice, and the picture is still clouded as to what the team will finally be like.

Men Out

The list of men out for wrestling is a long list, including such names as Bil Morse, Jim Demer, Buford Miller, Jack Maxwell, Jim Cummings, Al Homan, Tom Burgahen, Bob Buchanan, George Kipp, Bob Vandergrift, Dave Ramsey, Harry McCall, Bob Jackson, O. L. Davis, Ken Shepard, Jim Harris, Shell Mills, and Dave Helwig.

Correction

In the cross country article in the last issue of the Echo there were two mistakes. A. C. McWilliam's name was accidently left out of the list of runners that acquired sufficient points for a letter, A. C. acquired 36 points which is much more than the required minimum of points for the award. The writer wishes to express his apology for this oversight. Also Dave Helwig's total number of points should have been given as 19 instead of 189.

Curtis Hughes, instructor in music, is conductor of the college orchestra. Also assisting in the rehearsals have been section leaders Louise Lloyd, Dorothy Vawter, and Edrie Sellick, members of the music faculty.

The public is invited to attend this presentation of Maryville College's twentieth annual production of Handel's Messiah.

Poetically Speaking

ON THE STATUE OF LIBERTY

Not like the brazen giant of Greek fame,
With conquering limbs astride from land to land;
Here at our sea-washed, sunset gates shall stand
A mighty woman with a touch, whose flame
Is the imprisoned lightning, and her name
Mother of Exiles. From her beacon-hand
Glows world-wide welcome; her mild eyes command
The air-bridged harbor that twin cities frame.
"Keep, ancient lands, your storied pomp!" cries she
With silent lips. "Give me your tired, poor poor,
Your huddled masses yearning to breathe free,
The wretched refuse of your teeming shore.
Send these, the homeless, tempest-tost to me,
I light my lamp beside the golden door!"

New Classes

Mr. Beard would like to see more people taking art, for he says that talent is not so much a gift as the will to do, and a person can't tell what he can do until he tries.

Next semester he is planning to emphasize the ceramics section of the craft class. The art department is also planning to offer two new courses next semester for interested students.

Dr. Lloyd Attends Educational Meeting

Dr. Lloyd recently returned from the annual meeting of "The Southern Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools" in Memphis.

This organization is the accrediting association for institutions of higher learning in the southern region.

Music Classes Present Recital

The Adult Beginners in Piano and the Music Education Instrument Classes will present a recital Tuesday, December 9, at 4:30 p.m. in the Music Hall of the Fine Arts Center.

The first number will be "Lily Pcol", by Adler, performed by Katherine Kerns at the piano. Baly's arrangement of "Long, Long Ago" will be played by Donald Thiel on the trombone, accompanied by Margaret Potts. Hershel Nelson will then play Aaron's arrangements of "Three Blind Mice" and "He's A Jolly Good Fellow" on the piano.

"Santa Lucia"

"Santa Lucia" will be performed by Albert Rule on the baritone horn, accompanied by Rutha Sexton. Dee Woods will then play the English folk song "Country Gardens."

The rest of the program includes "Silent Night," Eddie Grigsby, clarinet and Jackie Speigner, accompanist; the "Evening Prayer" from Humperdinck's "Hansel and Gretel" played by Joan Herschelman; Beethoven's "Theme from Ninth Symphony" Jackie Speigner, cornet, and Viola Tellz, accompanist;

Eddie Grigsby at the piano playing "Believe Me If All Those Endearing Young Charms;" a piano quartet arranged by D. Vawter consisting of Catherine Holmes, Nancy Jones, Jean Kemper and Olivia Vawter;

"Sailor Song"

Schaum's "Sailor Song" played by Rosa Bauerle; "Drums A-Poppin'" by Ostling with Richard Cave and Annette Faust on the snare drums, Ray Harley on the bass drum and Ruth Sexton on the cymbals;

Rubinstein's "Melody in F" with Viola Tellz playing the baritone horn accompanied by Margaret Potts; Rosa Bauerle and Sue Binnion playing Munn's "March of the Tiny Soldiers" (for two pianos); Barnby's "Sweet and Low" played on the piano by Eloise Gazaway; the old English tune "Country Gardens" Margaret Potts, baritone horn and Don Thiel, accompanist;

Chopin's "Prelude in A Major" played by Sue Binnion; Mary Ann Moody playing Chopin's "Minute Waltz;" Gavin Douglas on the clarinet and Henry Emmons, accompanist, playing Foster's "Beautiful Dreamer;"

Mendelssohn's "Consolation" played by Clifford Church; Malcolm Bonner playing Bach's "Solfeggietto;" and the recital will close with the Music Education Band playing Oliver's "Easy Steps March," and Taylor's "Choral" and "Shadowland Waltz."

ACP Publicizes 'Jr. Press Conf.'

The many "experts" who have charged the younger generation with being passive and unquestioning are getting their answer every Sunday morning when "Junior Press Conference" hits the TV screens, a program that is being publicized by the Associated Collegiate Press.

Originating out of Philadelphia and filmed for viewers in other cities, the show consists of a panel of college students who do the asking, and a prominent adult who does the answering. Last week's show featured Senator Estes Kefauver.

Sponsored By ABC

The program is now being sponsored by the American Broadcasting Company and is being shown all the way from New York to Chicago. Mrs. Ruth Geri Hagy, Philadelphia newspaper woman, is producer and moderator.

"The entire show is unrehearsed," says Mrs. Hagy. "Our young people must be given the fullest opportunity to present themselves to the public."

MC Will Dance In Theta 'Candy Cane Lane' Tonite

Gala Affair To Start At 8 P.M.

By Gail Brown

The "Candy Cane Lane" fall dance will be tonight from 8:00-11:00 p.m. in the Alumni Dance Hall with recorded music, sponsored by Theta Epsilon and Alpha Sigma.

Topped by a red and white ceiling, the Gym will be decorated to represent a cozy livingroom. There will be candy canes supporting the room. Like Santa Claus on his yearly visit the guests of Theta Epsilon and Alpha Sig will enter through a fireplace. After the front door is closed, a fire will be lighted in the brick fireplace.

Standing in the center is a snowman holding a candy cane. And the dancers can look out on the winter night through a picture window at the end of the room.

At tables decorated with candy cane candles and Christmas tree ornaments, refreshments will be served after the dance.

Bevan And Glanville In Charge

Mary Jim Bevan, junior art major from Memphis, and John Glanville, sophomore from Mendham, N. J., are in general charge of the dance and the decorations. Sally Heer, freshman home economics major from Miami, Fla., was in charge of invitations, which were sent to the faculty this week.

Five Chaperons Chosen

The chaperons of the dance are Francis Massey, Carolyn Blair, Arda Walker, and Mr. and Mrs. A. F. Pieper.

The floor chairman for the dance is Peggy Kesler, senior biology major from Plainfield, N. J. Ken Wilkinson, English major and sophomore from Akron, Ohio, is in charge of the record selections. Doris Glad, freshman from Brooklyn, N. Y., headed the publicity.

Other chairmen are Grace Benham, Bill Davis, refreshments; Jean Maxwell, Harry McCall, Ronald Jennings, Grace Harrison, and Janna Boggs. Doug Stubblefield is in charge of lights for the evening.

Thetas Install New President Pat Lewis

Theta Epsilon met Thursday evening in Theta Hall for the purpose of installing the second semester officers. The retiring officers lighted the candles of the incoming officers in the candlelight installation, signifying a new light was entering in each office.

Newly installed officers are Pat Lewis, president; Mary Jim Bevan, vice-president; Jean Maxwell, secretary; Grace Benham, treasurer; Emilie Lathrop and Doris Glad, program chairmen; Connie Howell and Naomi Burgos, skit night chairmen; Carolyn Carter, sergeant-at-arms; and Janet Woods, chaplain.

MC Submits Chapel Designs To Contractors

Bids Expected This Week

The architectural drawings for the new Chapel were placed sometime ago in the hands of various firms of contractors who will submit bids sometime during the coming week, it was announced this week by President Ralph W. Lloyd.

Delegated Authority

The Board of Directors of the College have delegated to the President and to the Directors' Committee on Finance authority to accept or reject bids, and to award contracts.

Dr. Lloyd stated that there is some question as to whether it will be possible to announce before the close of the first semester whether a satisfactory bid has been received.

Work After Holidays

If there is a satisfactory bid, a contract will doubtless be awarded and work started soon after the Christmas Holidays, Dr. Lloyd said. If a satisfactory bid is not received, then there will be necessity for further study and revision of plans.

No Sig Meeting

Alpha Sig will not meet tonight. Plans for the last meeting of the semester will be announced later.

Scott Leads Christmas Prayer Meeting

Barbara Scott, senior music major from Wilmington, N.C., led the All Campus Prayer Meeting at 9:30 p.m. Thursday, December 11, in the Y rooms.

Her theme for this last prayer meeting was "Christmas."

Leaders Look To February Meetings

Recent words received by President Lloyd from all three leaders of the 1953 February Meetings express enthusiasm about coming to Maryville again.

Veterans Of 1949

Dr. Howard Moody Morgan of Philadelphia, Pa., who will be the speaker, Dr. Sidney E. Stringham of Kennett, Mo., who will lead the singing, and Dr. Henry Barraclough of Philadelphia who will be the guest accompanist during the last half of the Meetings, were all participants in the February Meetings of 1949.

Thus, the three-man team of 1953 will be making its second visit to the college.

The February Meetings will open on Wednesday, February 4, three weeks after the opening of the second semester.

Dr. J. L. Kind Of UT Gives MC Rare German Books

By Joe Gilliland

Through the generosity of Dr. and Mrs. John L. Kind of Knoxville, Maryville College now possesses a collection of rare books of German literature. Dr. Kind, who taught German at the University of Tennessee until his retirement two years ago, is now Professor Emeritus of German at UT.

An Old Parchment

Included in the collection of gift books is an old parchment which is still legible. The printing is in bright red and black ink with the usual adornments to the capital letters at the beginning of each paragraph. When Dr. Kind found this manuscript in Europe, it was being used as a book cover.

Ulfila's Bible

As might be expected, the old books are either scriptural or classical writings. The collection has two editions of Ulfilas' translation of the Bible. Both are quite unusual, but the older one, published in Stockholm in 1671, has the text written in Gothic, seventeenth century Icelandic, seventeenth century Swedish, and Latin. All four languages are printed in parallel columns across the two pages.

Ulfila was a bishop of the Goths and the original translator of the Bible into the Gothic tongue, which was not spoken after the time of Charlemagne. His original work first appeared around 360 A.D. He did not translate the entire Bible in this edition; he translated only the Psalms and the Four Gospels of the New Testament.

The other edition, which was published in 1857, has the text in Gothic, Greek, and Latin.

Most Books German

Others of the priceless books are either all in German or were published in Germany, with the exception of a translation of Aristotle's "Treatise on Poetry," by Thomas Twining, which was published in London in 1789, and a collection of folk poems published in London in 1825.

The translation of the Old Testament by Leander von Ess has a very remarkable feature in the clarity and brightness of its color plates, despite the fact that this edition was published in 1822. The printing of this old work is likewise of good quality.

Another Old One

Another work, "Auszug der voornehmsten Gedichte aus dem von Herr Barthold Heinrich Brockes" (a clolection of poems) has for illustrations wood cuts

160 Voices To Take Part In Christmas Vesper Service

The annual Christmas Vesper service will be held on Sunday night, December 14, at 7 p.m. in the Alumni Gymnasium. About 160 members of campus singing organizations will participate in this candle-light service.

Taking part in the program are the College String Ensemble, the Men's Glee Club, the Madrigal Singers, the All Girl Choir, and the Vesper Choir. President R. W. Lloyd will give the invocation and the Christmas meditation.

String Ensemble

The String Ensemble will present a medley of Christmas carols as a prelude. Members of the ensemble include John Graulich, Esther Lerch, Ann Kirkpatrick, Sue White, Ann Yoakum and Katherine Crews at the violin; Myrna Ginaven and Dorothy Horne, viola; and Wayne Shelton, cello.

The Men's Glee Club, participating for the first time in the Vesper program, will present "While By My Sheep" by Hugo Jungst, "The Lord at First" an English Carol, and "Sing We Now of Christmas," a French carol, with Hugh Walker taking the tenor solo.

Madrigals

The Madrigals will sing in the traditional English style, sitting around a semi-circular table, "Holy Day Holly Carol," an Old English song arranged by Richard Donovan, "The Coventry Carol" English, arranged by Katherine K. Davies, and "While Shepherds Watched Their Flocks" arranged by Arthur Warrell.

Following the Christmas meditation by Dr. Lloyd, the All Girl Choir will sing "Still Grows the Evening" arranged by Clarence Dickinson, "The Angels and the Shepherds" with Elaine Sipple taking the soprano solo, and "Lo How a Rose" by Michael Praetorius.

Vesper Choir

The Vesper Choir will present Palestina's "Hodie Christus Natus Est," a motet for double choir; Rachmaninoff's "Glory Be to God"; Billings' "The Shepherd's Carol;" and Olds' "The First Christmas Candle" with George Caldwell narrating.

Candles and Decorations

Both processional and recessional will be candle-lit. Decorations are being done by the YWCA and YMCA.

The String ensemble is under the direction of Katherine Crews; the Men's Glee Club and Girls' Choir are under the direction of Edrie Sellick; Madrigals and the Vesper Choir under the direction of Harry Harter, and pianist is W. Curtis Hughes.

Dr. Lloyd Attends Church Meeting

The second biennial assembly of the National Council of Churches of Christ in the U.S.A. is meeting in Denver throughout this week. The constituting convention of The National Council was held in Cleveland, Ohio, two years ago.

There are approximately 600 delegates from 29 principal American Protestant denominations. These denominations have a total membership of approximately 33 million.

Two From Maryville

There are two persons from Maryville who are among the 40 delegates of the Presbyterian Church in the U.S.A. One is president Ralph W. Lloyd, who is chairman of the Presbyterian Permanent Commission on Interchurch Relations and is a member of the General Board of the National Council. The other is Mr. David W. Proffitt, former president of the National Council of Presbyterian Men.

President Lloyd left on last Saturday afternoon for Denver and is expected back today.

YMCA To Give Christmas Program

Y.M.C.A. will meet Sunday afternoon at 1:30 p.m. in Bartlett Hall.

Bruce Miller, program chairman, announced a Christmas program is planned.

All men are urged to attend.

College To Recognize Ten Graduating Seniors Tuesday

Chapel Ceremony Starts at 8 A.M.

By Joe Gilliland

Ten first semester graduating seniors will be recognized in special recognition chapel services Tuesday morning at 8 a.m.

President Dr. Ralph W. Lloyd will preside, and Deans E. R. Hunter and Frank D. McClelland will take part in the program. The Vesper Choir will sing one anthem.

The Ten Graduates

The graduates are Kenneth Bowers, education major from Trenton, N.J.; Mary Ann Hicks, Bible and religion major from Willard, Ohio; Doris Holt, piano major from Philadelphia, Pa.;

George Lowe, political science major also from Philadephia, Pa.; Clyde McCampbell, physical education major from Knoxville;

Dorothy Miller, English major from Gatlinburg; John Morton, physical education major from Maryville; Harry Newberry, physical education major from Lenoir City;

Richard Nystrom, psychology major from Seymour, Conn.; and Dorothy Jean Robinette, sociology major from Maryville.

Nystrom To Miss Service

All of these seniors are expected to be present, with the exception of Richard Nystrom, who expects to leave before the day of the chapel service.

The number of prospective December graduates is one less than the number last year. These first semester graduates will be counted as part of the class of 1953, and they may take part in the spring commencement exercises next May.

Dr. Lloyd Plans For World Trip

College Prexy Leaves Dec. 20

By Shirley Armstrong

President Lloyd will leave on December 20 for India to attend a meeting of the Central Committee of the World Council of Churches. He will return on the last day of January.

Will Visit Missionary Centers

The meeting of the Central Committee is to be in Lucknow, India, December 31 to January 9. For several days preceding the meeting, Dr. Lloyd will visit Presbyterian missionary centers in Western India and for 10 days after the meeting will visit Presbyterian missionary centers in Northern India.

Will Spend Christmas Eve In Bethlehem

On his way to India, he will stop for three days in Lebanon and Palestine and expects to spend Christmas Eve in Bethlehem.

On his way home, he will spend three days in Geneva, Switzerland, in conference with representatives of the World Presbyterian Alliance in the interest of plans for the next meeting of the Alliance to be held in the United States in 1954.

He will also be in London for three days for conferences with British church leaders.

To Fly All The Way

The whole trip is to be made by air. It will begin in New York on December 21 with a non-stop flight from New York to Paris.

The return will be from London to New York at the end of January.

The new officers are: Jack Maxwell, president; Kent Buser, first vice-president; Walt Hiller, second-vice-president; Joe Gilliland, secretary; and Jim Kessler, treasurer.

MC Survey Reveals High Per Cent Of Dating, Student Dissatisfaction

By Roberta Hadley

In a recent survey conducted by a group of students in Sociology 306, Marriage and the Family, it was found that 96 percent of the men and 87 percent of the women students of MC date at least twice a semester.

The survey included interviews by the committee of 81 per cent of the MC student body. The student filled out a form concerning how often he dates, the class of the person whom he dates, as well as any additional comments.

The Dates Percentages

The percentages of girls who date according to classes are:

Freshmen	86%
Sophomores	90%
Juniors	96%
Seniors	77%

The men dating include:

Freshman	91%
Sophomores	99%
Juniors	98%
Seniors	98%

Comments

Additional comments which were most often made include:

"The boys should date more often."

"You are labeled as going steady after two or three dates."

"Sunday dating should be allowed for underclassmen."

"We should be free to choose our own town night." (Underclassmen.

"Off campus permission should be granted until 8:30."

"Most senior women find few opportunities for dating are open to them, since underclassmen seldom ask senior women, yet senior men date in all classes."

Frustrating Conditions

"The dating conditions here are frustrating and unhealthy, especially for couples who are going steady or engaged."

"We are not trusted by the administration."

"There is too much spying by the Student Council."

"The restrictions on the girls are too rigid."

"There is no privacy."

Unusual Remarks

A few of the unusual comments include:

"The girls are intelligent and superior but inferior in looks."

"Satisfied with the dating situation as it is."

"I never saw such a sad-looking bunch of boys in my life!"

Members of the committee working on this survey were Talmer Peacock, Clyde McCampbell, Mary Sue Munson, Jean Anderson, and Dotty Crawford.

Jim Hunt Reports On MTS Meeting

At the Student Council meeting, Wednesday, December 10, Jim Hunt reported on the results of Tennessee Association of Collegiate Student and Government Organization meeting held at the Middle Tennessee State campus last Saturday.

Discussed Problems

Hunt pointed out the following problems that were discussed at the meeting: too many dances, elections, school publications, the aims of student councils, and the social activities. Walt Elwood, who accompanied Hunt at the meeting, will report on the business phase of the conference at the next Student Council meeting.

The proposed town night revisions were passed by the Student-Faculty Senate and recommended to the Executive Council. A student body meeting will be held the first week of next semester to approve the recommended changes, if the Executive Council passes them.

Plans are under way to provide the college dance band for the Friday night after-supper social dance. This proposal was sent to the Social Board for further consideration by the Student-Faculty Senate.

Blood Drive Opens

Harry McCall, chairman of the MC Blood Drive, announced that the forms for blood donors who are under the age of 21 will be sent to their parents along with their report cards. Students may continue registering for the next semester blood drive on Monday and Tuesday.

President Sally Brown announced that the Fred Hope Fund Drive will begin January 26. Proceeds will be sent to a hospital in India.

Edwards, Burgos, Van Alstyne To Read Monday

Writers' Workshop will meet at 4 o'clock Monday afternoon in Dr. Hunter's classroom. Readings will be by Art Van Alstyne, Joanne Edwards, and Naomi Burgos.

Other business will concern selection of the semester's best writings for Chips, the campus literary publication.

The Year Closes . . .

How very difficult it is to summarize the events of one semester at Maryville College! It all started way back in September when we joyously welcomed the first few days of college. And then there were classes, the new crop of freshmen, the society formals, the rejection of the MSO, the IRC National Student Mock Election, Homecoming and Founder's Day, football games, the production of "The Heiress," the Trapp Family performance, the post-season football game with Wesleyan,, special studies, "The Messiah,"——"and we'll be darned, here we are ready for exams!"

Naturally, important events outside the ivory walls of Maryville were occurring—events which are just as important as those of college. Our nation elected a new president and a new party to guide us in the next few years. And the world wide struggle between democracy and communism continues on its inevitable road to World War III.

As the semester and the year of 1952 come to a close, another chapter in the story of Maryville and in the story of the world is now written. We hope that both chapters, if not in themselves successful, will be the basis for avoiding mistakes in the future. But, what is more important, we hope that the real values of the coming celebration of Christ's birth are incorporated in the new chapters. Only in this way will the pages ever tell of peace and good-will to all mankind.

MC Blood Drive

Next semester we at Maryville College will again be given the opportunity to contribute to the Red Cross blood drive. This is a cause that certainly deserves our support. The blood that we give is really needed. It may mean the difference between life and death for a wounded soldier in Korea. It should not be a matter of leaving it up to someone else to give blood, for this is something that concerns us all vitally.

When we sign up to donate blood, we are signing up to help save lives that might be lost without us. It's a small thing for us to do, but for those who need it desperately our blood is of the greatest importance.

Let's all do our part and volunteer blood for the Red Cross, so that other people may live!

'Twas The Night Before Christmas

'Twas the night before Christmas and up on the hill
Not a creature was stirring, the campus was still.
The students were home and the classrooms were bare.
The old tower sighed, "Not a step on the stair.
The laughter has vanished, the carols are gone;
Alone on this eve with not even a song.
They turned off the heat—they don't give a rap
If I'm warm enough for a long winter's nap!"
When up on his roof there arose such a clatter
He trembled, then grumbled, "And now what's the matter?"
It was thundering and lightening, flash after flash,
But he tore open his shutters and threw up his sash.
When what to his wondering eyes should appear
But a miniature sleigh and eight tiny reindeer;
With a little old driver so lively and quick
That he knew right away that it must be St. Nick.
More rapid than eagles, the coursers they came,
And that's pretty good, considering the rain.
"On Dasher! On Dancer!" He called loud and long.
"On Cupid! On Scotties! Let this be your song!
To the top of the tower, to the uppermost beam!
C'mon there, Rudolph! Let's put on the steam!"
The tower smiled and soon on his roof
He was being tickled by each reindeer hoof.
He was blinking his shutters and looking around
When down the tower St. Nick came with a bound.
The tower saw he was a jolly old elf,
And he laughed when he saw him in spite of himself.
He was dressed all in red from his head to his foot
And his clothes were all tarnished with ashes and soot.
He had a round face and a little round belly
That shook when he laughed like a bowlful of jelly.
His eyes how they twinkled; his dimples how merry.
His cheeks were like roses; his nose like a cherry.
His gay little mouth was drawn up in a bow;
The beard on his chin was as white as the snow.
The stump of a pipe he held tight in his teeth
And the smoke encircled his head like a wreath.
He spoke not a word, but went straight to his work,
Gave the tower new bells, then turned with a jerk
And laying his finger aside of his nose,
And giving a nod, from Anderson rose.
He sprang to his sleigh, to his team gave a whistle,
And away they all flew like the down of a thistle.
The tower was smiling. The rain changed to snow
And carols rang out from the town below.
He huddled no more; he stretched high as he might.
He wanted the world to hear him that night
As he rang his new bells, both loud and clear,
"MERRY CHRISTMAS, YA' ALL, AND A HAPPY NEW YEAR!"

Emily Smith contributes this little gem.

Little Boy: Daddy I went to church today, and they sang a pretty new song.

Daddy: What was the name of it, Son?

Little Boy: "The Blanket's on It's Way."

Daddy: (Reading program) Anthem . . . "Behold! Your Comforter Shall Come."

Child's Comment: "Golly! That thing was bigger than I thought!"

TALK OF THE WEEK

Voices, Masks, and Shadows

VOICES—Christmas Vespers will be held in the Alumni Gymnasium, Sunday, December 14. The inspiring all-musical program will combine the Girls' Choir, Men's Glee Club, Vesper Choir and Madrigal Singers. This beautiful program of devotion and worship is just the best remedy to take away the strain and worry of exams. All are invited.

MASKS—The Maryville theaters will feature two fine movies next week.

Monday, Tuesday, and Wednesday, the Capitol will present a story of adventure and romance in "The Prisoner of Zenda," starring Stewart Granger, Debora Kerr, Jane Geer and James Mason.

Featured at the Park on Monday is "The Great John L." (which was filmed in 1919). "The Story of Will Rogers," illustrating the life of that famous American, will be shown at the Park on Tuesday and Wednesday. Will Rogers Jr. will portray his father.

SHADOWS—The fellows who have seen the whole armful of new books in our library will probably start hoping and suggesting that the girls take a good look at them (the books). Such delightful titles as "Meals For Two", "Secrets of French Cooking", and "The Home Book of French Cookery" now adorn the shelves.

Fleshy Affair

Another recent addition is "An Affair of The Flesh", a colorful, humorous account of one woman's battle to keep her figure up to date, by Phyllis Rosenteur. Miss Rosenteur, having been chained to a calorie chart and size 46 in women's wear for ten years, tells in rib-tickling description of her sad experiences with fashions, men and social adjustments, while endeavoring to lose weight. In ten years she discovered she had lost approximately half a ton (8 pounds on, 6 pounds off; 12 off, 14 back on and ad infinitum) and had spent over $4,500 in the perilous process.

Captain Horatio Hornblower

Also, a historical novel recently made into a motion picture, "Captain Horatio Hornblower" by C. S. Forester is now available in our library. This book is reputed to be the best salt water romance story since that of the mutineers of the Bounty.

"Captain Horatio Hornblower" is a story of romance and danger on the seas during the Napoleonic Wars. Captain Hornblower was a captain of the H.M.S. frigate, Lydia; trying to blockade the coast of Spain with a beatup ship and a crew shanghaied from slums and jails, he performs many extraordinary feats.

This warm-blooded exciting series of three volumes is an excellent means of escape for its readers. Not an important book, "Captain Horatio Hornblower" is recommended for pure relaxation and spirited enjoyment.

Carolyn Symnes Elected French Club Prexy

On Thursday evening, December 4, the members of the French Club held their annual Christmas party at the home of Miss Margaret Wilkinson, associate professor of French.

Part of the program consisted in the election of the new officers for the spring semester.

Elected were Carolyn Symnes, president; John Graulich, vice-president; Joan Frei, treasurer; and Virginia Smith and Jeannine Fiori, program chairmen. Because of a tie in votes, the secretary remains to be chosen.

FOUR YEARS GONE

This is the last column on football for a graduating Senior Sports Editor. What have the years brought? A lot of good memories which many at the Hill share from the seasons as they pass. Those who are getting ready for their last semester at Maryville before going out into whatever life holds can remember way back to the '49 team, and the men who made it a good year for the Highlanders. At end was Hap Brahms, a lad we still see around the campus, courtesy of a young lady now a Senior herself, and there was Bobby Boring who has since gone on to became a rising baseball star for the New York Giants. Hershel Merriman, Ray Holsey, Leon Berrong, D. M. Miller, Bobby Neff, and Howard Davis, many of whom are still in the community and active in the sports picture in Blount County.

* * * * * *

TO TOWN

That was the year we upset Western North Carolina Teachers College 20-14, in a game that saw the real college debut of the Sheparb brothers and Charlie Allen, although all three had done well before that. After the game we went to town, and the spirit was really something to behold. After the march through town we went up to the dressing room and called for the team, but most of them had already gone. Coach Davis told us that we had the best spirit he had seen in years, and that we would surely, backed by that kind of support, win one of the three games left that year, if not more. We promptly lost all three, and all the games for the next two years, until we finally beat Hiwassee in the opener this year, so whatever else he is, Coach Davis is no prophet.

* * * * * *

WORKED HARD

The three coaches worked hard through the lean years that followed. They tried all sorts of things, even to trying out the split, T with Charlie Allen and King Berrong in the quarterback slot, but neither could quite get the timing so necessary for the option plays and ended up either pitching out too soon, or eating the ball themselves. At length the whole system was scrapped, and the ancient single-wing reinstated to power.

* * * * * *

AT LAST

But hard work is never enough, and although both coaches and team worked as hard as they could, still no games were totaled in the victory column for the Scotties as lean years of material struck the school, both in quality and in numbers so that men had to play at positions they were new at and not too well suited for. This year, however, enough new men came out so that there were enough for men to play where they were really good, and the results are easily seen in the improved record.

* * * * * *

NEXT YEAR

What this portends for next year is hard to say. All kinds of rumors have been reaching our ears about so and so not coming back for this or that reason, but until more is definately known, they will remain here unrepeated rumors. If all do return, or at least a normal number, and the influx of new students is anywhere like that of this year in athletic talent, then the next few seasons of football at Maryvile College should be happy ones of revenge on those who have been rubbing our noses in the dirt for several years now.

* * * * * *

SALUTE

So at the end of the year we say "hats off," to the football players who have given us a better year than we have had for several, and especially for those who have also played through their last game for the Scotties. Particular congratulations go to Joe Bender and Jimmy Campbell who were mentioned on the Little All-America squad, and to Homer Garren, Paul Merwin, Harry Newberry, Harold Glad, Dick Patton, and John Morton for the efforts they have made through the last four years.

* * * * * *

BUNION BURNERS

Though this article has been devoted so far to those who play football, we have not not meant to neglect the Cross-Country team, which turned in its usual grand performance. One of the most unnoticed sports on the Hill is that of the bunion-burners, as the great Neale Pearson used to call them. A sport which requires hard training and steady work and is very sparsely attended. Yet year after year Coach Johnson keeps turning out winning teams which add to the sports glory of the school. The only meets the team lost this year were to the University of Tennessee, which had one of the best teams in the south. Its conquered foes include Georgia Tech, Sewannee, William Jennings Bryan, and a number of other schools. As in football, a number of men graduate from the team, including its captain, Dick Kerr, who has worked hard for years and fully deserved his place as captain. Also graduating is Dave Helwig, another hard worker. Hats off to them and to the cross-country team, and a hearty hello to Wrestling and Basketball.

Scotties Drop YMCA In Opener

The Maryville wrestling team got off to a good start last Friday night at Knoxville when they defeated the Knoxville YMCA, 21-9. In a match which most Maryvillians held in doubt because of the heretofore intangible assets of the wrestling team, the Scotties actually had little trouble in taking their solid victory.

Try Again

On the 12th, the Knoxville boys will try again, but this time most of the Maryville wrestlers will have had a full week to get in shape and unrust some of the tricks they knew from the years gone by, and the YMCA men will have gained much from experience. The match should be a good one in the Alumni Gym.

Looked Good

Looking especially hopeful for the Scotties were Buford Miller, who pinned his man, Tom Bugenhagen, from Erie, Pa., where he wrestled for four yeasr, who added strength in the 167 pound class by taking a referee's decision from his opponent, and George Kipp, who pinned his man in the Heavyweight division and according to all the reports, really looked like a wrestler.

Results

123—Morse (M) decisioned Arnold (Y): 3-0.
130—Miller (M) pinned Schaeffer (Y); 5-0.

INTRAMURAL INFO

Warriors Come Back

On Friday, December 5, the dormant Warriors almost woke up to win a game. They lost a squeeker to the Y Non-Pros, 24 to 23. Clyde Young, a newcomer to the Warriors, scored 14. Sonny Shackelford got 10 for the winners. In the second game the Local Yokels beat the Highlanders, 34-25. Don Moore was high for the Yokels with 10, but Dock Jennings was high scorer with 11. In the third game the Owls ripped the Gooney Birds 46 to 7. Tim Bowman was the big gun with 16 points.

A League

Saturday the A league teams entered the picture. The Scotties won their first game by nipping the Question Mark 25-24. Bob Mizelle led the Scotties with 8 points. The Clubfeet lost their first game after winning three in a row. The Snowbirds beat them 37-24. George Roberts hit for 10 for the winners, while Phil Young matched him for the losers. The Dead End Kids forfeited to the Aces in the final.

Big Game

Monday also saw the A league in action. The Snowbirds knocked off another undefeated team by beating the Aces by ten points, 42-32. Bobby Berrong swished in 12 for the victors. Kent Buser got 9 for the Aces. In another close game the ? Marks beat the Clubfeet 30-28. Haylock scored 8 for the Marks, the same as Grippo for the Clubfeet. The Scotties ran their winning streak to two in a row by beating the Jokers 33-29. Mizelle and Beckwith each scored 10 for the winners, as did Green for the Jokers.

Owls Hoot

The B league took over for Wednesday's games. The Pre-Mins stopped the Yokels 40-34. Red Harless (spelled it right this time) of the Yokels was high scorer with 13 points. Dick Thompson scored 11 for the winners. The second game saw Bill Davis swish in 21 points for the new high score this season. Davis led the Highlanders to a 57-27 victory over the Warriors. Clyde Young scored 19 for the Warriors. The Athenian Owls ran their winning streak to five in a row by virtue of a 41-31 win over the Non-Pros. Tim Bowman got 19 for the Owls.

HOOPSTERS PLAY THREE GAMES; WIN AWAY GAME AT HIWASSEE

The 1952-53 edition of the Maryville College Basketball team opened its season against a veteran Carbon-Carbide team from Alcoa and finished on the short end of a 78 to 73 score in what proved to be a battle right down to the wire.

The pattern throughout the first half was set when A. C. McWilliams took a pass on the opening tip and drove under for the score, the visitors sharp shooting guard, Eckert dropping in a set from thirty feet out on the return trip up court. With Jack Keny and Dick Gardner alternating in the center spot, the Scotties managed to offset the considerable scoring punch of the visitors big center, Muchenthaler, and ended the quarter with a two point margin.

The Scotties, picking up steam and breaking fast, could not shake the plugging visitors and managed to pick up only two points on them in the second stanza. The score at half: Scotties 40, Carbon Carbide 36.

The Carbon Carbide quintet, roaring back with Muchenthaler controlling the boards, and the hard driving forward Wolfe snapping the chords, came back to knot the score by the end of the third stanza, fifty-one apiece. The loss of Keny and Gardner via the foul route late in the third quarter hurt the Scotties.

Paced by Wolfe, the visitors piled up a seemingly insurmountable nine point lead midway through the fourth quarter, but with McWilliams and Bob Shelton leading the way, the Scotties managed to go out in front 67 to 65 with less than a minute to play, only to have Wolfe dump another one through to send the game into overtime.

Again the uncompromising Mr. Wolfe took over the runs and, gunning through nine of the visitor's eleven overtime points, boosted his night's total to 34—the evening's high. Muchanthaler's 22 points and heavy backboard work also contributed heavily to the visitor cause. McWilliam's twelve points was the Scotties' best scoring effort with Keny and Shelton chiping in eleven apiece. The Scottie scoring as a whole was pretty evenly distributed among the many players used by Coach Honaker.

In the warm up encounter, Coach Ken Johnson's freshmen paced by Pat Flynn's twelve points, drubbed Pi Kappa Alpha from U-T, 47 to 25.

Subs: Maryville—Partee 2, Patterson 8, Gardner 6, Shelton 11, Blair 2; Carcon Carbide—Hill 2. Wes Kinser took it over shortly thereafter from the two in an Andy Kozar dive over the center.

Two More

In the second half the Scotties rolled quickly to two more scores. On the first drive, Don Alford recovered a fumble on the Carson-Newman eighteen. Three plays later Wes Kinser tossed a running pass to Charles Dunn in the end zone where Dunn made a leaping grab. Frank Garren intercepted a pass on the Eagles' first play from scrimmage after the kickoff. In a quick march down the field, Newman scored.

The Scotties downed a tough Hiwassee Tiger quintet last Friday night at Madisonville, 82-72. Jack Keny led the Scots dropping in eight field goals and eight foul shots for twenty-four points. Don Youell, brother of Maryville's Ann Youell, however, hit the bucket for twenty-seven counters for Hiwassee to take high for the night.

Early Lead

Early in the game the Scots took the lead and never lost it. The end of the first half found the Scots with a 36-34 lead which they expanded during the third quarter to a 60-49 margin.

The Scots made nineteen out of thirty-two free throws given them while the Tigers scored on twenty-two of the thirty-eight foul shots.

New Blood

Freshman, except for Dick Abbott and Ace McWilliams, stole the show for Maryville. Keny led the team while Bob Patterson sunk thirteen, Bob Shelton hit for eleven and Slug Blair tallied seven.

LMU GAME

A LOSS

The Lincoln Memorial University Railsplitters took the Scotties for a 92-77 ride Monday night on their court. The Scots led during the third quarter with LMU pulling the game out of the fire late in the fourth quarter.

Hard Work

The Railsplitters hit their first seven shots and held a fourteen to two lead before the Scots found themselves to pull up to within five points at halftime. Dick Abbott took high for the evening as he found his "deadeyes," dumping in eleven field goals and adding five free throws for a twenty-seven point evening.

Charles Seals, high-scoring forward for the Railsplitters, was held to twenty points, sixteen coming in the first half. Deac Gardner finally hit his usual form, scoring eighteen points, and managed to keep from fouling out.

Could Be Better

The Scots hit eleven out of twenty-one free throws awarded them. LMU did as well hitting sixteen out of twenty-eight.

Football Season In Review

Maryville has rounded out another football season, closing up shop on the day before Thanksgiving with a 20-12 victory over a fighting and always trying Tennessee Wesleyan team in a game that gave the team an even record over the season of four wins, four losses and a tie.

Honors To All

It was announced this week that two of the team, Jim Campbell and Joe Bender had won recognition on the Associated Press' Little All-American football team. To them, of course, goes all the praise the school and town can give them, but honors should be given all those others who worked all year and gave their best so that we could have a football team of which we could be proud. The work would seem especially good in view of the tremendous improvement the team showed near the end of the year in their victories over their last two foes, and the tie with Georgetown. With the team built to a large extent on freshman talent, it looks as if there might be even greater achievements next year to look forward to.

On The Right Foot

The team began the season with a bang when they tore into the Hiwassee Tigers for the first Maryville victory in more than two years, to the tune of 39-0. Wayne Newman led the Scottie attack with three touchdowns, but the fans' hopes rose as such others as the two Shepards, Jimmy Harris, Bob Shelton, Don Moore, and Bob DeLozier showed some real talent. Wes Kinser showed power through the middle as well as accuracy with the long pass.

Still Rolling

The sport records of Maryville College began a new era on the 27th of September when the Scotties won their 200th victory in the school's football history, and their second consecutive win of the season. The victim this time was the rough Jacksonville Gamecocks who went down to defeat, 15-6. The game was an exciting one from the opening whistle, and within a few minutes of that whistle the Scotties had scored enough points to win the game with two touchdowns and a conversion.

Fast Work

After a drive that began with the kickoff return, the Scotties bogged down for a moment on the Jacksonville thirty-nine, but then Clarence Shepard threw a pass to Dick Gardner who carried it over for the score, and Harold Glad kicked the extra point. After the kickoff the Gamecocks punted to Jim Campbell, who returned it for twelve yards. Helped by a fifteen yard penalty for roughing the kicker, and the running of Jim Harris and Wayne Newman, the Highlanders scored seven plays later with Newman plunging over from the two. Late in the final quarter, Romeo Green broke the Gamecock line to tackle Bob Shelly in the end zone for a two-point safety which put the game on ice for the Scotties.

After The Good

The Scottie skein of wins came to an abrupt and lengthy end in the weeks following the Jacksonvile game. The first team to administer a defeat to the Maryville eleven was the Centre Colonels. In a surprise showing of strength the Colonels rolled to a 20-0 victory on the first night game ever played at Centre. Led by a number of freshmen, the Centre team ran to a solid victory which the later Scots could probably revenge. O. L. Davis was the new offensive find for the Scotties in this game, and Dick Patton was a standout on defense.

More Woe

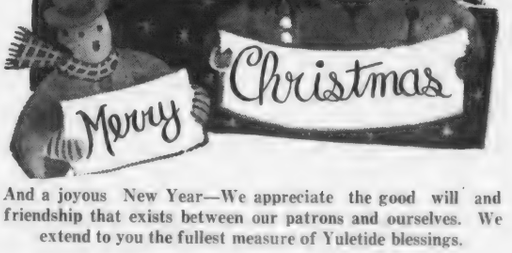
At the homecoming celebration at East Tennessee State, the men from Maryville ran into more trouble, this time in the persons of John Crumley, and Hal Morrison. For the Scotties Clarence Shepard, Buddy Gilbert, and Wes Kinser did the work of providing the scoring punch.

Back Home

Seeking to find solace in the arms of Maryville, the Scotties returned home to meet the powerful Emory and Henry Wasps. For the first half the Scotties put on an inspired defensive game, and led for a few minutes in the second quarter when Jim Harris broke away for a seventy yard run. But the lead was short-lived, for a few plays later Buddy Saltz evened it up for the Wasps, and before half-time they led 14-6. The second half was all Emory and Henry until Earl Lawson slid over late in the game to make the final score, 34-14.

Carson-Newman

The Carson-Newman Eagles applied the fourth straight loss to the Scotties on October 25th at Jefferson City, handing the Scots a 20-0 loss. Hubert Ashe was the big gun for the Eagles, while Wes Kinser's passing and the running of Jimmy Harris stood out for the Scotties.



Not For Always

The list of losses came to an end when the Highlanders came back for the Homecoming game against Georgetown, which finally ended in a scoreless tie. Ronnie Pinchback put on a good passing show for the crowd, as the Tigers kept up a constant threat but were never able to cross the Scottie goal due to a vastly improved defense, especially at the ends and halfbacks. The Scottie offensive was greatly hampered by a long list of injuries and absences. Tailbacks Shepard and Harris were both out, and Newman was in only a few plays. The brunt of the Scottie offense was carried by Don Alford in the tailback slot, Wes Kinser, who did some brusing running, at fullback, and wingback Jim Campbell.

Victory at Last

For the first time in the experience of the students at Maryville the Scotties beat Carson-Newman on the home field. It was one of those games where everything the team tried seemed to work. The first time the Scotties got their hands on the ball they went sixty-eight yards in eleven plays, featured by a fifty-one yard reverse by Jim Campbell. Wes Kinser took it over shortly thereafter from the two in an Andy Kozar dive over the center.

British Schools Announce Summer Schedules

Summer schools for overseas students will be held at four British Universities next year and will open a few weeks after the Coronation, according to an announcement by the British Universities Summer Courses Committee.

The Schools will be at Stratford, Oxford, London, and Edinburgh, and many Americans are expected to attend, as they have in past years. Since 1948, when British Universities organized their joint summer program, a total of 1,700 Americans have enrolled in these summer sessions.

Many Nations Repesented

While they and other English-speaking students make up the majority, there are usually representatives from 15 to 25 countries at each course. Teachers, post-graduate students, college juniors and seniors, and others with suitable qualifications are admitted. The courses may be recognized for credits at U.S. universities and for grants under the G.I. Bill fo Rights.

Different Themes

The themes at the summer sessions will be those that each University is best equipped to offer. At Stratford the University of Birmingham will present "Shakespeare and Elizabeth Drama"; Oxford will give "Literature and Politics in the Twentieth Century";

The University of London will offer "Britain's Economy in the Atlantic Community" at the London School of Economics and Political Science; while at the University of Edinburgh the Scottish Universities will present "The Development of Modern Western Civilization."

Application forms for the summer schools and further information Services, 30 Rockefeller Plaza, New York 20, N.Y. or from the Institute of International Education, 1 East 67th Street, New York 21, N.Y.

Students Present 'Shepherd's Play'

By Lora Kinsinger

A group of junior English majors, under the direction of Miss Jackson, put aside their term papers last week-end to prepare the "Second Shepherd's Play" for presentation to the Faculty Club at their banquet on Monday night, December 1.

This play was developed in medieval times as the need for understanding of the Catholic masses became greater. At first the actors were priests and choir members, but gradually the performances were taken over by the various guilds.

Few Stage Properties

Very few stage properties and little, if any, scenery was used in medieval times, and, thus, in the modern version. Use was made of one toy sheep, a music box which was wound up and stuck, fearfully expected to break into the strains of "Mary Had a Little Lamb" at the moment it was stolen from the shepherds. Also real blankets were used to toss Bob Coles, the apprehended thief.

One Change

The only change deliberately made was the use of two people for each character, one to speak and one to act. This was made necessary by limitation in time for preparation.

Costumes ranged from sheets to soldier's uniforms from "Macbeth."

The faculty was asked to take a historical point of view and use their imagination as they watched. All are glad that a highly interested faculty will now be up with the students in their understanding of medieval drama.

Air Force Officer Training Program Open To Seniors

Washington, D. C.—New opportunities for young men and women with scientific or technical interests to enter the United States Air Force for the purpose of receiving training as weather officers received additional emphasis from the statements by the Air Force Chief of Staff and the Commanding General of the USAF Air Weather Service.

Need Young Minds

General Hoyt S. Vandenberg pointed up the need for Air Force personnel in a recent statement to presidents of ROTC colleges. He said, "We are desperately in need of good minds—young and flexible minds eager to meet the rising challenge of our times, anxious to grasp the evolving meaning of air power. . . .

Major General W. O. Senter, Commanding General of the Air Weather Service, in announcing new opportunities for direct commissions in the USAF, stated: "Today, we are witnessing an age of scientific developments which stimulate the imagination. In each day's news we hear of new advances in thermonuclear energy, supersonic speeds of aircraft, longer ranges for aircraft, and many other advances which were unfamiliar to us a few years ago.

"As science progresses, so must the meteorologist, since his contribution to the success of these scientific advances has increased materially since the beginning of the last war.

Seniors May Apply Now

"College graduates, or seniors who will graduate this June, now may apply for appointment in the Air Force as second lieutenants and receive government-paid weather training at one of eight nationally known colleges and universities. Upon completion of their training, they will receive assignments in the USAF Air Weather Service as weather officers," General Senter continued.

"These individuals must possess a baccalaureate degree with credit for one year of college physics and mathematics through integral calculus. Qualified graduates or seniors should write to Headquarters, Air Weather Service, Washington 25, D.C., for the required application forms."

(Members of the Air Force ROTC may apply for this training through their Professors of Air Science and Tactics.)

Training Begins in June

Training for these officers in the grade of second lieutenants will begin in June 1953 and again in September, 1953. June 1952 graduates will be considered for the latter class only. Trainees will be ordered to duty about three weeks in advance of commencing training and will arrive on campus about ten days before classes begin in order to permit them to arrange housing and other matters.

which have not faded.

An early encyclopedia, "Erste Gruende der gesammen Walkweisheif," "Lays of The Minnesingers or German Troubadours," and Plautus' "Comedies", which are in Latin, comprise the rest of the books given by Dr. Kind.

In Good Shape

All of these old books are in remarkably good shape despite their age. None of the printing is illegible, and even some of the handwriting on the inside covers can still be read. The edition of Plautus' "Comedies" is the oldest, being printed in Frankfort in 1652. Most of the books are bound in their original leather bindings, and one has iron corner pieces on the corners of the covers.

Cannot Be Priced

H. S. Reber, assistant professor of German, said that the old editions which MC has received from Dr. and Mrs. Kind cannot be priced "Dr. Kind," Reber said, "has a very warm spot in his heart for Maryville College."

These newest additions to the German collection will soon be on display in the reading room of the library. When they are made available for the entire student body to see, we are sure you will know how fortunate Maryville is to have these valuable gifts from Dr. Kind.

Pre-Mins End Semester

Pre-Ministerials held the last meeting of the semester Thursday evening with a consecration service.

No other activities have been set by the group until second semester.

Poetically Speaking

Little five year old Susan was an amateur doctor. Naturally most of her patients were dolls.

One afternoon she went scurrying out to a neighborhood call, forgetting to close the front door.

Mother called her back. Susan didn't heed. Father called her back threatingly. Susan poutingly returned to close the front door.

After her call was completed, little Susan returned. Mother asked apologetically, "How was the patient, dear. All better?"

Susan still angry replied, "She died! Died while I was shutting that D— — — Door! ! !"

VOLUME 8 MARYVILLE, TENNESSEE, JANUARY 24, 1953 NUMBER 11

Dr. Morgan To Lead February Meetings

Religious Week Starts Feb. 4

By Shirley Armstrong

The 77th series of the February Meetings will open Wednesday morning, February 4, at 9:45 a.m. in the Alumni Gymnasium and will continue through Thursday, February 12.

Dr. Howard Moody Morgan, of Philadelphia, Pa., is the leader of the Meetings for the fourth time.

A minister of distinction who has great pulpit ability and is an effective, faithful, and practical Biblical preacher, Dr. Morgan is the pastor of the Chambers-Wylie Memorial Presbyterian Church in Philadelphia. He led the Meetings at Maryville in 1937, 1941, and 1949.

Stringham Returns

Dr. Sidney E. Stringham, pastor of the First Methodist Church, Kennett, Mo., and previously of the Cabanne Methodist Church, St. Louis, will lead the singing for the 30th time in the history of the Meetings.

Dr. Henry Barraclough, of Philadelphia, will arrive Sunday, February 8, and will stay to the end of the Meetings as guest accompanist.

Writer of Hymns and Anthems

Dr. Barraclough was choirmaster the Tioga Presbyterian Church, one of the large churches of Philadelphia, for sixteen years, and is a writer of hymns and anthems. The well-known hymn "Ivory Palaces" was written by him in 1915 while he was associated with the Chapman-Alexander evangelistic party. He traveled with Dr. J. Wilbur Chapman and Mr. Charles M. Alexander through the British Isles and America.

Holds Honorary Law Degree

Formerly a private secretary to a member of the British Parliament, Dr. Barraclough received the honorary degree of Doctor of Laws from Bloomfield College and Seminary, Bloomfield, N.J., of which he is a director, in 1946. He is also a trustee of Beaver College, Jenkintown, Pa.

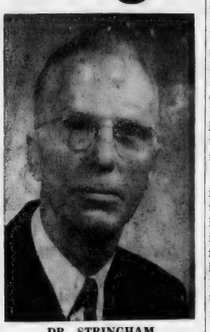
Morning Services In Gym

The morning service will be held each morning except Sunday in the Alumni Gymnasium at 9:45 a.m. The week night services will be held at the First Christian Church, just off the campus, at 7:10 p.m. each night except Saturday.

The Sunday evening service will be held in the First Methodist Church; the Sunday morning service at the New Providence Church, which is at present holding its services in the Maryville High School auditorium.

The New Providence Church service on February 1, the Sunday preceding the Meetings, will be an introductory service to the Meetings. President Ralph W. Lloyd, if he is here, and Dr. H. E. Orr will speak, and the Vesper Choir will sing.

Interviews



An announcement concerning interviews with the leaders of the Meetings will be made at the beginning of the Meetings. Any group interested in a froum meeting should speak to President Lloyd about this matter.

Edwards To Star In College Play

'Goodbye-Fancy' Set March 13, 14

By Eleanor Cantrell

Joanne Edwards, junior English major from Hawthorne, N. J., will star in the leading role of Agatha Reed in the March 13 and 14 Maryville College Playhouse productions of "Goodbye, My Fancy." Miss Edwards has had extensive experience in campus productions; many remember her first performance in "Our Town."

Sue White, senior sociology major from Middletown, Ohio, will portray the part of Grace Woods. James Merrill will be played by David Gates, junior science major from Fulton, Mo., and George Caldwell, junior drama major from Seattle, Wash., is in the role of Matt Cole.

Other Members

Other members of the cast include Carol Sleights, Ruth Orr, Marcia Williams, Jo Brooks, Carol Ann Doll, Bob Reed, Jim Shields, Moody Bryles, Florence Clark, Roberta Lankin, Mary Sue Munson, Cornelia Force, Judy Burgos, Art Van Alstyne, Will Stradtman, and Wayne Feehrer.

Comedy

The play is a three act comedy by Fay Kanin. In the original Broadway production the leads were played by Shirley Booth, Madeleine Carroll, Conrad Nagel, and Sam Wanamaker. The entire action takes place at Good Hope College for women in Good Hope.

"Goodbye, My Fancy" is under the direction of Kathleen Craven, assistant professor of drama and speech.

ECHO SCHEDULE

As has been the past policy because of financial limitations, The Highland Echo will publish only 11 issues this semester. The tentative Echo schedule for this semester is as follows:

January 24; February 7, 21; March 7, 14, 21; April 4, 18; May 2, 9, 16.

Dr. Lloyd Nears End Of Travels

Dr. R. W. Lloyd, president of Maryville College, is nearing the end of his present trip which has taken him through Paris, Rome, Jerusalem, and numerous stops in India, meeting friends and getting together with several Maryville College alumni along the way. He took this trip in order to attend a meeting in Lucknow, India, of the Central Committee of the World Council of Churches of which he is a member.

After leaving Lucknow on January 12 Dr. Lloyd traveled through northern India. There in Forozepore on January 14 he took part in the dedication of the new equipment which the Fred Hope Fund of Maryville College bought for the Frances Newton Hospital last year.

Dr. Lloyd, who left Maryville by plane last December 20 is expected to arrive in New York via Rome, Geneva, and London in the evening of January 31.

Students, Faculty Make New Year Resolutions

By Carol Moore

Having been told by certain knowing people on MC campus that certain people did not celebrate the New Year by making certain resolutions, this scribe will certainly attempt to correct this condition. For what is a New Year celebration for? . . . if not to make crazy little promises which are meant to be broken!

Fantastic Flight

But to get on with our little flight into fantasy, let's znom over to the land of the Swiss and interview our flying prexy.

"Good morning, Dr. Lloyd."

"Well, well, well! Fancy meeting you here Benita, or Fifi, I mean, Alice, pardon me, Mamie, uh, by the way, what is your . . ."

Resolution No. 1—I, Dr. Lloyd, resolve to make no more round-the-world trips. Also, stop secretly sneaking dogs into chapel, and will give five point speeches at important occasions.

Resolution No. 2—I, Herr Reber, resolve to substitute the expression "in the future" for the long, drawn out "from now on, hence forth, and forever more" which I now use 13 times per class period.

Resolution No. 3—I, Jim Campbell, will stop bullying Dick Patton and bodily injuring his puny frame. I am thirteen now, and should realize that might doesn't make right.

Resolution No. 4—I, George Caldwell, will do all in my power to be a good waiter. This means that I will not cry over spilt milk, gravy, water, pudding, coffee, or any other foods. I will also try to remember that a stitch in time saves nine.

Resolution No. 5—I, Ralph Erwin, resolve to paint the words Night Watchman with luminous paint on both sides of my car. In the event that the Board of Directors will not appropriate funds for said improvements, I promise to conk out in the back seat every night.

Resolution No. 6—I, Connie

Theta Meets Tonight

Theta Epsilon's meeting on Saturday evening at 6:45 p.m. in Theta Hall will feature a Moron Convention, according to Emily Lathrop, program chairman.

All members are urged to attend.

Dr. F.D.McClelland Given Recognition By Nat'l Red Cross

The local chapter of the American Red Cross was notified today that an outstanding honor had been conferred on a Blount County man, on the local chapter of the Red Cross, and indirectly on Blount County as a whole, since only 20 localities in the entire United States were honored by having a local citizen proposed for the honor which has been conferred on Dr. Frank D. McClelland.

In recognition of the outstanding work done by the local chapter of the Red Cross under the leadership of Dr. McClelland during 1951 and 1952, the national officers of the American Red Cross have named Dr. McClelland to the 1953 Resolutions Committee for the convention which will be held in Washington, D. C. in June.

This committee is composed of 20 members picked from all over the United States. Responsible ties are to receive requests from chapters throughout America who would like to have resolutions presented at the convention. The committee also has the authority to present resolutions that they as a group deem necessary.

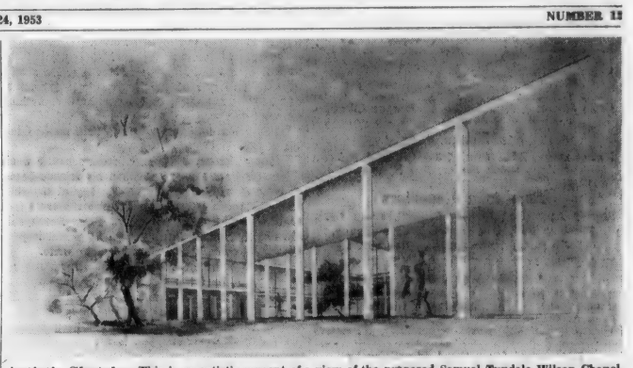
Dr. McClelland is scheduled to be a speaker at the annual meeting of the East Tennessee chapters of the Red Cross which will be held in Knoxville on January 29.

Miss Ruth Grierson Accepts Post At Vassar College

Miss Ruth Grierson, Librarian at Maryville College since 1940, has resigned effective February 1, to accept a position on the library staff of Vassar College, Poughkeepsie, New York.

Miss Grierson came as Assistant Librarian and has been head Librarian since the retirement of Mr. Horace L. Ellis in 1943. She came to Maryville College from New York City where she was on the library staff of the Board of Foreign Missions of the Presbyterian Church in the U. S. A.

Miss Grierson is a graduate of Alma College in Michigan, holds the degree of Bachelor in Library Science from the University of Michigan, and the degree of Master of Library Science from Columbia University. From 1927 to 1933 she was a missionary teacher in India, where her parents long served as missionaries.



Council Holds First Meeting

At its first meeting of the year held Wednesday evening, January 21, in the Student Center, Student Council: (1) authorized class meetings to be held at a time to be announced later; (2) voted to have a Student Body meeting soon, pending favorable action by the Executive Council of the faculty on revised Town Night penalties; (3) voted to place an iron lung coin container in the Student Center for the March of Dimes, and (4) decided to let action on the MSO ride until the end of the year.

Officers Left

The class meetings will be necessary for the sophomore and senior classes because both have lost officers over the Christmas holidays. Pat Ingles, former sophomore secretary, did not come back this semester, and Mary Ann Hicks, former senior Student Council representative, graduated in December. Announcement will be made concerning the time for these meetings.

The action on the March of Dimes came after President Brown told Council the person in charge of the Maryville March of Dimes drive had requested the MC student body to take some kind of action for the benefit of the campaign.

Artist's Sketch— This is an artist's concept of a view of the proposed Samuel Tyndale Wilson Chapel, looking at an angle from the sidewalk in front of the building across the open colonade of the building toward the main chapel. The entire building will be 285 feet long, nearly the length of a football field, and 94 feet wide. It will be located on the general site of Voorhees Chapel, although set downhill about 60 feet from the road. (Floor plans of the chapel will be found on page 4).

Building Of Wilson Chapel Underway

Chapel To Cost Over $500,000

By Don Thorn

The new Samuel Tyndale Wilson Chapel of Maryville College is under construction in the form of a large hole across from Anderson Hall. Actual construction of the Chapel began on January 5. It is hoped that the building will be completed near the end of 1953.

Five Years of Planning

On March 26, 1947, the Elizabeth R. Voorhees Chapel was completely destroyed by fire. Ever since then plans have been under way for the new chapel. The first studies assumed that the new chapel auditorium would be used for plays, but gradually the conviction grew that there should be separate auditoriums and stages. The present plans are now on that basis.

Plans

The Samuel Tyndale Wilson Chapel is in fact, an assembly of three buildings linked together around a large court 60 by 45 feet in size. The entrances are through this center court. The entire length of the structure is 285 feet and the width is 94 feet. The materials now contemplated are grey brick, reinforced concrete, steel, aluminum, glass, and a limited amount of wood. The center court will be enclosed on three sides by walls of glass.

Location

The building will be in the general area of the old chapel. It will sit down the hill about 60 feet from the road in front of Anderson. The chapel end will be toward Carnegie Hall and the theater end toward the Fine Arts Center. Entrance to the center court will be about the center of

Internal Plans

The building consists of the main chapel with a seating capacity of 1120, a theater with a seating capacity of 460, and a little chapel with a seating capacity of 100, and a complete unit of classrooms, rehearsal rooms, workrooms and offices.

Contracts and Architects

Johnson & Willard, General Contractors of Knoxville, who built the FAC, were also the low bidders for the new chapel. They were awarded the contract on December 18, 1952. The architects for the building are Schweikher & Elting of Chicago, Ill. and Barber and McMurray of Knoxville.

Financial Data

The low bid for the building was $498,699 which does not include furnishings. From contributions and pledges for the chapel, M.C. has on hand approximately $400,000, leaving about $150,000 to be raised for the initial construction price and the furnishings.

Dr. Rice Opens Hope Fund Drive

Indian Hospital To Get Money

By Faith Nollner

On January 22 Dr. C. Herbert Rice, Central Associate for the Board of Foreign Missions, Chicago, Ill., spoke in chapel on behalf of the Fred Hope Fund.

The Fred Hope Fund Board voted to designate the fund this year for the use of Dr. Dorothy Lee Ferris, who is in charge of the Frances Newton Hospital, Ferozepore, India.

Maryville Graduate

Dr. Ferris graduate at Maryville College in 1928 with cum laude honors, and after a year of teaching entered the College of Medicine at the University of Cincinnati. In 1934 she received the degree of Doctor of Medicine. After a postgraduate term of the College of Physicians and Surgeons in New York, she sailed to India in 1935.

Since that time, except for a furlough somewhat extended by war, she has been in India as a missionary doctor. The story of her work there is very dramatic.

Received National Recognition

During the tragic conflict that divided the country into India and Pakistan, the Frances Newton Hospital and its staff and its director, Dr. Ferris, did a work that won national recognition. In 1947, Dr. Ferris was awarded the Kaisar-i-hind Medal, the highest award

Mr. Brown to Preach At Vespers Sunday

Reverend George E. Brown will speak at Vespers this Sunday at 7 p.m. in the Music Hall of the FAC. A graduate of Maryville College and husband of Mrs. Brown who teaches biology in this school, Mr. Brown is the minister of Spring Place Church near Knoxville.

Editor Announces Staff Openings

Three freshman positions on The Highland Echo Staff are open, according to Editor Van Holland. All freshmen who wish to try out for these positions should attend the regular staff meeting on Monday, January 26, at 7:30 p.m. in Thaw 207.

Because Gail Brown and Pat Ingles did not return this semester, there are also two openings for sophomores. Present try outs for these two positions are Betty Ham, English major from Stone Mountain, Ga., and Wayne Brooks, biology major from Oklahoma City, Okla.

Persons wishing to work on the Echo business staff should see Business Manager Dick Dart. Subscriptions to this semester's Highland Echo ($.50) may be attained from Holland or Dart.

Mr. Kemp, New Drama Teacher, Very Happy To Be At Maryville

By Abby Crosby

The new face we've been seeing around campus for the past few days will soon be a familiar one to most of us, for he's Jack Kemp, the new instructor in the drama department.

Moving from Vandalia, Ga., he arrived on campus and started his classes last Tuesday. Right now he's in the midst of a search for an apartment for Patricia, his wife, and his two children—Lynne Elaine, seventeen months, and Alan, three months. Immediately before coming to Maryville he was in the display department of Rich's Department Store of Atlanta, Ga.

A Paratrooper

During the war he was a member of the 51st Parachute Infantry, receiving his honorable discharge in 1947. He immediately began college, and upon his graduation from the Wesleyan Conservatory and School of Fine Arts in Macon, Ga., he taught speech and dramatics at the Eatonton High School in Eatonton, Ga.

Mr. Kemp attended summer school at Columbia University in New York, and during the free parts of his summers he did summer stock work with the Rabbit Run Theater, Madison, Ohio.

A Host Of Women

When asked a little about his college days, he replied that although the Conservatory is known chiefly as a women's school, and is the oldest chartered school for women in the United States, they do have a co-ed student body, although the men are few and far between.

"You can imagine," he said, "that it was quite an adjustment to make from the paratroopers to a women's school!"

Happy To Be Here

"I am very happy to be here at Maryville," he said, when asked his impression of the college, "and I think the people are awfully friendly and pretty terrific. I'm sure I shall enjoy being a member of the faculty at your school."

Attaining Culture

Culture is a word that we often apply to an effeminate or to an odd person. But what is the real meaning of culture and is it a worthwhile state to attain? First, culture means "development or improvement by education and training," and secondly, it means "enlightenment or refinement resulting from such development." That is to say, "The value of culture is its effect on character. It avails nothing unless it ennobles and strengthens that. Its use is for life. Its aim is not beauty but goodness."

In other words, our real purpose as college students is to become cultured—to develop and to improve ourselves, to attain goodness, while at college. For that purpose, abundant opportunities are offered at Maryville College. There are numerous good teachers to help us learn more about ourselves and the world, and thus better understand ourselves and the world. There are numerous means offered to develop a mature Christian faith. And there are numerous extra activities on campus to round out our character development.

If, during our years at Maryville College, we have not changed, improved, or refined ourselves, certainly they are years completely wasted. If our years at Maryville have not in some way ennobled and strengthened us, our time and money would have been far better spent in some other enterprise. However, there is yet time if we are lagging behind in becoming cultured, for the opportunities still lie before us. Surely, the beginning of this semester is an appropriate time to resolve to take advantage of those opportunities.

The New Chapel

Finally the new chapel has actually been started, six years after the old one burned. Students here have not known a time when chapel services, plays, and graduation ceremonies were not held in the Alumni Gymnasium, and now we are promised that soon we shall be meeting in a real chapel.

Having a chapel will be an asset to Maryville not only because of the fact that it will be another building and will provide more space, but also because of the atmosphere. It is hard to get into the right frame of mind for a sermon or a concert in the same place where we watch a basketball game. It is a pity that we have been without a chapel for this long; this year's seniors will graduate without ever knowing a chapel on the hill. We only hope that the building will go on as planned, and that next year's class can graduate in it. The idea sounds too good to be true, but it is beginning to look as if we may yet have a chapel in its place on the campus.

Scots & Soda

By Wayne Brooks

Back again to this beautiful sunny Tennessee weather and seventeen more weeks! Here's a few notes on how to become top man in seventeen weeks, according to Stephen Potter.

There are several types of students, but the student of studentship will follow this. He should want to give one of two impressions: (1) either that he does not work, or (2) that he does nothing but work.

The rabid followers of the first method tell this story:

"James Brown disappeared from school a week before his final exams just when his friends began studying in earnest. Then, on the day of the first exam, he would return, strolling into the room five minutes late, dressed in a light Palm Beach suit and heavily tanned. Sitting down he would inspect his papers casually and then begin to write.

"Later it becomes known that Brown has received an A in the course. What is the explanation? Brown has been holing himself up in his room surrounded by the total reading assignment, including the optional books, and has been working like a dog all week, stripped to the waste between two sunlamps."

Proponents of the second method point out that the student of this type seems to present a solid front of knowledge. To achieve this one should be seen in the library at various times of the day, especially in the evenings. The student should seat himself in a centrally located place (so that he may be seen) and intermittently get up quietly but "Plonkingly" and go straight to a reference book as if he knew just where to go, look up the reference and return in the same manner. This type of attitude discourages competition.

News ITEM

The coke machine in Carnegie Hall was still working as of 8:30 p.m. Friday evening.

SHADES OF CHARLIE WILSON! !

The new head of the Bureau of Indian affairs according to Dr. Queener will probably be a former vice-president of the Pontiac Division.

FAMOUS LAST WORDS

Overheard one Maryville student to another.

"Are you going to take one of those flu shots?"

"Me? Naw, I'm not going to take any shot. I never get sick!"

THOUGHT FOR THE DAY

This would be a much more livable and orderly world if Winterset had been written by Somerset Maugham.

QUESTIONABLE QUERIES

(1) What is that new building on Court Street halfway between the campus and town?

(2) Why does Gary Cooper always look as if he's about to cry?

NEW CURRICULUM

Dean Hunter has announced that a new course, taught by Dr. Lloyd will be offered this coming semester: Sanskrit 201.

SUCCESS STORY

"Say, mister, how much do those cigars cost you?"

"About a quarter apiece."

"And how many do you smoke a day?"

"Oh, ten probably."

"TEN! That's $2.50 a day. Do you see that building on the corner? If you didn't smoke so much you'd probably own it."

"Do you own that building?"

"No."

"Well, I do."

WHAT?

When Dr. Queener asked Martha Freeny if circle drive was macarmized, she replied that she didn't know. His apt reply—

"You don't get ou there much, do you?"

LOGIC

Adam and Eve were out naming the animals one day when they saw a strange looking beast with a horn.

"Oh, let's name that one a rhinoceros," Eve cried.

"Why that?" asked Adam.

"Well it looks more like a rhinoceros than anything we've seen yet," she replied.

FROSH SHOW SPARKLING COURT RECORD, 6-1

Flynn, Partee Set Scoring Pace

By Hersh Mosier

When the Scots Freshman team take the floor against the Snowbirds Saturday they will be defending a fine record of six wins and one setback. The Frosh are led by Pat Flynn who has scored 71 points so far this season. Charlie Partee is the second highest scorer with 65 points even though he missed two of the games.

Only Loss

After trouncing the Pi Kappa Alpha team from Tennessee 47-25 the Frosh journeyed to Knoxville and suffered a 75-64 defeat by Johnson Bible College. Shields of the "Bible" club took scoring honors with 23 points. Charlie Partee led the Scots by hitting the twines for 18 points. McNeil of the "Bible" team hit double figures and scored 17 points.

Varsity Side-Pocket

By Dixie Conner

Year's Review

All good things come to an end, even a year in ye olde Women's Varsity—and so for a brief resume of the fall semester's activities.

We started out the term with a bang when sophomore physical education major, Mary Ann Thompson, won the tennis tournament. As the year commenced we kicked our way through soccer. It was all too close, though, and as the Chillies and Howies lick their wounds, we find that the soccer tournament turned out in a 0-0 tie.

Aerial darts was a pretty exciting game when the scores started mounting. Barbara Rogers, senior physical education major played a pretty and fast game to win the tournament.

The finale for hte first semester was a volleyball tournament which, through beautiful teamwork on their part, the Howies took without any trouble. In the squad game played at the last meeting, though, the Chillies fought hard and won.

May we of Women's Varsity extend our thanks to Barbara Rogers, Virginia Sanderson, Helen Drinnen, and Barbara June Gregory for their excellent assistance to Mrs. Queener and supervision over these various sports.

MTS Matmen Take Close One, 17-15

Morse, Bugenhagen And Buchanan Get Pins

By Bob Coles

The Scotties lost a thrilling match to Middle Tennessee State College last Saturday night at the Alumni Gym, 17-15. The outcome was in doubt until the last period of the last match, when George Kipp was pinned by a real TV type wrestler who weighed in at 268 before the match began.

Always In Doubt

Jim Demer opened for the Scotties, and worn out by the effort to make weight, was unable to do more that keep from being pinned as he lost to the experienced Bill Porterfield, 4-0. But Bill Mrose came right back to pin his man and gave Maryville the lead again. Then the drought began with the middleweights as Dave Helwig, Ken Shepard, who used his best wingback form in an effort to take the match, and Jim Harris all lost decisions.

More Luck

As they moved up into the higher weights, the Scotties began to encounter better luck. Tom Bugenhagen, in his first match before the home fans, pinned his man mid-way through the second period. Bob Buchanan then gave Maryville the lead when he pinned John Nickens half-way into the last period after several near misses earlier in the match. Then came the debacle. With Maryville needing only a loss by decision to tie, George Kipp went for a victory against his huge opponent, and was doing better than all right when he could not quite make an effort to escape and simply could not get away from the 60 pound advantage Billy Nix had on him.

Next Time

The story may be very different the next time the two teams meet at Middle Tennessee State. Even in the weights which Maryville olst there is room for improvement which only can come through more practice and teaching. The odds are very good that the next time will be much different.

Summary:

123: Porterfield (MTS) decisioned Demer (M), 4-0.

130: Morse (M) pinned David Leverette (MTS)

137: Glen Carso (MTS decisioned Dave Helwig (M), 5-4

147: Lem Vaughn (MTS) decisioned Kenneth Shepard (M), 6-4

157: John Fine (MTS) decisioned Jim Harris (M), 8-4

167: Tom Bugenhagen (M) pinned Douglas McDonald (MTS)

177: Bob Buchanan (M) pinned John Nickens (MTS)

H'v'w.: Billy Nix (MTS) pinned George Kipp (M)

Scots Drop Hiwassee, UT: Lose To LMU, TPI Tusculum

Scots Win Second Over Tiger Five

Retuning to action after the winter vacation, the Scotties moved to an 86-68 triumph over the Tigers from Hiwassee. The Scotties showed the effects of the layoff as several of the varsity performers played the B game in an effort to get the old shooting eye back before the game. At the half the score was tied 35-35, but in the third quarter the Scotties began to move.

Really Rolling

In the third quarter the Highlanders outscored the Tigers 24-17, and kept up the race, even stepped it up in the last period and outscored their visitors to the tune of 27-16 to amass the final totals of 86-68.

Scoring

High scorer for Maryville was Jack Keny, who pitched in 15 points, closely followed by Jim Campbell who threw in 12, performing in front of his father, Bill Blair, with 12, and Bob Patterson also got in the 12 point parade. However, none of these took high honors for the evening, or even second place. The big gun for the Tigers was their center, John Wright, who ended up the evening with a total of 26 big points, helped by Guard Dick Spurling who got a total of 18 for the evening's work.

The Lineup

Maryville 86	Pos.	Hiwassee 68
Abbott, 5	F	Youell, 9
Henry, 5	F	Hensley, 1
Keny, 15	C	Wright, 26
Campbell, 12	G	Belcher, 9
Blair, 12	G	Spurling, 18

Subs: Maryville—Patterson 12, McWilliams 4, Shelton 3, DeLozier 2, Shepard 5. Hiwassee—Atchley 3, B. Spurling 2.

LMU Railsplitters Drop Scots, 71-55

Appearing on their own home court, which is usually most friendly to the Scotties, they nevertheless dropped a 71-55 decision to the Railsplitters from Harrogate. The Highlanders turned in one of their worst performances in recent years in dropping the game. Perhaps the best explanation is that no one was hot when they met a good team.

Not All

Dick Abbott was the only Scottie hitting with consistency at all. He had all eight of the first eight points for Maryville and ended up the evening with a total of 27 points. Jim Wiley followed him with eight. The Scottie shooting was simply terrible as they hit only fourteen per cent of their shots, an average which will win very few games for any team.

Rebounds

Even more apparent than the poor shooting was the poor rebounding job that the Scotties did. No figures are available for actual statistics, but time and time again the LMU guards took the ball off the backboard with little or no opposition, and the Lincoln forwards and center got shot after shot at the basket.

Human Interest

There was a little bit of drama going on down on the court which escaped the notice of most of the fans. The big LMU forward Vaughn was playing for the first time in his life against Maryville's Slug Blair. This is perhaps not so unusual except for the fact that the two boys went all through high school together and to LMU together for a while, and Monday night was the first time they ever played against each other.

First Half

At halftime the score was an extremely low 25-25, as both teams hit at widely scattered intervals and in brief spurts. The LMU men jumped out to a 7-3 lead but this went down as the Scotties whittled away and battled to a tie at halftime.

Ceremonies

At halftime the visitors put on a very interesting tumbling show with a newly formed group at the Harrogate institution. The seven performers, four boys and three girls, did a number of stunts which were exciting and very pleasing to the crowd.

The Lineup

Maryville 55	Pos.	LMU 71
Campbell	F	Seals, 24
Abbott, 26	F	Vaughn, 1
Keny, 6	C	Essary, 11
Blair, 6	G	Jenkins, 9
McWilliams, 5	G	Fusher, 5

Subs: LMU—Peters 9, Jordan 1, Campbell 6, Massey 4, Monhollen 1. Maryville—Wiley 8, Patterson 1, Shelton 3.

Scots Fall To Powerful TPI

Tennessee Polytechnic Institute rolled out a 88-65 triumph over the Scotties in the last game before the Christmas holidays on their home court.

Dick Gardner bowed out in his final game with the Scots by taking high point honors for the evening. Known as "Deacon" by his friends Dick racked up eight field goals plus seven markers from the foul line, a total of 23 points. His scoring ability will be missed as the season rolls along. Dick Abbott for the Scots and Tom Downing of TPI tied for second place scoring honors with 18 each.

Scotties Shine, Drop UT B Team

Last Saturday night the Scotties traveled to the University of Tennessee to take on the Vol B Team which for a number of years has been compiling a good record, and had continued to do so through this year until they ran into the Scotties last week. The game was played as the preliminary to the UT-Georgia Tech game which the Vols won to have some solace for the evening. The Scotties won, 62-50.

Evenly Shared

For the UT game the Scottie glory may be very evenly spread. The scoring was well scattered, and the general play was good both in rebounds and in ball handling. Dick Abbott led the Highlander attack with 14 poinis, closely followed by Jack Keny with 13. Billy Spoon , who used to be seen on this campus as the occasional squire of Pat Lovette, led the Baby Vols with fourteen points followed by the son of General Bob Neyland. Bob Junior had eleven. The game was either a very rough one or very closely called for several of the Maryville players fouled out and several others had four personals when the game ended as did more than one of the Baby Vols.

The Lineup

Maryville 62	Pos.	UT 50
Campbell, 7	F	Testerman, 8

Intramurals....

NO SETON HALL

After a long Christmas vacation the Local Yokels resumed play in the B League with a 31 to 28 win over the previously undefeated Athenian Owls. Big Don Moore led his team with 14 points. Tim Bowman got 11 points for the losers.

In the second game the Pre-Mins beat the Y Non Pros in a low scoring game 21-18. Dick Thompson was top scorer with 7 points for the Pre-Mins.

The third game was also a close contest. The Athenian Gooney Birds falling prey to the Alpha Sigma Highlanders 22-19. Rolfe Duggar of the Highlanders and Charlie Williams of the Goofy Birds shared scoring honors with 8 points each.

There were two games played on Thursday, January 15. In the first contest the Athenian Aces smashed the Alpha Sig Scotties 35-14. "Bevo" Ranger swished in 18 points for the victors. In the second contest the uprising Dead End Kids beat the Question Marks 21-17. The scoring was evenly divided among the victors. The Jokers forfeited to the Snowbirds in what was to be the day's third contest.

On Saturday the Y Clubfeet got back on the winning road with a 30-13 romp over the Scotties. Phil Young hooped through 15 points for the Club feet. The league leading Snowbirds stopped the up and coming Dead End Kids in a close one 40 to 36. Bobby Berrong hit the nets for 13 points for the Birds and Jerry King got 12 for the Kids.

The Snowbirds snowed under 33-22 win. John "Hooks" Anderson bagged 12 points for the Snowbirds. In a real close one the Question the Y Clubfeet on Monday with a tion Marks nipped the Alpha Sig Scotties 26 to 24. The Dead End Kids surprised the Athenian Aces with a 40 to 27 win in the day's final contest. Chuck Dunn of the Kids was high man with 13 points.

Tusculum Whips Scot Quintet

Tusculum, not satisfied with a twelve point lead at the end of the third quarter, put the damper on any hope the Scots might have had for victory with a 32-point spree in the final quarter. The game, played on the Pioneer's home court, ended none too soon for the dazed Scots with the final score reading 92-65.

Tusculum's big threesome, guard Norm Boyles and forwards Bob Statzer and Don Green, accounted for 71 points, more than enough for the victory. Boyles was high for the night with 25. Statzer calked up 24 and Green 22. Dick Abbott hit for 22 for the Scots.

The Scots held a 18-16 lead at the end of the first quarter but early in the second the Pioneer's came back in high gear to take the lead which they never again relinquished.

Features Begin At 6, 7:15, 8:30

This evening the athletic department is offering a triple header, a rare card in Maryville annals, for the entertainment of Scottie fans. Beginning at six o'clock in the alumni gym the Freshman basketball squad will meet the Class A league-leading Snowbirds in what should prove to be a very interesting and close contest. Word is around that many are betting on the upset.

The Varsity basketball squad meets Tennessee Wesleyan in an unscheduled game beginning at 7:15. The Bulldogs have had some powerful quintets in past years. Last year's squad dumped the Scots 82-47 early in the season and the Scots were far from pushovers then. The Scotties came back later in the year to win 92-58 in a return match.

The Moccasins of the University of Chattanooga invade the local gym for the last feature of the evening as the Scot matmen try for their second win of the year. The Moccasins will bring a strong squad to meet the improving Scots. Last year the two teams split the two meet, each winning one. The first meet the Mocs won, 21-11, with the Scots coming back to take the second, 20-13.

Mocs Down Scots For Fifth Loss

The Chattanooga Moccasins jumped to an early 22 to 11 first quarter lead Thursday night before the Scotties could find themselves. From there on the Chattanooga home fans watched with fear as the locals slowly edged up on the high flying Mocs.

The game was rough as five players fouled out and several others were saved only by the final buzzer. Jack Keny's fouling out in the fourth quarter was the blow that hurt the Scot's chances. Keny was hot as he hit six from the floor and five at the foul line. The loss of Shelton and Blair also hurt the Scotties. Dick Abbott was second high for the evening with sixteen.

Both Brown and Heil fouled out for the Mocs. Wilkerson led the Mocs with seven from the floor and then added his only try at the line to make fifteen.

HOPE FUND . . .

of the government of India, for public service.

After the devastating floods that swept the country that same year, Dr. Ferris was given extraordinary mention in military dispatches for her outstanding service in that disaster.

The Frances Newton Hospital admits one thousand or more women and children every year. Five times that number are treated in the Court Yard Clinic of the hospital. The Hospital is now attempting to build some additions and to secure more equipment for the tremendous call that it has for service.

Received Doctorate From M.C.

In 1950, Dr. Ferris was given a degree of Doctor of Humane Letters at the Maryville Commencement, in recognition of her notable work.

The decision of the Fred Hope Fund Board to send the Fund to her this year is on the basis that it will be available for equipment which she needs but could not otherwise secure. It is not to be applied to her salary or to the regular expenses now being cared for by the Board of Foreign Missions of the Presbyterian Church in the U.S.A.

President Ralph W. Lloyd has informed the Board of Foreign Missions that the Fund money will be available late in the spring or in the early summer for use in the hospital. The goal this year is fifteen hundred dollars. Every effort is being made to reach the goal.

Partee To Entertain Athenians Tonight

Athenian will meet this evening at 6:15 p.m. in Bartlett Auditorium for an important business meeting.

Charlie Partee will have charge of entertainment, according to program chairman Walt Hiller.

RESOLUTIONS . . .

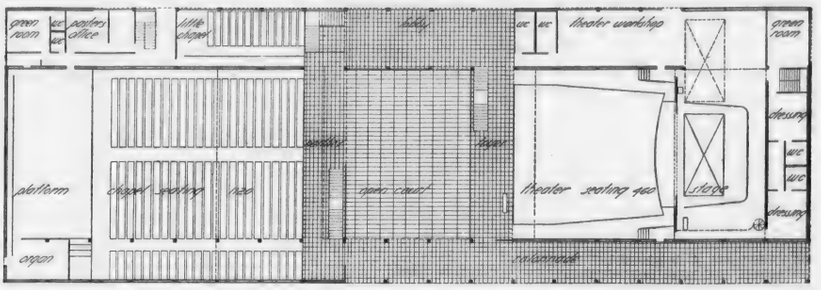
Howell, resolve to stop bleaching my hair, It's just high time that I faced the facts. I'M a brunette!

Resolution No. 7—We, housemothers-in-general, will not cough, sneeze, stamp our feet, or make any general disturbance directed to couples. We will also substitute 25 watt light bulbs for the 2,000 watt monstrosities we now have in all dorm parlors.

Resolution No. 8—We, boys-in-general, will neither look upon, touch, or light a firecracker. We will occassionally thrill some girls by asking them out on Town Nights, and will discontinue the singing of out-of-date melodies such as "Grandma's Lye Soap" and "Gentleman Dapper."

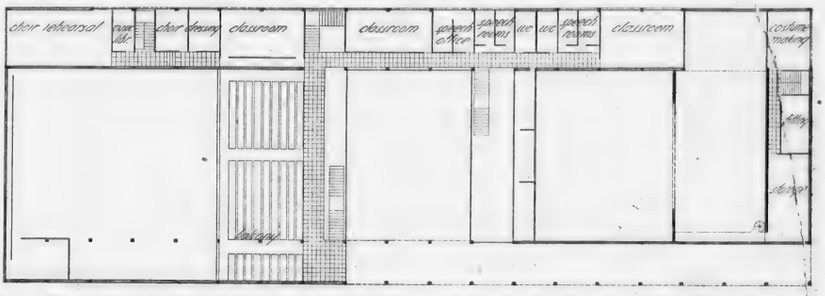
Resolution No. 9—We, girls-in-general, will finish long overdue argyle socks, accept only one date at a time, (and at other times pray for just one), and be very sure to finish those argyle socks!

Resolution No. 10—I, your reporter, resolve to stop writing things between the lines and attempt news stories on the salt mines in Siberia. No more cracks, no more comments, no more nothin' . . . . . but who keeps resolutions?!!



Editor Emert Heads YMCA Sunday Program

YMCA program for Sunday will consist of Clyde B. Emert speaking on "Problems Confronting Europe."



Mr. Emert is editor and publisher of the Maryville-Alcoa Daily Times. Last spring he was among a group of newspaper editors who toured Europe. His talk will be founded on much of what he observed while on that tour. Covered will be such things as the workings, results, and effects of the Marshall Plan in Europe.

Bartlett Hall is meeting place and time is 1:30 p.m. All men are urged to attend.

Wilson Chapel Floor Plans

First Floor—Shown above is the floor plan of the first level of the proposed new Samuel Wilson Chapel. Seating capacity in the main chapel will total 1,120 with a 460-seating capacity in the theater auditorium and 100 seating capacity in the little chapel adjacent to the main chapel. An open court in the center separates the main auditorium and the theater. The front entrance to the building will be centered in line with the extended sidewalk from the College Book Store to the front of the former Voorhees Chapel.

Second Floor—This is the plan of the second floor level of the new chapel. Seating plan shown is the balcony, which will have a seating capacity of 315. There is no seating balcony in the theater auditorium, but there will be rear gallery rooms for stage light control and for projection, film storage, and rewinding. The center court will have no roof. Not indicated on the drawing is a stage house, 60 by 30 feet in size for overhead handling of scenery. It will be above the theater stage floor.

Silliman U. Head Visits Maryville

Leopoldo Ruiz, newly elected president of Silliman University in the Philippines, visited Maryville campus on Thursday, January 22, to study the administration of the college before taking over his new duties.

Mr. Ruiz is the first native Filipino to serve as president of Silliman, a Christian college of about 3,500 enrollment. He served formerly as Consul General from the Philippines in Chicago, Ill. He was elected president by the board of directors of Silliman and will take over his duties in about a month.

YW Plans 'World' Prog.

YWCA will meet Sunday afternoon in the Fine Arts Center at 1:30 p.m. The program is entitled, "What Makes the World Go 'Round," but the actual content of the program is being kept a secret.

All women students and faculty members are urged to attend.

Bryan Ernst To Speak At Student Vols Sunday

A new transfer junior, Bryan Ernst, is going to give some interesting details about his native country, Ceylon, at Student Vols Sunday night, January 24.

All are urged to come to Vols for an enlightening and different program.

Glee Clubs Plan 'Mikado' Operetta

Musical Set For April 23, 24

By Betty Ham

"The Mikado," an operetta by Gilbert and Sullivan, will be presented April 23 and 24 by the combined Girls' Choir and Men's Glee Club.

Scene Set In Garden

The scene of "The Mikado" is set in the Japanese garden of the Lord High Executioner. The plot is entirely complicated and very intriguing. The scenery is simple, but the costuming is very elaborate.

The operetta is typically Japanese with characteristic mincing steps, bowing and scraping, and folded hands.

Well-Known Score

The score of "The Mikado" will doubtless be familiar to all. It includes such songs as "A Wandering Minstrel, I," a tenor solo; "Hail the Lord High Executioner;" "Let the Punishment Fit the Crime;" "The Flowers That Bloom in the Spring, Tra-la;" and "Tit-Willow."

Two Casts

Two casts will be used on the consecutive nights, and will be announced later. The accompaniment will be furnished by two pianos.

The operetta, often considered to be Gilbert and Sullivan's best, promises to be very entertaining. It will be in the Alumni Gymnasium.

Sigs To Choose Sweetheart of '53

Next Saturday, February 14, an evening's festivities will be capped by the recognition of the Sweetheart and four Cupids of the Alpha Sigma Society.

Alumni Gymnasium will be the site of the affair at or about 8 p.m. Preparations are being made now for the occasion.

The program will in the main consist of music. The Sweetheart and her four Cupids will be escorted by the president of the society; John Glanville, vice-president; Harry McCall, secretary; Bill Davis, treasurer; and Ken Wilkinson, program chairman.

The highly-touted annual selection of the Sweetheart and Cupids by Alpha Sigma members has customarily been on or as near to as possible, St. Valentine's Day. Doubtless grateful for such an ideal date, all members in the know about the program promise a bigger and better celebration than ever.

CHILHOWEAN STAFF FINISHES YEARBOOK

The Chilhowean has been finished and sent to the printers, according to Editor Elwood. The staff hopes to release the book around April 1. They have worked hard and hope the book will be well-received.

Until all outstanding bills are paid the Chilhowean cannot be released. The payment of these would be appreciated as soon as possible.

IRC Plans For Social; LaRue Sells Magazines

The IRC met Thursday evening, February 5 in Thaw Hall for a short business meeting. They are planning a social to be held on February 19.

Charles LaRue is still taking orders for the Time and Life Magazines for those who want to subscribe.

All members who plan to attend the supper social to be held on February 19 should see Ken Rutherford. Secretary Evelyn Fields and Catherine Snedecker are in charge of food preparation. Charlie LaRue is in charge of entertainment for the night.

Morgan Reveals History Of Life

Meetings Leader Gives Interview

By Emily Smith

Dr. Howard Moody Morgan gives quite a proper impression of dignity with his slight British accent and neat white hair contrasting with the friendly eyes shining below heavy black eyebrows. He is distinguished throughout. A conversation has limitless possibilities for subject matter. His background of experience helps to make this possible.

Childhood In England

Dr. Morgan was born in the United States but grew up in England. He attended Douglas College, Cheltenham, England, and studied at Biblical Seminary in New York. His theological studies were completed under the direct supervision of his father, G. Campbell Morgan, who is known as a Bible scholar and teacher. Centre College presented him his honorary D.D.

Dr. Morgan has served at the churches of Albion and Auburn, Ind., the University Presbyterian Church, Lexington, Ky., and was at the Tabernacle Church in Philadelphia for eighteen years. He has been at the Chambers-Wylie Memorial Presbyterian Church for two years. His church permits him to spend his summers in England, where he preaches in various churches, one notable one being the College Road Baptist Church at Harrow.

Family Of Seven

Dr. Morgan comes from a family of seven. His father wrote as many as eighty books on the Bible while serving the Westminster Congregational Church in London and traveling over all of the United States except Texas. Dr. Morgan speaks of his mother lovingly—"she kept the home, and did it perfectly."

It was at Winona Lake, Ind., where the Morgan family moved after the close of the first World War, that young Morgan met his future wife, then Margaret Lyon. She is the daughter of Dr. M. H. Lyno, now of Denver, Col.

Family Of Five

The Morgans have five children. Patricia, the oldest, is married to a U. S. Army officer now in Austria. Richard is a married senior at Union Theological Seminary, Richmond, Va. Mary Ann is a nurse at Bethesda, Md., Howard is a high school senior and plans to enter the ministry, John is eleven and does all the things that

Arda S. Walker Authors Historical Review Article

"John Henry Eaton, Apostate," appearing in the current edition of "East Tennessee Historical Society's Publication," was written by Arda S. Walker, assistant professor of history.

Eaton, a former senator from Tennessee under Jackson's administration also served as his campaign manager in 1824. The article traces these years from the senate to Jackson's cabinet, to governor, and finally to his ambassadorship to Spain.

Switched Support

He abruptly switched his support to the Whig party during Van Buren's campaign which earned him the political hatred of his long time friend, Andrew Jackson. His biography provides a study of the party change taking place in this period about 1840.

Miss Walker's other publications include two papers published by the U.S. Department of Agriculture. A Maryville graduate, she has been a member of the faculty since 1948.

Zeta Chapter Plans Bainonian Program

Last week the Bainonian program was in charge of Carol Ann Doll of the Mu Chapter. They presented a baby show. The youngsters, a group of second graders, sang, danced, and gave readings for their audience.

This week the Zeta Chapter is in charge of the program. They are planning a take-off on MacBeth.

New Student Bryan Ernst Gives Background Of Life In Ceylon

By Betty Ham

The most interesting thing I have done lately is talk to Bryan Ernst, our student from Ceylon. I came away from the interview amazed at the amount of information that Bryan has at his fingertips about his country and made me realize just how little I know about mine.

Ceylon is an island off the coast of India with an area of 26,000 square miles and a population of 7½ million. The main agricultural product is rice, the staple food of the Ceylonese.

Short of Food

The country used to be self sufficient in its food supply but now looks to Italy, India, the Middle East, and Communist China. It is ironic that the bulk of their rice supply comes from China, since the feeling toward communism is anything but cordial. Other industries are tea, rubber, and cocoanut.

The Government

The Ceylonese government is based on the Parliamentary system and is an independent democratic dominion of Great Britain, and part of the British Commonwealth. Ceylon controls its own affairs and is completely independent, having a prime minister and a cabinet. The Ceylonese nominally recognize the Queen of England.

Bryan also mentioned that there are four racial groups in Ceylon: the Sinhalese, who are the original Buddhist natives from India; the Tamils, the more recent Hindu settlers from India; the Moors, Moslems from Arabia; and the Burgers, fair complexioned descendants of Europeans who are mostly Christians.

Work Of Churches

The Buddhist religion comprises 65% of the population compared to the Christian 5 to 10%. Bryan

Council Changes Town Night To Thursday

Most important of the items brought up in the Student Council meeting last Wednesday was the postponement of Town Night from Tuesday to Thursday of next week. This arrangement was made to avoid conflict between Town Night and the evening service of February Meetings. However, Thursday prayer meeting will still be held at 9:30 p.m.

Other topics of discussion at the meeting were the request made to the College Hill Grill to remain open longer on Tuesday nights, an invitation to a member of Maryville College to help judge a contest at Tusculum College, and the proposal of a campus-wide observance of the World Day of Prayer.

"Not Worth It"

In answer to the request made to the College Hill Grill by the Student Council, the proprietor has announced that the lack of patronage from students on Tuesday nights would not make it worth his while to keep the Grill open later than the usual 8 p.m.

The question of a campus-wide observance of the World Day of Prayer is to be brought up in the next meeting of the Faculty Senate. One of the proposed means of observance suggested is by a one-minute period of silence over all the campus some time during the day.

Spenser Elected

During the meeting Jay Spenser was elected as representative to the Student Faculty Senate in the place of Mary Ann Hicks who graduated last December. Trudy Furman was also introduced as Senior representative to the Student Council in Miss Hick's place.

The Student Council will not meet next week.

Hope Fund Drive Lags Behind

This year the Fred Hope Fund is sending its funds to one of MC's alumnae, Dr. Dorothy Ferris '28, to be used at the Frances Newton Hospital at Ferozepore, India, which institution she heads. She reports 25% more in-patients than hospital beds every day.

Last year the Fred Hope Fund pledges amounted to $1388; in 1951 students and faculty of Maryville College pledged $1890 to the Fund; and in 1950 the total was $1872. To date the Fred Hope Fund there is exactly $1000 pledged.

Pledges

If you have not yet made a pledge, you may do so at the Fred Hope Fund Table in Anderson Hall on Tuesday, February 10, Wednesday, February 11 and Thursday, February 12. At any other time suiting your convenience, pledges and payments may be made at Mrs. K. P. Johnson's office in the Office Annex.

Mrs. K. P. Johnson, director of the fund drive, said, "Most of us will never see India, nor will we work directly with her people, but all of us can see India indirectly through our reading and study, and can help her people through our gifts of money. India needs our help, won't you pledge now?"

Echo Reporter Smith Employed By Times

Morgan Continues February Meetings

Dr. Lloyd Tells Of Recent Trip

RALPH WALDO LLOYD

Prexy Visits Europe, East

Dr. Ralph W. Lloyd has an interesting story to tell of his recent trip to Europe and the Far East, but he is wondering if he had been one day later on his return trip if he would have been able to tell the tale! He left London last Friday at 7 p.m. less than 24 hours before the devastating storm hit. When he heard news of the storm which broke Saturday morning after he had landed safely in New York, he did not recall that there had been any warning from the British weather bureaus.

As a member of the Central Committee of the World Council of Churches, Dr. Lloyd attended a meeting of the Committee in January in Lucknow, India, attended by 75 persons representing 25 countries. Before returning to the United States he also attended a meeting of the Eastern Executive Committee of the World Presbyterian Alliance of which he is the American secretary, in Geneva, Switzerland.

At the first of the two meetings, held in Lucknow, India, Dr. Lloyd said the business was centered in a review of the work of the World Council of Churches; the present status of Christianity in Asia; and making plans for the next assembly of the World Council to be held at Northwestern University, Evanston, Ill., in August of 1954.

"The World Council of Churches," said Dr. Lloyd, "is composed of 155 church bodies in 47 countries with approximately 225,000,000 communicate members. The theme for the 1954 Assembly will be 'Christ the Hope of the World,' chosen on the conviction that the greatest need in the world today is to find a basis for hope."

Plans for the next meeting of the World Presbyterian Alliance, to be held in Princeton, N. J., just prior to the World Council meeting in 1954, were also the topic for discussion at the meeting in Geneva. Dr. Lloyd serves as chairman of the committee to plan the program for this meeting.

Upon departing from New York Dec. 20, Dr. Lloyd traveled by Pan American Airways to Beirut, Lebanon, stopping briefly in Paris and Rome. While in Beirut he went to Nabatiyeh, a distance of 40 miles, and visited with Miss Lois Wilson, former Maryvillian and daughter of the late College president, Dr.

Exper. Theater To Present 'Rumpelstiltskin'

Experimental Theater will present two performances of the play "Rumpelstiltskin" on Friday, February 13, under the direction of Miss Kathleen Craven.

The leading roles are as follows: Warwick as portrayed by Jim Shields, speech major from Maryville; Winifred by Abigail Crosby, English major from Columbia City, Ind.; Rumpelstiltskin by Bruce Heuser, drama major from St. Louis, Mo.; and the councilor by Arthur Fryer, English major from Bridgeville, Pa.

Other Parts

Other parts will be taken by Garnetta Alexander as Lady Maria Llopotimus, Sandra Motzinger as Lady Alicia Van Spitz, Edna Stout as Miss Cecelia Dubose, and Don Thiel as the miller.

Ken Rutherford and Forrest Amidon as the messengers, Alice Draving and Sara Min Davis as pages.

The play was written last year by one of the freshman English classes under the supervision of Miss Carolyn Blair. Working committees consist of: Annie Bucher—tickets, Dave Gates—scenery, Ann Buckley—costumes, George Caldwell—publicity, Jo Ann Brooks—make up, and Dean Allison—stage manager.

Theta Meeting

Theta Epsilon will meet tonight at 6:45 p.m. in Theta Hall.

The members will be entertained at a program sponsored by various members of the Alpha Sigma Society.

Dr. Barraclough Arrives Sunday

By Abby Crosby

The 77th series of the February Meetings opened Wednesday, February 4, at 9:45 a.m. in the Alumni Gymnasium. Dr. Howard Moody Morgan, pastor of the Chambers-Wylie Memorial Presbyterian Church of downtown Philadelphia, Pa., returned for the fourth time to lead the college in this week of religious emphasis. He has led these meetings in 1937, 1941, and 1949.

Assistants

Dr. Morgan will be assisted in these meetings by Dr. Sidney E. Stringham, song leader, who is known to most Maryville students and faculty, as he is returning for his thirtieth year of leading. Dr. Stringham is pastor of the First Methodist Church of Kennett, Mo. Formerly he was of the Cabanne Methodist Church of St. Louis.

Barraclough Coming

Arriving Sunday, February 8, will be Dr. Henry Barraclough who will be the guest accompanist for the rest of the Meetings. Dr. Barraclough is of Philadelphia, and was choirmaster of the Tioga Presbyterian Church, Philadelphia, for 16 years. He is the writer of various hymns and anthems, among them being the well known "Ivory Palaces."

No Particular Theme

Dr. Morgan has chosen no one theme to run throughout the course of his services. The evening services, held at the First Christian Church of Maryville each night at 7:10, will have, however, a general theme. Although Dr. Morgan was still undecided at the time of the interview, he said his talks would propably concern the answers Christ would give to questions of people today.

Educated In England

Dr. Morgan received his preministerial training at Douglas College in Cheltenham, England, and his theological training at the Biblican Seminary of New York. He adds that he studied further for the Christian ministry under the direct supervision of his father, Dr. G. Campbell Morgan of London. Each summer for many years he has returned to Great Britain to conduct services there.

Remembers Old Chapel

In parting, Dr. Morgan said, "In remembering the old chapel and the important and helpful role it played in campus activities, I rejoice in and am quite happy about the plans for the new Chapel, as I know that it, too, will play as important a role and will be a wonderful addition to college life."

INTER-CLUB CO'NCIL WORK ON CONST.

Judy Johnson read sections of the proposed constitution for the Inter-Club Council at its past meeting on January 27 in Anderson conference room.

Club members decided to continue work on the constitution.

Clubs represented at the meeting were IRC, Student Vols, Alpha Sigma, FTA, Theta, Bainonian, French, Spanish, and B.G.

Purpose of Inter-Club Council is to give a representative voice in Student Council for all campus clubs. Bob Navratil is president of Inter-Club Council.

French Club Plans Music

French Club will meet Thursday night at 6:45 p.m. in Miss Wilkinson's classroom in Anderson.

The program will feature music of French composers, according to Jeannine Fiori and Ginny Smith, program chairmen.

'Brick' Brahams, Robert Fuller Donate Books To College Library

By Don Thorn

Raymond I. ("Brick") Brahams has presented the Maryville College Library with approximately $50 worth of history books. "Brick", as he was known to all his friends, graduated from the Hill in the class of '49. He sent the money to the library requesting that the books be purchased.

Collection of Fourteen

Fourteen books in all were purchased and they are mostly in the line of History. Many of them are written by well-known authors. (Attention all you history students that have outside reading to do.)

List Of Books And Authors

The fourteen books and their respective authors are as follows: "Idea of History", by Collingwood; "The American Approach To Foreign Policy", by Perkins; "Henry Adams", by Jordy; "The American Record in the Far East", by Latourette; "History And Human Relations", by Butterfield; "Crisis In Freedom", by Miller;

More Books

"This Happened In Pasadena" by Hulbund; "Cult and Culture", by Vogt; "Rag Tag and Bobtail", by Montrose; "The Big Change", by Allen; "Across the Wide Missouri", by De Voto; "Freedom is the Right To Choose", by McLeish; "The Course of Empire", by De Voto"; and "Great Frontier", by Webb. This collection of books has greatly added to the history section of the library.

Fuller Donor Also

Bob Fuller, class of '52, donated several physics books to the library.

Fuller's books are College "Physics", by Weber; "Fundamentals of Optics", by Jenkins, and "Principles of Electricity".

Fuller was a physics major in college and is now studying for his Master of Science degree at Penn University.

Which Level Is Yours?

During these days of February Meetings as we direct more attention to spiritual matters and attempt to re-evaluate and integrate our Christian beliefs, it is appropriate to examine the maturity of our Christian concepts. H. N. Wieman sets forth four psychological levels upon which the formulation of a working philosophy of religion may take place. Which level do you fall in?

"First, the process may halt when the first system of habits and ideals, over-strongly charged with social influence, is fairly well established. There is no experimental living to speak of. The outcome is a conformitive, or orthodox, working philosophy of religion. It is composed of stereotypes. It preserves rather than creates. There are certain conditions which encourage the individual to remain on this low plateau. He may feel contented because of the protection which is accorded conformers. He may have developed fears of consequences threatened against those who reject a blind faith. He may love or revere the authority of the religious group, or the parent, or the teacher, who has influenced his development, and so may resist breaking accord with this one or hurting him. He may be anticipating the fulfillment of promises which a particular belief assures. In any case, his faith is strong, but blind, it is formulated by some authority. He does not seek to validate it by available, objective means.

"Second, the process may halt as soon as experimental living has developed a total plan of life that seems to work fairly well in his particular situation. Th individual has been forced to do some thinking and some evaluating. He is no longer willing to accept unvalidated stereotypes which strain his credulity. Yet his goal is not progressive. He wants to find a philosophy which makes his world seem reasonably all right and orderly and meaningful. So his philosophy develops as the outcome of such experiences as he happens to have, and with only such criticism and evaluation as the exigencies of his living demand. It is an adventitious philosophy.

"Third, the individual may continue with the experimental living, keeping very alert and appreciative, and constantly evaluating. He may discover many high values, perhaps some beyond the ken of most of his fellow men. He may not be able to explain the workings of all the values which he finds, but he feels that this is only a temporary human limitation. For he believes that there is nothing beyond his cultural perspective. His philosophy is culture-bound. He does not knowingly accept any facts, nor stereotypes, nor does he build into his system of ideas any concepts, which have not been tested and validated. He is canny, well-informed, constructive, full of interests. He has scaled the heights of the culture of his day in so far as one man can. He is pscychologically conditioned against beliefs in any thing that the culture of his time ignores or repudiates.

"The fourth area wherein a working philosophy of religion may be developed has already been suggsted. It is a Reality-centered point of view and and attitude. The individual, here, cannot know beyond the limits of the knowledge of his culture; but he can realize vividly and stirringly that there is more to know, and that there may be new ways of going about the building of knowledge. His knowledge is bound by his culture, but the exploration and creativeness of his imagination are not. He is not tradition-bound as is he with the conformative philosophy. He is not ego-bound as is he with the adventitious philosophy. He is not culture-bound as is he who builds on the third plateau. He has a mystical quality in his living and outreaching. He holds himself ready for the greater which may emerge. He holds his system of concepts tentatively, ready to re-test and reshape when greater meaning comes. He will progressively integrate his living in the light of the findings.

"He participates actively in the actual living processes which go to make up the realities of the everyday; but he seeks to discern in and through these, those significant meanings which are pointers toward the wider Reality. He has vivid sense of the unfinished and fragmentary nature of what his particular culture can reveal of the Supremely Worthy."

Scots & Soda

By Joe Gilliland

In case the newer freshmen were beginning to doubt it, this college definitely does have a President. Dr. Lloyd came sliding in to Morningside late Saturday night, pushing the 10:15 limit to the breaking point.

We were told that our President was observed standing around the hole in the ground (the chapel to-be) making voluminous notes so that he could make his Tuesday morning progress report.

What Did You Say?

Last week at Men's Glee Club, Miss Sellick really got the new semester off right. Everyone had been warming up by singing scales on "O" and "ah". Without any explanation of what she meant, Miss Sellick announced, "If you aren't warmed up yet, try 'me'." The only trouble is, she didn't put in any quotation marks.

"Hier an der Bergeshalde. . ."

For the benefit of everyone taking German 102, those poems you have to learn now both fit the tune of "The Wabash Cannonball." If you aren't acquainted with this classic of the hillbilly juke box, just see any Tennessean.

History Notes

Sheila Sutton was very doubtful about the effectiveness of the Enclosure Movement in England. She asked Miss Walker how the hedges ever kept out the animals, "Oh you don't know those English hedges," Miss Walker assured Sheila. "Yes, but you don't know our North Carolina animals," was Miss Sutton's smug reply. Everyone then took a good look at the young lady so that they would know a North Carolina animal if they ever had the misfortune to meet one.

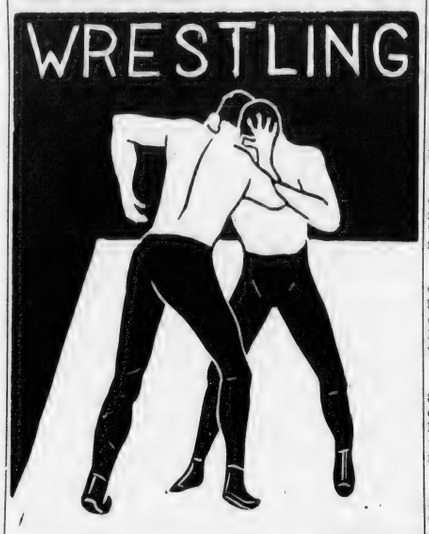
Down at the end of the hall, Dr. Queener informed his students that the American Revolutionary Army turned and began to fight in Pennsylvania because tthey would rather die fighting the British than in a Pennsylvania Winter.

We Found Out

In answer to Mr. Brooks' question in the last column, the new building between campus and town is a clinic.

Another Plague!

The flu recently struck on the campus, and as a result the MC English division was honored to have Prof. Jack Durant as guest professor in the Shakespeare department. Both teacher and students seem to have live through it.



Grades

We must have had a slump semester last fall. This week the honor roll was supposed to have been printed in this sheet. For some reason, the Personnel Office failed to cough up the list. Did anyone make it?

Vacation Stories

Shirland Roussey allegedly met some East Tennessee State students last summer who were under the impression that Maryville was a Catholic girls' school. Her action, "Gee, I've been deceived all along!"

TALK OF THE WEEK

Voices, Masks, and Shadows

By Don Layton

The readers of this quaint (at least, the title is!) column may find it very uninteresting after the unusual display of eloquence a fortnight ago, but such is life and this column cannot escape the pattern.

ON THE SCREEN

Maryvillians taking time out for the cinema next week will find an interesting assortment of comedy, adventure, and intrigue. Park viewers will watch "The Smugglers" on Monday. Tuesday and Wednesday "The Big Sky" makes its second appearance to town. This film, an adaptation of the A. B. Guthrie novel, has a great deal more to offer than the average run-of-the-mill Western. Stars include Kirk Douglas and Dewey Martin.

"The Crimson Pirate" enters the scene on Thursday and Friday. The pirate is no other than Burt Lancaster. As the pirate chief Lancaster finds himself mixed up in a South American revolution, much to the disgust of his bloodthirsty crew. Naturally it is all for the love of a woman.

Town night goers at the Capitol, and those who go the night before and afterward, will find a familiar combination showing. In fact these two were the top attendance drawers of 1952. It's none other than the pair of "Jumping Jacks" fame, Dean Marfin and Jerry Lewis, who will return for "The Stooge."

As is usual with these two, there will be little plot, but the antics will no doubt put the audience in a weakened state. In the show Martin thinks he is a very good comedy star and as for his partner, needless to say he is the stooge.

ON THE SHELF

To the literary fan interested in a change from fiction THE GREAT ESCAPE written by Paul Brickhill should be entertaining. THE GREAT ESCAPE is the dramatic story of some 600 American and British air force officers who worked for a year to prepare to escape.

Over four hundred passes and documents were forged, hundreds of compasses were made, thousands of maps prepared, and even tunnels were dug to make the escape from the German concentration camp complete. Drawings and illustrations enhance the grim of the narration. Truly this book, out since 1950, is one of the most astounding episodes of the war. It is fabulously exciting, made more so by the fact that it is true!

A certain book is now available at the Book Store. It is the book with all the facts, 1953 World Almanac.

ON THE STAGE

Leading talent of the freshman class was presented at an all-Frosh student recital Tuesday. Featured were: Elaine Sipple and Mary Nichol, sopranos; Richard Morse, baritone; Myrna Ginaven, Eugene Jenkins, and Maryel Vogel at the keyboard; and John Graulich, violinist.

And speaking of freshmen the big Frosh talent show, slated for March 7, is beginning to take form. The title is aptly enough, "The Green Year." It was written and will be directed by Annie Bucher. In the form of a light musical comedy the play has its setting on the Maryville campus.

COLLEGE HILL BEAUTY SALON

Season's Second Triple Header Scheduled Tonight

Maryville College will play its second triple-header of the season tonight when the B Team meets Friendsville High School in a game beginning at six, following which at 7:15, the varsity will take on the UT B Team, and at 8:30 the wrestling team will return home to take on Emory University from Atlanta.

Varsity

For the Highland Cagers it will be their second meeting of the year with the Baby Vols. The first game was played at UT where the Scotties won 62-50. Since the Scotties always play a better game on their home court, the fans can hope for a Scottie victory. In the first game, Dick Abbot led the Highlanders with 14 points, followed by Jack Keny with 13. Big man for the Baby Vols was their center, Bill Spoone, who also totaled 14 for the evening.

The Finale

In the last event of the evening, the wrestling team will take on an exceptionally fine team from Emory University, at least traditionally so. The Scotties will be trying to avenge a defeat administered last year at Emory, when the Highlanders went down to defeat to the tune of 22-8. The Scotties will try to get back on the winning path after losing to Vandy, who incidentally, lost to Maryville's later opponent, Auburn, 35-0.

B TEAM SPLITS FOUR GAMES

Going into tonight's contest, the Scottie B team has won 8 of its 11 games. Led by "Shakespeare" Partee, who has scored 98 points so far, the Scots have scored an average of 57 points per game, while their opponents have scored an average of 53 points.

Not So Good

Since last issue went to press the Scots have split even by winning two games and dropping two. They took close contests from the Snowbirds and Johnson Bible College. The two losses were at the hands of Maryville High and Everett High.

In a nip-and-tuck battle the Scots defeated the Snowbirds 46-42 in overtime. The Scots, behind 11-12 at the end of the first period, took advantage of a scoring lapse on the part of the Snowbirds and gradually took the lead. The half time score was 21-28 in favor of the Scots. In the third quarter the Scots hung on to their lead and led at the three-quarter mark 31-28. In the fourth quarter the lead changed hands several times and just when it seemed as if the Scots had built up a comfortable lead with two minutes left, the Snowbirds rallied and tied the score at 40 apiece. In the overtime the Scots scored six points and took the game 46 to 42. The leading scorers were Lynn Sexton of the Scots with 19 points and John Anderson of the Snowbirds with 14 points.

Red Rebels Romp

In another low scoring contest the Maryville High Rebels edged by the Scots, 44 to 41 on January 26. Although the Scotties were leading at the end of the first quarter 10-7, the Rebels tied the score and pulled ahead during the second quarter to lad 27-23 at the half. Even though the Scots out scored the Rebels in the third quarter, the Rebels still kept in the lead and were ahead 26-23 at the end of the quarter. The leading scorers were Lynn Sexton of the Scots with 14 points, and Lambert of the Rebels with 13.

Bulldogs Bark

In their next game the Scots faced the Everett High Bulldogs, the leading high school team in the Blount area, and took a 65-43 beating. At the end of the first quarter the Scots led 18-15. In the second quarter the Scottie failed to hit the basket with any regularity and the Bulldogs were able to take a halftime lead 27-26. In the third quarter the Bulldogs widened their lead to 5 points and led at the end of that quarter 43-38. In the final quarter the Bulldogs poured it on and won the game 65-43. The top scorers were Everett's Hicks with 18 points and Webb with 13. Jim Saunders with 11 and Pat Flynn with 10 led the Scottie scorers.

Turnabout

In Tuesday's contest the Scots defeated Johnson Bible College 59 to 57. Johnson had soundly defeated the Scots 75-64 in the previous meeting this season. The Scots were ahead 17-16 at the end of the first quarter. At half time the score was tied at 30 each. In the third quarter the Scots took the lead and led 47-42 at the end of the third period. As the game neared its close the Scots had what was regarded as a commanding lead but the "Bible" team put on a strong rally failing to overtake the Scots. The leading scorers were Johnson's McNeil with 18 and the Scottie's Partee with 17.

Tennis Schedule

Coach K. P. Johnson this week announced the tennis schedule for the 1953 season. It is the most ambitious one of the past few years for the tennis team, including eleven matches, and a trip to Memphis for the Memphis State Tournament on the 7th, 8th and 9th of May. Having lost only Clyde McCampbell, last year's number one man, Coach Johnson hopes to build up his usually powerful team from such lettermen as John Anderson, Kent Buser, Ed Breitbach, Marshall England, and Dick Lebold.

Hoopsters Win Two Over TWC And C-N Drop Three To E-H, Milligan Twice

Scots Nip Carson-Newman Rivals

Led by Jack Keny and Dick Abbott, the Scotties came out on top in one of their best games of the season. A near-record crowd yelled, screamed, and cheered the Highlanders on to a 78-70 victory over their foes from Carson-Newman.

A. C. Williams, who rang up the hoop for 14 points, played his usual brilliant floor game, helped along by Bob Shelton, Tom Campbell, and Jim Wiley. Bob DeLozier, a "jack-in-the-box" surprise, seemed to be the most improved player on the floor with some good ball-handling and shooting. Quick passes to big Jack Keny, who also played one of his best games before the home fans, proved to be a big asset in the victory.

For The Eagles

Bill Hawkins and Trudley Carr seemed to be the big "gunners" for the Eagles with 19 and 13 points respectively. Carr, the Eagle's rugged end in football, proved quite an asset on rebounds and some fancy hook shots.

Always Ahead

Maryville took the lead right off the bat, and kept it by a bare margin throughout the game. The Eagles threatened esveral times, but alert ball-handling kept the Scotties ahead until the finish. Leading at the half, 33-31, the Scots kept it nip-and-tuck right to the final whistle. There was never a difference of over ten points through the game.

Milligan By A Nose

Tension could have been cut with a knife until highly-regarded Milligan eased by the Scots in the last thirty seconds last Tuesday night to give the stands a disappointing but highly thrilling game. This was the second time that the Scots had lost to Milligan by only a few ponits.

Dead-Eye

Phil Roush was the big gun for Milligan with 19 points. The Big guard amazed everyone with his "dead-eye" on set shots. Dickey and Burgett, two flashy forwards dropped in 17 and 15 points respectively.

For The Scotties

Reliable "Rabbitt" Abbott was high for the Scots with 21. Big Jack Keny played one of his finest games and threw in 13 before he fouled out in the last minute of the game. That could have made the difference. Bob Shelton and A. C. McWilliams put up a great fight with 13 and 14 points. Jim Wiley had a hot and cold time, finally ending up with seven.

Toss-Up

The game was a toss-up all the way with neither team able to pile up a lead. The Highlanders lost a number of golden opportunities on poor ball-handling, but stayed in the game with some nifty fast breaks and stolen balls. The last two minutes were full of surprise, spectacle, and terrific tension as Milligan finally went ahead to stay. It looked like an overtime game until Milligan slipped in a few crip shots.

Three Up, Two Down

In the feature basketball game of a triple-header two weeks ago tonight the Scotties downed the high-flying Tennessee Wesleyan quinetet, 80-69. A return match is set for the TWC court on February 24.

Hot James

Substitute Jim Wiley came off the bench red-hot early in the game to lead the Scotties to their fifth victory of the season. Wiley collected seven field goals and six points from the foul line to give him twenty for the evening. Dick Abbott hit for sixteen and A. C. McWilliams sunk twelve.

Dave Kirk, forward, and Don Patrick, center, each had seventeen for the visitors.

Milligan

Milligan took a third period lead after a half-time tie and never relinquished it in beating the Scots, 86-74. The Scotties held a two point lead at the end of the first quarter.

Forward Jim Burgett hit the hoops for twenty-three points for the evenings high point honors. Sam Greer, opposite Burgett at the other forward post, hit for nineteen.

Scot High

Jack Keny was high for the Scotties with twenty-two, only one behind Burgett. It was the first time since early last December that Keny has been able to cross the twenty point total. Ace McWilliams hit his highest total of the year as he sunk seventeen.

E&H Game

Led by towering Phil Long the Emory & Henry Wasps stung the Scotties to a 78-70 defeat. Long, a forward, sunk twelve field goals in a brilliant display of accuracy and added six fouls for an evening's total of thirty points. Long has given the Scots plenty of trouble in years past. Last year he scored the last two points to give the Wasps a 69-68 win. He

League Champions Crowned

The Intramural Basketball season ground to a close this week with the champions being crowned in both leagues. In the A League pre-season calculation held up pretty well as the Snowbirds, after losing their first game came on to take the championship, finishing up with a 9-2 record for the season. In second place was the climbing Athenian team which checked in with a 7-4 record.

Statistics

And now for the yearly statistics on the Intramural season. Last year's leaders are still up at the top, although this year the league was in two sections, while last year it was all one. Last year John Anderson led the league in points scored, followed by Tim Bowman. This year Anderson repeated, leading the A League, while Bowman was way out in front in the B league.

For The A League

B League

Friday, the B League swung into action. The Local Yokels won over the Gooney Birds, 54-26. Red Harless led the scorers with 21, while Lynn Counts had 9 for the losers. In the second game, the Owls just did hold on to a lead to beat an inspired Alpha Sig team, 38-36. Bob Leech had 14 for the winners, matched by Doc Jennings for Alpha Sig. The Warriors won their first game of the season in the last game, beating a slipping Pre-Min team, 32-21. Clyde Young led the Warriors with 18, while Harry Robinson had 8 for the losers.

MC Wrestlers Split Three

Wrestlers Beat Chattanooga

Maryville College won its first home match by beating the University of Chattanooga, 18-12. Bill Morse, Buford Miller and Paul Merwin all earned pins.

New Face

Bob Vandergriff opened up for Maryville against Oscar Scruggs in the 123 pound class. This was Vandy's first match. He lost an 8-4 decision to a more experienced man, but showed a lot of fight. Vandy had a take down and a reverse. Scruggs scored on a take down, two reverses, and time advantage.

Canvas Backs

Bill Morse pinned his man in the second period. Buford Miller, who wrestled out of his class, did very well by pinning his man in the first period. Miller used the crotch and half nelson to tie up his man in 2:04. Kenny Shepard dropped a 7-4 verdict to the Moccassin's Bill Hodges.

Bugenhagen Ploughs

Tom Bugenhagen ploughed under Charles Farmer 8-0 in 157 pound group. Tom had a reverse, take down, near fall, and time advantage over his strong opponent. Paul Merwin then came through with a pin over Tom McGhee in 2:04 of the second period. This win put the Scotties ahead 18-6, so that the final two matches had no effect on the outcome of the meet.

Split Kipp

In the 177 bout, Mickey Myers decisioned Bob Buchanan. Tom Drake, who is going into professional wrestling upon graduation, gave George Kipp a fit in beating him 6-0.

Summary:

123: Scruggs (C) decisioned Vandergriff (M), 8-4.

130: Morse (M) pinned Merret (C).

137: Miller (M) pinned Guhne (C).

147: Hodges (C) decisioned Shepard (M), 7-4.

157: Bugenhagen (M) decisioned Farmer (C), 8-0.

167: Merwin (M) pinned McGee (C).

177: Myers (C) decisioned Buchanan (M), 6-1.

H'v't: Drake (C) decisioned Kipp (M), 6-0.

Matmen Tie M.T.S.

The Scotties tied Middle Tennessee State College, 15-15, on Friday, January 30, in the first of a two meet trip. Billy Nix's decision over George Kipp in the heavyweight match provided the necessary three points for the tie.

Same Old Story

Bill Morse started the night's proceedings by pinning Bill Porterfield in the second perido. Buford Miller then lost a close one to State's Glen Carson by virtue of riding time in a 130 pound bout. Each man had a point for an escape but Carson had superior time advantage.

Football ?

Ken Shepard of football fame then lost to G. P. Long in the 137 set-to, 6-1. Long had 2 takedowns and a near fall. Shepard's point came for an escape. Flash Harris, another footballer, lost to Lem Vaughn, 7-5, in a tight match.

The Tide Changes

Tom Bugenhagen, who looks good all the time, pinned John Fine half-way in the third period. Tom was way ahead on points at the time, leading 5-0. Paul Merwin then came from behind to pin State's Douglas McDonald with a little more than a minute left. Bob Buchanan was beaten in the 177 bout by John Nickens, 4-2. Each man had a take down with Nickens getting one point for an escape and one for tim e advantage.

Professional Stuff

George Kipp, who seems to draw all the hard ones, gave his huge opponent a scare but lost 3-2. George got his two points on penalties while Billy Nix had a reverse for two points and one point for riding time. The reverse came just before time ran out.

Vanderbilt University beat Maryville 22-8 on Saturday a week ago. The Scotties had wrestled Middle Tennessee State College th night before.

Surprise

Alternate captain Bill Morse didn't follow his usual pattern of pinning everyone in sight, but he picked up a 6-0 decision over the Commodore captain Paul Smothermana. Bill had a take down, reverse, and riding time. Buford Miller then ran into some bad luck as he got pinned by Dick Gross with 7 seconds left. Miller was ahead up to the time of the pin.

Bad News

Ken Shepard was pinned by Jim Harrington in the 137 bout. Jimmy Harris lost a 4-0 decision to Bill Day in the 147 set-to. Tom Bugenhagen suffered his first loss as he was decisioned by Bill Gibson, 6-0. Gigson had a take down, near fall and riding time. Paul Merwin was beaten by Bill Eleazor, 9-2. Bob Buchanan was also defeated.

Welcome Change

George Kipp pinned the Commodore's George Clark in the heavyweight class. Big George got his man in the third period.

Summary:

123. Morse (M) decisioned Smotherman (V), 6-0.

130: Gross (V) pinned Miller (M).

137: Harrington (V) pinned Shepard (M).

147: Day (V) decisioned Harris (M), 4-0.

BRYAN ERNST . . .

says that the Methodist, Episcopalian, and Baptist churches are doing quite a bit of missionary work while the other denominations seem to be generally smug and self-satisfied, and are not doing anything to spread Christianity.

I asked him why, then, was he a Presbyterian, and he answered that he was just born that way. This, in the light of our emphasis on the Fred Hope Fund, does not speak very well for the Presbyterian Church. Another interesting fact is that the Roman Catholics comprise about one half of the Christian population.

Bryan told me that the Judge of his Presbytery had decided to use him as a guinea pig in sending him to the United States to seminary instead of to India, as is usually done. He had had two years of college. Almost overnight his plans to attend the India seminary were changed when he received a letter of acceptance to Princeton Seminary.

Needs College Degree

After a year and a half at Princeton, his professors told him that he had to have a college degree before he could graduate from seminary. They looked around the nation for a good Presbyterian school, and chose Maryville for him. That is how he happened to come her. He is presently enrolled in the junior class as an English major.

Bryan said of his country's educational system that it is good. They have a large university that offers many educational opportunities, but recently a curb has been put on the university because of the lack of employment for college graduates, a big problem in Ceylon.

Sports Of Ceylon

The main sports of Ceylon are very much like those one would find in England. The boys play soccer and cricket. The basketball, or netball is left up to the girls because, Bryan said "of the old-fashioned idea that it is not very strenuous."

I asked Bryan how he happened to choose the ministry for his profession. "I have three reasons," he said, "the influence of my parents, the influence of my Christian high school, and lastly my life has been one of great blessings and miracles."

Influence Of God

It seems that as a boy, Bryan had a serious illness and during that time God showed him how he could be of service to the world and his country by being a minister. Other factors, in his decision were his choice of friends, and his study.

While in Ceylon Bryan held several clerical positions and taught school, disproving, he said, "the old adage that a rolling stone gathers no moss."

Prof. Howell To Address Pre-Meds Next Week

Pre-Meds will meet Thursday evening, February 12, at 6:45 p.m. in the Chemistry lecture room, as announced by Pre-Med president, Emerson Flurkey.

George D. Howell, Professor of Chemistry, will speak on the subject of "Preparing for Medical School."

Y Radio Gives 'One God'

"One God" will be the topic on Y Radio next Wednesday at 9:15 p.m. Its purpose is to show how Catholics, Jews, and Protestants worship one God in similar fashions, and to clarify the difference in their services and beliefs.

DR. LLOYD . . .

Samuel T. Wilson.

Miss Wilson, Dr. Lloyd said, is the principal of a girls' school at Nabatiyeh. She is a missionary under the Presbyterian Church, USA.

Dr. Lloyd boarded a plane of the Air Jordan Lines, traveling from Beirut to Jerusalem and to Bethlehem where he spent Christmas Eve. He attended an outdoor service at 7 p.m. Christmas Eve in the fields of the shepherds and walked the two miles back into Bethlehem where he attended the midnight Mass at the Church of the Nativity.

On Christmas day, Dr. Lloyd went back to Jerusalem where he visited the Mount of Olives, the Temple area and places associated with the death of Christ. Returning to Beirut, he traveled by a British Comet, a jet airliner, to Karachi, Pakistan. Almost a month was spent by the Maryville College president traveling in India and Pakistan, visiting Presbyterian churches and schools, both before and after the scheduled meeting of the World Council of Churches in Lucknow.

Four officials of India addressed the World Council — Nehru, the prime minister; the vice-president of India; the governor of the state in which Lucknow is located, Uttar Pradesh; and the chief minister of Uttar Pradesh.

Population of the state, Dr. Lloyd said, is 65,000,000.

He was particularly impressed with Nehru's talk, which lasted over an hour, and was made with no notes. Nehru talked only on international problems, Dr. Lloyd said.

It was Dr. Lloyd's first visit in India since the British pulled out of the country.

He said he was struck with the fact that the common people are not so sure of the success of their independence, since they still have low wages and scarcity of food and other necessities. However, he said, the Indian officials are very enthusiastic about their new independence which is reflected in the news dispatches and many other ways.

Dr. Lloyd stopped one day in Rome, four days in Geneva and three days in London enroute home. In the latter city he met with Presbyterian church leaders and also attended an interesting session in the House of where he heard a vigorous debate on a bill which had been introduced on Sunday observance.

YW Slates Brotherhood Program February 15

YWCA will not meet this Sunday due to the February Meetings.

It will meet the following week, February 15, however, and the program which is planned for that meeting is on "Brotherhood."

most boys that age do.

The entire family are sports fans. Dr. Morgan's particular interests are tennis and golf, but a busy schedule keeps him from indulging this a great deal. He likes music and confesses a preference for at least one popular song.

Maryville Sane

He is sincere in his liking for Maryville. He expresses the feeling that here there is a "saneness" not to be found on many campuses. In all its aspects Maryville is sensible.

When asked his opinion of February Meetings he replied that he thinks they definitely are good and of great value to the students. Most schools have lecture series—others have revival services. Ours is neither. It is a period of religious emphasis and gives many an opportunity to make a decision or to clarify thinking. There are instances in which a life-time decision has come to a person through the influence of the February Meetings. We go to chapel all year and become accustomed to it. Now is a chance to be renewed and revitalized.

The manner of presentation he feels is good, also. The services are informal enough to be warm-hearted and yet formal enough to be of real spiritual and intellectual value.

presently holds the highest average of any college player in the state of Virginia for this season.

Bunny Rabbit

Another Wasp Bunny Saltz got mad in the last quarter after having a fourth foul called on him and scored eleven markers, two more than Lon's fourth period display. Saltz totaled fourteen points for the evening.

The score was close all the way until the last quarter. The Scots had a two point margin after the first quarter but lost it early in the second. The first eight points for the Scots in the second half were on foul shots. Actually the game was lost to the Wasps in a flurry of bad passes by the Scotties throughout the game more than by superior playing on the part of the Wasps.

Hot Again

Jim Wiley, starting after his fine showing against Tennessee Wesleyan, dropped in twenty-two for the Scotties, ten of these field goals. Dick Abbott collected seventeen, but eleven came from the foul line. Bobby Shelton hit his season's high when he hit for fourteen.

Vesper Choir Plans 2400 Mile Itinerary

Tour To Cover Three States

By Carol Moore

Harry H. Harter, director, and Dr. F. A. Griffitts, business manager, announced this week that the Vesper Choir will sing in eight major cities this spring during a 2400 mile tour through three eastern states.

Approximately forty-two members of the sixty voice group will be chosen to make the trip which is scheduled from Friday, April 17, to Wednesday, April 29.

Schedule

The concert schedule is as follows:

Philadelphia, Pa., Sunday, April 19, at Covenant Presbyterian; Latrobe, Pa., Monday, April 20, at First Presbyterian; Erie, Pa., Tuesday, April 21, Church of Covenant; Cleveland, Ohio, Wednesday, April 22, North Presbyterian; Titusville, Ohio, Thursday, April 23, First Presbyterian; Dayton, Ohio, Friday, April 24, Fairmont, Presbyterian;

Wheeling, W. Va., Sunday, April 25, Stone Presbyterian; St. Clairesville, W. Va., Sunday, April 26, First Presbyterian; Pittsburgh, Pa., Sunday, April 26, First Presbyterian;

Washington, Pa., Sunday, April 26, Second Presbyterian; Columbus, Ohio, Monday, April 27, Central Presbyterian; Cincinnati, Ohio, Tuesday, April 28, Mount Auburn Presbyterian.

Pre-Tour Concerts

Pre-tour concerts have been scheduled for March 29, Palm Sunday, in Oak Ridge and Knoxville.

In 1951 the choir toured the northeastern states and in 1952 the group sang throughout the Chicago area.

Editor Emert To Speak To Echo Staff Monday

Clyde B. Emert, editor and publisher of the Maryville-Alcoa Daily Times, will speak to the Echo staff Monday, February 23, at 8 p.m. in the Y Rooms.

Editor Holland reminds all members to be there at 7:30 p.m. in time for regular Echo business.

After Mr. Emert's speech, refreshments and dancing will follow. All staff members who plan to attend should see Carol Moore, who is in charge of refreshments and entertainment.

Cost is $.25 per member, or $.35 per couple. Each staff member is allowed to bring one guest.

'Mikado' To Star Mr. Floyd Eaddy

By Joe Gilliland

A professional singer and actor will be featured in the combined glee clubs' presentation of "The Mikado" on April 23 and 24.

He is Floyd Eaddy, father of junior voice major Conrad Eaddy and a voice teacher in St. Petersburg, Fla. Mr. Eaddy is taking the part of "Ko-ko", which requires a great deal of acting as well as singing ability. He has performed professionally in Gilbert and Sullivan shows a great many times.

Rest Are Students

The remainder of the cast is composed of members of the Men's Glee Club and All Girl Choir. Most of the solo parts have two singers, since there will be a separate cast for each night.

Here are the soloists as announced by director Miss Sellick. Where two names are given, it does not necessarily signify the night on which they will be singing.

Actors

Nanki-Poo: Conrad Eaddy and Daisy Walker; Yum-Yum: Martha Jackson and Elaine Sipple; Ko-Ko: Floyd Eaddy; the Mikado: Jim Darroch: Pooh-bah; Cary Valentine and Jerry Walker; Pish-Tush: Jack Barber and Sonny Shackleford; Pitti-Sing: Barbara Chubb and Mary Virginia Ferguson; Peep-Bo: Shirland Roussey and Doris Scott; and Katisha: Beverly Brooks and Helen Petts.

Bob Mizelle, president of the Men's Glee Club is general manager for the show.

Production

The following are in charge of production:

Stage manager: Art Van Alystyne; technicians: Jack Barber and Jerry Walker; designer: Bob

Madrigal Singers Add Two Students

Two new members have been appointed to the Madrigal Singers recently, in place of Ann Dishner and Pat Ingles, who did not return to Maryville this semester. They are Betty Hammers, from Stewartstown, Pa., and Shirley Postlethwaite, from Blandensburg, Md.

In 1947, Mr. Harter organized this unique chamber choral group which has gained local recognition in East Tennessee, both for its choral achievements and for the manner in which it brings the spirit of the Elizabeth period to life.

Peak of Madrigals

The 16th Century saw the flowering of informal music, unsurpassed in beauty, and designed to bring pleasure to the singer, as well as to the listener. It sings in a free contrapuntal style of the loves, the sadness, the fun of the times. It is the rediscovery of this refreshing kind of song to which the Maryville College Madrigal Singers are dedicated.

The singers perform in the authentic manner, without direction or accompaniment, and seated about a table. This was the custom popular in the 15th and 16th centuries.

YW Slates 'Brotherhood'

YWCA will meet at 1:30 p.m. Sunday in the Fine Arts Center for a Y radio program.

The theme of the program will be "Christian Brotherhood".

French Club Offers Movie Thursday

Members of the French Club and anyone else who is interested are going to see a French movie Thursday evening, February 26. The movie, "The Queen's Lover" which is based on Victor Hugo's play "Ruy Blas," is in French with English subtitles.

A bus will leave from in front of Anderson Hall at 6:30 p.m., and the total cost of bus and movie will be $1. This excursion will take the place of the usual French Club meeting.

Pub. Com. Adds Five To Staff

At a meeting of the Student-Faculty Publications Committee last Thursday Dwight Moody, sophomore German major from Aledo, Ill., was added to the staff of The Highland Echo as assistant business manager.

The Publications Committee approved the addition of sophomores Wayne Brooks, chemistry major from Oklahoma City, Okla., and Betty Ham, English major from Stone Mountain, Ga., to the editorial staff to fill the vacancies left by Gail Brown and Pat Ingles.

Freshmen Mary Moranville from Nashville, and Sadie Davis from Owen Cross Roads, Ala., were also added to the editorial staff by the committee.

Echo Editor Van Holland announces that there are openings on the staff still available to interested freshmen.

Alpha Sigma Chooses Jean Maxwell Sweetheart Of '53

By Betty Ham

Jean Maxwell, junior from Clinton, S.C., was presented as sweetheart of Alpha Sigma for 1953 in the annual Sweetheart Show last Saturday, February 14, by Joe Bender, president.

Miss Maxwell's court of cupids consisted of Nancy Ferguson, escorted by John Glanville; Bev Brooks, escorted by Harry McCall; Sally Butts, escorted by Bill Davis; and Beth Chamberlain, escorted by Ken Wilkinson.

Lowry Narrator

Joe Lowry was narrator for the show. A girl's trio, made up of Carol Moore, Martha Jackson, and Doris Scott, sang "A Fellow Needs a Girl."

The chorus, led by Judy Burgos and Charlie Greathouse, consisted of Helen Seay, Carolyn Symmes, Doris Scott, Mildred Cooper, Grace Benham, Harry McCall, Jim Daniels, Don Brakebill, John Barrows, and George Carpenter.

Barbara Schwoebel and Henry Emmons were the pianists for the occasion.

The sweetheart and her attendants were silhouetted in a large heart before they stepped from behind the backdrop into the view of the audience. This was a very effective and well received way of presenting the sweethearts.

Mizelle Chairman

Bob Mizelle was general chairman for the production. The script was written by George Carpenter and Don Brakebill.

In charge of the set were John Glanville, Jack Barber, and Mary Jim Bevan. Lighting was handled by Dwight Moody and Wayne Feehrer.

Concert Slated April 27

The concert by cellist Luigi da Silva, which was postponed in January because of his illness, has been rescheduled and will be held on April 27.

Freshmen Plan Talent Show

Campus talent will appear in the musical production, "The Green Years," to be given by the Freshman class on Saturday, March 7.

Crammed full of acting, ballroom, tap, and modern dancing, acrobatics, instrumentals, solos and choruses, this extravaganza will provide the class of '56 with ample opportunity to display their ability and versatility. One talented member, Ann Bucher, has not only written the musical, but is also directing it.

Judges

Those passing judgement at the try-outs are upper-classmen Joanne Edwards, George Caldwell, and Will Stradtman, and the heads of the production committee—Walt Fosbrook, Betty Messer, and Bill Howell.

In charge of the sets for this gala production are Liz Frei and Carry Valentine, while Ethelyn Cathey and Esther Lerch are responsible for the pre-scenes. Susan Cook and Jean Boyd will be publicizing this event, while Don Layton will be getting out the programs. Dave Williams will be coordinating the music. Jack Spiegner and Morgan Biggs are responsible for the songs.

Director

Directing the work behind the scenes will be stage manager Charles Rodgers. Also unseen, but very important on that special night will be Jo Brooks to see that all players get proper make-up and Phil Paul and Jim Sanborn who will be responsible for the lighting effects.

Assisting these committee heads are many able and cooperative class members to make this a show of freshman talent that Maryville will not forget.

Lebanonese Slated For Wednesday

Mrs. Madia Khouri-Makdissi, an outstanding leader in education and civic activities in Beruit, Lebanon, will visit Maryville College Wednesday and Thursday, February 25, 26.

Mrs. Makdissi is tentatively scheduled to speak Wednesday night at 7 p.m. in Thaw education room to IRC, and Thursday morning in chapel.

Entered U. S. In January

She arrived in the United States on January 28. Her lecture tour, which will take her into 18 states east of the Mississippi, is under the sponsorship of American friends of the Middle East.

Born in England of Lebanonese parents, she speaks English fluently, and is familiar with Western culture and thinking. Her interpretation of current events is most vivid when seen against her background of the old and colorful tradition of the Middle East.

From Maryville, Mrs. Makdissi will go to New York.

German Club To Give 'Wilhelm Tell' Monday

On Monday, February 23, the German Club will present a full length movie version of the classic, "Wilhelm Tell", at 7 p.m. in 204 Fayerweather.

The movie is open only to members or affiliate members of the German Club. Anyone who is interested in an affiliate membership should see Sandra Miller, Don Thorn, Jody Weaver, Fanny Weber, or Herr Reber.

On February 11, the German Club held a meeting for the purpose of making arrangements for the movie and to select new officers for the semester.

Officers elected were Herbert Catlin, president; Jody Weaver, vice-president; Sandra Miller, secretary; and Don Thorn, treasurer.

Lecturer Grant To Visit Campus

By Bert Hadley

Donald Grant, lecturer on international affairs, is to be the guest of Maryville College March 5 and 6.

On March 5 Mr. Grant is to speak in chapel on the subject "Danger Spots of the World;" at 10:30 a.m. to the English History class on "Life in Britain Today;" in the Music Hall of the Fine Arts Center at 7:30 p.m. on "Russia, 1917-1953."

Two Lectures

Mr. Grant will present following two lectures: March 6, at 8:30 a.m., in Thaw 214, "Africa," and at 7:30 p.m. in the Music Hall, FAC, "Britain Giving Up Power."

Grant is a graduate of Edinburgh University, a world traveler, and an interpreter of international affairs. During the years 1936-1946, Grant was invited more times than any other lecturer to interpret the world to American students by the Institution of International Education, New York.

Great Interpreter

One authority states, concerning Mr. Grant, "Easily heard and readily listened to, he stresses background, uses maps, invites questions. Believing in the absolute value of personal, responsible living and the creative principles of Western Civilization—and able to state and expound his faith, he has been influencing colleges and schools in Britain, Canada, and the United States during the past fifteen years."

Visited Four Times

Mr. Grant has lectured four times previously at MC. During these visits he has won many friends among the community and faculty.

Dr. Campbell To Speak At Vespers Sunday

Speaker at Vespers at 7 p.m. this Sunday will be Dr. E. Fay Campbell, of Philadelphia. Dr. Campbell, who is secretary of the division of higher education of the Board of Christian Education of the Presbyterian Church in the U.S.A., is in Knoxville to attend the Presbyterian Faculty Conference there.

The Vesper Chior will provide the special music at the service.

Student Council Plans Activities

At the Student Council meeting Wednesday night, February 18, the following things were discussed:

(1) The Blood Drive was scheduled for April 30. It is hoped that every one contributes to make the drive a success.

(2) The council voted in favor of inviting the colleges of East Tennessee to a meeting on M.C. campus for the purpose of organizing an East Tennessee Council of Colleges.

(3) The council sponsored the World Day of Prayer program in chapel Friday.

(4) The council will offer its assistance in the planning of the May Day program.

(5) A special closed meeting of the council will be held on Saturday night to discuss the general lack of spirit and the pervading feeling of discontent on campus.

Library Installs Micro-Projector

A Recordax microfilm projector has been placed in the library behind the card catalogue file for use by all students and faculty for research work.

This projector was set up by a member of the Eastman Kodak Company during first semester test week, and a roll of film was placed in it for display purposes. The projector arrived during the month of November, but could only be unpacked and assembled by a company representative.

At the present time the library is only using the machine for microfilm files of The New York Times. All 1952 issues of the Times are now available on film.

Cheaper And Easier

The new way of storing newspapers has solved a storage problem for the library, and will also be cheaper, according to Miss Ruth Grierson, past college librarian. The annual cost to the library for an entire year of The New York Times will only be $140, as compared with a former yearly cost of $375.

Magazine articles, books, and other materials usually available only on interlibrary loans, may be microfilmed at a cost of between one and two cents per page.

Theta Plans Party

Theta Epsilon's meeting tonight at 6:15 in Theta Hall will be a "Gay '90's" party.

All members are asked to be there.

Miss Heron's 'Black Book' Yields Freshman Oddities

By Carol Moore

It seems that in any profession one has a tendency to save little things that will in the future bring fond memories to the collector. The biologist saves his prettiest butterflies, the doctor collects his bottled tonsils, the lawyer writes out his best arguments, the dancer saves her programs, the actress her bouquet; but what can the teacher cherish?

Black Notebook

Having put this question to Miss Jessie Heron, freshman English instructor, she chuckled, then drew from her desk drawer a small black notebook and laid it open before me. Each page was covered on both sides with strange sentences and comments, some of them positively idiotic! This, you see, was her collection, page after page of freshmen's humorous mistakes.

The first one that caught my eye was, "We had everything: eggs, bacon, savage, coffee. . ." (Sounds like a lovely meal, doesn't it?)

This was followed by "A slaying party or a caroling party are always lots of fun." (Written during the French Revolution, no doubt!)

So They Went

And so they went on. . . "Their (women missionaries) health is more affected by climate than men."

"A topic sentence contains the jest. . .of the paragraph."

"When we stretched our necks over the hill there stood a white frame building."

Book report: "The author portrays the picture of the bullfight in Undefended very well. There was a great deal of excitement and suspension.

"The Soviet Union hasn't accepted a deportee from the United States since Linen's time."

A New Puritanism

Dr. Nels F. S. Ferre, professor of the philosophy of religion at Vanderbilt University, is today recognized as one of the leading Christian philosophers in the country. One of his lectures delivered at the meeting of the Presbyterian Educational Association of the South in 1951 in Montreat, N. C., contains some ideas that we think are especially applicable to our local situation.

Concerning "Ethics and Education," Dr. Ferre stated, "This approach also stresses moral discipline, most importantly from within but also by the school. No amount of religious interest is going to produce a new creative day unless that interest effects a new Puritanism. With Puritanism we do not mean the theory pleasure is bad. Quite the contrary. Legitimate pleasure should result in thanksgiving and be received with prayer. Pleasure behooves the house and people of God. God is the author of all good things and no good thing will he withhold from them that love him. Only a religion driven by fear feels guilty about having normal pleasure. Such guilt is a sign that the haver of it is not saved, for love throws out such fear. Nor do we mean with the new Puritanism any kind of moralism where negativities assure the escaper of life of divine favor. We cannot reach the moral heaven by the punishing of ourselves. Hair shirts are not the way of the Gospel. Some hair shirts mean control of mores. Smoking spells expulsion. The winebibber is cast out while the righteous prig is in the administration's favor. The more careless and therefore obvious sexual offenders are debarred from educational privileges, while the smoothies, too smart to get caught, preside at the senior banquets.

"There must be discipline institutionally, even though the law might not actually cave in if the woman taken in adultery is not stoned. Christian discipline is, however, never a matter of keeping the skirts of any institution clean and free from criticism. Christian discipline is redemptive and wisely concerned with each and all for the fostering of fellowship. Genuine love, wisdom, and personal humility is required for the practical teaching of Christian ethics by the administration procedures. Ethics may be too existential for that. No individual ought, however, to 'be made an example' or be disciplined for the common good in an external fashion. Getting rid of the student is not getting rid of his problem. The community should be intent on saving him and not itself, finding thereby its own best salvation."

—E. V. H.

On Brotherhood

For centuries, civilization has fought to gain and preserve the basic human rights of religious freedom, tolerance and the brotherhood of mankind.

Our nation was founded upon just such principles. Devotion to them has helped build the spiritual strength without which America could never have achieved lasting greatness.

We think it is indeed fortunate that a nation-wide organization, the National Conference of Christians and Jews, has dedicated itself to keeping those ideals alive. We believe it to be of everlasting importance that a free people never lose sight of the necessity of spreading the kinship of man under God.

This is, of course, a year-around proposition. But since 1934, a Brotherhood Week has been held annually under auspices of the Conference to dramatize universal dependence on the need for true religion in the crusade for liberty and democracy. This year, Brotherhood Week is being held this week of February 15-22.

Now perhaps more than ever before, America faces a challenge from a godless philosophy that would destroy all human and religious rights. The nation is pouring out its wealth to build material strength against the threat of Communism. But despite this, the united cause against the enemy could be weakened were we to become divided by intolerance and bigotry.

Acceptance of the meaning of Brotherhood Week can help build up the spiritual and moral power vital to this fight. This newspaper is proud to support the week and urges the public to participate.

Here I am, propped up with three pillows at my head and two at my feet. Uh-huh—sprained ankle. Seems to be an annual occurance at Baldwin!

And so, from my bed of pain, I wish to express my deepest gratitude to all those who have helped me with their kind suggestions and deep sympathies. Thank you.

Diana Evans, for rushing up to me immediately upon my downfall and saying kindly, "Whasa matter, Crosby, weren't you getting enough attention?"

Janna Boggs and Pat Jones, for carrying me back to Baldwin after that fateful game. (Who won, anyhow?) Of course, their arms slipped and they dropped me a couple of times, but does that really matter?

And very special thanks to Jen Hurst for telling me about the bottle of alcohol in her room.

PREVIEWS

At the Capitol Monday, Tuesday, and Wednesday, it's "The Clown," a remake of the 1931 success, "The Champ." In this version, Red Skelton plays a broken-down funnyman with Tim Consindine as his worshipful young son.

The picture is a tear jerker, with the usual brave child who courageously endures his dad's continual boozing and crapshooting. And, of course, the father dies at the fadeout, after making good on a TV show.

We couldn't find out very much about "Cattletown" or the Saturday Capitol feature, "Cripple Creek," but the titles have the favor of western intrigue.

The Park, after beginning the week with "Sarong Girl" (You can draw your own conclusions), brings out "One Minute To Zero" for two exciting days, Tuesday and Wednesday.

In "One Minute to Zero," Robert Mitchum is a U.S. infantryman helping to outmaneuver the Reds in Korea in 1950. After the usual number of action scenes and combat heroics, Colonel Mitchum succeeds in knocking out a Communist supply and turns the U.S. defensive into an offensive.

As a result he is promoted to general and wins the love of Ann Blythe, who is serving as a member of a UN health and sanitation team.

Well, if you didn't see it last summer, here's another chance to enjoy a little golf and tennis in the Park's "Pat and Mike," as Katharine Hepburn plays the athletic instructor turned pro.

When her promoter Spencer Tracy discovers that her fiance is a jinx to her atheltic performance, the show rises in interest. With no mush, the coach gets the gal in a pleasantly amusing comedy with an excellent supporting cast.

HAM IS HERE

In the book line, "Give Us This Valley," by Tom Ham, Betty Ham's father, arrived in the library this week. It is a romantic historical novel set in the North Georgian mountians, and concerns the exciting and tender first years of marriage of an adventurous young couple.

MUSIC NOTES

We are watching with anticipation the progress of the glee clubs' "Mikado" which will be presented April 23 and 24. We are also looking forward to hearing the All Girl Choir sing for Vespers a week from tomorrow.

Don't forget to continue your Sunday afternoon of radio music by turning, after the symphony, to WGAP at four o'clock to hear Curtis Hughes at the Holtkamp organ.

"ON STAGE"

One dramatic presentation that received little note is the missionary play that is being given as a Parish project. Excellently acted and directed, it is being presented at various small churches in this area and was well received at Student Vols last week.

We hear that the Experimental Theater is also touring. "Box and Cox" has been given in Oak Ridge and will be taken to Pitman Center tonight. And the very delightful "Rumpelstiltskin" is to be performed in four off-campus appearances.

Seniors Eligible For Oak Ridge Fellowships

Maryville College seniors majoring in chemistry, physics or engineering are eligible for Atomic Energy Commission-sponsored graduate fellowships in radiological physics for the 1953-54 school year.

Radiological physics is a new and expanding field of science. It is concerned with health physics, radiation monitoring and control, radioisotope measurements and similar activities associated with the use of radioisotopes or the release of nuclear energy.

75 Fellowships

Up to 75 fellowships may be graduate study to be carried out awarded, with fully-accredited in three locations. One program is operated by the University of Rochester and Brookhaven National Laboratory, another by the University of Washington and the Hanford Works of the AEC, and the third by Vanderbilt University and the Oak Ridge National Laboratory.

In each case, nine months of course work at the university is followed by three months of additional study and field training at the cooperating AEC installation. The program is accredited for graduate-level training leading toward an advanced degree.

$1600 Per Year

Basic stipends for fellows is $1600 per year, with an allowance of $350 if married and $350 for each dependent child. University tuition and required fees will be paid by the Oak Ridge Institute of Nuclear Studies, which administers the program for the AEC.

Additional information on the program may be obtained from science department heads or direct from the Institute at Oak Ridge, Tennessee.

Thursday night ended the Freshman team's schedule and a winning year for the future varsity boys. It was an impressive year for the most part and showed a few fine promising prospects. High on the list are three, Pat Flynn, Charlie "Shakespeare" Partee and Earl Lawson, and all three should make the varsity next year. Pat and Charlie led the Frosh in scoring while Earl was the team's playmaker. Pat should fit in well with the Scots fast break but will probably not hold down a starting job until another year at least. Charlie not only hits from out but gets more than his share fo the rebounds. Passing is his weakest but far from fatal, department. Earl is the all-round handiman and best dribbler on the squad. With his beautiful set shot it is too bad that he doesn't shoot more often, but the playmaker seldom does shoot often.

Two other possibilities to make next year's squad are Lynn Sexton and Jim Saunders. Lynn deserves a good try having played with the Frosh for two years now. You can usually expect a good game from him, but his height is against him. Still, opposing teams learned to watch him closely or else he would score in the double figures. Saunders is a hot and cold ball player who, while tall, doesn't always make the most of his height. Maybe another year or part of a year with the Frosh will smooth him out a little, but he made a big conribution to this year's Frosh record.

Big Niles Meachem, six foot nine inch Chattanooga center, wasn't missed last Tuesday evening as much as the Mocs expected he would he as they won their eighth game against eleven losses. The Scots were not quite so well off as they suffred their eleventh loss against only seven wins. Meachem suffered a deeply cut left hand earlier this season and thus has contributed little to the Moc's success and may be what they have lacked to make this a winning season. He played for a few minutes against the Scots with the hand tightly bandaged but finds it hard to control the ball.

"Baby" Ray, huge Commodore wrestling coach, lived up to his name as he "cried" over Paul Merwin's draw and other little incidents last Saturday night. Seems that he earned the moniker while playing football. He was often the biggest man on the field but he still would cry when someone came through his particular part of the line. Scot fans saw him at his "best" Saturday.

Congratulations to the Snowbirds for winning the intramural tournament. It looked bad for the Snowbirds for awhile as a game Dead End Kids team held the lead throughout most of the game, but class finally came thruogh, or was it John Anderson? John couldn't hit much the first three quarters, but found the range in the final and really went to town.

Bobby Boring, class of '50, has been around the campus quite a bit of late, mainly in the athletic office taking heat treatments for his left ankle. Seems like the ankle, which he injured when he hit a hole sliding into a base down in the Puerto Rican League while playing for the Ponce Club about two months ago, just doesn't want to get well. Bob hit an even .300 with 62 hits and 15 RBI's in 207 times at bat in the winter league. Bob's due to report to the Giant's spring training camp at Phoenix, Arizona, soon, but he is still the property of the Nashville Vols. Our best wishes go along with him with the hope that the ankle gets well soon, and that he makes a big impression in his spring tryouts. If anybody can do it Bobby can.

Should be an interesting meet tonight against Auburn. Hope we can do better than Vandy who was shut out (so we hear) by the Tigers, 30-0, or was it worse?

As this paper goes to press the date for the Knoxville Y wrestling meet has not been reset .It was postponed last semester because of the fall dance and should be reset any day now for sometime in the next two weeks. The match was originally scheduled to be held here, but with the county tournaments here next week it may be held in the Knoxville Y gym.

Scottie Matmen Down Emory, Vanderbilt In Close Dicisions

By Bob Coles

Kipp Deciding Factor In Both, Gets Pin and Draw

Emory

Both matches were decided by George Kipp in the heavyweight class, and George came through both times in fine fashion. In the Emory match, he managed to earn a draw, and save a three point lead which the Scotties held at that time. Kipp had two points, one for an escape, and one for riding time against Bill Johnston's two points for a reverse.

Good Start

The Scotties got off to a good start when Bob Vandergriff and Bill Morse both pinned their men, and both about half-way through the second period. From then on the Scotties had to hang on, because Ken Shepard was pinned with only six seconds left. Smiley Erickson, made his first appearance this year a winning one when he downed Bill Davis, 10-6.

Tom Bugenhagen then beat his opponent, 6-0, to give the Scotties a 16-5 lead. Buddy Gilbert, subbing for Paul Merwin, got himself pinned early in the second period. Bob Buchanan lost a 6-1 decision to make the score 16-13, and leave the difference between a victory and a tie squarely on the broad shoulders of George Kipp. The final verdict on Kipp's match was long in coming, being disputed by the Emory coach.

Summary

123—Bob Vandergriff (M) pinned Jack McLaugglan (E), 2:07, 2nd period.
130—Bill Morse (M) pinned Ross Cox (E), 1:14, 2nd period.
137—Hershel Fulcher (E) pinned Ken Shepard (M), 2:54, 3rd. period.
147—Dick Erickson (M) decision over Bill Davis (E), 10-6
157—Tom Bugenhagen (M) decision over Dick Lane (E), 6-0
167—Clyde Traylor (E) pinned Buddy Gilbert (M), 2:00, 2nd period.
177—Dan Welch (E) 'decision over Bob Buchanan (E), 2-2
Hvw.—George Kipp (M) draw with Bill Johnston (E), 2-2.

Scots Take Thriller From Vandy

Bill Morse for the first time in a long time did not pin his man at Maryville, although his opponent, Dick Gross, was saved by the whistle at the end of the first two periods. Tom Bugenhagen avenged a bad 6-0 beating at Vanderbilt with a pin in the second period of his match. Paul Merwin was the hardest pressed of the evening. Despite a fairly clear win, Paul had to settle for a draw when he gave up four points on penalties and had to rely on a point for riding time to gain his draw.

We Was Robbed

In the opening match, Bob Vandergriff lost a heartbreaker to Paul Smotherman, whom Bill Morse could only decision at Vanderbilt. Smotherman had one point for an escape, and to biased spectators it looked as if Vandergriff got out too, but the referee didn't see it that way and Bob lost, 1-0.

Big Bill

Bill Morse then had to work diligently to win over a match with Dick Gross, 6-0. Bill had two near-falls, but didn't have the time to pin his man. After Morse, Ken Shepard, always improving, lost to Harrington Witherspoon, 6-1. Shepard had one point for an escape while Witherspoon had two each for a reverse, takedown, and a nearfall. Jimmy Harris next put up another game fight, but dropped a 6-2 loss to Bill Day. Harris had a takedown, but Day had two reverses, and two points for time advantage.

Turn-About

Tom Bugenhagen then put Maryville back into the match when he slapped a pin-hold on Bill Gibson very early in the second period, and Merwin added two more points in his draw with Bill Eleazer which ended in a 6-6 tie.

The End

After Bob Buchanan lost a 4-0 match to Bill Rice to make the score 14-10 against Maryville, George Kipp, needing a pin to win the match went right after it. It took him only a minute and a half to get his pin and the victory for Maryville. The workout bothered Kipp so little that he had to do push-ups in the dressing room to work up enough sweat to take a shower.

Summary

123—Paul Smotherman (V) decision over Bob Vandergriff (M) 1-0.
130—Bill Morse (M) decision over Dick Gross (V), 6-0.
137—Harrington Witherspoon (V) decision over Ken Shepard (M) 6-1.
147—Bill Day (V) decision over Jim Harris (M), 6-2.
157—Tom Bugenhagen (M) pinned Bill Gibson (V), 0:58, 2nd. per.
167—Paul Merwin (M) draw with Bill Eleazer (V), 6-6.
177—Bill Rice (V) decision over Bob Buchanan (M), 4-0.
Heavyweight—George Kipp (M) pinned Bill Gaughner (V), 1:30, 1st. period.

Wasps Sting Scots

The Wasps were again paced by high scoring Phil Long who hit the basket for 41 points. Jack Keny led the Scotties with 26 points. Although the Scots led 21-19 at the end of the first quarter Long scored 23 points in the second quarter and put the Wasps in the lead. The Wasps were ahead 48-30 at half time.

In the third quarter the Scots controlled Long's scoring and held him to a single basket by double teaming him. The Scots narrowed the margin of lead but the Wasps led 62-59 at the end of the quarter.

In Saturday's contest Scot sub Bill Blair led the scorers with 18 points. Jack Keny scored 17 points for the Scots. King was paced by subs L. Moore and Edgar who scored 17 and 16 respectively.

Both teams got off to a slow start, but King College was able to forge ahead at the end of the first quarter to lead 11-10. The game continued nip-and-tuck throughout the second quarter but King was leading 29-27 at half time. The Kingsmen increased their lead during the third quarter and led 53-42 as the final period began.

Scots Beat Vols

Last minute foul shooting by Bill Blair and Bob Shelton, each hitting one of their two shots, broke a 63-63 deadlock to give the Scots a two point win over the Baby Vols. It was the second time this year that the Scots have walked off with a win over the UT team.

The game was close all the way with the Vols taking an early first quarter lead. In the second quarter the Scot defensive held tight limiting the Vols to only seven points. Led by the easy hook-shooting of Jack Keny, who scored nine points in the second quarter, the Scots took a one point half-time lead.

From the end of the third period to the end of the game neither team ever held more than a three point lead, which changed hands regularly. Second half play was hard and fast with plenty of fouls.

Keny took evenings scoring honors with twenty-two and Abbott was runner-up with fifteen. Hogan, McKinnon and Bud Archer each accounted for ten counters for the losers.

Mocs Down Scots

The Chattanooga Moccasins, off to a flying start in the first quarter behind the brilliant shooting of John Arney, who poured through 21 points in the first quarter, in addition to collecting four fouls in the same period, could not hold their initial lead, but managed to turn on a last period burst and beat the Scotties 89-82. Arney cooled off and collected only six points for the rest of the game, but still ended up high-point man for the evening with 29.

For the Scotties, Dick Abbott had 25 points to lead the parade, followed by Jack Keny with 18, and A. C. McWilliams with 14. The Highlanders led at the end of the first quarter, 26-25, and by matching the Mocs point for point through the second quarter held the same one point lead at half-time. The pace began to tell, however, and at the end of the third period they trailed by there, falling four more farther behind in the last section as they were outscored, 19-14.

Stinking Shoe Classic Features Alpha Sigma And Athenians

Who will get possession of the odiferous shoes now in the hands of Alpha Sigma? This question will be answered Saturday night, when Alpha Sig meets Athenian in the fourth annual stinking shoe classic. It is not known if it is a honor or not to possess these legendary shoes, but the Sig's have them due to their 45-33 victory last year.

Such big names as Howie Gress, Dock Jennings, Horace Beckwith, Arnie Munn, Ken Hammond, and Beth Mizzele for Alpha Sigma and Dick Kerr, Kent Buser, Dave Gates, Squeeks Lebold, and Bill Addy for Athenian will appear in the line-up. It promises to be a nip-and-tuck affair, so come on out and enjoy yourselves Saturday night.

Tonight the Auburn Tigers meet the Scots on the mats at eight o'clock. Auburn, 1952 Southeastern NCAA champions, boosts their usual strong team. Last year five members held Southeastern NCAA titles before graduation hit the squad.

Maryville has never won a meet in sex meeting between the two teams. Last year the Scots fell 29-5 with only Bill Morse gaining a pin for all of the Scotties' points. The year before was even worse as Auburn won 30-0.

Tonight it is expected that Auburn will bring several extra grapplers for exhibition matches. It is the last scheduled home match of the season so let's have all Scot fans out in force.

Varsity Side-Pocket

By Dixie Conner

Cheers and excitement reached their peak this week as the Chillies and Howies played the final games of their basketball tournament. When Thursday rolled around the two teams were pulling to win, each having won two games out of four. Barbara Rogers coached the girls under Mrs. Queener's able direction and when she was needed, helped officiate. Captains and managers, elected by their respective teams were— Chillies-capt., Jay Spencer; mrg., Janna Boggs; Howies—capt., Liz Murphy; mgr., Hazel Robinson. Under their enthusiastic supervision neither team let down its guard to give the other a chance. And so, when the Howies pulled ahead in the first of the last game, the Chillies were in there fighting all the way. But for "Bevo" Laing, who totaled 176 points in five games, the Chillies would never have done as well as they did. For her first year in forward position Henny played a beautiful point-piling game. Both teams went through the tournament with a fine display of teamwork and sportsmanship, although there was blood in their eyes prior to the final game.

BEAT THE BEANS OUT OF THE CHILLIES!

The battle cry of the Howies resounds through the dressing room as Captain Murphy gives a last-minute pep talk. The first game, played February 5 got off to a good start. The Howies pulled ahead at the first and held their lead throughout. The whole Howie team got to play as the score went up to 74-66. High-scorers were Mary Alice Kemp, Howies, and H. Laign, Chillies.

The Howies came in there to win the second game, although this time it was a real fight. Emma Curtis had crawled out of the sick bed to toss in 20 points for the Chillies, and H. Laing raised her score. Liz Murphy pulled through with 30 points, though, and with an excellent team of fast-moving, hard-playing gals, came out with a score of 74-62. The guards, too, were really on the ball, as Joan Herschelman, Janet Schneck, and Shirley Axley did their best to keep the ball away from Henny.

BEAT THE "H" OUT OF THE HOWIES!

And the Chillies came up with a team yell, Curtis playing guard, and guards Thompson, Boggs, Spencer, and Drinnen putting on the presure to give the Howies the set-back everyone was waiting for. Even Betty Harrill couldn't stop Henny as the two of them fought over the ball. The final score was 66-62.

College Marching Band Elects Yoakum Prexy

Ann Yoakum, junior chemistry major from Alcoa, was elected president of The College Marching Band recently.

Mary Ann Thompson, sophomore physical education major from Maryville, was chosen as vice president, and Walt Hiller, sophomore business administration major from Pittsburgh, Pa., was selected secretary-treasurer.

The Band operates as a marching unit only during the Fall semester. For the second semester it reorganized into a concert band. The first concert will be given on March 28.

W. Curtis Hughes is the conductor.

YM Plans Brotherhood

MISS HERON . . .

well known social worker was attempting marriage.

"The people watched the heads roll from the guillotine with little unconcern.

"The Roman Pope said that the purpose of marriage was to bring up young kids with the Christian ideals of life.

"I think that this play "King Lear" is very great, because if a person don't do right in this world, he won't never get to the next one.

"Knute Rockne's fatal death was caused by a plane crash.

". . . ladies were shocked over sexual immortality.

"Citrus fruit can be grown where. . . the temperature does not go... below 180 degrees F.

"Your speech was very interesting. You used too many jestors, though.

"John James Audubon was born, according to his wife, on his father's plantation.

"The Great Smoky Mountains is a project of the United States.

Beowulf

"I was horrified when Beowulf killed the dragon.

"I believe that I have studied as much as anyone, but I have not obtained the power of consecration.

"A good coach is a coach who uses physiology.

"From the year 1872 to 1884 he worked on his book and on his death. . ."

"If a noble woman's husband dies, she need not expect to be a widow very long for a man is then required to man her fiefs, and then she spreads her beauty.

"The happiest moment for MC students will come when that final examination is over and we head again for home to be with our families and those we love for another Christmas season."

That's quite a collection, isn't it? And there are many we don't have room to print this time. But perhaps at a later date we can bring you some more of these freshmen flubs that tell us, in no uncertain terms, why, upon walking into the classroom, Miss Heron made the statement, "I think freshmen are stupid!"

WOMAN'S VARSITY . . .

JINNY SMITH TAKES PING-PONG TOURNAMENT

Virginia Ann Smith, junior, over threw public opinion as she defeated runner-up Jay Spencer in the ping-pong finals played here last week. It was a pretty game as Jinny smashed her way to victory. Both girls played a splendid game, Jay losing by very little her two-out-of-three games.

Music Education Club To Hold Discussion

Music Education Club will meet Thursday, February 26, at 6:30 p. m. in the lounge of the Fine Arts Center.

Various members will discuss leading magazines in the field of music education.
